Officials say they will honor SMC election results

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

Although the December 10 election concerning the sale of Shelby Medical Center is only a poll of public opinion, many members of the county commission and the hospital board intend to follow the wishes of voters.

"I think the commission ought to stack the board to get the numbers to carry out the wishes of the people if the citizens of Shelby County vote to sell Shelby Medical Center and the hospital board does not comply," said Tommy Snowden, chairman of the Shelby County Commission.

Commissioner Leon Archer also said, "I think the commission may have to put more people on the hospital board who would see the wishes of the people carried out."

Commissioner Harold Davenport made a similar statement. "If it's the wish of the people to sell the hospital, the commissioners may have to add more board members. That's as plain as I can put it."

Commissioners Gregg Rushton and John Ames could not be reached.

Ames has said in the past that the commission would take action to force the board to comply with public wishes if necessary.

However, several SMC Board of Trustees members who oppose a sale of the hospital have said they will vote as the public wants.

"I guess we'll have to go along with what the people say — there's nothing else we could do — and just hope everything will be fine," said Eloise Underwood, an SMC board member.

"I'll certainly abide by the people's wishes and not stand in the way of how people vote," said board member Tom Stubbs.

Stubbs said he thinks people will vote against the sale.

Joe Arledge, another board member, said if a "good majority vote to sell the hospital, I would definitely be swayed. The election doesn't bother me that much because I don't believe the people will vote to sell it."

C.E. "Bull" Carter, a board member who opposes the sale, said, "If the people vote to sell it, I'll change my mind."

Before the election, "We'll just have to make the people aware of what a fine facility they have, and why sell it? Then if they vote to sell, that's their business."

Board member Laura Willis, also against the sale, said her decision would be influenced by voter turnout.

"If 60 percent of the registered voters say to sell, I'd have to vote to sell it. But I don't think you can judge by six or seven percent of the population."

Pete Raughley, a board member who has withheld his opinion on the sale until after a public vote, said, "Whatever the people decide is how Pete Raughley's going to vote."

Board members Doug Ballard, Lou Workman, Reid Long, Tom Lloyd and Jerome Turner could not be reached before presstime.

Commissioners said they would drop the issue if a public vote opposed a sale.

A major reason for the special election having been called so soon, according to Archer, is that the commission sets millage taxes in February.

"Some of the people I talk to say the most hated tax in the county is the hospital tax," Davenport said.

If the people and the SMC board both vote for a sale, a date for buyers to bid on the hospital could be set for around January 10, Archer said. He said a committee with representatives from the commission, the board and citizens might make recommendations to the board of "which company has the best bid and would provide the best care."

Archer stressed that his statements were "strictly my opinion. We haven't gotten into details."

The commission is expected to discuss dates for public hearings and the wording of the referendum on the ballot at its next meeting, set for 9 a.m., Tuesday, Nov. 12.

In the meantime, the SMC board has called a special meeting about the referendum for Saturday, Nov. 9 at 6 p.m.

Legislators hear superintendent argument

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

Shelby County voters will probably get the opportunity to express their views on electing or appointing a superintendent of education.

Whether the outcome of the election is binding however, depends on county legislators.

If the legislature does not pass a bill for the issue to be included on the November 1986 general election ballot, the vote would be only an advisory opinion.

Last week, the two local legislators who attended a work session with the board remained noncommittal on introducing a bill.

Although a roomful of county residents on both sides of the issue expressed their views, Senator Butch Ellis and Representative Sonny Moore said they wanted further input from the public before making a decision.

Board President Barbara Whitman said the superintendent's issue and the election of board members from districts will probably be included on the November ballot even if it is not by legislative enactment.

In the board's original proposal, both issues were together, but board member Dr. Bill Fancher and others urged their separation. Fancher said he did not want one issue to fail because of the defeat of the other.

With the exception of Paul Sumners, the board favors an appointed superintendent. It's Sumner's view that all of the elected superintendents have been good and there is no reason to change.

Sumners also said he doesn't think three board members would be better qualified to choose a superintendent than 40,000 voters.

In answer to that argument, Whitman said the board would have "qualified, experienced assistance" in making the appointment.

One of the advantages Al Knight cited for an appointed superintendent, was having a larger pool of people to draw from. With the election process, the candidate must be from the county.

Board member Joe Coggins said that of the 10 largest school systems in the state, Shelby is the only system whose superintendent is not appointed.

Taking issue with the matter of size, Education Superintendent Ellie Glasscox said he did not think that should be an overriding factor.

"We have a better system than some of those above us," he said. "I don't think we should jump off the deep end because others are."

Bookmobile out of service

A broken crankshaft has put the Shelby County bookmobile out of commission and all bookmobile services have been suspended indefinitely.

This includes the new trial stops at Piggly Wiggly on Valleydale Road and Our Lady of the Valley Catholic Church on Cahaba Valley Road.

Bookmobile patrons with books now due will not be charged over-due fines, although books may be returned to any Shelby County library at the desk during regular business hours or at the 24-hour book-drop box after hours.

County-wide borrower's cards are now being processed and will be delivered soon through the mail.

Nancy Woosley, director of the Shelby County Library System, said the 11-year-old bus could run again for $7,500, "but that comes with no guarantees."

Shelby's UW drive goes over the top

The Shelby County division of the United Way campaign has exceeded its goal by raising $513,013.

"That's 102 percent," Ken Williams, Shelby County's United Way chairman, announced last Friday at the United Way headquarters.

Williams was the only division chairman of the three county Jefferson-Shelby-Walker campaign to report each of his six sections reaching or exceeding the 100 percent goal.

The announced goal for fundraising in Shelby County was $500,374 although something over $2.5 million was spent in United Way agencies serving Shelby County citizens last year, Williams reported.

Breakdown for the six areas of contributions and area chairmen for Shelby County are as follows:

- North Shelby County businesses, Leo Karples; $368,753 - 100 percent

- South Shelby County businesses, Reid Long; $124,453 - 107 percent

- Metro-small businesses, Ken

Head to head

Shelby County's "big boys" met head-to-head on the gridiron Friday night with Thompson taking an 18-7 win over Pelham in the season-ending grudge match between the county's 5A schools. The regular season ended for most county squads on Friday, but three county teams are headed into state play-off action this weekend and Shelby County and Coosa Valley will decide the county's private school championship. Some board members disagreed with setting a special election so soon.

"I don't know why we need a special election. I don't think there's that much of an emergency," Stubbs said. "The hospital's certainly not in a crisis now. I don't think there's any need to rush it," he added.

Board member Louise Underwood said the December 10 date may be "just as good a time as ever." Although she voted against having a referendum at this time, "I would be for a referendum as long as the people are informed."

Joe Arledge, another board member, said, "I think the hospital is in just as good a position as any other hospital. All hospitals are in trouble."

He added that potential buyers must feel the hospital would be a good investment and "if it'll turn around for them, it'll turn around for us."

Carter called the referendum premature, saying more time was needed after the hospital audited financial statement is presented at the Nov. 26 SMC board meeting to "break it down where most people could understand and get the information out."

Board member H.A. "Doc" Rubin called the prospective election "a confused situation. People won't know what they are voting for. The idea of sale should not even be entertained."

One reason given for calling a special election was that a large ballot is expected for the primary election in June. "It should be the main issue at hand and not just get lost on a large ballot," Archer said.

"If you've got an issue, just go ahead and bring it to the forefront," Snowden said. "Settle it once and for all. It's been lingering as long as I remember."

Snowden also said candidates for the primary election were concerned that the sale of the hospital would be the overriding issue in the campaign if the hospital vote were included in the primary election.

Davenport, who voted with the other commissioners to set the December 10 election, had mixed feelings.

"I think the commissioners felt like putting it off til June wouldn't be fair to the candidates running for office," Davenport said.

Because the majority of the commission favored the earlier election, and because the special election did not cost as much as had been rumored, he voted with the others.

According to Bill Tucker, who supervises elections in the county, the election will cost about $8,000. Expenses had been rumored at $100,000.

"I think the longer you wait, the more confused it's going to get. If you waited six months, I don't think all the issues would be brought out," Davenport said.

Archer noted conflicting statements about hospital finances. "The hospital business in general is in a bad financial state. I think the hospital undoubtedly has lost money."

"We felt if the hospital was owned by a private company, beds would be filled, people would be put back to work, the hospital would start paying ad valorem taxes and services would be as good or better," Davenport said.

In casual conversations, Snowden has found "more people saying sell than not, but unless those people go to the polls, it doesn't mean anything. Whoever turns out to vote will be the ones we'll listen to."

Job Corps alive in county

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

A program begun in 1965 by the federal government to train disadvantaged youth for the job force remains alive and well in Shelby County today.

But the face of the Job Corps is changing, and Shelby County's first Job Corps "recruitment officer," Debra Plier, wants the youth of Shelby County to know that Job Corps could mean something special to them.

"When it first began," Plier explained, "the Job Corps was aimed predominantly at economically disadvantaged youths who were high school drop-outs or had behavioral problems and had no marketable job skills."

Now, Plier said, the program has widened to accept any economically disadvantaged student between the ages of 16 and 21, even the high school graduate, whose skill level or social development makes his current employment status difficult. The Job Corps takes these youth, trains them at one of the many Job Corps Centers scattered throughout the southeast, and guides them into employment.

Plier, who became the county's first full-time interviewer for the Job Corps in March of this year, said that over 30 youths in Shelby County are currently involved in the Job Corps program. More than 20 Chilton County youths are also involved, giving Plier more than 50 in the two county area she serves.

When we recruit a youth into the Job Corps," Plier said, "we want to help them become better citizens, better able to handle their problems as well as helping them to become employable."

While the Job Corps offers both social and educational opportunities, Plier said the emphasis of the program is on the work ethic rather than creating an alternative school atmosphere.

Plier added that the Job Corps program is beginning to reach a wide variety of youths, not just the "problem" cases the Corps was designed to help.

"We now have opportunities for youths whose only problem may be a financial one," Plier said. "We are attracting better Corps members so as to train better workers."

The various centers throughout the southeast are located near college campuses, on former military bases and in national forests and parks.

All feature dorms for housing, classrooms, a cafeteria, recreational facilities and offices.

While in residence at his assigned center, the Job Corps member will receive help from qualified teachers and counselors in finding and training for the job best suited to him, will not be charged for room and board, will be given an expense allowance and receive any needed minor medical care.

While most Corps members complete their training and instruction within a year, the Corps is available for up to two years. While a member of the Job Corps, students can receive their GED degree and — if applicable — their driver's license.

Once training is completed, Job Corps members receive help in locating employment and must be placed — either back in school, working or in the military service — within six months of completion of their Job Corps service. The majority of the Corps members, Plier said, are employed either back at home or in areas where there is a demand for their skills.

"The Job Corps is not for everyone," Plier said, "but it is becoming better and better for those who need it."

For information concerning the Job Corps program, contact Plier at 663-2542 or 755-0643.

Telling fortunes

Halloween brought witches, rogues and baby snatchers to Pelham City Hall. In Mayor Bobby Hayes' palm, fortune teller JoAnn Mynatt saw crystal ball visions of a big, white domed building 90 miles south of Pelham ... and other visions she would not reveal. Ruth Ann South, right, and pig-tailed Toni Christopher passed out spicy portions of trick-r-treat favors.

Alabaster man robbed, shot in Birmingham

Lawrence Tedrick of Alabaster was listed in fair condition at University Hospital Tuesday after being robbed and shot in Birmingham last Thursday.

Birmingham police say Tedrick was cooperating and giving the robber his money when the man shot him anyway.

Tedrick, 73, is a vendor. He had been buying merchandise from a store in the 2300 block of First Avenue North and was returning to his car when the robbery happened.

Tedrick managed to return to the store for help. Police say there were no witnesses to the crime. "We don't have a whole lot of leads," said Lt. Morgan Knight.

The robber was reported to be a black man about 30 years old.

Bookmobile

It needs a new crankshaft, a new fiberglass front and a new back generator."

Woosley said a new bookmobile, with comparable capacity of about 3,000 books, would cost between $85,000-$87,000.

"We've written the county commission about our situation, and are waiting their reply, but we're not necessarily looking to buy a new bus right away," she said. "The (library) board has agreed to look at alternative services for those people who can't get to a municipal library."

Currently, the Shelby County Library System offers "books by mail" through a federal grant to county residents age 55 and older and those homebound with illness or physical handicaps. Woosley said one alternative - which may prove to be more cost efficient than a bookmobile - is expanding that service to all ages.

"Not everyone could meet our bookmobile schedule, but everyone can use the mail; and the library pays the postage," she said.

Because the bookmobile served mostly North Shelby residents, Woosley said the board also is looking at towing the vehicle to the future site of the North Shelby Library on Hwy. 119 at Caldwell Mill Road and letting it serve as a temporary structure until the new building is completed.

"All we want to do is provide the best library services to the most people with the funds we have," Woosley said.

For more information about the bookmobile or the status of the North Shelby Library, call the Harrison Regional Library at 669-3171.

"The campaign is not over," Williams said. "When I took this assignment, I set $550,000 or 110 percent of the United Way budget as our county goal. We need to exceed the United Way headquarter's goal if we expect to receive additional services needed in this county to meet the needs of our exploding population. We're still a long way from $550,000 and I won't consider the job satisfactorily completed until we've reached that milestone."

This is the first time the Shelby County campaign has been the first division to reach the assigned fundraising goal.

"It indeed shows that for Shelby County Somebody Does Care... the theme for the 1985 United Way campaign," Williams said.

Halloween blood drive

At a Halloween blood drive at Thompson High School, 125 pints of blood were given. Superintendent Continued from front page Glasscox also expressed the opinion that the superintendent should be accountable to the people rather than to the board.

Coggins also pointed to the advantage of long range planning that would be possible with an appointed person.

Another reason given in favor of an appointed superintendent was the fact he would be removed from the political process.

However, Thompson Middle School teacher Judy Smitherman disagreed, saying "you can't remove politics from the position." She added that making a change would not bring about a "super duper educational system." Reporting on a survey taken among teachers, Dale Sumners, president of the county teachers association, said more wanted to change the board than the superintendent.

She said 76 of those responding favored an elected superintendent, while 94 percent favored the election of five board members from districts.

Ellis said he thinks the issue needs to be more clearly defined before being put on the ballot. He referred to a library tax voted on last year, which many believe failed because it was not clearly stated.

The senator also said he thinks a lot of groundwork will have to be done to educate voters on the issue prior to the election.

On the matter of districts, Whitman said the board had considered dividing the county into seven districts so every high school would be represented.

However, there is such a difference in the student population in those schools, Whitman said the board had felt it would be better to stick with five districts.

A committee headed by Hershel Hale of Alabaster has been at work drawing the district lines, trying to make the population as equal as possible.

If the measure passes, board members will be required to run by district, which is presently done under a "gentleman's agreement." The vote would also still be countywide.

Under the legislation being proposed, if voters favor an appointed superintendent, that individual would take office no later than July 1, 1991.

Don't sell

On Tuesday, Dec. 10, Shelby County voters will either pull for or pull against Shelby Medical Center. The vote, however, will not directly decide the fate of the hospital, but it will - or is supposed to - serve as a directive for the SMC Board of Trustees. This is why a large voter turnout is imperative.

A light turnout could jeopardize the county-owned status of SMC in any one of three ways:

1. A handful of voters votes to sell SMC, and the board abides by their wishes.
2. A handful of voters votes to sell, the board refuses to sell at the wishes of only a few, but the commission later stacks the board to sell it anyway.
3. A handful of voters votes to keep SMC, but the commission plays on voter apathy and stacks the board to sell it anyway.

Most commission members have indicated feelings to sell SMC, but they also say they would drop the issue if a majority of those voting cast against the sale. This is why a large voter turnout is imperative.

Most board members have indicated they would abide by the wishes of the voters, although nine of the 12 board members currently are against the sale of SMC. Three are waiting the outcome of the referendum before making public their sentiments.

We stand in favor of keeping Shelby Medical Center a county-owned facility, at least until the bond indebtedness is paid off. We feel the citizens of this county owe it to themselves to keep the hospital which they have been funding for the past 26 years.

The debt has about 20 more years before retirement. Why sell in mid-stream? SMC is far from a state of crisis. It's a financially sound facility, managed by a top-notch administrator, and a decently responsible board. It has state of the art medical equipment and an abundance of talent to keep its patients well.

There's no reason to rush the sale. There's really no reason to sell at all. Only some of the commissioners - and maybe a few board members - want to sell SMC.

We, among others, have contended the only thing wrong with SMC is the politics. We feel the board can deal with its own "politics" if the commission - especially those commissioners who favor stacking the board - would stick to things they can understand like pavings roads and issuing liquor licenses.

SMC is a multi-million dollar health care facility, the sole purpose of which is to make well and keep well human beings, and not just those from Shelby County.

We think Shelby Medical Center deserves better than to be treated like a red-headed step-child whose guardian is ready to place it for adoption.

While our opinions may not draw additional voters to the polls or sway anyone's vote, we feel an obligation to provide the citizens of this county with as much information about SMC as possible between now and the referendum.

During the next five weeks, the Shelby County Reporter will publish articles about SMC, its administration and politics, the functions of various departments, the medical staff, economic impact...anything we can think of to prepare the citizens of Shelby County for a very important vote.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

A bird in the hand...

Moments I'd like to live over:
It happened across Wolf Creek, back of Rex Bulard's house, it was spot so rough jaybirds flew around it hunting a wateroak tree. Across the creek in a thick honeysuckle patch, Dan had a single binted. Nobie Payne looked at me and I looked at the creek.
"We gotta go over there," I said.
Nobie was pulling off his shoes, sitting on a stump with his gun on the ground. He got up and waded across while I took off my shoes, and laughed a little laugh when I hit the icy water. Once on the other side we put our shoes on, feeling our feet getting warm again.
In front of Dan, no more than 20 feet, black jack oaks stood in a little row, covered with honeysuckle.
"We gotta get 'im before he makes it behind those black jacks," I said.

I was on a little rise above the honeysuckle and Nobie was in the patch with Dan.

"You kick 'im up," I said, "and if he flies over the honey suckle I'll shoot, and if he flies under it you can get 'im."

Nobie kicked around down there for a good two minutes but nothing happened. Dan was looking dead at the bird, still as a rock, waiting.

"I see 'im," Nobie whispered.

"Maybe he can't get up," I said.

Nobie poked at him with his gun barrel.

"I think I'll just pick 'im up," he said, putting his gun down in the thick honeysuckle. He bent over, his long arm stretched out, and the bobwhite bubbled up in his face.

The bird got away and Dan looked plum ashamed and Nobie just stood there tugging away, with his gun hung in a honeysuckle vine. Far off, town way, a lost calf bawled.

The weekly Good Morning column, written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member FDIC.

The Shelby County Reporter is glad to consider for possible publication reader opinions on issues of local interest. Such opinions should be expressed in the form of a 'Letter to the Editor.' Such letters should be limited to 250 words, typed or neatly printed, and include both your signature and address.

For our own information, your phone number is useful. Letters chosen for publication are subject to editing for length or libel, but we will not change the meat of your message. Address letters to PO Box 947, Columbiana, AL 35051.

Columbiana mayor answers critic's letter

An Open Letter to the Citizens of Columbiana:

I have expressed my disappointment to the Editor of the Shelby County Reporter for printing a half page of half truths and no truths at all on Page 4 of the October 31, 1985 issue of his paper.

I thought the purpose of a newspaper was to inform the people and I feel it is the responsibility of any newspaper to check the facts before putting them into print. The article probably sold a lot of newspapers, but it did not serve the best interest of our city.

I do not understand the time spent on explaining the difference between business and industry. Maybe the attorney general wrote the writer of last week's article a different letter than he wrote me. The letter is to appear on this same page and it does not refer to an industry. This is not the mayor's interpretation but the attorney general's.

The city attorney did state, "Legally, a city can't spend city funds for the benefit of a private corporation or individual," but this was stated before all facts were known. He will tell you now that he accepts the attorney general's opinion and will abide by that opinion.

The other remarks made in last week's letter were made without facts and are not worthy of comment. The contents were inaccurate and misleading. The letter did prove two things: the writer does know how to use a dictionary and he knows very little about his subject matter.

Columbiana should be proud of the nice building in the corner of Highway 70 and Highway 25. The city council should be happy and pleased with the two percent city tax that is helping finance our overall program. I am proud that I had a part in helping provide some of our local citizens with jobs.

Fulfilling the duties of an elected official is not an easy task. We are faced with decisions on almost a day to day basis. Any decision made will naturally please some and displease others.

I will continue to represent you to the best of my ability. You can be assured any decision that I make will be for the continued growth and betterment of Columbiana. I like living here!

City of Columbiana may expend funds to purchase pipe to be placed on state right-of-way to support driveway for new business

Dear Mayor Falkner:

Reference is made to the request by the City of Columbiana for an opinion from the Attorney General as to whether that city may purchase pipe to be placed in a ditch on a state highway right-of-way. This pipe will support a driveway for a new business in the community.

Your question is to be answered in the affirmative. This office has concluded on numerous occasions that the state and local governments may cooperate with one another in performing governmental functions. Therefore, if the State Highway Department consents, the pipe may be placed on the state right-of-way by the city.

Code of Alabama 1975, Section 11-47-11 authorizes a municipality to expend funds for the promotion of industry within the municipality or elsewhere within the county not more than 15 miles from the municipality. Therefore, the Attorney General concludes that this statute allows the City of Columbiana to expend funds to buy pipe to be placed on a state right-of-way to support a driveway for a new business in the community.

I hope your question has been adequately answered.

If our office can be of further assistance, please do not hesitate to contact us.

Sincerely,
CHARLES A. GRADDICK
Attorney General

Commissioner Ames wants his own way

Letter to the Editor:

I have never written a letter to the editor before; but in this instance, I feel compelled to do so.

We have a county commission, elected by the people to serve the people; though it doesn't seem to be working that way.

It seems that three of our commissioners and the chairman are intimidated by or do not have the courage to stand up for the citizens who elected them against Mr. John Ames.

Mr. Ames, who won by a landslide of about 20 votes, appears to think that he was mandated to run every governing body in the county. Look what he did to the planning commission, the airport board, the hospital board and the county commission. He doesn't care that is best for the people or even what we think as long as he has his way and gets what he wants.

From recent newspaper articles, he is now out to sell Shelby Medical Center. Why?

How will the sale of the hospital help me and other citizens of Shelby County? Will the tax money I have paid over 20 years be refunded to me? What will he do with our tax money?

This is our money and not his to spend as he wants to. Where will our poor and elderly people go for medical help if he sells the hospital?

I wish he would go back to Birmingham and stay. He is more suited for them than he is for us in Shelby County.

We need a recall law in Alabama so we can get rid of people like him.

Country depends on responsible citizens

Letter to the Editor

Everywhere I go in America, clutters of trash and garbage mar our highway and byways - cans, bottles, cups, scrap metal and plastic, remnants of food; the list is endless. This abuse of property extends to public and private driveways, lawns and lots near passing vehicles, even to dumps hidden on others' property.

In travels around the world, I have seen similar disregard for the landscape and the rights of others, but only in backward areas. I could name people who share our contempt for nature, public and private property, but suffice it to say that such antisocial acts are rare in Europe and in the progressive nations of Asia. But plenty of rubbish is found on the streets of troubled countries.

This leads me to the so-called life-style changes, where declining standards apparently leave the male free to mate, beget children, and to discard both with equal abandon. Further, ill and destitute family members - mothers, fathers, others - are left to the mercies of public welfare.

And, society seems to receive the blame for crimes and other evils, relieving the individual of moral or legal blame for base acts. We hear much of the rights of citizens but little about their responsibilities.

Coincidentally, when I read of our economic problems - our deficits, our unfavorable balance of trade, our failure to compete in price and quality with our rivals, our wasteful throwaway customs - I wonder if such careless habits as dumping our trash and our families on others carries over into our work. For example, I bought a superbly - engineered American Car, but experienced quite unnecessary dangerous oil leaks in the transmission and elsewhere, caused solely by negligent assembly. I am sure that millions of others have had comparable and worse difficulties with American products, including our foreign customers.

Both our self-government and our prosperous economy are based on the responsibility of the individual - neither can be sustained without it.

Scouts appreciate freedoms

Letter to the Editor:

America is a country of many freedoms.

We can say what we want. We can go where we want. We can go to any church. We have the opportunity to vote, but more importantly, we can vote for the person of our choice.

We can travel anywhere we want to, whether in our country or outside of it. We can participate in sports activities, like baseball, football, hockey, fishing or hunting.

We can love God and not be afraid of losing our jobs because of it. We can attend the school of our choice.

Minor surgery, major impact

The surgical procedure performed on Gov. Wallace last week at Jackson Hospital in Montgomery was, from a medical standpoint, a minor operation. He was back at the Mansion in but a few hours. But from a political standpoint, this minor procedure was major.

Not that any further fuelling was needed, but this latest health problem raised yet another time the question about Wallace's ability to serve another term as governor. It is increasingly evident that a growing number of Alabamians now seriously question whether Wallace should seek a fifth term next June.

Wallace has said repeatedly that he has made no decision about another run in '86, but rather, will wait and see what the polls show after the first of the year. The polls very likely will show that his chances of being elected have diminished dramatically because of his recurring health problems.

An incredible era in Alabama politics...the most incredible era in Alabama history...appears to be nearing an end.

It was a bad case of "foot in the mouth disease" that finally caught up with Hezekiah Wagstaff. There's an old line in politics that holds to the truth that if a fish would keep its mouth shut, it would never get caught. If Wag (as he likes to be called) had heeded that advice, he might still be the assistant press secretary.

The whole affair...and at times it resembled a minstrel show...was an embarrassment to Gov. Wallace. He had attempted to assure everyone that the state was in good hands during his 20-day tour of the Far East, but it didn't come across that way. Worse than that was the fact that the trials and tribulations of Wagstaff got more media attention than Wallace's tour.

Other than Wag himself, the biggest loser of this mess was Billy Joe Camp. For reasons never made quite clear, Camp has stuck by Wagstaff under the most awkward of circumstances. Camp defended Wagstaff at times when it would have been far easier to drop him. In fact, in recent days Camp had been quoted as saying that if Wagstaff was forced to leave then he'd leave too.

Of course that was before Wagstaff held a late night TV interview from his hospital bed and confirmed for the world to see that he indeed did have a world class, terminal case of "foot in the mouth disease." As one punster put it, "Hezekiah's name is Wagstaff...not chief-of-staff..."

Shelby FOP lodge takes aim at Toys for Tots shoot

The Penny-a-Point Pistol Tournament, sponsored by the FOP to raise money for Toys for Tots, is being held this Saturday, Nov. 9, at the Shelby County Lodge in Saginaw.

"All the money we make will be used to purchase Christmas toys, food and clothing for needy families in Shelby County," said Mike Shaw, president of local Lodge 41.

Some people have been confused about phone calls and mail from hired solicitors asking for pledges, thinking they represent the Shelby County lodge.

Shaw said he wants to make it clear this is not the case.

"We are widely known as a working lodge," Shaw said, and all our soliciting is done on a personal basis.

The lodge only has two fundraising events a year, Shaw said: a cadillac give away in the summer, and the fall Toys for Tots shoot.

Profits from the cadillac event usually amount to approximately $6,000, Shaw said. He explained that a portion is sent to state and national lodge to be used in part for the legal defense of officers sued in the line of duty.

The remainder of the money, Shaw said, is used to run the lodge, including maintenance and utilities, and to make donations to worthy causes.

Participants in the pistol match get sponsors who pay a penny for every point they make with a maximum $18 payment.

The lodge does not use more than 20 percent to put on the tournament and all profits go directly into a separate Toys for Tots account.

Shaw stressed that all of the proceeds stay in the county to help needy families here.

Anyone who would like to make a donation may send a check to Toys for Tots - Shelby County FOP Lodge 41, P.O. Box 1079, Alabaster, A. 35007.

Gardner's new hobby is movie appearances

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

Jerry Gardner retired from commercial art in 1979 to start his own businesses in the sale and manufacture of trophies and turkey callers and to devote time to his hobby of reenacting historical events. He has recently added movie appearances to his list of accomplishments.

A native of Shelby County, Gardner lives with his wife of 15 years, Chris, near Harpersville in the house that was once his mother's. Heart of Dixie Trophy and Sport and Heart of Dixie Turkey Callers are operated near their home.

Gardner will soon begin work in his fourth movie, a sequel to the miniseries The North and the South. The Fourth Alabama Cavalry, a Civil War reenactment group, will appear in battle scenes of Love and War, with Gardner portraying the unit commander.

Filming will begin in Natchez, Ms. later this month and the miniseries will be shown next spring.

Gardner was featured in a speaking role in The River as the captain of the security guards, appearing in five scenes of the film. The movie was filmed near Tarrant City late in 1983.

"I know now why actors say their best stuff ends up on the floor," Gardner said of the edited film, noting that the scenes he expected to be cut remained in the film and those he expected to remain were cut.

One thing that was not removed was the Shelby County Reporter jacket worn by Gardner. The dark jacket looked similar to a police jacket and since the lettering on the back was somewhat faded, the moviemakers did not notice until the jacket had already been included in some scenes. For consistency, the jacket had to remain, he said. Gardner sometimes does photography for the Reporter.

He was also interested by the efforts and money used to create certain effects. He pointed to muddy, drenched scenes created in dry locations and to the repeated breaking of glass from a number of angles as examples.

Another experience that startled Gardner was that "stuntmen are hurt more frequently than you would expect." Within a short time, two stuntpeople were both injured in automobile accidents. One who slipped underneath a truck beside Gardner was seriously injured, but recovered.

Gardner himself is recovering from an automobile accident that prevented him from taking a part in a movie with Patty Duke Astin that was filmed in Alabama.

He does appear in The Shadow Waltz, a Civil War movie made at Tannehill State Park which will be seen in theatres this fall. It stars Terence Knox, formerly of the television series St. Elsewhere and Jamie Rose of the new series Lady Blue.

"I don't expect to be discovered. I just enjoy doing it as a hobby," Gardner said of his movie appearances. He has also been in commercials for motorcycles, snacks and soft drinks.

Gardner's first movie was a Civil War documentary made by the University of Mississippi,

Former Pelham librarian cuts cake at her reception

Pelham honors Mary Carver for work with city library

Former Pelham librarian Mary Carver was honored with a reception by the Pelham Library Board Oct. 27.

A portrait of Carver, who was librarian from April of 1978 to August of 1984, was placed in the library. The recently purchased 60-volume Library of America set of works by American authors was dedicated in her honor.

Carver also served as librarian at her church, Cross Creek Baptist Church, and volunteered at Shelby Medical Center. She now works with children's programs at the library and with Friends of the Library.

Pelham opened its new library about 13 weeks ago. Carver repeated director Barbara Roberts' prediction that the library will soon be one of the state's best. "We will need the help of the people in Pelham to help us accomplish this," she said.

Hamer receives alumni award

Dr. Elizabeth Hamer, associate professor of home economics at the University of Montevallo, was presented the Alumni Award for Outstanding Commitment to Teaching during the Founder's Day convocation Oct. 10.

"I work with the most interesting and exciting students. They continue to challenge me to do my best. This award means more to me than any other I could receive at this university," Dr. Hamer said at the presentation.

Classroom teaching and advising students are two activities which she feels are very important aspects of her role at UM.

"I want to be recognized for good teaching and for helping students succeed."

Dr. Hamer, also director of home economics education and coordinator for teacher education and home economics, has received excellent student evaluations of her classroom teaching. She also does a follow-up on students after they leave UM by helping them get jobs and keeping a survey of graduates from the last five years.

In the new core curriculum that has been implemented this fall, Dr. Hamer submitted a course proposal to the general education committee. The course was Marriage and Family Relationships which is now a part of the Institutions and Issues core requirement.

In addition, Dr. Hamer received a grant through the UM research committee to develop a model teaching video tape, "Metric Measuring." The tape, designed to show steps which should be included in a good demonstration, was submitted to the American Home Economics Association showcase to be viewed at the national meeting next June.

Dr. Hamer has also published two articles in "Illinois Teacher," a home economics professional journal, and authored a handbook for student interns in home economics.

The Tennessee native received her bachelor of science degree at Lambuth College in 1966, her master's in education from the University of Georgia in 1973 and her doctorate in education at the University of Alabama in May 1985.

While working on her doctorate, Dr. Hamer received a two-year scholarship from the Alabama Consortium of Schools and carried a 4.0 average at the university.

County students attend DECA conference

Cindy Seales and Mike Lucas were among those in attendance when the Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) held their annual officer training conference at Joe Wheeler State Park in late October.

Seales is a vice-president and Lucas a treasurer in the DECA Club at Shelby County's Area Vocational Center in Columbiana. Both are students at Thompson High School.

Other officers of the club include Mike Holsomback, co-president and Merry Lynn Sanders, secretary of Thompson High School.

Co-officers of the afternoon DECA class are Gene Self, co-president, Stephanie Millender, vice president, of Shelby County High School; Jan Foster, secretary, of Chelsea High School; and Sonya Peoples, treasurer, of Montevallo High School.

Sponsor of the DECA Club is teacher / co-ordinator Betty Fulton. The DECA Club is made up of students on the Co-Op Program who are employed part time while they attend their senior year of high school and who work in marketing fields.

Trick or treat

Students at the Shelby County Center for Exceptional Children began a Halloween tradition of trick-or-treating through the Shelby County Board of Education officers when the two facilities moved into the same building six years ago. Tasha Walls, Brandon Liveoak and John in which he appeared with the Fourth Alabama Cavalry reenactment group. About 30 members belong to the group, whose original counterpart was organized in Tusculum in 1862.

Allen Hill collect candy from Superintendent of Education Ellie Glasscox as Center Director Beverly Hall look on. The special day of trick-or-treating is something both students and central office staff look forward to, Hall said. (photo by K.A. Turner)

They meet with similar groups and reenact battles in which the Alabama Fourth Cavalry actually participated. As many as 25,000 spectators came to a reenactment at Brierfield last March, Gardner said.

All activities are carefully kept historically correct, from battle outcome to minor details such as removal of modern jewelry. The groups also stage battles to test skill, "like playing a game of chess," in which judges determine a winner.

Gardner helped to start the Creek Bowhunters' Archery Club in Vincent, which was founded by famed archer Howard Hill in 1967. The group reenacts battles between frontiersmen and Indians. Gardner was the first full-time president of the organization and his vice president was Columbiana archer Sylvester Shaw.

Gardner is noted for the first known bow-killing of a wild turkey in Kentucky, an accomplishment which made him the cover feature of The American Bowhunter in May of 1978.

The Gardners formed the Coosa Valley Turkey Hunters Association in 1979 and sponsor the Alabama Open turkey calling contest each spring. The event has attracted callers from as far away as New York and Pennsylvania. The organization also awards trophies for hunting accomplishments.

their artistic skills. Greenlee is the daughter of Michael and Candy Greenlee of Alabaster, Topazi is the daughter of Walter and Gail Topazi of Alabaster and Rollan is the son of Larry and Elaine Rollan of Alabaster. (photo by K.A. Turner)

Stamp contest open to Alabama artists

Any Alabama artist interested in greater recognition may want to consider entering the Alabama Migratory Waterfowl Stamp contest.

Danny Dorning of Hayden says interest in his work soared dramatically after his painting was selected as the winning entry for the 1986-87 stamp.

Dorning submitted a watercolor of two Canadian geese reflected in a pool of water.

Announcing the current contest, in which entries will be accepted from Jan. 1 - Feb. 28, Game and Fish Director Charles D. Kelley said all hunters must have the stamp in addition to hunting licenses and permits.

"Heightening interest in wetlands, waterfowl, wildlife art and yearly increases in the number of contest entrants might bring this year's winner even greater recognition," he said.

Entry requirements are that the designs must be an original horizontal drawing or painting, limited to 14x17 inches with no scroll work or lettering. The artwork must depict living species of North American migratory ducks or geese, with special attention to tone and detail, especially in wing and feather rendering.

The design will be judged on suitability for reproduction as stamp, originality, composition and other artistic merit, anatomical accuracy and general rendering.

Artists interested in submitting entries should contact the Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources, Game and Fish Division, 64 North Union Street, Montgomery, AL 36130, or call 261-3469 for information and copies of the rules, reproduction rights agreement and entry forms.

Blood pressure check offered

Free blood pressure checks, electrocardiograms, physical examinations, lab work and careful follow-up are available to participants in a blood pressure control program being conducted by the UAB Division of General and Preventive Medicine, funded by the National Institutes of Health.

Recipients of these free services must have high blood pressure, must be slightly overweight but in good health otherwise, and must be between the ages of 21 and 65.

The program is designed to find out which combination of medication and diet works best in keeping blood pressure under control. Participants will be placed into one of three groups: weight reduction, low sodium-high potassium diet and continuation of usual diet. All participants also will take either a drug to lower their blood pressure or a placebo (inactive medication).

The study is part of a multicenter clinical trial, with other centers located at the University of Mississippi Medical Center at Jackson and Albert Einstein University in New York. Each center will recruit 300 participants.

Individual who wish to find out if they qualify for study should call Jerry South at 934-2294 or 934-4873.

New officers elected for Friends group in Pelham

A Friends of the Pelham Library group was formed Oct. 10. Officers for the coming year are Bill Howard, president; Alice Ammons, vice president and Sharyn Hood, secretary-treasurer.

Friends of the Library is a support group that helps promote the library and sponsors special events and activities.

The first priority for the new organization is to publicize the library's location, hours of operation, book collection and programs. "So many people in this area do not know where the library is and what it has to offer," said librarian Barbara Roberts.

School construction moves right along

by Bert Seaman
 Staff Writer

Construction work in the Shelby County school system's expansive building program is moving along at a steady pace.

The fifth contract - an indoor activity area and special education classrooms at Elvin Hill Elementary - was awarded last week to M.J. Brooks & Son Construction Co. at a cost of $375,800.

A week earlier, contracts were awarded for projects at Helena and Chelsea.

In this year's budget, the board allocated $12.8 million in capital outlay money for construction projects on 17 school campuses.

Continued growth and overcrowding at many of the county's school's prompted the board last year to approve undertaking the multi-million dollar project.

The building program got under way in August at Riverchase Middle School where a new pod is going up with additional classrooms, a band room and an art room. That project is about one third finished.

At Shelby County High School, where a new band room will be constructed, the ground has been leveled in preparation for the foundation, and last week, ground was broken at Inverness for a 12 classroom addition.

Jimmy Bice, coordinator for the building program, says contractors are now getting ready to begin work on the Chelsea campus where an indoor activity area will be built for elementary school students.

The Helena project - second largest in the building program - is expected to get under way within the next couple of weeks, Bice said. The project will be an addition with classrooms, an activity area, administrative offices and a lunchroom.

During November, Bice said he expects bids to be let for construction projects at Pelham, Calera and Valley.

"We're going to try and have all the projects finished by the opening of school next year," Bice said.

Safety tips given on home freezing

by Paula Newbury

Extension Service Home Economist
I'd have to say that more phone calls are made to Extension Service Home Economists year-round concerning food safety. Just the other day a young homemaker found several pounds of ground beef in her freezer undated, a common mistake many of us make. Wishing to know if this ground beef was safe to eat, she called our office.

Ground beef should last, if properly packaged, in the freezer for 3 months. Properly packaged means using a container or packaging material that is moisture and vapor-resistant so that liquid, vapor and air can neither get in nor out of the packaged product. Also, it is important to know that your food is frozen and kept frozen at 0 degrees Fahrenheit.

The recommended storage life depends upon a product having been properly packaged and stored. These recommendations are guides to indicate how long your food will not only stay safe, but remain at its peak quality.

The longer foods are stored in the freezer, the more time there is for enzymes and drying to cause change. Though food is often safe for some time past the recommended storage date, some quality will be lost and the food will be less safe.

It is far better to avoid being in the position of this homemaker. Always label the date that you place foods in your freezer.

Always freeze foods that are of good quality. Foods of poor quality before freezing will remain of poor quality.

Food storage charts are available from our office upon request. Call the Shelby County Extension Service at 669-6763 for more information on food storage and safety.

Do you consider yourself well-informed on food safety? Try your hand at this quiz and see how you score.

TRUE OR FALSE

1. Food poisoning is a minor problem today. There are only about 5,000 cases each year.

2. Food poisoning isn't that serious. After a day or two of discomfort, you're just fine.

3. One way to avoid food poisoning is to taste a little bit of the suspect food and throw it out if it tastes strange.

From the County Agents' Office

4. You can tell when food poisoning bacteria are present, because the food smells odd.

5. Freezing your child's school lunch sandwiches with meat or poultry the night before can help keep them safe.

6. If you don't have a refrigerator at work, using a freeze-pak in the lunch bag can thwart the food poisoners.

7. You can avoid food poisoning by making sure that foods are not left at room temperature for over two hours.

8. It's a good idea to thaw foods at room temperature, because food poisoning bacteria can't live in that temperature range.

9. Food poisoning comes only from fresh milk, meat or poultry. Canned foods are always safe.

10. As long as food is in a cooler, you can leave it almost anywhere during your picnic.

ANSWERS

1. False. Despite canning and a host of other technological advances, food poisoning is still a significant problem. An estimated two million cases occur each year.

2. False. Some kinds of food poisoning, like botulism, are very dangerous. And any poisoning can be serious in children, the elderly or people who are otherwise ill.

3. False. Never taste foods that you think might be unsafe. Even small amounts of some food poisoning bacteria or the poisons they produce can be very dangerous. A good rule of thumb is "When in doubt, throw it out."

4. False. Generally speaking, most food poisoning bacteria are odorless, colorless and tasteless.

5. True. Freezing sandwiches overnight is a good way to fight the food poisoners. But don't try to freeze mayonnaise, lettuce or tomato. They can be packed separately and added at lunchtime.

6. True. A commercial freeze-pak in the brown bag or lunch box keeps the rest of your lunch colder. A cold canned drink, frozen sandwich or ice-filled plastic refrigerator dish can help, too.

7. True. Food poisoning bacteria thrive at room temperature (60 - 100 degrees F.). Letting food sit out for more than 2 hours provides a fine opportunity for bacterial growth.

8. False. Thawing foods at room temperature provides a perfect breeding ground for many types of bacteria, because they multiply in the thawed outer areas of food before the interior is thawed. Try to plan far enough in advance to allow food to thaw in the refrigerator. Or, thaw in your microwave or in sealed packaging under cold water.

9. False. Food poisoning can come from a variety of sources, including canned goods. Leaking cans aren't the only villains. Dented, swollen and rusted cans could lead to food poisoning, too.

10. False. Keep coolers in the coolest, shadiest place possible while picnicking. Coolers are insulators, not refrigerators. Try transporting your cooler in the backseat — it's a lot cooler than the trunk.

How did you do? Food safety is a subject to be serious about. I hope this information will help you in making wise food safety decisions.

Pattern-less sewing taught

Can you sew without using a pattern? Some seamstresses are frightened by the very idea of it. Not so says Debra Brummett, Extension Program Associate-Clothing, with the Alabama Cooperative Extension Service at Auburn University. Brummett has developed a program entitled Pattern-less Sewing which will be presented on November 14 at 10:30 a.m. at the Buttonhole Fabrics in Alabaster.

"Pattern-less Sewing sounds like too much of a challenge for many sewers," says Brummett, "but it is really an easy process. Pattern-less sewing is not flat pattern design nor draping and you don't need any special schooling to learn how to use the techniques. You just take a few body measurements, measure these on your fabric and cut. Simple as that."

Brummett developed pattern-less sewing in an effort to save consumers money. By eliminating the costs of a few paper patterns, consumers will be able to invest their savings in better quality fabrics or will be able to sew an additional garment.

During her presentation, Brummett will demonstrate the techniques of pattern-less sewing. Also planned is a one-woman fashion show where Brummett will model the many combinations of her 10-piece wardrobe and accessories.

For more information, contact Peggy A. Prucnal at 669-6763.

DIRECT INJECTION DIESEL.

Kubota introduces a compact tractor with direct fuel injection. The new L2250 has a 3-cylinder diesel engine with 21 PTO horsepower. Plus it has direct injection for improved starts in cold weather and better fuel economy, too.

Other standard features, not so standard on most tractors of this size, include rear- and mid-mount PTO for maximum versatility when it comes to attaching implements. Surprising, wet disc brakes are standard, too. Power steering is standard on the deluxe model.

Our operator platform is designed for increased comfort, with all the important controls at your fingertips. Not underfoot.

N Shelby Friends build pyramid

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

If 933 people pledge $5 a month, the North Shelby Friends of the Library will be well on its way to having a building in its area.

By using the pyramid method of fund raising, the North Shelby Friends are aiming at a goal of $55,980 out of the approximately 4,000 homes in the area.

"Perhaps that's aiming too high," said Pat Jehle, a member of the Friends executive board, "but if you don't try, you'll never know."

At an organizational fund raising meeting last Monday,

Jehle explained to those present that state grant money is available for library construction, but matching funds must first be secured in order to apply for it.

Shelby County Library Director Nancy Woosley said that no more than a 25 percent match would be required.

With the pyramid technique of fund raising, Jehle, Martha Knight and Katie Arnold, coordinators for the drive, appointed 30 captains. They in turn will recruit 150 lieutenants, and each of these people are to get five pledges.

If each of the 933 people who make up the pyramid give a minimum $5 a month donation, the Friends will be able to reach their goal.

Woosley said the estimated cost of the library, including furnishings and equipment, is $125,000.

The site for the 2,457 square foot building was donated in December, 1984 by developer Denny Barrow. Measuring a little over a half acre, the property is located next to North Shelby County Fire District's Station 2 at the intersection of Caldwell Mill Road and State 119.

Arnold, who serves as president of the Friends group, reminded the fund raisers to tell their contacts about an ad valorem tax for libraries that may be on the ballot in the spring primaries. However, it would first have to be approved by the Shelby County Commission.

When the issue first came to a vote last May, it was defeated by a narrow margin. Supporters believe this was due to the fact the proposition was not clearly stated on the ballot.

Elvin Hill raises $15,000

Parents and students at Elvin Hill Elementary School in Columbiana recently participated in a cookie sale in which almost $15,000 in cookies and candies were sold.

About $6000 of that money will be used by the school for its students.

Of the many who helped make the sale a success, Christy

Kelly, daughter of Mrs. Judy Kelly, and Lisa Isbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Isbell, were among the top salesmen.

Each of the girls sold over $400 in cookies and candies and were awarded a portable color television and a ten-speed bicycle.

Elvin Hill would like to thank students, parents and community for their support.

Soil testing materials offered

Fall is an excellent time for soil testing, say Shelby County Extension agents John Jones and Grant Guber, and the county Extension Service is trying to make it easier for farmers, gardeners and homeowners to test their soil for better planting results next spring.

Fall is the time to evaluate the soil's need for both lime and fertilization in order to make healthy crops — be it farming crops or a healthy lawn — an easier goal to achieve.

The Shelby County Extension Service has placed soil testing materials at various locations throughout the county. In addition, county agents will collect soil samples from the locations and transport them to Auburn on November 26, thus saving soil testers the price of postage to the Auburn University testing facility.

After November 26, the soil samples can be mailed in the box included within the materials.

The soil testing materials will be available from Westover Food and Service, Coosa Valley Gin in Vincent, Harpersville Cotton Gin, Clyde Wyatt in Harpersville, Coosa Valley Milling Company in Wilsonville, Mid-State Co-op in Columbiana, the Shelby County Extension office in Columbiana, Central State Bank in Calera, Oak Mountain Nursery, Bird Supply Company in Calera, Acre Farm Center in Montevallo, the Agribusiness Department of Montevallo High School, Mitchell's Feed and Supply in Alabaster, Wayside Nursery in Pelham and the Cahaba Valley Branch of the First National Bank of Columbiana.

Cost for the soil test is $3 and a check made payable to the Soil Testing Laboratory should be included with the soil samples.

Artist Carl Salter

Nostalgic art displayed

The work of Carl B. Salter, a Birmingham artist, will be featured at the Mildred B. Harrison Regional Library in Columbiana.

Salter's paintings of the south are done in a realistic style. Small town and rural nostalgic is shown in many of his watercolors. The steam locomotive era, which has always fascinated him, is a favorite subject. He also paints nature and wildlife.

Since his first showing in 1978, Salter has shown his work in Alabama, Georgia and Florida, won numerous awards and ribbons, taught work shops and performed demonstrations for Birmingham art associations and schools. He enjoys teaching young people about art.

Salter is retired from a job as a display sales manager at Sears and now has more time for painting, sketching, photography and traveling.

He is an exhibiting member of the Birmingham, Vestavia Hills and Mountain Brook Art Associations.

The library features the work of an outstanding artist each month, including both local and Birmingham artists. A permanent display in the hall gallery has donations from artists from previous shows.

For more information, contact Jimmie Marshall at the Smith-Harrison Museum at 669-4545.

Calera wears area crown

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

It could be called the greatest comeback in Shelby County high school football this season. After suffering through an 0-7 start to the 1985 campaign, the Calera Eagles bounced back to take the area championship, the only Shelby County team to accomplish that feat in 1985.

Danny Alverson's Eagles claimed their 2A area crown with a 25-12 win over Brighton on the road Friday night, a win that Alverson said was a sweet as any Calera has ever had.

STATS

| Calera        | Brighton |
|---------------|----------|
| 9             | 6        |
| 192           | 149      |

| passing       |          |
| turnovers     |          |
| penalty yards |          |

"I couldn't be much happier than I am for these kids right now," Alverson said. "We accomplished what we set out to do at the beginning of the season, win the area and make the state play-offs. "It's the first time since 1982 that the Eagles have been area champions and I'm awfully proud of this group."

Alverson said that the lumps his team took against above-classification opposition has paid benefits for the team. "They were hard lessons, but they are paying off now," he said.

In addition to an area championship, the win over Brighton also gave the Eagles a touchdown drive to remember. Calera's run-and-shoot offense — adopted only at the beginning of the season — was executed to perfection as the Eagles drove 80 yard in just over one minute to take a 13-12 halftime lead.

Key catches by Byron White and key plays on both the running and passing game from Kenny Richardson provided most of the momentum for the drive which quarterback Mark Jones capped on a one-yard sneak play.

"I'll always remember that as the area championship drive, Alverson said. "That was the series that really broke their backs."

Alverson complimented the play of the Calera offensive line in the game as well as the play of Jones, White, Richardson and Steve Seay.

Defensively, the Eagles were led by senior linebackers Chuck Amos and Erwin and by Shane Schroeder.

"They just gave another great effort," Alverson said of his team. "It was just like the year as a whole, not always easy, but very rewarding."

The Eagles will host 6-4 Parrish at home on Friday night in the first round of the AHSAA 2A state play-offs.

SCORING SUMMARY

Calera and Brighton traded scores twice in the first two quarters of the game.

Calera's Steve Seay opened the scoring with a 30-yard TD run, but Brighton answered with a 20-yard run from Charles August to pull within one at 7-6.

The Bears then took their only lead of the game when August scored his second TD on a six-yard run.

The Eagles put together an 80-yard drive just before the first half, Mark Jones capping the march with a one-yard run to give the Eagles a 13-12 edge at the half.

Calera got second half scores from Kenny Richardson on a 12-yard run and Byron White on a 78-yard pass reception from Mark Jones to take their 25-12 win.

Thompson wins 'braggin' rights'

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

This one's for braggin' rights.

The Thompson High School message board said it all. Thompson 18 - Pelham 7.

The Thompson Warriors won the braggin' rights among Shelby County's big boys — the 5A schools — with a come-from-behind win over rival Pelham. While the game didn't bring the Warriors a spot in the 5A state play-offs — it cost the Panthers a post-season berth — it did provide a rewarding end to a 5-5 Thompson season.

"We were able to do something tonight that we hadn't done this year," said THS coach Doug Wheeler. "We played well even after being down."

The Thompson win triggered a giant celebration among the many Warrior fans who braved the wet conditions to see the traditional season-ending grudge match. The Pelham loss left an equally large number of Panther fans still looking for the first winning season in the school's history as well as Pelham's first football win over their arch-rivals.

"We just made too many little mistakes," said Pelham coach Billy Tohill. "These kids still have to learn to win big ballgames. The only way they can learn is through experience and that just takes time."

An early Pelham turnover led to the Warriors first touchdown. The Panthers then took themselves out of two separate second quarter drives with penalties, and the Warriors took a 6-0 lead into the half.

The Warriors, on the other hand, brought a wealth of tradition in winning big games to their road date with the Panthers. After Pelham converted a Thompson fumble into a third quarter touchdown and a short-lived 7-6 lead, the Warriors bounced back for two fourth quarter scores, converting several big third down plays along the way.

It was the best come-from-behind effort of the year, Wheeler said later. And what made it even more special, Wheeler said, was the injuries THS had to overcome to take the win.

"The injury thing that has bothered us all year hit early again this game, and we had to shuffle some people around," Wheeler said. "The important thing is that they got the job done and I'm proud of them for that. It was just a super effort on their part."

"These kids did it when it counted," Wheeler continued. "They can look you in the eyes coming into the dressing room and know they did their best."

While the two teams ended the season with identical 5-5 marks, Thompson's final win will provide a good springboard for spring drills and the 1986 season. Pelham must re-group after losing their last two regular season games, either of which could have given the Panthers their first winning season and a play-off berth.

"We're just looking forward right now to getting the equipment turned in and cleaned up and getting started with the off-season weight program," Tohill said. "We'll get a little stronger and start looking forward to our opener in August."

SCORING SUMMARY

Shane Horrell scored on a two-yard run following a Pelham turnover to give the Warriors a 6-0 lead that held up through two quarters.

A Thompson fumble set up Pelham's first touchdown in the third period, Tommy Fletcher scoring on a one-yard run. Mike Bramblett's PAT gave Pelham a 7-6 lead.

The Warriors scored twice in the fourth quarter, once on a two-yard run by Horrell and once on a one-yarder by Kenny Johnson. Both PAT attempts failed but the Warriors took an 18-7 win.

Vincent claims East County Championship

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Vincent Yellow Jackets claimed the "East County Championship" Friday night with a 26-6 win over traditional rival Chelsea.

"This is always a big game for us," Vincent coach Harold Garrett said after his team evened their season mark at 5-5 with the win. Garrett said the two teams started calling their season-closer the East County Championship several years ago and it remains a big game for both schools.

Garrett credited a return of excitement and enthusiasm to the Vincent ranks for their Friday win.

"We played with some enthusiasm that we had been lacking in the last couple of weeks," Garrett said. "I was pleased with the over-all effort. This sure makes it easier to go into the winter on a win."

For Mike Utter and the Chelsea Hornets, the loss does not mark the end of the season as the Hornets qualified for the an-

AHSAA state play-off berth weeks ago. It does provide, however, a challenge for the Hornets as they enter their play-off match on the road against 9-1 Marion County trying to Garrett found a lot to be pleased with following his team's win.

"Offensively, we were very pleased with the blocking of Lawrence Frazier," Garrett said. Frazier has been moved along the Vincent offensive front and is doing a lot of pulling and trap blocking for the Jackets. Jimmy Howard and Glenn Morris also blocked well, Garrett said.

Lawson, Moore reign as cross country royalty

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

Hail to the king... actually the Earl.

The Vincent Yellow Jackets once again reign as the cross country champions of Shelby County, and Earl Lawson reigns as the men's individual champ.

Lawson's winning individual performance, for the second straight year, led the Jackets to the county championship as he crossed the finish line on the three-mile course in 15:13.

The Jackets posted only 23 points, enroute to their fourth straight championship, Pelham finishing second with 35 points and Briarwood third with 58.

In the women's division of the meet, where no team championship was given, a Briarwood eight-grader ran away with the individual title.

Weldon Moore raced to an easy individual win, covering the two-mile course in 12:32.

Moore leads the women's all-county cross-country team which includes Sherri Boots of Briarwood, Tammy Garvin of Pelham, Elizabeth Mullins of Briarwood and Jeanette Ost of Briarwood.

Lawson leads the ten-member men's all-county squad which includes Pelham's Bryant Henderson, Vincent's James Kearn, Pelham's Rusty Williams, Vincent's Barry Mitchell and Clark Dates, Pelham's Buck Helms, Vincent's Troy Datcher and Briarwood's Nate Wilson and Robert Welch.

Dogs lose chance at state

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Montevallo Bulldogs saw their hopes for a state play-off berth dashed Friday night as the West Blocton Tigers handed the Dogs a 37-26 loss in West Blocton.

"We just let their 4.4 speedster get loose a couple of times," MHS coach Richard Gilliam explained. "We talked about it during the week and we knew if he got loose he would hurt us."

The Bulldogs bend-but-don't-break style of defense broke for three long scores in the game, scores that eventually made the difference.

Trailing 23-7 as the second quarter closed, Montevallo began a comeback that brought the Dogs to within four points at 23-19 before an 81-yard scoring run by Steven Thompson propelled Blocton to the win.

"They fought hard to try to come back, Gilliam said. "This is the first time in a number of years that Blocton has beaten Montevallo, and I felt early in the game we might have taken them a little lightly."

"That is to take nothing away from Blocton," Gilliam added. "They have improved significantly through this season and will be a force to be reckoned with in the next few years."

Individually, Bulldog runningback Charles Devinner provided a good running punch for Montevallo, recording his third straight 100-plus yard game. Devinner had 106 yards against the Tigers.

Sean Roberts, Gilliam said, also ran the ball hard for the Bulldogs. In addition, Slade Blackwell threw for two touchdowns.

Defensively, Gilliam tabbed Norman Payne as the Bulldogs'

SCORING SUMMARY

Steven Thompson scored on a 60-yard run to give Blocton an early lead, but a Slade Blackwell one-yard sneak and PAT gave Montevallo their first score and tied the game at 7-7.

Greg Farnitti kicked a 34-yard field goal to give the Tigers a 10-7 lead, then Scott Barrentine added to that margin with an 81-yard punt return for a TD.

Farnitti then scored on a one-yard run and Blocton had a 23-7 lead.

Montevallo answered with touchdowns on a three yard pass from Blackwell to Clint King and a 14-yard run by Sean Roberts.

Then, with Montevallo drawing closer, Thompson broke an 80 yard run for a TD then scored again on a two-yard run to put Blocton up 37-19.

The Bulldogs added a late score on a pass from Blackwell to Danny Kelley that covered 27 yards.

Spratlin on big fishing trip

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

Chelsea fisherman Bill Spratlin is planning a fishing trip this week. It's not an ordinary fishing trip to Spratlin's favorite Coosa River lakes.

It is a trip to the desert instead. A trip to the desert resort of Lake Havasu, Arizona to be exact, for competition in the Red Man Classic national bass fishing tournament.

And if Spratlin has a couple of good days of fishing, he could come home to Chelsea $100,000 richer for his efforts.

"I'm fired up," Spratlin said after placing third in a recent regional tournament held in Arkansas. That finish allowed him to qualify for the national event at Lake Havasu, the first time Spratlin has qualified for the national tournament since he began to participate in the Red Man Classic tournament series two years ago.

A good day of scouting before the region tournament began paved the way for Spratlin's high finish.

"I found some fish during our practice day on the lake," he said. "I got the limit of fish in about 15 minutes of fishing on the first day and had the limit again by 10 a.m. on the second."

Spratlin bagged a total of 37 bass during two days of fishing. The 14 he kept placed him third among a strong 40-man field in the regional event. Two others anglers saw Spratlin pulling in a lot of fish in the creek he found and fished themselves into the national tournament from that spot as well.

Can Spratlin win the $100,000 first prize in the national tournament?

"I don't know," he said. "I haven't ever fished in a desert lake, but folks tell me it will be my kind of fishing — in shallow water with a lot of weeds and things."

Consistency is what counts in this tournament," Spratlin added. "I finished in the money in six of the 12 tournaments I fished this year. It would sure be nice to finish in the money in this one."

St. Paul's spoils BCHS homecoming

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Briarwood Christian Lions recorded what head coach Rick Sayle called "an excellent comeback" in the second half of their homecoming clash with St. Paul's Friday.

Sayle also said early this week that his Lions were "excited" and had "high spirits" as they began practicing for their first-ever trip to the AHSAA state play-offs this weekend, a road game with Onoenta.

The only thing unusual about their excitement and about the comeback is that the Lions lost to St. Paul's 17-16.

"We really made a great comeback after being down 17-0 at the half," Sayle said. "We just didn't make the extra point to win it."

Saying that his squad played a fine second half, Sayle particularly commented on an offensive unit that came to life in the final two periods.

"I don't know that we did anything special at the half," he said. "They just decided to play hard and take what the opposition would give us and move the ball a little at a time."

Eventually, the Lions would score three times in the second half, the two touchdowns and a field goal coming just short of the winning mark.

A Briarwood fumble late in the first half that resulted in a While the loss dropped the Lions to a 6-3 mark for the year, it still gives BCHS the county's best mark among AHSAA schools and its first berth in the AHSAA state play-offs.

The Lions will face 9-1 Onoenta on the road Friday night.

SCORING SUMMARY

St. Paul's got touchdowns from Ernest Ladd and Jeff Brunson and a field goal from Ty Brunson to take a 17-0 halftime lead.

Briarwood's Jeff Kuhlman opened the Lions scoring in the third quarter with a 30-yard field goal.

Brad Gray threw a 24 yard TD pass to Brad Gutteridge early in the fourth period and the Lions drew to within a TD at 17-10.

Jimmy Collier scored the Lions final touchdown on a one-yard run, but Briarwood's try for two failed.

Lasers enjoy soccer win streak

The Lasers of the American Soccer Club of North Shelby County continue to gain momentum as they vie for the championship of the under-10 green division of the Mid-State Soccer League.

Recently, the Lasers shut out the Hoover Cobras by an 8-0 score in a match that featured both good offense and good defense.

The Lasers took a total of 23 shots during the game, converting eight into goals. Fullbacks Gabe Crouch, Mitch Mace and Alan Hunt led the Laser defense to its shut-out.

Lance Thomas sparked the Laser offense, scoring its first two goals.

Ryan Bridges and Ryan Lundy shared top scoring honors with two additional goals each, while Mike Hachu and Jacob Skinner rounded out the Laser scoring.

Skinner was named Laser of the Week for his performances on both offense and defense.

Crouch also had a fine offensive game as he swapped from fullback to forward in the second half and recorded six shots on goal.

Bryant Scott and Michael Harrington had consistent defensive performances, coaches said, while Jason Dees played well in his first game at the forward position.

The Lasers are 3-1 with four games remaining in their season.

SCHS plays good defense

Jemison drops SCHS

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

Two pass interference calls in the endzone set up two Jemison touchdowns as the Panthers claimed a 14-0 win over Shelby County High School. The win also clinched an area championship for the Panthers.

SCHS coach Randle Cassidy couldn't tell you a lot about the way his offense played in the game, either. The Wildcat offensive people simply didn't play a lot.

"They run a ball-control offense and that hurt us," Cassidy said. "They were able to run the ball successfully on us and that is something most folks have not been able to do."

Shelby County had the ball only three times in the entire second half, only once in the fourth quarter. It isn't easy to put together a comeback that way, Cassidy said.

STATS

Jemison won the game, Cassidy added, because they were able to control the line of scrimmage. "They out-muscled us all night," he said.

Cassidy did tab the efforts of Johnny Boose on offense and Tony Revis on defense as being outstanding for the Cats.

The loss leaves SCHS with a 5-5 mark in Cassidy's first year as the Wildcat coach. It also leaves Cassidy looking forward to a good spring training and "starting all over again."

Marriott Bowden and Marion Smith had TD in the first and second quarters to lead Jemison to a 14-0 win over the Wildcats.

Shelby Academy coach DeWayne Kervin said recently that his Raiders needed to learn how to play when they got behind in a ballgame. Friday's trip to Bessemer gave the Raiders just such an opportunity from the early going. While the Raiders didn't win, they did make Kervin proud.

"We probably played our best game of the season," Kervin said of the 21-12 loss to the Rebels. "We played like we thought we could win the game the entire time. If not for a few bad breaks, we just might have won it."

Kervin didn't want to take anything away from the Rebels and their first-year head coach — ex Coosa Valley head Bruce Breland. "Both teams played real well," Kervin said. "We just didn't do as well on a couple of plays that really mattered."

The Rebels got over half of their offense for the night on their first eight offensive plays. They also resulted in three touchdowns and a quick lead for the Rebs.

Kervin complimented the offensive play of quarterback Doug Thomas who "executed the option well all night." "All of the kids played well," Kervin added. "It was a tough loss."

SCORING SUMMARY

Bessemer and Shelby swapped first quarter scores, Bessemer's Jason Reid scoring on a 55-yard run and Doug Thomas scoring on a 10 yard run for the Raiders.

In the second quarter, Reid and Chuck McRee scored twice for the Rebels while Shelby got a five-yard TD run from Ray Smith.

The 21-12 halftime score held through the game.

Lady Falcons prep for district

The University of Montevallo volleyball team, 42-10 and ranked fifth in the NAIA national poll, will begin the journey to the NAIA National Tournament Thursday night when it hosts Huntingdon College in the District 27 championship. Match time for the showdown with the Lady Hawks is scheduled for 7 p.m. in Myrick Hall on the UM campus.

In a preliminary to the district championship the Lady Falcons will host Gulf South Conference foe Jacksonville State Wednesday night at 7. UM and Jax State have met twice this season, with the Lady Falcons winning both matches in straight games.

In last week's action the Lady Falcons defeated local rival UAB for the second time this season. The UM win at home broke a five-match Lady Blazer win streak and marked the Lady Falcons' third consecutive win over NCAA Division I opponents. Montevallo has an 8-2 mark over Division I foes this season.

After the Tuesday win over UAB, Montevallo made it 21 consecutive wins over Troy State Halloween night with a 15-3, 15-6, 15-3 triumph. Troy State has never beaten Montevallo on the volleyball courts in the history of the two schools.

The Lady Falcons will be defending the NAIA District 27 crown for the fourth straight year when Huntingdon visits Thursday evening. Should UM down the Lady Hawks it will take to the highway Nov. 16 for the Tri-District 9 championship opposite the champions from the Tennessee area.

The NAIA National Volleyball Tournament is scheduled for Nov. 21-23 at the University of Milwaukee-Wisconsin. UM finished seventh in the tourney last year.

But Shelby answered with two touchdowns of their own and trailed only 21-12 going into the half.

In the second period, Shelby allowed their visitors only three first downs, none until Bessemer's final possession of the game.

In the meantime, the Raider offense was going inside the Bessemer 20-yard line two times and inside the Besemer 10-yard line on two more occasions, but fumbles or penalties resulted in lost yardage and a stalled drive each time.

Vincent makes state tourney trip

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

A case of first-game-in-the-state-tournament jitters may have cost the Vincent Lady Yellow Jackets a win in their 3A state tournament opener last week.

The talents of teams from Lexington and Crossville — the eventual second and third place finishers in the tournament — spelled defeat for the Lady Jackets in their remaining tournament games as the Lady Jackets failed to advance from pool play in the 1985 edition of the state meet.

"We didn't play very well in that first game," said Lady Jacket coach Debbie Barnes. "We settled down some as the tournament went on but there was some good competition in our pool."

The Lady Jackets fell to Good Hope 15-10, 15-6 in their first tournament game. Eventual third place finisher Crossville then dealt Vincent a 15-4, 15-5 setback then the Jackets finished out their tournament competition by falling to 3A tourney runner-up Lexington 15-6, 15-8.

Despite their tournament record, Barnes continued to be proud of her team. "They are not a team of standouts, but they improved throughout the tournament," Barnes said. "It's the same way they played all year, getting better with each match and I am really proud of them for that."

It was the first trip to the state meet in three seasons for the Lady Yellow Jackets. In 1982, Barnes took a team full of seniors to the state meet in Montgomery and brought home a fourth place trophy.

"None of these girls were a part of that team," Barnes said. "We were just really excited to be a part of the state tournament again."

St. Paul's of Mobile won the 3A edition of the state tournament. Moody — the team that beat Montevallo in recent region tournament competition — finished fourth.

Vincent's Green moves against Chelsea

Vincent

Yellow Jacket runningback Hugh Kidd took advantage of that good blocking to run to his best rushing total of the year. Kidd gained 141 yards and scored twice during the game, giving him over 800 yards in this his first season as a runningback.

Garrett also credited Gary Peterson with a strong rushing effort and commended Derek Whitfield, Reginald Riggins and Joe Larimer for their defensive play.

SCORING SUMMARY

The Vincent Yellow Jackets rode TD runs of 12 yards by Hugh Kidd and two yards by Reginald Riggins to a 12-0 lead midway through the second quarter.

Chelsea scored just before the half on a pass from Larry Offord to Jerry Hanks to cut the halftime lead to 12-6.

Robby Green picked up the third Vincent score with a one-yard run in the third period, making the score 18-6.

Kidd's second TD of the night, this one a 21-yarder, added insurance for the Jackets and made the final score 26-6.

private school play-offs and defending their 1984 state championship, the year has been a good one, Niblett added.

"Win, lose or draw this week, we've gotten a lot of mileage out of a team that people said wouldn't do much," Niblett said. "These kids may not have the best physical attributes around, but they have given a lot of good effort."

The Rebs will be scheduled to close out the 1985 campaign with their traditional battle against cross-county rival Shelby Academy on the Raiders home field this Friday.

SCORING SUMMARY

Patrician took a 22-0 lead into the half, but Coosa Valley's Robert Strickland scored on a two-yard run early in the third quarter to cut the lead to 22-6.

Patrician added an insurance score with just over two minutes remaining in the game to take a 28-6 win.

Niblett said. "If we could have scored early things might have been different, but they were really ready to play us."

Niblett tabbed the defensive efforts of Bobby Crumpton and Toby Greene as being the best of the night for CVA. Offensively, Niblett said the Rebel passing game — including quarterback Tad Niblett who played in a special cast that protected a broken arm — looked good at times but the Rebs also had some key dropped passes.

The Coosa Valley Academy Rebels suffered their fourth loss of the season Friday night, falling on the road to Patrician 28-6. In earlier losses, CVA coach John Niblett contends, the Rebels gave their opponents some help. In this loss, however, Patrician didn't need any aid.

"They are the best team we've played this year," Niblett said. "We just really got a good, old-fashioned whipping."

The Rebels had a chance to begin an upset early when Robert Strickland blocked a punt and gave Coosa Valley the ball deep in Patrician territory on the Rebs first possession.

But a penalty here and a dropped pass there, and the Rebs scoring opportunity went by the boards. Patrician drove 95 yards to a score, and the game was virtually decided.

"They whipped us along the line of scrimmage all night,"

County racing gang set for action

Three members of Shelby County's racing gang will be a part of two days in the fast lane at the Montgomery International Raceway this weekend.

Maylene's Dave Mader III, the current points leader in the NASCAR All-American Challenge Series, will headline a strong list of entries for the Challenge Series stop at Montgomery on Sunday.

The 125-lap Challenge Series race is the biggest in a 200-lap day of racing on Sunday, November 10. The Challenge Series race will be preceded by a 15-lap Street Stock feature, a 25-lap Limited Sportsman feature and a 25-lap Late Model Sports Car feature race.

Pre-entries scheduled to join Mader in the All-American Challenge Series race include Calera's Waymond "Hut" Strickland. Strickland, who last year finished second in the Challenge Series points race, is currently among the top five in the Challenge Series totals despite a slow start and car troubles.

Chelsea's Gene Bradberry, who ranks in the top 10 of the All American Challenge Series drivers this year, is also scheduled to race at the MIR event.

Other drivers scheduled to run the AACS race include last season's point's winner Mike Alexander, current point-standing number two man Ronnie Sanders and five time AACS racing winner Mickey Gibbs.

Track officials said early this week that the Montgomery race may well be the final stop on the All-American Challenge Series this season. That would make the race doubly crucial for the Shelby County gang as they fight to maintain or better their positions in the points standings.

The gates open at MIR at 11 a.m. on Sunday with racing beginning at 2 p.m.

Saturday will also be full of racing at MIR as drivers undertake qualifying runs in all divisions and will run short features in several divisions.

300 tax errors found

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

"Errors in coding" appear to be responsible for a series of incorrect tax assessments recently discovered in the Pelham area.

Shelby County Tax Assessor J. R. "Bob" Thompson confirmed last week that almost 300 revised tax statements have been issued on parcels of land in Pelham. Those parcels — though they had been assessed county property tax in past years — had never been assessed a Pelham City tax.

Revisions of the assessments should bring an additional $44,000 into the city during the coming fiscal year.

Thompson — who was not in office when the errors apparently were made — said the majority of the problems seem to have occurred while mapping and recording a subdivision development in Pelham during 1984. A similar problem could have been encountered, he said, while recording several 1978 developments.

In addition, other errors may have been made during the state-mandated property re-assessment performed in 1979 by an appraisal firm outside the county.

Pelham officials estimate the problems could date back as far as 1974 and feel the errors could have "cost the city" over $500,000.

When asked if the problems were confined to the Pelham area, Thompson said he did not think a series of errors of this magnitude existed anywhere else in Shelby County. He did say, however, that a spot-check of parcels in other areas throughout the county was already underway.

Thompson explained that when a parcel of land becomes a part of a municipality it is assigned a code number that identifies it as part of that municipality. The number appears as a suffix to the number that identifies each parcel of land within the county.

He added that in light of the problems encountered in Pelham extensive annexations or areas of unusual activity would be double-checked in the future.

"I don't see how it can happen again," Thompson said. "It was just a mistake and we are aware of it now."

Pelham City Engineer Paul Yeager became aware of the problems several weeks ago while researching a parcel in the

Ostrander found guilty

A Calera man was found guilty of manslaughter last week after a two-day trial in Shelby County Circuit Court.

Irvin Ostrander, 77, was convicted in the October 1984 shooting death of his daughter's fiancée outside her home in Calera.

According to testimony, Joseph Lyles, 47, and Ostrander, had both been living with the defendant's daughter, Norma Folsom.

The shooting allegedly occurred after a quarrel the two men had over insurance. Witnesses said Ostrander went upstairs and got a gun after ordering Lyles out of the house.

Evidence indicated that a shot fired from the porch hit Lyles in the chest as he sat in his car, and another shot fired from close range entered the back of his head.

Ostrander then allegedly made an unsuccessful attempt to kill himself by putting the 20 gauge shotgun under his chin and firing.

B'ham annexation overturned

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

Birmingham's annexation of land, including the Lake Purdy/Birmingham Waterworks property in Shelby County, was overturned by Circuit Judge Jack D. Carl last Thursday.

"I think it's very significant for Shelby County and anybody else in the path of Birmingham annexation," said Shelby County Attorney Frank C. "Butch" Ellis. The ruling means that Birmingham "is not going to be allowed to slice up real estate just to get composites of voters favorable to annexation, but will have to use a more logical, common sense approach to annexation."

A major point in the ruling was that the lines of annexation were gerrymandered, according to Ellis. He described it as "a long, serpentine piece of property."

Several months ago the annexation was challenged by the city of Irondale, which was affected by other sections of the property.

A resolution authorizing the filing of a lawsuit was passed in Shelby County, but that action was not taken, Ellis said.

State Rep. John Tanner called the decision Thursday "a boost

Commission deals with hospital issues

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

The chairman of SMC's board of trustees criticized its decision to spend an estimated $8,872 in an advertising campaign against a hospital sale.

"I don't agree that public money should be used in what appears to be a self-serving campaign," said Doug Ballard to the Shelby County Commission Tuesday.

The advertising campaign is not being financed with the 4-mill tax fund, however, according to SMC spokesman Steve Martin. "That fund is used strictly to retire the bonds," he said.

Ballard said some board members fighting the sale "may be on an ego trip. I think they put personal interest above the public interest."

SMC should have been sold three years ago because it is decreasing in market value, he said. Three years ago, the hospital could have sold for $200,000 a bed, but "now we'll be lucky to sell for $150,000 a bed," he said. The hospital has about 210 beds, according to Ballard.

He appeared at the commission meeting to "recommend that the people of Shelby County give the hospital board a man-

SMC Board fights to hold on to hospital

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

The Shelby Medical Center Board of Trustees restated its opposition to a sale of the hospital and approved a series of public forums and advertisements on the issue at a special meeting November 9.

A resolution passed that night stresses the importance of a large voter turnout and directs SMC management "to develop a factual campaign, be it through the media, direct mail, public forum or to address public inquiry, to express the Board's belief and desire that Shelby Medical Center not be sold."

Such a campaign was then approved, with newspaper advertisements and direct mail to address the following issues:

- November 13 hospital board position
  - November 20 SMC services to the county
  - November 27 audited financial information
  - December 4 summation
- Advertisements will be taken in the Shelby County Reporter,

The Birmingham News and the Shoppers' Guide.

The following public forums were also scheduled, each to begin at 7 p.m.:

- December 3 Shelby County Courthouse

Ditch cave-in kills worker

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

A Mississippi man was killed last week in a ditch cave-in on County 47 South.

Travis Tanksley of Weir, MS., was buried Wednesday morning when the walls of the 18-foot deep ditch in which he was working caved in on him.

Tanksley was a member of a construction crew working on a gas pipe line. He was working with his son Randy and several other workers at 7:05 a.m. when the walls of the ditch gave way. Tanksley's son was covered to his knees by the falling dirt and rock.

Linda Moore, secretary for Roland Pugh Construction, the contractors on the project, said fellow workers dug frantically with hands and shovels for 5-10

Hope status clarified

An article in the June 27 edition of the Shelby County Reporter stated that Bobby Joe Hope, an inmate at West Jefferson Correctional Facility, was sentenced to life without parole.

According to the Shelby County District Attorney's Office, Hope is serving a life sentence without the benefit or possibility of parole.

Hope was sentenced to "imprisonment in the penitentiary for life," in Shelby County Circuit Court following a May 23, 1980 conviction of murder.

The Alabama Board of Pardon and Parole ruled that Hope was ineligible for parole upon his life sentence because he had been found guilty two years earlier of assault with the intent to murder.

According to the District Attorney's Office, the board's decision was based on Section 15-22-21.1, Code of Alabama, 1985, which provides that when a person is convicted of any act of murder, which resulted in serious physical injury to another and which follows within five years a previous conviction of another felony resulting in serious physical injury to another, then the second sentence is to be served as imposed without benefit of parole.

The Reporter is happy to make the clarification.

Billy Hill meets supporters

Billy Hill enters congressional race

Promising "an aggressive campaign based on issues and integrity", Shelby County District Attorney Billy Hill has formally announced his candidacy for a seat in the U.S. House of Representatives.

A Democrat, Hill will vie in June's primary to succeed Richard Shelby as the representative from Alabama's Seventh Congressional District. Shelby will not seek re-election to his House seat due to his current campaign for the Senate.

In announcing his candidacy, Hill said one of his principle objectives would be to help restore confidence in government and to restore the credibility of elected officials.

"Honesty is more than not telling lies and not accepting bribes," Hill said. "It means that a representative should reflect the interests of the people as a whole and not some special interest group."

Hill, who currently serves as the district attorney for Alabama's Eighteenth Judicial Circuit in Shelby, Clay and Coosa counties, became the state's youngest district court judge when he was elected to that post in Shelby County in 1976. In 1979, Hill was appointed District Attorney and was elected to serve his own term in 1980.

Born and raised in Shelby County, Hill graduated from Thompson High School and holds a BA from Birmingham Southern College and a law degree from the University of Alabama.

Hill and his wife Michele now live on a horse farm near Montevallo. A member of numerous professional, religious and civic organizations, Hill is also a general partner in the Nichols and Hill Construction Company and vice-president of Houston South Development Corporation.

Hill is expected to face two Tuscaloosa-area men in the June Democratic primary. Claude Harris has already announced his candidacy while state representative Roy Johnson is considered a Democratic candidate as well.

Representative Bill McFarland of Tuscaloosa is the only Republican announced candidate for the Seventh District seat.

County unemployment drops

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

Shelby County's unemployment rate for September was 6.4 percent, down .9 percent from August's total of 7.3 percent and down 1.9 percent from the September, 1984 rate of 9.3 percent.

The Shelby County rate is also lower than the 8.1 percent unemployment rate recorded state-wide during the month of September.

The 6.4 percent rate represents 2,030 workers state-wide without jobs. That is down from August's total of 2,310 workers seeking employment.

The return of non-teaching personnel to their school-related jobs due to the opening of school in September is the biggest factor in the drop, Bob Brantley of the state employment service said. In addition, a slight increase in agricultural sector employment due to the fall harvest season and the continued decline in summer job seekers contributed to the decline of the unemployment rate throughout the state, Brantley said.

Errors

Brookfield subdivision. In researching that specific instance, several other errors in coding surfaced, and clerks in the assessor's office began checking parcels throughout the city.

Around 300 errors were found in various randomly scattered parcels.

"I had checked the boundary parcels before and found only two or three problems," Yeager said. "I didn't think it was necessary to look in the middle of the map."

"I don't think the errors were intentional," Yeager said. "They are too scattered and there are not enough similarities. I just think someone got careless."

Yeager also indicated he did not feel the problems were isolated in Pelham alone. "Why should they pick on us?" he said.

In facing the possibility of problems on a county-wide basis, Thompson said any other discrepancies should be corrected during a re-appraisal that should be completed during 1986.

The state mandates a re-appraisal every seven years, and Shelby County was due for re-appraisal in 1987. But Thompson asked in September that the schedule be accelerated and is now glad the review will take place as quickly as possible.

Thompson also said he doubted the errors were in any way intentional or malicious.

"Naturally, there is human error," he said, "but the level of intelligence in the people in this office, the sophistication of the technology they use to do their jobs and their dedication ranks with anyone."

"The vast majority of the employees here are dedicated to doing a good job for the people of Shelby County."

Allied Products applies for change in discharge

Allied Products Company, operator of the Montevallo Lime Plant, has applied for a change in its water pollution control permit to allow more discharge of treated process wastewater and stormwater runoff to a tributary of Dry Creek.

During a 30-day waiting period, the Alabama Department of Environmental Management will give the public a chance to comment on the application.

The proposed discharge would come from a new sedimentation basin built because of an administrative order issued by the ADEM in July.

The order cited the company for violations which included the discharge of total suspended solids above permitted limits, which is potentially harmful to fish and wildlife.

It required the company to submit a pollution control plan of how to comply in the future.

The new basin, or pond, will provide more treatment of the wastewater before its discharge by allowing the solids in the water to settle out.

ADEM has made a preliminary decision that the permit conditions satisfy all applicable regulations.

People wanting to comment may write Marilyn Elliott, Permit Coordination Center, ADEM, 1751 Federal Drive, Montgomery, Alabama 36130. All comments should include the reference number AL0003336 and must be received by 5 p.m. December 2.

Copies of the draft permit are available for inspection at the ADEM offices in Montgomery or through the mail from the above address for a nominal fee.

McCord resigns Columbiana Council seat

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

Columbiana City Council members will be busy during the next couple of weeks looking for civic-minded citizens.

The council has to fill the seat vacated by Councilman Harold McCord and make several board appointments.

At the October 17 meeting, there had been a heated discussion about McCord's remaining on the council, with McCord saying he planned to resign as soon as he had his insurance straightened out.

McCord, who had moved to a home outside the city limits, contended he was within his rights to remain on the council as long as he lived part of the time at his home within the city.

His letter of resignation, read by Mayor Buck Falkner Thursday, said the resignation was effective November 1.

Falkner announced that there were four vacancies on the planning and zoning commission because of an expired term and the resignations of Charles Tidmore, Elbert Gibson and Jessie Jones.

The council filled all those vacancies on the spot on the condition that those elected agreed to serve.

The new members are Ronald Richey, Mike Jones, William Rasco and Sheara Martin.

A vacancy on the zoning board of adjustments, created by the resignation of Basil Smith, will be filled at the next meeting.

After agreeing to add two more members to the five-member park and recreation board, the council also decided to hold off on electing those individuals.

In other action, the council voted to send Councilwoman Jessie Jones and City Clerk Mary Largin to a meeting in Orlando, FL., Dec. 3-5, to learn about the revitalization of the downtown area of cities.

The cost of the trip will be $1,200.

Alabaster cracks down on pet owners

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

Under a new, more strict enforcement of Alabaster's leash law, warrants will be issued and owners will be fined for violations.

The city has a contract with the Shelby County Humane Society to spend 20 hours a week picking up stray dogs in Alabaster.

When people go to the humane society to claim dogs, they sign their names and give their addresses, said Alabaster

Police Chief Larry Rollan. Humane society workers could then sign warrants against the owners with the Alabaster Police Department, he said.

Cases would probably be treated similarly to traffic violations, Rollan said, with fines of $50 to $500.

City officials suggested the new policy in response to a citizen's complaint at last Thursday's council meeting.

Several appointments to city boards were also made at the meeting.

John Simpson will finish the last year of a term on the Parks and Recreation Board vacated by Buford Lee. Eloise Underwood was appointed to a four-year term on that board in a position formerly held by Richard Kidd.

Donald Kilpatrick was appointed to the Library Board.

Street lights were approved for Bluegrass Circle, Bluegrass Drive and County Road 264. The exact location of the lights is still to be decided.

The council approved the transfer of the city's cable franchise from Tac-Can to Cablevision. Details of the expected transfer are not available, but councilmembers hope the new company will soon accept more customers.

During American Education Week

County schools invite visits

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

Although the Shelby County School System has embarked on a massive building program, the instructional program is still a top priority.

With next week designated as American Education Week, Shelby County parents are invited to visit the schools their children attend to see what is being done in both areas.

"We welcome parent visits in our schools at any time during the year," says Education

Superintendent Ellie Glasscox, "but we extend a very special invitation during the week of November 17."

The superintendent expresses pride in the instruction that has been provided to Shelby County students, pointing to the system's third place ranking on achievement test scores out of 67 county systems.

Glasscox also notes that 22 of the system's 23 schools are accredited by the State Department of Education and the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges.

"The needed improvements and additions that have been undertaken in our $12 million building program will only serve to further enhance our excellent instructional program," Glasscox says.

American Education Week is sponsored jointly by the National School Boards Association, U.S. Department of Education, American Legion, National Congress of Parents and Teachers, and the National Education Association.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

Good times recalled

It's That Notebook Again:
Two short visits with two sick friends: Mildred Harrison and Freida Kelly, both feeling a little better and both missed by their many freinds.
The most popular place in town: the big sprawling pecan tree in the yard at the Methodist Church. It has been there for years, even when Dr. Chandler lived in the big white house, and nobody remembers a year when it didn't have a bumper crop.
The way they've made the old courthouse look: it makes a fellow feel good. A fellow's age is slipping up on him as surely as there will always be death and taxes. Since he realizes they can probably make him look good, wrinkles and aches and all.
Leon Archer trying to find a familiar spot in a changing world: an old wooden bridge over Yellowleaf creek, a shed over the spring at Jackson's place on the Wilsonville road, a dusty road from Harpersville to Westover, an old courthouse at Columbiana, the iron works at Shelby and the big hotel, Ruby and Talmadge Nelson's home on the Shelby road, the Columbiana Leader, folks he knew then, gone now, but still remembered.
A Christmas gift for my old friends: if you've read my stuff through the years and didn't have a place in your budget for my book, drop me a line and I'll mail you a copy for Christmas.
A reminder that pretty soon now it'll be time for the Christmas Fund again: maybe it's the best thing we do. I'm sure it brings more happiness, in places where happiness means so much and is so greatly appreciated. That same old fellow will cripple around again this year. I guess because he gets so much enjoyment out of it.

The weekly Good Morning column written by Milton Bird is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member FDIC.

James splits Graddick votes

The hundred or so folks who met with Fob James in Montgomery last week for a political bull session left that meeting totally persuaded that he is no longer a "likely" candidate for governor...he is a "definite" candidate.
Said one of those present: "There's no doubt in my mind. He's running."
If in fact James does run, it will be one of the most remarkable about faces in recent political history. When James left office in January, 1983, he left every indication that he (and his wife, Bobbie) had enjoyed all of the political life they could stand. He didn't say "never," but he came darn close to it.
Now, three years later, the bug has stung him again. There is no doubt that a James candidacy will impact on the 1986 race, most especially on the chances of Atty. Gen. Charles Graddick. Graddick had hoped to be the lone candidate in the race who would appeal to the conservative, pro-business community of Alabama. He will now have to share that constituency with James.
On the flip side, a James candidacy will probably please Lt. Gov. Bill Baxley. He would like to see the conservative vote split, since he isn't likely to get any of it.
More and more it looks like the 1980 Democratic primary for governor will be two-races-in-one. Baxley and George McMillan will be battling for the more liberal Democratic votes; James and Graddick for the more conservative. The survivors from those two contests will likely meet head-on in a run-off.
The newly created Alabama Business Council, which is a merger of the State Chamber of Commerce and the Associated Industries of Alabama (AIA), have picked Clark Richardson as its top man. Richardson, a Eufaula native, formerly was a governmental affairs executive with Alabama Power...The Hezekiah Wagstaff/Elvin Stanton affair gets tackier by the day. It would make a dandy script for a second-rate soap opera. Change that to a third-rate soap opera. Change that to a third-rate soap opera...Several Democratic Party facecards have joined the Wallace-won't-run bandwagon. Former Democratic Party Chairman Jimmy Knight is of that opinion, so is another former chairman of the party, George Lewis Bailes of Birmingham...The polls continue to be something less than encouraging for George Wallace, Jr., who aspires to be the next State Treasurer.
It's still early, but the surveys so far show that State Auditor Jan Cook has a solid lead over the field in the treasurer's race...The most overplayed news story of the week: Don Black's announcement that he will run for the U. S. Senate in the Republican Primary. Black is a top KKK official in Alabama. He might get five per-cent of the vote, simply because he will likely be listed first on the ballot because of the alphabet.

Gorbachev's strengths, weaknesses cited

EDITOR'S NOTE:

Marcia and Ralph Sears, former publishers of the Shelby County Reporter, returned to Montevallo on October 27 after a month-long study mission to the Soviet Union and Mongolia. The mission was sponsored by the National Newspaper Association, Washington, D.C.
The 23 American newspaper publishers who made the trip interviewed Soviet officials and Western observers, and visited schools, museums, farms, churches, the Kremlin and a hospital. The group toured 10 major cities across the length and breadth of the country in their attempt to gain an in-depth understanding of the Soviet Union and its people. These reports are based on the interviews and the author's personal observations.

By Marcia M. Sears

Soviet faces light up at the mention of their new leader, Mikhail Gorbachev. And when they talk with foreigners, their eyes show that they want the rest of the world to share that enthusiasm.

"What do Americans think of Gorbachev?" we were asked, from one end of the Soviet Union to the other.

The proud look on the faces told us they like a leader with the vitality and style he and his wife project.

They know the world is watching as the Geneva Summit meeting approaches. It is a universal hope that the two most powerful nations on earth will be able to reach a level of mutual trust that will promote worldwide peace.

Yet Soviet people are told regularly through their tightly controlled press that Americans are out for world superiority and that President Reagan is an especially serious warmonger.

A month in the Soviet Union surely does not make an expert of anyone, but for those who might be interested, here are my observations on the hand Mikhail Gorbachev will hold when he sits down at the conference table with our President. Strengths:

1. Solid position with his own Communist Party and the Politburo. His youth, relative to that of recent Soviet leaders, means he could be in control for years to come.

2. Knows how to play the 'public image' role and already has a strong international image. He is both intelligent and shrewd.

3. Has been negotiating with the French and English separately to unsettle the U. S. position with its friends. Stepped up anti-U.S. propaganda this summer.

4. Military superiority in many areas: naval vessels, SS-20's, tanks, etc. (This is so widely reported, I won't try to detail it.)

Weaknesses:

1. Rising expectations at home mean he has to improve living conditions. (I saw no improvement in consumer goods or living conditions since a visit there three years ago).

2. Defense spending is draining the Soviet economy. The war in Afghanistan is taking a terrible toll in men and money. A high official in the Foreign Ministry told us, "We have to get out of Afghanistan." Estimates range to 110,000 Soviets in armed forces there. Cuba is draining off a million dollars a day. Third world countries in Africa and Central America increase the drain.

3. The labor shortage is severe everywhere except in the cities of Moscow and Leningrad. Factories are understaffed and workers aren't producing. They are no longer motivated by posters, medals or with pleas to work hard. Some see robots and high tech as a solution.

4. The country lags in high tech, and factory managers are so hamstrung by the system and Moscow's regulations that introducing new methods is almost impossible.

5. Economic system would not work without the 'gray market'. Even the KGB and the militia know this. Corruption is widespread. The people have enough food and clothing, but for anything extra, such as arranging a wedding or birthday party, people have to bribe.

In summary, he needs to make concessions in the military area to have some money for improving daily life at home. But his people will doubtless stand behind him and continue their spartan way of living if he can convince them it is necessary to compete with the United States.

Next column: The lighter side.

Letters to the editor

'Don't Sell' editorial draws fire

Letter to the Editor:

I must take exception to the editorial in the Reporter last week, "Don't Sell." Why would Mr. Parks take this position so early? Could it be that he is aware that if the Hospital is sold the paper would no longer have access to all Board and Committee meetings which has constituted a large part of his news?

Mr. Parks has not been around for the past 26 years to pay the tax and to have seen the turmoil at the hospital, including the strikes and shooting. When he mentions that the tax will only be around another 20 years, this doesn't seem like "mid-stream" to me, but "up-stream" all the way.

Regarding his comment about the disadvantage of a "light turnout", this could be to his advantage because if this happens, the 500 hospital employees who mistakenly believe that their job might be in jeopardy would vote to keep things just like they are. When the actual fact is their jobs might be even more secure with a private owner who offers better benefits than they now have.

As to his suggestion that the Commission stick to things they understand like "paving roads and issuing liquor licenses", maybe Jim should stick to things he knows more about, like selling ads and improving circulation.

State job service one of nation's best

Critics like to talk about how Alabama lags behind other states in some things, but we are right up at the top when it comes to finding jobs for our men and women who are out of work. And in finding workers for new industry.

The most recent report from the federal government shows the Alabama State Employment Service led the southeast in job placements. During the 12 months which ended last June 30, the agency put 79,836 people back to work.

That is 289 job placements per staff member, the best, the most efficient record among the eight states of the southeastern region. Those states, besides Alabama, are Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee.

Leading the southeastern region also gives Alabama one of the best job-finding performance records in the nation, since the southeast led all other regions in that field.

And it shows a substantial increase in the rate and number of job placements since my present administration began. Three years ago the number of placements per staff member was 211 and the number of jobs found for unemployed men and women was 58,662. That is 42 percent below last year's figure.

In its 65 offices throughout the state, the Employment Service, which is a branch of the state Industrial Relations Department, has been finding jobs for Alabama workers for more than 50 years, and its value to the job-seekers who use its services is well known. It finds jobs for thousands of Alabamians every year and doesn't even charge a fee for its services.

Less well known is the service it provides for business and industry.

Although many business establishments have their own personnel departments, the employment agency offers valuable assistance in finding qualified workers for plants in need of employees with special skills.

Public employment services and personnel departments in private business are trying to achieve the same purpose — to reduce labor turnover by using the most accurate methods of matching worker qualifications with job requirements. And they are trying to make sure that no jobs remain vacant when qualified applicants are available.

The State Employment Service becomes a valuable ally of the plant's personnel department when it takes over—as it often does—the task of interviewing large numbers of applicants to find out who is qualified and who isn't.

That relieves the plant's personnel department of the tedious job of having to interview long lines of workers who aren't qualified and who would have little if any chance of being hired in the first place.

The personnel staff can use the time for other phases of personnel work — conducting occupational studies, developing employee recreational programs, promoting safety measures and accident prevention, carrying on training programs and otherwise devoting their time to aspects of personnel work which otherwise might have to be neglected.

When job-seekers are interviewed in advance by the employment service, it also saves industry from having to turn them away at the plant gate.

Besides offering intelligent assistance to the personnel department by finding qualified workers, the employment service also can provide the facilities of a job bank which can find a worker in an adjoining county or somewhere else in the state if none are available locally.

Thus there is a place in the community for the local employment office and for the personnel department in every establishment. Each has its sphere of activity; each can supplement and complement the other.

Each has an opportunity to improve itself and to extend its sphere of activity. Each can do its part toward perfecting a closer and better working relationship. They are partners in the vital task of getting the right person for the right job.

Montevallo phone book published

The Montevallo Chamber of Commerce has published and put on sale a new telephone directory.

Chamber president Steven R. Sears commented, "We hope this project results in multiple benefits to Montevallo."

"First, we wanted Montevallo's citizens to have available a telephone book that was shorter than the Greater Shelby BellSouth book, yet one that had more useful local information.

"Second, we wanted to raise money for a worthy cause."

Any profit from the publication will be deposited in the Chamber treasury to fund such projects as Christmas wreaths for businesses, Christmas street lighting, and refurbishing the "Welcome to Montevallo" signs at the city limits.

Between now and Thanksgiving, Montevallo High School baseball coach Johnnie Horton is coordinating a door-to-door sales campaign, and proceeds from that distribution will go toward new uniforms and equipment for the team. Further information may be had from Coach Horton at MHS: 665-2970.

Included among the more than 4,000 listings are all telephones within the 665 exchange, plus those 663, 664 and 668 telephones served by the Montevallo Post Office, plus anyone employed by the University of Montevallo.

The type is larger, and the last names of individuals are capitalized for easier reading. Businesses who are either members of the Chamber or who advertised in the book are printed in bold type.

A "cross" listing in the back of the book arranges by street number those telephone subscribers with street addresses.

Pelham develops land for new business site

Forty-two acres on the southeast corner of Interstate-65 and County Road 52 in Pelham are expected to be developed for an unnamed business.

The Shelby County Commission agreed Tuesday to Pelham Mayor Bobby Hayes's request that the county and city share costs for building a road to the area. The road would be dedicated to the city as public property.

The area has almost 100 additional acres available for industrial development for other businesses.

Hayes reported that a business was ready to locate on the 42 acres and that more details would soon be available.

date to cash in on our asset while it still has some value."

The commission approved wording for the referendum on the sale and for advertising of the referendum.

The referendum will ask about a sale to the highest cash bidder, with the price required to be at least the total value of the board and hospital's facilities, properties and assets.

The ballot will say that the purchase price will be put in a trust, with only the interest used. That interest will finance indigent care, with any money left spent for county-wide capital improvements. The purchase price is required to be high enough to generate enough interest to fund indigent care.

In a resolution passed Saturday day by the SMC board of trustees, the wording was criticized for not adequately covering the terms of a sale.

"A concrete sale price, guaranteed legislative action to create a trust fund and a management designee to control the fund and ensure that it is used only for indigent care," are not addressed in the wording of the referendum, the resolution said.

An advertisement with the entire text is on Page D-3 of this newspaper.

VOTE ON DECEMBER 10!

The Shelby County Commission has called for a referendum on December 10 to decide the issue of whether to keep Shelby Medical Center as a public asset or sell the hospital to a private concern. The Shelby County Hospital Board has gone on record as being opposed to the sale of Shelby Medical Center. Therefore, The Board is deeply concerned that the public be afforded every opportunity to be fully informed on the facts surrounding the operation of Shelby Medical Center.

The referendum, as currently publicized, does not adequately address the terms of the proposed sale, specifically, a concrete sale price, guaranteed legislative action to create a trust fund and a management designee to control the fund and to ensure that it is used only for indigent care.

The Shelby County Hospital Board feels strongly that decisions affecting the provision of hospital services in Shelby County should be made locally, not by absentee owners. And that any financial gains made by the hospital should be reinvested into the ongoing operations of the hospital, not paid to stockholders.

The Shelby County Hospital Board also realizes its obligation and mission are to see that Shelby Medical Center provides the best medical care possible to all residents of Shelby County.

The Shelby County Hospital Board sees no compelling reason for or benefit from a sale of the hospital and goes on record as opposing the sale of Shelby Medical Center.

Cowan named UM music head

Pianist Joan Yarbrough Cowan has been named acting chairman of the music department at the University of Montevallo.

Mrs. Cowan replaces Dr. Ted Pritchett who has remained on staff as professor of music. A native of Boston, Mass., she has been a member of the UM faculty since 1964.

"I am delighted that Joan Cowan has accepted the acting chair of the Music Department for 1985-86," said Dr. John Stewart, dean of the College of Fine Arts.

"She is not only the gifted musician whom we have admired in public performances during her time here, she also possesses notable organizational and administrative skills. I am confident that those skills, with the zeal and energy which she brings to all her undertakings, will serve the department and its programs."

Recruitment and a music alumni reunion will be the focus of her one-year term as department chairman. Mrs. Cowan plans to visit over 40 high schools in the Birmingham, Huntsville and Montgomery areas.

Her department will host a music alumni reunion Feb. 22. Invitations, recorded on cassette, will be sent out next month. A wide range of activities are planned for the event, beginning with afternoon seminars on the UM campus. Participants will tour the music building and view the department's instrument collection.

Later that evening, a social hour and dinner will be held at the Wynfrey Hotel in the Galleria mall. A showcase concert will follow, featuring singer Rebecca Luker '82. A jazz trio will also perform. Tickets for the dinner are $15.

"Alumni who have taken part in our department's activities and did not receive an invitation should call us and we will send one to them," she said.

Mrs. Cowan received her bachelor of music degree from Oberlin Conservatory in Oberlin, OH. As part of the school's junior year abroad program, she studied at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria. She attended the Royal Academy of Music in London on a private fellowship and received an LRAM degree in 1963.

While in London, she met and married her husband, Robert Cowan, and the two embarked upon a duo-piano career under the name of Yarbrough and Cowan. Considered by many to be America's foremost husband-and-wife duo-piano team, they have performed throughout the United States, Europe and Mexico. Robert Cowan is also a music professor at UM.

Graddick gives safety tips for space heaters

Attorney General Charles Graddick today issued a warning to Alabama consumers concerning space heater safety.

"Two years ago in Alabama five people were asphyxiated in Mobile County due to carbon monoxide poisoning associated with space heaters," Graddick said.

In the U.S. nearly 7,000 people received burn injuries and another 200 are killed each year due to carbon monoxide poisoning.

"This home heating season consider the following safety tips if purchasing, installing or using a gas fired space heater," he warned.

When purchasing a space heater, buy one with a guard around the flames or heating coil to keep children and pets away from the heat source.

If purchasing an electric space heater, be sure that it has an automatic switch which terminates electric power if the heater is tipped over.

Always have your gas space heater professionally installed and inspected.

Check with the State Fire Marshall's Office concerning fire codes. Make sure you have met all installation standards.

Do not put a space heater near drapes, furniture or other flammable materials.

To prevent electric shock, avoid using a portable heater anywhere near a bathtub, shower or sink. Never touch an electric heater if you are wet.

Keep a window partially open and the room well-ventilated if you are using an unvented, fuel-burning space heater. Even vented heaters require ventilation for proper combustion.

Never use flammable liquids such as gasoline around a space heater. The flammable vapors can flow from one part of the room to another and can be ignited by the open flame.

Never use an unvented heater overnight in the room where you are sleeping. Deadly amounts of carbon monoxide could accumulate and asphyxiation might occur.

For more information regarding space heaters, contact the Attorney General's Office of Consumer Protection, toll-free, 1-800-392-5658.

Emerine cooks for world's dignitaries

How many college students can say they have lived in dozens of places between New York City and Rio de Janeiro, preparing meals for the likes of Jacqueline Onassis and the Shah of Iran?

One University of Alabama student can, but don't expect a round Frenchman in a funny hat.

He is 28-year-old Lauren Emerine, whose parents live in Pelham. He is currently studying small hotel and restaurant management in the UA New College.

Emerine certainly has the necessary experience for a degree in restaurant management.

However, he says cooking for the former Shah, Jackie Onassis, and other dignitaries is "no big thing. They're people just like us."

Emerine cooked for these people while working in Ecuador. Unfortunately, Emerine did not get to personally meet the guests because of security reasons.

He has met other famous names, however. At a charity benefit at Bluebeard's Castle, where he once worked, he met television stars Jamie Farr and Valerie Bertinelli.

But all of his guests, famous or not, have left well-fed.

Chef Emerine specializes in French, Italian and West Indian cuisine. The latter includes fruit, seasoned rice and a lot of seafood, such as shark, squid and octopus.

Once, while still an apprentice cook in a famous restaurant, he made an omelette that had one tiny wrinkle in the top. The head chef, outraged, picked up the 250-lb. Emerine and put him in a huge pot sink full of dirty dishes. He had to sit in that sink and wash dishes all day.

Since then Emerine has become president of the Greater Birmingham Chefs and Cooks Association.

When not in the kitchen or the classroom, Chef Emerine spends his time on another sort of training.

An ardent bicyclist, he has lost 120 pounds since the head chef put him in a pot sink. He loves to take "little" 25-mile rides as often as possible. He is now training on his new Italian racing bike for two 30-mile races to be held in Birmingham and Tuscaloosa this year.

Four PHS seniors named merit scholars

Pelham High School has been notified by National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC) that Jonathan A. Perlis, Jamie R. Grimes, Richard J. Wilkerson and Christopher S. King have been designated Commended Students in the 1986 Merit Program.

PHS Principal Dr. Edwin Belue said these seniors will receive a Letter of Commendation in honor of outstanding academic promise, demonstrated by placing in the top five percent of over one million participants in the 31st annual National Merit Scholarship Program.

"Being named a Commended Student in the extremely competitive Merit Program is a credit to these young men and women and to their schools, which play an important role in the development of academically talented youth. The high test performance of Commended Students is indicative of exceptional scholastic ability, which is essential in a nation that prides itself on cultivating individual excellence. We hope the honor these students have earned will provide motivation for them to use their talents to the fullest and also will serve as an example for other aspiring young citizens," an officer of NMSC, which administers the program, said.

Participants entered the current Merit Program by taking the PSAT/NMSQT in October 1984, when most of them were juniors. Although their qualifying test scores are very high, the 35,000 Commended Students nationwide scored slightly below the level required for Semifinalist standing.

Only the 15,000 semifinalists, whose names were announced on September 11, will continue in the competition for some 5,800 Merit Scholarships to be awarded in 1986.

SMC clinic focuses on hearing, balance

Shelby Medical Center has announced the opening of the Hearing and Balance Clinic. The clinic will operate within the hospital's Outpatient Clinic.

Audiologist Terry Roberts of Southern Hearing Consultants will conduct hearing evaluations and will provide rehabilitation and counseling to patients with hearing loss.

Roberts said more than 17 million Americans have a noticeable hearing loss, but only a small percentage of these people seek help.

"Many people still believe there is nothing that can be done for hearing loss, but with medical advances and through hearing aid technology, there is absolutely no one with hearing loss that can not be helped in some way," he said.

The first clue to hearing loss, Roberts said, is the inability to understand speech.

"Most people with a hearing loss can hear people talking but often cannot understand what is being said," Roberts said.

Roberts said at the Hearing and Balance Clinic, he will be able to identify the hearing or balance problem and give the patient better direction for help. This may include medical treatment, a hearing aid or counseling on how to use eyesight to understand speech better.

"The main thing is to make people realize they do not have to just live with this problem. They can be helped," said Roberts.

Upon physician referral, Roberts said the clinic will also be evaluating individuals with balance problems.

Roberts has a Masters of Arts degree in Audiology, is certified by the American Speech, Language and Hearing Association and is licensed by the state of Alabama. He has practiced in Alabama for seven years.

Patients can be referred to the Hearing and Balance Clinic by their family physicians or can contact Roberts at 663-5840.

Melody Hereford and David Dillmore recently won $15 cash prizes in contests sponsored by the Pelham Library.

Melody, the daughter of David and Joy Hereford of Pelham, placed first in the pumpkin carving contest. She is a third grade student at Kingwood Christian School.

David, a seventh grade student at Riverchase Middle School, won the poster contest to promote reading. He is the son of Jane and Gary Dillmore of Pelham.

The poster contest was for grades six through eight and the pumpkin carving for kindergarten through fifth grade.

Community building offers services

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is part of a weekly series on the services provided by government agencies in Shelby County. This week's article features offices in the Community Services Building.

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

The Community Services Building in Columbiana houses several offices that serve Shelby County residents.

The Community Services Administration, headed by Gladys Ross, distributes cheese, butter, rice, honey, powdered milk, meal and flour throughout the county when any of these are available to it.

A weatherization program offers help with insulation, under-pinnings, storm windows and similar energy-saving measures for the winter. Financial assistance with heating bills is offered beginning in November.

The agency offers transportation aid for people needing to get to medical appointments, seeking food stamp assistance and similar trips. With the help of other counties' offices in this state administration, people can be taken just about anywhere they need in the state, Ross said.

Information on financial eligibility for each program is available through the office. If the Community Services Administration cannot help with a particular problem, Ross will try to refer people to another agency that can.

She is helped by van driver Effie Glass, but said a volunteer to answer the telephone would be useful.

The Vocational Rehabilitation Service has a case load of about 250 in the county. The agency's work is limited to helping the handicapped with employment.

Help is available with job training, medical services that are necessary for a client to be able to work, college and trade school training and other employment needs of the handicapped.

Clients include people with physical and mental handicaps, such as mental illness, mental retardation and learning disabilities. The agency is staffed by counselor Steve Westendorf and secretary Carolyn Horton.

The Juvenile Probation office supervises about 263 children up to age 18, with the largest caseload in ages 15-17. The office also handles paperwork dealing with such matters and temporary custody and termination of parental rights, and refers these cases to the appropriate agency.

"Probation is not a punishment. It's a type of rehabilitation," said Chief Probation Officer John Miller. "Just whatever we can do to help the child, we'll do." This includes helping teenagers look for jobs and providing transportation to counseling and medical appointments.

The office classifies children in need of supervision, whose offenses — such as truancy, running away or disobeying parents — are tied to their age, and delinquent cases, which involve actual crimes.

Miller said the agency's biggest problem is placement of children. Shelby Department of Youth Services and Attention Home, which is sometimes used, is currently filled to capacity. Several children are placed in Jefferson County facilities.

A possible solution is licensing of foster homes by the Juvenile Probation Office. Homes licensed by the Department of Pensions and Security are sometimes unwilling to accept children from the probation office. The office only tries to place children with minor offenses in foster homes, he said.

Miller added that foster homes are actually less expensive than institutional detainment. He hopes the new licensing procedure will bring about five homes, which "we would consider a 100 percent success."

The county's three probation officers are Bobby Wynn, Andrea Lovelady and Miller. Secretary Addie Gilliland will soon be joined by a new secretary to replace Vanessa Parks.

Other agencies in the Community Services Building to be covered in next week's article are The Program on Aging, Retired Senior Volunteer Program, Social Security and Veterans' Affairs.

VES students display art talent

Art winners

Approximately 500 pieces of art work filled the lunchroom at Vincent Elementary School where they were displayed last week. Some of the students who won first place awards in the competition (above) were: Hazel Kidd, Terri

Smith

These include heading up the steering committee for accreditation, serving as assistant principal, presenting a faculty workshop, and helping to organize the school's student government.

Another contribution she makes to the school is working with the lighting and sound at all the music festivals that are put on.

Smith has also served as facilitator for the county's in-service program and has been a member on the textbook selection committee for two years.

"I started out teaching music," Smith says, "but after three years decided I'd like to do something that had more challenge for me."

She had earned her B.S. in music education from Athens College. After deciding to make a change in her area of teaching, she obtained a Master of Education degree from the University of Montevallo.

Still moving up the educational ladder, Smith is presently working on an AA certificate in elementary education with a master's degree in administration.

When school is out for the summer, Smith sometimes puts on her traveling shoes. This past summer, her travels took her to Europe where she toured England, Germany, Austria, Italy and France.

Besides being enjoyable, the trip also provided an educational experience for her as well as her students. She says that dealing with foreign currency prompted her to develop a unit on the subject for her math classes.

When she's not teaching or traveling, Smith works at staying in shape. She takes twice weekly aerobics classes and plays racquetball when time permits.

Smith is the mother of a nine-year-old daughter Jamie, who is a student at Montevallo Elementary School.

Kovakas team honored

Kovakas Realty in Wilsonville recently honored its staff of agents and office personnel with a luncheon and awards ceremony.

Carol Sims, the firm's secretary, was honored for service and dedication to the company.

"Carol does a superb job of being the liaison for our sales agents and customers," said broker Penny Kovakas. "She easily handles every situation that comes along."

Sue Hope was recognized for her recent designation as a GRI (Graduate Realtors Institute) agent.

"Her continuing education is the mark of a talented individual," Kovakas said.

James B. Kovakas was given realtor status with the company.

"I am proud these people who keep themselves in the mainstream of activity at this firm," Penny Kovakas said.

"They are knowledgeable, motivated and dedicated personnel."

has lived in Alabama longer than anywhere. After graduation, she lived in Shelby with her parents for two years.

Her father, Rev. Frank Cole, was minister of Bay Springs Baptist Church. He and her mother have moved to Pennsylvania and she now lives in Hoover

"I knew when I was a little girl, in the second or third grade, what I wanted to be when I grew up. I've played school all my life," Cole said.

Her goal is to give children an exciting, positive, individualized education. Cole said she loves watching children learn and learning from them. "It's a two-way street."

Cole is an active member of Dawson Memorial Baptist Church in Homewood and enjoys hiking, swimming and reading.

her fellow faculty members think, because they voted Oyer the school's 1985 nominee for the state-wide teacher of the year program.

"To know that I have done my job well enough that my faculty is aware of that is very gratifying," Oyer said.

Oyer is among the special services teachers at Thompson. She feels, however, that her area of expertise is important to all aspects of education.

"I love children and, having two of my own, I want all children to have the best chance possible to make it in this highly verbal world," Oyer said. "We often forget that communication skills plays a great part in how well we perform regardless of how much book knowledge we have."

Oyer and her husband Scott have two children, Christopher, a 6-year-old first grader at TES, and three-year-old Lissa.

In addition to her activities at Thompson, Oyer is on the advisory board for the Community Education program in Alabaster and is president of the Shelby County chapter of the University of Montevallo Alumni Association.

Oyer holds both an undergraduate and master's degree from UM.

The Oyers attend church at First Presbyterian in Birmingham.

"We have gotten too far away from talking to our children and instead we talk at them," Oyer said. "Many children don't have good models for speech development and I am trying to provide that."

Oyer says that working with the children at TES who need her help is very gratifying as well.

"There is nothing greater for me than to have a child with multiple speech problems say his name our count to 10 and watch his eyes as they realize I understood every single word."

"The factual contents of education may fall away or become obsolete," she said.

What is not lost is the influence of a caring teacher, she added.

She received her bachelor of science degree and master of education degree in special education from the University of Alabama in Birmingham.

A native of Bessemer, she is married to Jimmy E. Jackson and has two children, Milton Jr. and Germeria Miller. Jackson belongs to New Salem Baptist Church, where she serves as president of the Pastor's Aides, teacher, vice-president of Christian Education and superior of the Crusaders.

Other civic committees she serves on include Burstall Civil League, Concerned Citizens of

Thompson youth teams have winning week

The Thompson Youth Football's smallest Warriors — the 70-pound team — ended a season-long losing streak with two big wins recently.

The baby Warriors scored an 18-0 win over Vestavia and a 25-0 win over Shades Mountain for their first two victories of the 1985 season.

In the win over Vestavia, Cliff Webb, Kevin Kendrick and T. J. Walker scored the Thompson touchdowns, Kendrick's coming on a 79-yard run.

Coaches tabbed the efforts of Mark Ivester and Earl Pike as being good on offense while Bill Mullins and Taylor Ard led the defense.

Against Shades Mountain, Kendrick and Walker scored two touchdowns each, Kendrick adding a PAT as well.

Offensive leaders included Justin Chappell and Kevin Dixon while T. J. Seales, Shawn Payne and Chris Burke led the defense.

The Thompson 80-pound Warriors suffered a 20-14 loss during recent JeffCo league action despite TDs and conversions from Jami Davis and Bran Dill. Chad Zernhelt led the youth Warriors on defense.

The Thompson 85-pounders recorded their seventh shut-out in eight games as they beat Vestavia 26-0. Brad Jones, Stan Weldy, Tom Smith, Mark Lucas and Mark Davenport led the Thompson defense.

Heath Hines, D.J. Pike, Jerome Jones and Adam Kayton scored touchdowns for the youth Warriors with Robert Jarrell and Jason Quick adding PATs.

Tre Thompson and Jeff Mize scored touchdowns to lead the 95-pound Warriors to a 12-0 win over Pleasant Grove. Terry Lowery, Bradley Moon, Heath Abbott, Kendall Watson and Scotty Brasseaux led the Warriors on defense.

Four touchdowns by Eric Kendrick powered the Thompson 105-pound team to a 35-13 win over Vestavia. Derico Jones also added a touchdown to the Thompson totals while Scotty Ogle, Chris Lackey, Chris Lovelady and Jeff Webb played well on defense. Ogle recorded an interception in the game.

SMC advances through high tech

In 1959, Shelby County opened a 35-bed hospital. Through the years, this small, county-owned hospital has evolved into a modern, technologically-advanced medical complex, now called Shelby Medical Center.

This evolution has taken place almost without the knowledge of Shelby County citizens, said SMC Administrator C.L. Denton.

"Many people do not know how technologically advanced Shelby Medical Center really is. With the exception of open-heart or brain surgery, this hospital has the capability to perform virtually any diagnostic or surgical procedure," he said.

Some of the technology available at SMC includes:

- A Computerized Axial Tomography (CT) Scanner, which allows physicians to view parts of the body that could not be seen before. X-rays projected through the body are picked up by sensors in the scanner. Information is then fed automatically into a computer which analyzes it and produces an image of a body part on a screen. In many cases, the CT scanner has replaced exploratory surgery.

- A Special Procedure Suite as part of the Radiology Department. The suite contains highly advanced and sophisticated equipment which allows radiologists to better diagnose and treat various circulatory ailments and to treat certain other diseases with the new interventional techniques.

The computer associated with the angiography camera, located within the suite, allows radiologists to perform a highly technical and specialized x-ray called "digital subtraction." In this x-ray, the image of the bone is "subtracted," leaving a picture of only the arteries and veins. By being able to clearly

THS debate team gears up

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

The Thompson High School debate team staged a mock debate recently, a tune-up for their first debate competition later this week.

The Thompson team will travel to Charles Henderson High School in Troy for a two-day debate match this Friday and Saturday, taking on the likes of Homewood, Huffman, Vestavia and Mountain Brook high schools.

The 12-member debate team at Thompson is in its first year. Coached by Government and Economics teacher Debbie Copeland, the team is also receiving instruction from Samford debate coach Skip Coulter, an Alabaster resident.

In the mock debate, Coulter's instruction centered on "flow" in debating, helping the team members to provide the best possible rebuttal to another debate team's points.

Copeland said her team has been working hard in its first year to overcome a time disadvantage that most schools will have enforce over Thompson.

The current season's debate issue — a question on whether or not to improve the water quality in the United States — was released nationwide last May. Since the Thompson group organized only this fall, it left the team members with a lot of catching up to do, Copeland said.

Federal checks are becoming more cost effective

Checks from the federal government are changing from the familiar green punched-card check to a new, more counterfeit-resistant, cost-effective paper check.

The new lightweight checks will be issued to social security beneficiaries on Dec. 3, 1985, and to those receiving IRS tax refunds beginning February 1986, according to Zora Puckett, director of the Birmingham Financial Center of the U.S. Treasury's Financial Management Service.

Puckett emphasized that people can still have the new checks sent directly to their accounts in financial institutions.

Taxpayers will save $6 million a year through this move to modernize and conform with general banking practices, said W.E. Douglas, commissioner of the U.S. Department of the Treasury's Financial Management Service.

The new check is also more difficult to alter or counterfeit. "The paper check contains more than a dozen security features, which is three times more than the old check had," Douglas said. These are in the design, the ink and the paper.

Kent Farm Holsteins are regional prize winners

Holstein cattle from Kent Farms in Alabaster were among the prize winners at the Southeastern Regional Holstein Show held during the South Alabama State Fair in Montgomery in October. Marsha Kent, Matthew McCray and Michelle Kent each had cows in the various categories of competition which matched the local entrants

Over $34,000 in prize monies were awarded during the fairs competitive events which included swine, beef and dairy cattle, arts and crafts, flowers, art and photography shows and various 4-H and FFA exhibits.

Cancer support group started

A support group for cancer patients and their families is being started at Carraway Methodist Medical Center.

TOUCH — Today Our Understanding of Cancer is Hope — is sponsored by the American Cancer Society which helps patients and their families deal with problems of cancer. Individuals can share their concerns about diet, radiation therapy, chemotherapy and other subjects.

Carraway will plan meeting times and subjects based on input from interested people, who should call Carraway's Social Services Department at 226-6030. The program is free and open to the public.

Carole would like to invite all her former clients & friends to visit her at her new location.

Microfilm solves clerk's storage problem

With an ever increasing number of court cases being filed, Shelby County Circuit Court Clerk Kyle Lansford has been hard pressed to find a place to put them.

Although he had recently ordered eight additional file cabinets, he wasn't even sure where he could find the space to put them in the cramped quarters he has at his disposal in the courthouse.

But now a solution has been found to Lansford's problem. It's called microfilm.

On the recommendation of the Administrative Office of Courts, Lansford is putting the files on microfilm.

So far, five years of case files (1977-1981) have been filmed in Montgomery and returned. The files, which had previously occupied two six-shelf cabinets, are now stored in a shoebox-sized container.

Lansford said he expects it to take about two years to put the records now in his office on film.

In order to view the cases and make copies when needed, Lansford took bids on a microfilm reader-printer. The equipment was purchased from Southern Accounting in Birmingham, whose low bid was approximately $3,000.

Besides saving space, Lansford said the new method of storing records also saves time and money.

It takes less time to locate files and make copies, he explained, and there is no longer any need to purchase file folders and cabinets.

see vessels, a radiologist can better identify abnormalities.

A recently expanded Cardiology Department contains a 2 D echocardiogram and a new computerized treadmill. These two pieces of equipment have greatly increased the hospital's diagnostic capabilities.

As part of the Cardiology Department, SMC opened a Cardiac Catheterization Lab. SMC was the first county hospital in Alabama to install a Cath Lab. The lab enables cardiologists to perform extensive cardiac testing as well as to treat patients who come to the hospital experiencing a heart attack. These treatments can effectively stop a heart attack and reduce damage to the heart- if performed within four hours of the onset of symptoms.

SMC's modern surgical suite houses five surgical rooms. Here surgeons can perform any surgery except open-heart or brain surgery. Last year the department did 3,658 cases, an average of more than 10 every day of the year.

The Emergency Department contains a trauma center, two cardiac rooms, and eight treatment rooms. A full-time physician is on duty at all times.

A new clinical lab with computerized equipment has greatly reduced lab result times and increased testing accuracy. The lab is accredited by the College of American Pathologists, which commended the lab and its staff for its excellence in services provided to both patients and physicians.

The Outpatient Center allows patients to have surgery or diagnostic testing without the inconvenience of an overnight stay. The center has the capability to perform as many as 200 surgical procedures. More than 1,300 surgeries were done during its first year as an independent department.

In addition, SMC has well-equipped Physical Therapy, Respiratory Therapy, Neurology and Nuclear Medicine departments. In all, there are more than 30 medical and support departments in the hospital, staffed by highly trained professionals.

The physicians and dentists who treat patients at SMC offer convenient access to family care as well as more than 30 specialties. Their credentials come from some of the nation's top medical schools, including Baylor, Harvard, the Mayo Clinic, Tulane, the University of Alabama in Birmingham and the University of South Alabama. More than 30 of these physicians have offices located within walking distance of Shelby Medical Center.

Shelby Medical Center is a progressive acute-care hospital. Its modern facilities and technology make it one of the best county-owned hospitals in the state.

Pelham Lions given SMC tour

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

Members of the Pelham Lions Club met at Alabaster's Shelby Medical Center recently, touring the hospital facility and hearing from Dr. Dale Elliott, Chief of Cardiology at SMC.

The club was invited to meet at SMC after hospital administrator presented a program to the Lions at an earlier meeting.

"We were able to arrange a presentation from Chip Denton just after he came to the hospital," said Adrian Drapkin, program chairman for the Lions Club.

"At the time, he invited us to visit the hospital and learn more about it," Drapkin continued. "We enjoyed the meeting there and I think most of our eyes were opened to the fine facility we have in Alabaster."

The hospital presentation centered on the hospital's newly-opened heart catheterization facility and the work Elliott is doing through the facility. Included in the presentation was a tour of the lab conducted by Elliott and lab manager Sharon Barnes, a presentation on heart problems and their warning signs and a general question and answer time.

"It was a very informative evening," Drapkin said. "I think all of us would encourage people to get to know that hospital and become familiar with what it has to offer."

Turkeys should be chosen, thawed carefully

Yes, it's that time of year when millions of Americans sit down to traditional Thanksgiving dinners. No matter how much change occurs, the holiday menu is one thing that remains the same. For all of you with visions of roast turkey on your table for Thanksgiving, here is a refresher course on all you need to know about turkey to make your dinner a success.

HOW TO BUY YOUR BIRD

Turkeys come in all sizes to fit everyone's holiday meal plans. They can be purchased whole as in the traditional manner, or in parts, suitable for small families or those who have a preference for white or dark meat only. They come fresh or frozen, self-basting and prestuffed.

There are two important pieces of information to look for before you make your selection. An inspection mark on the label lets you know the turkey has been inspected and that it is safe, wholesome and accurately labeled. Another symbol you will find on many packages is a USDA grade mark - usually grade A.

How can you be sure of buying a tender turkey? The age category on the label is the key. The younger the turkey, the more tender and mild flavored it will be. All turkeys in the market are young and will be labeled young turkey (usually 4 to 6 months of age). There are also young turkeys labeled fryer-roaster (usually under 16 weeks of age).

Another choice shoppers make is whether to buy a fresh or frozen turkey. There is no significant difference in quality between a fresh turkey and a frozen one; the choice is based on personal preference. If you are one of those people who likes to shop well in advance of when you will be serving your meal, then a frozen turkey is your best bet. At the market, look for one that is solidly frozen. The USDA recommends that for optimal safety, buy a fresh turkey only if you do your shopping within 1 or 2 days of when you plan to serve it. The reason is that fresh turkeys, like other fresh meat and poultry, are highly perishable. You need to be careful when purchasing and storing them to avoid spoilage. If you buy one too far in advance, it may start to spoil in your refrigerator before you're ready to cook it.

Here, too, some labels can be helpful by including "sell by" dates. The "sell by" date is the last day the turkey should be sold by the retailer. It will maintain optimal quality and safety for 1 or 2 days after this date.

Once you have decided on the type of turkey you want to buy, the next question is how big it should be. You can figure on 1 pound of turkey per person. If the turkey is prestuffed, allow 1 1/4 pounds per person. This will provide generous servings with enough left over for second day dishes.

HOW TO SAFELY THAW

A FROZEN TURKEY

Whether you have 4 days or 12 hours, you can safely thaw

From the County Agents' Office

The Alabama Cooperative Extension Service

your frozen turkey without risking bacterial growth. Thawing your turkey in the refrigerator is the preferred method for safety reasons, but you can also thaw it in cold water. The thing to remember about both methods is that they keep your turkey cold while thawing - the key to preventing excessive bacterial growth.

And, no matter which method you select, cook the turkey promptly after thawing.

Thawing Time in The Refrigerator

|--------------|----------|
| Whole Turkey | |
| 8-12 lbs. | 1-2 days |
| 12-16 lbs. | 2-3 days |
| 16-20 lbs. | 3-4 days |
| 20-24 lbs. | 4-5 days |

|--|----------|

Thawing In Cold Water

Check the wrapping to make sure there are no tears, and simply place the bird in its unopened bag in the sink or in a large container and cover it with cold water. You will need to change the water frequently to assure safe but effective thawing. The National Turkey Federation recommends every 30 minutes as a rule of thumb.

|------------|-------------|
| 8-12 lbs. | 4-6 hours |
| 12-16 lbs. | 6-9 hours |
| 16-20 lbs. | 9-11 hours |
| 20-24 lbs. | 11-12 hours |

Thawing in a Microwave Oven

A turkey can also be thawed in a microwave oven. Since microwave ovens vary in what they can accommodate, check the manufacturers instructions for the size turkey that will fit in your oven, the minutes per pound and the power level to use for thawing.

After your turkey has thawed, it requires little preparation before cooking. Remove the neck and giblets from the neck and/or body cavities. Wash the inside and outside wall. To prevent the spread of bacteria, wash your hands, utensils and sink after they have come in contact with the raw turkey.

Nation urged to 'buckle up,' and save lives

"Start a Habit for Life" is the theme for the first national All-American Buckle Up, scheduled for November 24-30.

Country singer Barbara Mandrell will be honorary chairman for this safety belt promotion sponsored by the National Highway Safety Administration.

The nationwide effort will coincide with the Thanksgiving holiday season - a time when many people are on the roads as they head toward family celebrations.

Safety belts are 40 to 50 percent effective in preventing fatalities and 45-55 percent effective in reducing serious injuries.

It has been estimated that 8,000-10,000 lives could be saved each year if all front seat occupants in passenger cars who do not now use seat belts began using them. Serious injuries could be reduced by 135,000.

Birmingham Regional Emergency Medical Services System urges everyone to accept the challenge offered by the All-American Buckle Up campaign: everytime you get into an automobile, even on short trips, buckle your safety belt and start a habit for life.

SA shocks Rebs 50-6 in season finale

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Shelby Academy Raiders won their final game of the season — and the Reporter's Shelby County Private School Championship — with a 50-6 pounding of the Coosa Valley Academy Rebels Friday night.

But Shelby Academy Raider coach Dewayne Kervin wasn't surprised by the game. Instead, he was "shocked".

"It was the craziest game I have ever seen," Kervin said. "It just seemed like we got higher and higher and they got lower and lower as the game went on."

"It wasn't surprising," Kervin said. "It was just plain shocking."

The game left CVA coach John Niblett in a state of shock as well. "I didn't really think they would be able to do this to us," Niblett said. "We didn't play well and we lacked something inside that it takes to come back and be winners."

Shelby quarterback Doug Thomas led a group of 10 seniors — seven of whom are three-year starters — to their first win over the Rebs in three years.

STATS

| 11 | rushing | 8 |
| 285 | passing | -17 |
| 65 | turnovers | 168 |
| 2 | penalty yards | 5 |

Thomas rambed for 164 yards in only 13 carries, passed for 65 yards and accounted for four touchdowns on the night.

His performance was the "outstanding one," Kervin said, in an offensive effort that was strong in every position.

"Everyone must have played well because we executed so well," Kervin said. "It was a good effort on everyone's part."

Defensively, Thomas was also a leader, recording 14 tackles to lead his team in that department.

Mike Upton had 13 tackles for the Raiders, Vince Pickett and Kelly Tibbals each had 10 tackles and one interception, and Brad Stamps had 10 tackles which included three sacks.

"We were very aggressive early and had several sacks in the first half," Kervin said. "That may have been the key to the game."

With a 22-0 lead at the half, Kervin said he still did not feel "safe" about the ballgame. "They have an excellent offensive team and I watched them score 22 points against Bessemer real quick," Kervin said. "I felt like they were still in it until we were up 36-6."

For the Rebels, Niblett said the loss of play-off hopes before the Shelby game probably contributed to his team's loss against the Raiders. "We just didn't get the effort we had been getting out of some folks when we lost our chances at state," Niblett said.

SCORING SUMMARY

Shelby Academy scored twice in the first period on a four-yard run by Doug Thomas and on a pass from Thomas to Kelly Tibbals good for 29 yards and a TD. Vincent Pickett added a PAT and Thomas ran for a second conversion to give the Raiders a 15-0 lead.

The Raiders upped the margin to 22-0 when Mike Upton scored on a 14-yard run in the second period. Pickett kicked the PAT.

Thomas scored three times in the third quarter on runs of 52, 3 and 30 yards.

In between, Coosa Valley scored its only touchdown when Tad Niblett passed 20 yards to Scott Thompson.

Mike Thames ended the Shelby scoring with a 20-yard TD run in the fourth period to make the final 50-6.

Raiders win Reporter county private school championship title

The Shelby Academy Raiders are the Shelby County Reporter's 1985 Shelby County Private School Champions.

Finishing at 8-3, Dewayne Kervin and his men in green-and-white posted the county's best record in 1985, including a 50-6 win over cross-county rival Coosa Valley in the season finale for both schools.

The Raiders beat Escambia, Cahawba, Minor Christian, Autauga, Southern, Edgewood and Coosa Valley, in a season highlighted by a defense that recorded five shut-outs and allowed less than eight points per game.

The Raider offense complimented its defense, playing a ball-control ground game and keeping the ball out of opponents hands.

"I think this group of kids has done everything we could have expected them to do this year," Kervin said. "They are an excellent bunch and they were very excited about the county championship."

Confessions of a first-time hunter

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

There are some things you never know until you experience something for yourself.

I had been hunting before.

My grandfather who lived in Oklahoma was a great outdoorsman. He took my brother, Lee, and me 'hunting' for squirrel, and our Beagle dog. Or we 'hunted' for birds like the quail and pheasant my grandad would kill for grandmom's freezer — and table — or the Canadian geese whose feathers grandmom made into pillows for Lee and me. Lee and I got to practice shooting at the birds when grandad would toss an old hubcap into the air and let us take a shot at it.

I had been hunting before, but grandad and I went fishing a lot more. Therefore, I was excited when Troy agreed to take me deer hunting.

I really shouldn't tell you who Troy is — you know, when they change the names to protect the innocent.

But Troy is Troy Lawley. He goes to my church, is my landlord, and he and his wife Myrtle take good care of me.

I have always thought Troy's patience would probably make job look short-tempered. That's the kind of person I thought would make a good first hunting partner.

Troy got interested in bow-hunting a couple of years ago. He calls it his one vice and spends a lot of time shooting in the back yard.

In one trip, he taught me a lot about bow-hunting and deer hunting in general... the kind of things you don't know until you experience the hunt for yourself.

Preparation. I learned it is one of the keys to hunting. Troy had scouted around and found an area on his hunting club's property that would be just the place for us. It had all the necessary criteria — good, straight trees for the tree stand, lots of acorns for the deer and within easy walking distance for this first-time hunter.

Finding just the right area to hunt is a difficult choice. This particular club encompasses about 1500 acres and we committed ourselves to a 30-square yard space in which to get a good shot. Incredible odds-right!

I don't own any camouflage clothing. Troy came equipped with hunting suits, a cover for his bow, mesh gloves, a hat, a cap and even a mesh mask all in various shades of brown and green. There is also make-up available.

Maybe it would substitute for the make-up, hair spray and perfume that Troy said I couldn't wear. After all, I learned, a deer's sense of smell is his greatest asset for protection.

Just to erase all trace of human scent, we sprayed our feet with turpentine before walking in the woods and used red fox urine to cover our scent near the base of the trees.

Troy says any "natural scent" will do to cover the human smell. He chose the fox as a compromise. I was a bit surprised at the way it smelled, but one of his "natural scents" is so bad Myrtle won't let him bring it in the house.

After our brief hike, I learned to climb a tree with a tree stand. It really wasn't difficult and I enjoyed getting to climb a tree without being laughed at for the first time since I was a kid. Of course, I kept remembering the story a student of mine once told me about his dad spending the better part of a day in a tree because the bottom of his stand fell out. At least now I understand a little better what he was talking about.

But my stand was solid and comfortable and I settled in while Troy climbed up and we began to wait. It was 3:20 p.m.

About 3:30 p.m. I heard it... the rustling of leaves Troy had said I might hear when the deer approached. I noticed Troy look slowly in that direction and I sat on the edge of my seat and peered intently toward the sound, my camera in hand, expecting to see an eight-point buck emerge from the brush and trees. Finally I spotted it, but I couldn't tell if it was an eight pointer... anyone know how to count the points on a squirrel?

I settled back and waited again. Soon, I became more accustomed to the sounds in the woods and the swaying of the trees in the breeze — including the tree I was in. It was like the Six Flags ride, only more gentle, and I started to relax.

We never saw a deer. I watched the squirrel for awhile and we heard some turkeys just over the rise. I watched the sun set and shivered slightly in the chill of autumn in the woods. And I was more relaxed than I have been in some time.

We walked out of the woods as darkness gathered around us. Troy drank a cup of coffee as we waited for two of his friends to return from hunting in another area of the club's property.

They hadn't bagged anything either but they saw a couple of deer too far away for a shot. We all promised each other we'd have better luck next time.

I packed my cameras away and we headed off toward a supper of chicken and dumplings at a local restaurant.

Troy says we'll try again. We probably will. For a first time hunter, I must confess, I enjoyed the trip.

Oneonta bumps BCHS from play-offs

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

Briarwood Lion coach Rick Sayle said his team had a not-so-good ending to a pretty-good year in their 28-0 loss to Oneonta Friday night.

The Lions fell to the now 10-1 and often top-ranked Oneonta team in the first round of the 3A state play-offs. While Sayle said his team did not play well in the play-off game, it was good to be playing in the post-season in the Lions first year of AHSAA football competition.

"There was not very much that was positive about what we did Friday night," Sayle said, "but when you look at the total picture you have to feel positive about the program. Coming from where we have been to where we are now looks good." Sayle said his team ran into a "well-coached and very sound football team that played with a lot of intensity" when they traveled to Oneonta. "We didn't play with a lot of intensity and that was probably the big difference in the game," he added.

The Lions trailed 21-0 at the half and surrendered another TD in the third period in taking the loss. Oneonta racked up over 400 yards in total offense while limiting the Lions to less than 150 yards.

"It was a beginning for us," Sayle said this week. "Some of the goals the kids made they were able to realize. I have to feel positive about the progress of this program in two years."

Mike Hyde scored on runs of one, six and 14 yards to lead Oneonta to their win. Oneonta also scored on a 44 yard pass play from Tommy Epperson to Lamonde Russell.

Soccer club needs home

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

There are almost 350 young soccer players throughout Shelby County who wear the colors of the American Soccer Club. Centered predominantly in north Shelby County, the club fields 18 separate teams of youths from ages 4 to 18.

The club is one of the oldest organized soccer playing units in Shelby County and has grown consistently during its 10 year history.

Its teams are successful, winning numerous matches and titles in the Mid-State Soccer League in which they play and in other competitions beyond.

The American Soccer Club — it seems — has everything. But beginning at the close of the current fall season, the American Soccer Club will be a club without a home.

Three years ago, the club moved from its first Shelby County fields at Our Lady of the Valley Catholic Church to a new location in Pelham. The club developed two fields at the location near the intersection of US 65 and Highway 119 and named the facility Cloud Field.

Last year, the land was sold, and though new owner Tony Rafeno allowed the club to play its fall schedule at Cloud Field, an amphitheatre development is scheduled for ground-breaking as soon as the season ends.

That leaves American Soccer officials searching for a new location for their home fields.

"These people have been very good to allow us the use of their property," said Jim Bridges, a spokesman for the club, "but now we are faced with finding a new home for the club."

While the club has already received some offers for practice fields — "We can practice almost any place that is rather level and has some grass" Bridges said — it is looking for another piece of property to develop into a game field complex.

Club officials said if they could obtain property on a seven to 10 year lease basis they would consider developing a field complex. One game field would require a 2-3 acre minimum plot of property while it would take 10-15 acres to develop a multi-field complex.

"We would be willing to put the money into developing the fields if we could be assured of using them over a relatively long period," said Jim Williamson, another club representative.

Williamson said that the club would consider almost any location within Shelby County as their membership and coverage area is extending throughout the county.

Even as they look for a home for their club, American Soccer officials also want to point out the need for other soccer facilities in the county.

"Soccer has grown to the extent that it needs to have some consideration," Williamson said. "Consideration should be given to development of a soccer complex in the county for public use."

Williamson noted that the soccer program at the Shelby County YMCA currently includes almost as many soccer players as the American Club and that the Y has a growing need for fields as well.

"Soccer is growing very quickly," Bridges said. "Its players need some attention as well."

Anyone with property that might consider providing a "home" for the club should contact Bridges or Williamson at 988-5486 or 991-5513.

'No creeks' for Spratlin

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

"There aren't any creeks in the desert," said Chelsea angler Bill Spratlin, "and I do my best fishing in creeks."

Spratlin went all the way to Lake Havasu, Arizona to find but he couldn't do any creek fishing.

"There wouldn't even be a lake there if the Colorado River hadn't decided to run through a low spot," Spratlin laughed.

But the fishing trip — a trip to the national finals of the Red Man Bass Fishing Tournament Trail — though it didn't net a lot of fish, was well worth the time spent, Spratlin said.

"If I hadn't caught a single fish it was still a great trip," Spratlin said. Spratlin qualified for the trip by finishing in the top 20 in division and regional bass fishing tournaments and was one of only 39 anglers nationwide to make the final tournament.

"I didn't catch a thing the first day and caught two the second," Spratlin said. "There were a lot of folks that didn't catch anything."

Only 17 pounds of fish won the two-day tournament, a total brought in by Texas fisherman Rick Clunn. "He's about as good a fisherman as you can find," Spratlin said. "If he only caught 17 pounds then it was tough fishing."

The Red Man Tournament Trail, which Spratlin has fished in its first two seasons, is growing in popularity. "It's about the best tournament around for a working fisherman," Spratlin said.

Spratlin plans to begin the road to the national tournament by fishing in three Red Man divisions next year. "We're trying to get the national tournament in the south next year," Spratlin said. "that will be my kind of fishing."

Eagles just proud to play the game

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

"Win, lose or draw," said Calera's Danny Alverson, "I'm just proud to be standing here." The Calera Eagles dropped a 20-8 decision to Parrish in the first round of the AHSAA 2A state play-offs Friday night. While the loss was not fun, looking back on his Eagles comeback from a 0-7 start to win an area championship had Alverson happy to be in the play-offs at all.

STATS

| Calera | | Parrish |
|--------|---------------|---------|
| 4 | FD | 18 |
| 5 | rushing | 234 |
| 47 | passing | 36 |
| 5 | turnovers | 4 |
| 50 | penalty yards | 55 |

"We were just out-manned tonight," Alverson said. "The biggest disappointment about this game is knowing this season is over. This has been a great group of kids."

Parrish dominated the line of scrimmage on both offense and defense throughout the night. Even then, the Eagles turned in two classy goal-line stands in the first half of play, Alverson said, and were back in the ballgame when a fake-punt pass from Shane Schroeder to Ray Ross carried to the Parrish two-yard line and set up a Calera score early in the third quarter.

That TD cut a 12-0 halftime lead to a 12-8 margin, but the Eagles could draw no closer.

"As a whole," Alverson said,

"they went out in style. That is what I wanted for these kids because they have worked awfully hard."

After the game, Alverson noted the leadership of Chuck Amos and the play and dedication of Mark Jones as being keys to the game and the year. In addition, Alverson said Shane Schroeder did a good job in setting up the punt-fake.

"I think this group has moved us back over the hump and will help to re-establish winning football at Calera," Alverson said.

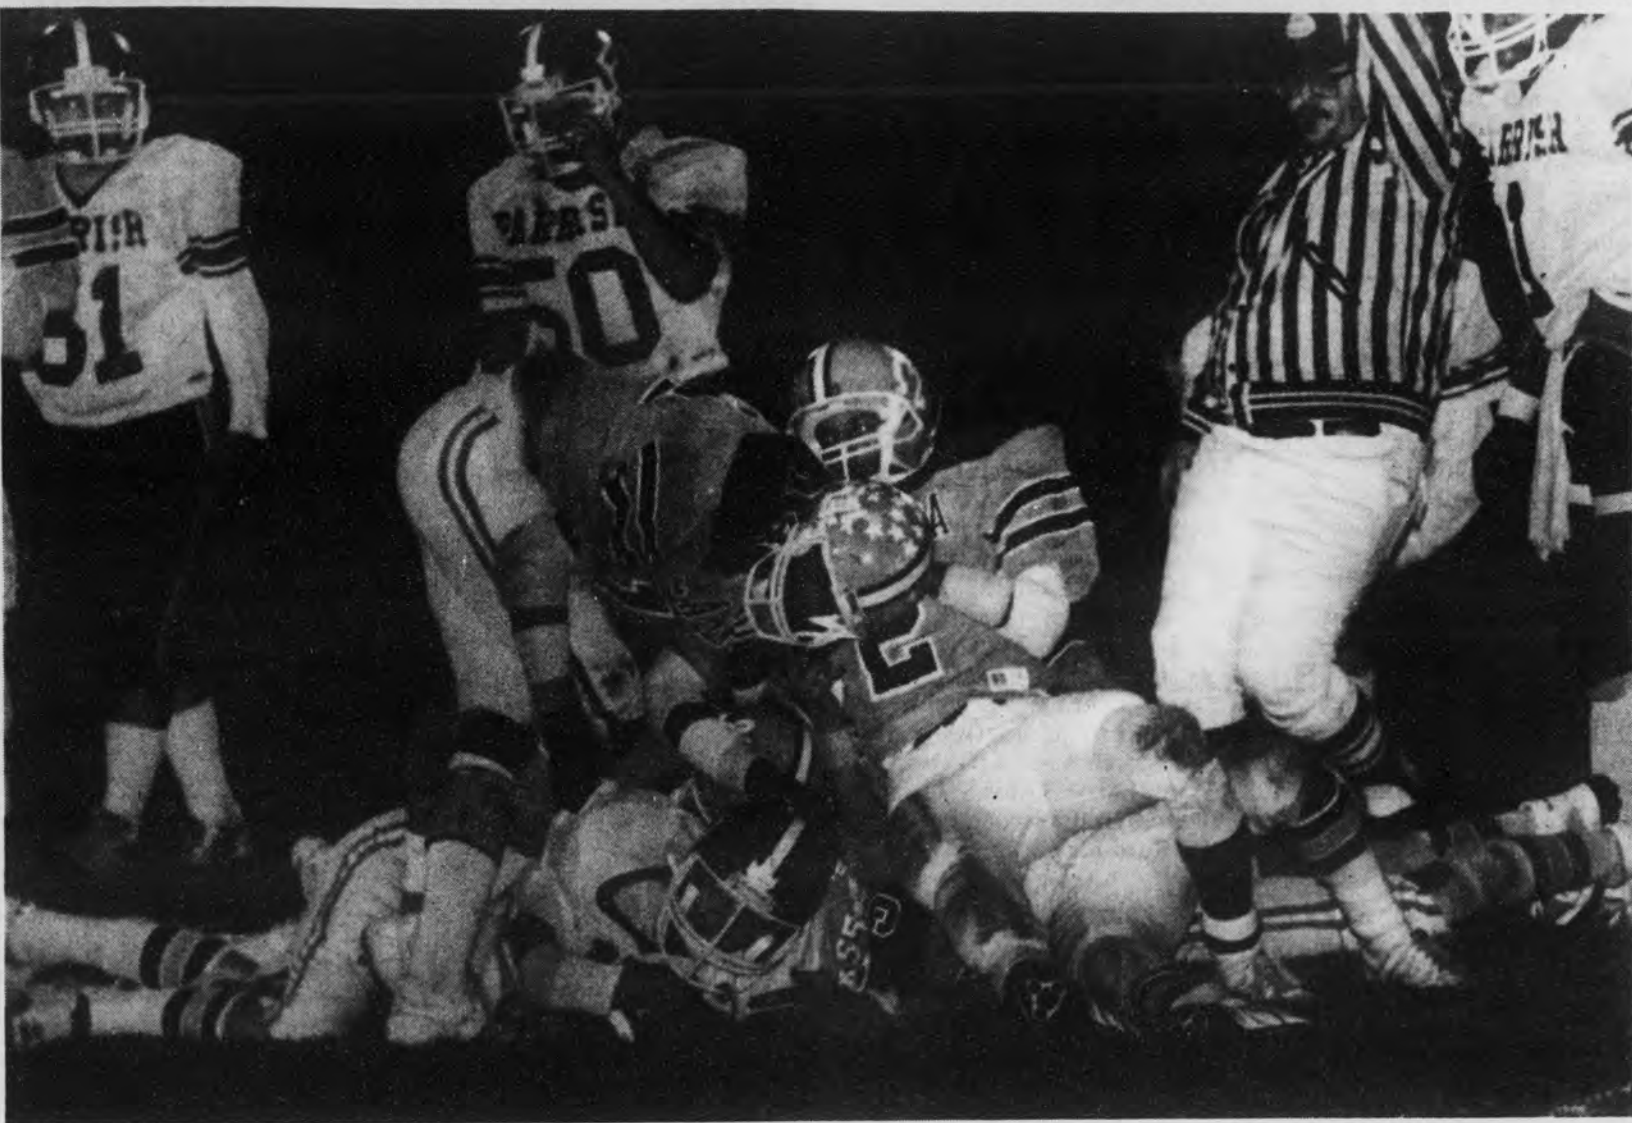

"Our six seniors, Mark Jones, Byron White, Joey Killingsworth, Chck Amos, Shane Schroeder and Erwin Jones, are all good ones," he added, "and I wish we weren't losing them."

Looking back to their 0-7 start and the high spirits that propelled the Eagles to three straight wins and an area championship, Alverson felt his team did an amazing job. "We were only beaten by one team in our class and that was Parrish," Alverson said. "This has been a successful year for these Eagles."

SCORING SUMMARY

Jason Jones, Anthony Harris and Derek Sanders scored touchdowns to lead Parrish to a 20-8 win over the Eagles.

Lee Smith scored Calera's touchdown on a two-yard run early in the third quarter, and Kenny Richardson further cut the Parrish lead with a catch of a two-point pass from Mark Jones.

Helena's Maddler wins AACCS points race

Helena race driver Dave Maddler III is the NASCAR All-American Challenge Series points race champion for the 1985 season. Maddler's third place finish in Sunday's AACCS race at the Montgomery International Raceway — the season finale for the NASCAR series — assured Maddler of the points title and highlighted a successful racing weekend for Shelby County's NASCAR gang.

Calera's Waymond "Hut" Stricklin drove car number 7 to a fifth place finish in the Sunday race. At the same time, Gary Bradberry of Chelsea drove car number 78 to a finish in the tenth spot.

The high finishes in the 125-lap event assured both county drivers of finishing in the top 10 of the AACCS points race as well.

The Sunday race was also marred by tragedy, as Florida driver Bob Bean died as a result of injuries sustained in a crash.

Hornets give up record and state play-off spot

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

On the third play from scrimmage in Chelsea's first-round play-off game with Marion County, Perry Reed broke a run up the middle for 74 yards and a touchdown.

That run made Reed the only back in the history of high school football in Alabama to rush for more than 6000 yards in a career. It also was the first big blow in an arsenal of Marion County punches that knocked Chelsea out of the 2A state play-offs, 35-7.

"I didn't mind him getting the record," Chelsea coach Mike Utter said after the game, "but I didn't want them to beat us in the process." Though Reed would finish the night with 263 yards, the first quarter TD was the only score Reed would record.

The Hornets racked up over 300 yards in offense of their own, but key penalties ended drives deep into Marion County territory to make the final score, Utter said, less indicative of the game.

STATS

| Chelsea | Marion Cty. |
|------------------|-------------|
| 10 FD | 10 |
| 114 rushing | 392 |
| 218 passing | 19 |
| 1 turnovers | 2 |
| 80 penalty yards | 25 |

"The score didn't show how close the game was," Utter said.

Larry Offord and Mike Beavers teamed for a 65-yard TD pass in the second quarter to cut a 13-0 Marion County lead to 13-7. From that point, however, Marion County reeled off three unanswered scores to take the 35-7 win.

"We were disappointed to lose in the first round," Utter said. "Our players were ready and they tried hard and played well."

Utter commended the efforts of Mike Beavers, Allen Moody, Larry Offord and Mike Pittman in the game.

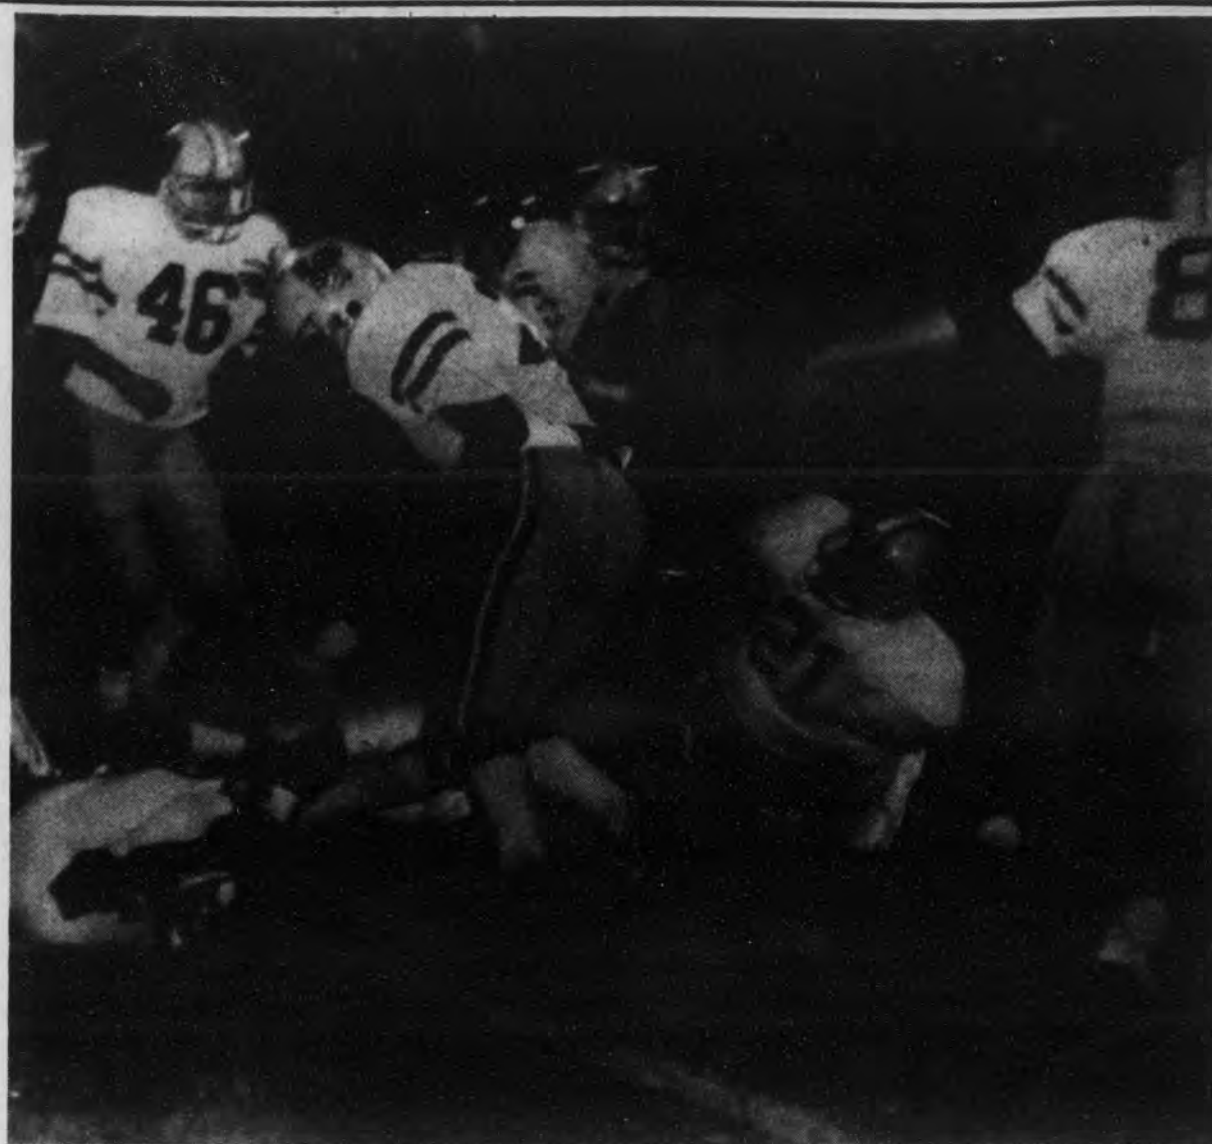

"We have come a long way since August, and I wish for these kids that our record was a little better indicator of their progress," Utter said. "I think we became a good football team before the season was done."

SCORING SUMMARY

Perry Reed, Chad Garrison and Mike Frye scored touchdowns to lead Marion County over Chelsea.

The Hornets lone score in the 35-7 loss came on a 65-yard pass from Larry Offord to Mike Beavers in the second period.

Offord added the PAT.

Falcons ready to open basketball campaign

Ruth Perkins

The collegiate basketball season is just around the corner for the University of Montevallo's Falcons and Lady Falcons. A trio of Shelby County players will be doing their best to improve UM basketball fortunes.

The Lady Falcons, trying to rebound from a 10-16 season in 1984-85, open the new campaign Nov. 16 by traveling to NAIA power David Lipscomb. The Falcons, under first-year head coach Rob Spivery, make their 1985-86 debut Nov. 16 against William Carey at home.

Back in the Lady Falcon fold for the final time are former Montevallo High stars Ruth Perkins and Lessie Gaddis. Perkins was the Lady Falcons' leading scorer and rebounder last year, averaging just over 13 points and six boards a game.

Gaddis, who will move from guard to forward for her senior season, contributed 4.7 points a night in a reserve role last season.

Hoping to make his mark after a fine preseason for the Falcons will be sophomore Kyle Hutchison. After seeing little playing time as a freshman last season, the former Pelham High School star will be counted on to shoulder some of the UM inside load in 1985-86.

With five returning starters and nine returning letter winners the Lady Falcons are looking for their first ever NAIA District 27 championship. Fall drills have been impressive and have head coach Cris Earnhardt cautiously optimistic.

"The players have high expectations for the season, and so do I," the second year Lady Falcon boss said, "but we will have to work very hard to play up to those expectations."

The UM ladies will also get a boost from all-star candidates Sharen Douglas and Karen Scott, both of whom return from knee injuries that cost them all of last season.

Excitement is running high on the UM campus concerning the start of the men's campaign under Spivery. The former Tulsa assistant has promised a new excitement for Falcon fans in Myrick Hall this winter.

"We're going to be like I predicted this summer," Spivery answered when asked to sum up the squad. "We will be very exciting to watch and very competitive."

"Nobody will apply defensive pressure like we will," he said, "but how successful we are will depend on how our inside game comes around."

"We have got to find some scoring punch from the inside," he said.

Early season schedules favor both the Falcons and the Lady Falcons. After opening on the road, the Lady Falcons return for four straight in Myrick Hall. The Falcons will play their first three contests in the friendly confines of home. Following William Carey to Myrick will be North Georgia and Troy State on Nov. 18 and 23, respectively.

In the preliminary to the Falcons opener Nov. 16, the Lady Falcons will open their home slate opposite Spring Hill College. Rounding out the four-game home stand for the Lady Falcons will be Tuskegee University, Jacksonville State and Troy State.

Citizens give views on hospital sale and tax

by Jim Parks and Elizabeth J. Patterson

Do the citizens of Shelby County want to sell Shelby Medical Center and is the four-mill tax the "most hated tax in the county?"

These questions were asked to 18 Shelby County residents in a random telephone interview conducted by the Reporter on Monday. More than 18 persons were called, but only those persons who identified themselves were quoted. None of the calls were screened.

Some members of the Shelby County Commission have declared the four mill tax as the most hated tax in the county. According to the Reporter's telephone survey, no one "hates" the tax, and only two persons expressed a dislike for it, but felt it was necessary.

Only two persons expressed strong feelings toward selling the hospital, while two persons were somewhat undecided. The rest said they would vote to keep SMC, and most thought the commission should not interfere with the hospital board.

Most of those interviewed knew the four mill tax was a small amount, but some did not know how it was figured.

According to the tax assessment, taxpayers in Shelby County pay between $16 and $50 per year for the hospital. A mill is one-tenth of one cent, and the four mills is paid on the assessed value of a property's market value.

For example, the hospital tax for a $60,000 home, assessed at 10 percent, is about $24 per year. Vehicles also are assessed and auto owners pay four mills of that assessed value, figures ranging from less than $1 with most in the $2-$4 range.

Marty Duncan of Chelsea said of a possible sale "I don't know one way or the other. I've never been there, but the hospital's reputation would make me afraid to use it."

She felt that better-equipped hospitals are almost as close to Chelsea as Shelby Medical Center.

Duncan said she didn't think she would vote in the special election. She said she would support a tax if it made the hospital as good as she perceives other area hospitals to be, but noted that these did not require public support.

Because SMC is county-owned, she felt the commission should be involved with it.

Mary Eagan of Pelham said the hospital should be kept by the county.

"We've heard it's not in as bad a financial condition as some say," Eagan said she plans to vote in the December 10 election.

Of the four mill tax, she said, "It's okay with me." Eagan said she has not minded paying the tax for the seven years she has been in the county, but was unsure of how much the tax is.

Lois Farmer of Calera, who works with the county's Retired Senior Volunteer Program, objected to a sale because many RSVP workers volunteer at SMC.

"I don't really know how it would change with a private company," she said.

Farmer said she had worked at the hospital 15 years before her retirement.

"I sure am voting" in the December 10 election," she said. "All I've talked to are going to vote for the hospital. We need it in Shelby County with our senior citizens."

She said she is "not too much against the tax if we can keep our hospital." She did not know the exact amount of individual taxes, but felt it was relatively small.

"I'd like to see the hospital stay like it is, if the commission would just let it alone," she said.

Suzanne Fleming of Sterrett said "leave the hospital with the county." She plans to vote, but was not sure about the tax.

"I don't really mind paying it," she said. "It's good for the county to support the hospital. It has come a long way and has a long way to go. If we don't support it, we can't complain."

She felt the commission was right to call the election.

Betty Flippo of Alabaster said SMC should be kept by the county. Otherwise, "I'm afraid it would be like a lot of other hospitals," with sick people being turned away because they are unable to pay, she said.

She will vote to keep the hospital December 10. "Just like everyone else, I'm disgusted with taxes going higher, but for health reasons, I could not say I'm against the four mill tax."

She said the tax was very little, "not enough to complain

Benjamin Wayne Nicholas, 44, was taken to Carraway Hospital by Lifesaver 1 last Thursday after being shot twice in the chest at his home in Griffinville on County 17. Alabaster Police Chief Larry Rollan said Nicholas' step-son, Brian Ray Brendemuhl, who lives next door to him, was arrested and charged with attempted murder. Rollan said the shooting occurred because Nicholas was allegedly beating his wife. He was reported in critical condition at presstime Tuesday. (photo by Jim Parks)

Initial spot checks reveal few tax errors

by K.A. Turner Staff Writer

Shelby County tax assessor J.R. "Bob" Thompson is pleased with the initial findings in a "spot-check" of the property appraisal records of Shelby County.

The recent discovery of coding errors on over 300 tracts of land in the Pelham area prompted Thompson and his staff to "spot-check" other tracts throughout the county for the same type error. Not only did very few coding errors surface, Thompson said this week, but the percentage of general error was also very small.

"We found nothing unusual," Thompson said. "There were not enough coding errors to create any kind of a pattern."

Thompson estimated the total percentage of error found to be only three to four percent, well within the reasonable percentage of human and calculator error.

"Most of the errors were calculator errors or filing errors," Thompson said. "That is normal when you work with this volume of property."

Thompson indicated that the spot-checking would continue as part of the daily workings of the assessor's office, but nothing in the spot-check indicated a need for a full-scale check of the property records.

17 may die over holiday

Seventeen people are expected to die in traffic accidents during the Thanksgiving weekend, according to the Alabama Department of Public Safety.

The holiday begins at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 27, and ends at midnight on Sunday, Dec. 1, for a total of 102 hours. Last year there were 18 fatalities — 10 rural and eight urban — during the 102-hour period.

The Department of Public Safety urges drivers to be especially careful, obey the speed limit and other traffic laws, use safety belts and child restraints, drive defensively with other drivers in mind and not to drive after drinking.

All available state troopers will be on patrol to remove dangerous drivers, said Col. Byron Prescott, department director.

Motorcycles cause questions about land

by K.A. Turner Staff Writer

A homemade dirt track for motorcycles and ATVs sparked protests from Pelham residents at this week's Pelham City Council meeting. The parcel of land on which the track is constructed also became an object of questions for Pelham councilwoman Beverly Hall.

Xavier Richey and several of his neighbors from the Chandalar subdivision appeared before the Pelham council to request help in stopping motorcycle and ATV activity on a no-access lot that borders their property in Chandalar South.

Richey said vehicles "run day in and day out", and create a problem in the area. In addition, Richey termed many of the riders of the vehicles "obnoxious" and said he and his family and friends had been treated rudely by those riding the cycles.

Richey told the council that an investigation into the property's ownership had been difficult, but that records in the Shelby County tax assessor's office showed the parcel to be owned by Donald F. and Beverly S. Hall.

Councilwoman Hall told the group that she had paid the delinquent taxes on the property last May because the parcel — in part — borders her home in Chandalar.

"I paid the taxes on it to keep someone from putting something undesirable on the property," Hall told the group. She added that she had been told there would "probably never" be a clear title on the property and that she was not sure — until the situation arose — exactly where all of the property lies within Chandalar.

Hall will post the property with no trespassing signs — within her legal rights because she paid the taxes on the property — which will allow police to patrol the area and keep the traffic off the dirt track cyclists have constructed on the property.

Richey and Guy Turner, another resident in the area, further intimated that Hall may have bought the land last summer in order to sell it during construction on the planned privatized sewerage system in Pelham.

Though a major junction in the system is planned for the general area of the property in question, Pelham Mayor Bobby Hayes assured the residents that city officials did not know of exact construction plans until five weeks ago and that — as far as he knew — Hall had not looked

Vandiver finds lost hunters

Cecil Oaks and Sam Denson went hunting twice on Saturday. The first time they hunted deer; the second time they were looking for lost hunters.

Two young men from Leeds — Terry Kelley and David Alexander, both in their late teens — are glad the Vandiver neighbors were successful their second time out.

The two hunters were found shortly after midnight approximately a half mile from the St. Clair Sheriff's Boys Ranch.

Dorman Lynn, chief of Vandiver's rescue squad, said his unit received notification of the lost hunters around 6:30 p.m.

He said Allen Gregg, who had been hunting with Kelley and Alexander, went to a phone and about, compared to the attention to health care."

Flippo said her husband was recently treated at SMC and "he received the best of care."

R.B. Galloway of Montevallo said, "I don't think it should be sold. The doctors would be disturbed over new management." He intends to vote against a sale.

He said he dislikes the tax, but that it is necessary. He was unsure of how the tax is figured.

Louise Howard of Vandiver said, "I definitely think it should be kept a county hospital because the county needs it. If it was in private enterprise, you might not be able to get into it. Lots of hospitals turn people away."

If able to, she will vote December 10. She said she supports the four mill tax.

"If you're paying taxes in Shelby County, you should have facilities you can use. A lot of people don't have insurance and walk through the door in desperate need and are turned away at other hospitals."

Of the commission's decision to call the election, she said, "As long as they let the people have the say, I guess it's okay."

Esque Norwood of Harpersville said SMC should remain a county hospital and she will vote for that. She worries about rising costs of health care if the hospital is sold to a private company.

Norwood approved of the hospital tax and disapproved of commission involvement with SMC.

"I think the commission should leave it to the hospital board," she said.

E.N. King of Pelham said, "I'd really like to see it stay a county hospital. I like the way they run it."

Whether a private company might manage the hospital to his satisfaction "depends on what private outfit they'd sell it to," he said.

"If we're going to keep it a county hospital, obviously we need to fund it. I don't like to pay taxes any more than anyone else, but you need to fund it."

King was concerned that a private hospital would raise prices so that people could not afford health care. If the four mill tax is "the cross we have to bear" to avoid that, he is willing.

He plans to study the issue more before voting. The election is a good thing, he said, to "find out what the people want."

Gene Lacey of Alabaster plans to vote in the referendum and vote to sell SMC.

"I feel if the county can't support it, let's give it to someone who can. We'd just be pouring money down and empty hole if the county keeps the hospital."

Lacey said, however, he thinks SMC provides adequate health care, but feels his taxes will be reduced if the hospital is sold.

Asked if the four mill tax is the most hated tax in the county, Lacey said, "No, the road tax is. I pay my taxes and the roads never get fixed."

"I going to vote not to sell it," said Edwin Matthews of Chelsea. "The county will be better off to keep it. It serves a purpose and gives excellent service."

A 13-year resident of Shelby County, Matthews said he has seen SMC "come a long way."

Of the tax, Matthews said, "It's not excessive and I don't begrudge paying it."

Asked about his feelings on the commission's involvement in the sale of the hospital, Matthews said, "The commission is entitled to its opinion, but I probably won't vote for those who feel that way."

Leonard Nelson of Sunny Meadows in North Shelby County plans to vote to keep SMC.

"In the long run, it's better to have a county owned facility," he said. "A private concern is worried about making a profit, and we might have some services curtailed."

Nelson said he hates the federal income tax, but not the four-mill hospital tax.

He also wonders about the commission's motivation to sell SMC.

Michael Osborn of Riverchase said he will vote for the sale of the hospital because the county "should not be in the medical business."

"The county does not have the expertise of a professional medical corporation," he said. "I don't think the hospital is being run like it should be run." Osborn also said he has never used SMC except to occasionally see his Birmingham doctor who also practices in Alabaster."

"The hospital should be sold to a professional medical corporation and put into a growth mode to handle the growing population of Shelby County," he said.

Because "you have to have pay for good health care," Osborn said the four-mill tax is not a consideration in his vote.

"I have no problem with taking a risk by selling the hospital to improve it."

James Pack of Columbiana is yet unsure of his opinion, but will base his vote on the financial stability of Shelby Medical Center.

"There are pros and cons, but if the hospital is making money, I think we could keep it; make a change if its losing money."

Pack, who has never used SMC, said the four-mill tax will not influence his vote; "the main question is whether or not its making a profit."

Henry Partridge of Harpersville will vote to keep SMC.

"It belongs to the people and the county, and I don't mind paying my taxes," he said. Partridge estimated his share around $16 per year.

"I've used it several times, and I got good service," he said. "It's a good hospital. I think they should make it bigger."

"I also think the commission should stay out of the issue and leave the board alone."

"I'll vote to keep it," said Ada Ransom of Shelby. "It's a good hospital with a good staff and I have no complaints about the services."

"My brother from Florida even came up here because he didn't want to use the hospitals down there. That's how much we think of it."

Mrs. Ransom said she does not mind paying the four-mill tax, but thinks it should be taken off if SMC is sold."

Icie Mae Seals of Calera will cast her vote to keep SMC in the Dec. 10 referendum.

"We need it. It's a good hospital and it provides good service," she said.

"I've used it a few times and I'll vote to keep it," said Frank Tapscott of Pelham. "I also think four mills is a small price to pay for a good hospital, and I don't hate it. What I hate is the federal income tax. It's killing me."

Tapscott also feels the commission should leave the hospital board alone. "I'm sick of the politics," he said.

called when the two men didn't return to the car.

Twelve members of the Vandiver unit and personnel from the Shelby County Sheriff's department searched the woods north of the Ledbetter farm off County 41 where the hunters had parked their car.

Lynn said the thick fog prompted rescuers to call off the search around midnight, with plans to begin again early Sunday morning.

With the exception of Oaks and Denson, everyone had come in, he said.

Since the two men were the only ones with three-wheel vehicles, they were searching areas the others couldn't reach in larger vehicles.

"We stopped a couple of times and fired a pistol and called," Oaks said. On the third try, the men got an answer.

The two hunters were found in a marshy area thick with briar bushes. Oaks said they had apparently gotten turned around as they tried to make their way out of the woods.

Although it rained off and on during the search, it was a warm night. If it had been cold, Lynn said rescuers would have stayed in the woods all night looking for the lost men.

"That construction should fit within the city's easement in the area anyway," Hayes said, "but I can assure you this council would not buy property from an elected official in any case."

Pelham police chief Allan Wade told residents it may take a little time to eradicate the problem in the area but it would be dealt with.

Helena, Riverchase projects approved

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

Two major road projects to make intersections in Helena and Riverchase safer will probably be completed next spring or early summer, according to County Engineer Gary Ray.

At the intersection of County Road 17 and Riverchase Parkway East, turning lanes, traffic signals and street lights will be added.

Left turning lanes will be added to the four-lane roads. County Road 17, coming from the west to the intersection, will have both a left and a right turning lane added.

A project in Helena at the intersection of County Road 17 with County Road 52, County Road 91 and Alabama Highway 261 involves "primarily geometric changes," Ray said. The projects involves grading and the addition of a third lane on County Road 17 for movement onto Alabama Highway 261.

Ray said the present layout of four different islands is "terribly confusing if you're going to turn off 52 or 17, where to turn." To eliminate that confusion, the existing islands will be replaced by others "easier to understand and maneuver in," he said.

Federal funds finance 75 percent of the work, with county and state each paying 12.5 percent. These projects are part of the Traffic Operations Program to Increase Capacity and Safety.

Ray said the Riverchase intersection had been planned for a couple of years, but that since then, a death and several injuries have occurred. "The accident history was one of the reasons why we chose this project."

About 9000 automobiles per day use the intersection, with about 1000 during peak hours. Along with the accidents, the volume of the traffic necessitated the signals.

The total cost of the projects is about $250,000. The county's share is about $31,250, which will come from the four cent gasoline tax, Ray said.

Federal urban aid projects, of which TOPICS is a part, are allocated by states into different regional planning areas. Part of the northwest section of Shelby County is in the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission, which gets $4 million a year for federal urban aid projects.

Another Shelby County project funded by the BRPC this year is a $50,000 corridor engineering study of a new route from Caldwell Mill Road to Acton Road in Jefferson County.

The route would give safer access to Interstate 459 from the area north of County Road 17 between Alabama Highway 280 and Interstate 65, Ray said. This would be helpful because of a pocket of development around Caldwell Mill Road, which is also County Road 29, he said.

The project would cover a little less than a mile and it is not definite that the new road will be built, he said. The studies are to determine a desirable location for such a road.

Ray has been working for the preliminary corridor engineering funds for two or three years.

Another project under design is the four-laning of County Road 52 from Interstate 65 to Alabama Highway 31 in Pelham. This is not currently part of the program and will be four of five years in the future if it happens, Ray said.

The currently funded projects are only phase one of Ray's plans for TOPICS funding.

Phase two involves geometric changes at the intersection of Riverchase Parkway West and County Road 275, which was the old Highway 31. The curve on County Road 275 to the north would be lengthened for better sight distance.

Phase two also includes improvements to roadway segments on County Road 17 west of Alabaster and County Road 44 from Alabaster to County Road 17, Ray said.

In phase three, an intersection of Industrial Road in Alabaster, also known as County Road 66, and County Road 95, geometric changes are planned.

Also in phase three, County Road 95 would be graded in front of the First Baptist Church in Alabaster.

The plan will also include three more phases which are not yet identified, Ray said.

New projects are funded every one to two years, Ray said. He hopes to win approval for these projects, as was given to the Riverchase and Helena construction and the engineering study for the new route between Caldwell Mill Road and Acton Road.

Pelham charges No. Shelby for hydrants

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

There are 98 fire hydrants in the North Shelby Fire District that are a part of the Pelham water system.

Beginning December 1, North Shelby will have to pay the City of Pelham for their use.

In Monday's city council meeting, the Pelham council voted unanimously to charge an $85 annual rental fee for the use of the hydrants in North Shelby that are outside of the city limits but serviced by Pelham water.

"North Shelby currently pays no fees for rental or the water used through the hydrants," Pelham Mayor Bobby Hayes told the council. "That means the people of Pelham are picking up that bill."

North Shelby currently pays an $85 annual fee to Birmingham for use of hydrants in their district that are tied to Birmingham water, Pelham councilman Jim Phillips said. City officials added that a rental fee in this type situation is customary.

In making the motion to levy the fee, councilman Ken Maynard asked that the decision be discussed with officials from North Shelby before the fee is levied on December 1.

Mayor Hayes said the money from the rental fees would probably go into the water budget for use in new line construction.

In other business:

•the council set public hearings on December 2 for the Governmental Utilities Services Corporation for the purpose of discussing the privatized sewerage system and on December 16 for property rezoning along US 31 in Pelham and a change in the ordinance that governs satellite dishes within the city;

•notified Pelham businesses that the 90-day grace period for compliance with the city's sign ordinance ends December 10.

Folmar speaks to Republicans

Emory Folmar, chairman of the Alabama Republican Party, spoke to county Republicans at the Pelham City Hall November 12.

Shelby County was ranked the top Republican county in the state by Southern Pollster magazine, Folmar said.

"It's easier to win in Shelby County as a Republican than as a Democrat," said David Bradley, county Republican chairman.

Almost 100 people attended the meeting, according to Bradley.

Folmar stressed the importance of developing a grassroots campaign and complimented county Republicans for their work.

He noted the variety of faces in the audience was about evenly divided between men and women, dispelling the image of the Republican party as one of white males, according to Bradley.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

And the rains came

It had rained for five weeks. He planted his stuff in April and it came up in May and stood there through June and now into July. He'd look at it and think about old drawers and ragged socks.

Then the fellow predicted rain. Between sundown and dark the cloud arrived. It was so noisy he and his wife went to a neighbor's storm pit. Once inside the thunder got louder. And louder. And louder.

"When we get out," he said, "if we do, we'll have a beautiful garden."

And they got out. Folks in Coaltown got the rain and they got the racket.

"You know what?"

"Some get and some don't. It's as simple as that."

We were talking about canned stuff. One mentioned canned soup and another canned music and another canned air. At the very end this guy said: "In all the world, nothing is as bad as canned laughter."

He waited a minute and added: "I'll tell you why..."

It was a show on television. They said it was a comedy. Two ladies were talking. One said, "Do you think it's gonna rain?"

Laughter shook the room.

The other answered, "I don't think so."

The laughter was louder now.

A man came through the door. He sat down on the couch. "It's clouding up," he said.

Laughter rattled the windows.

"We were talking about it," one lady said.

Before the laughter could start again I slipped out.

Baxley: 'There comes a time...'

That was a politically adroit comment made by Lt. Gov. Bill Baxley during a question-and-answer session last week with a group of journalism students.

In the same breath Baxley described George Wallace as the "best governor this state has ever had" but added "there comes a time" when everyone should step aside.

"It's time he pass the torch to younger people," Baxley said.

The lieutenant governor, who would benefit the most if Wallace doesn't run next year, reminded his young audience (and the governor) that in 1982 he withdrew from the gubernatorial campaign rather than oppose Wallace. He implied that it is now time for Wallace to return the favor.

"I haven't decided to run against the governor, he's decided to run against me," Baxley said, in the event Wallace does seek a fifth term.

Baxley's candid comments came only shortly after he had received some good news: a poll conducted by Auburn University/Montgomery showed that he was now the leading candidate for governor. The survey, conducted during the time of the Wagstaff/Stanton flap in the Wallace Administration, gave Baxley 23.8 percent of the vote, slightly ahead of Wallace's total of 22.1 percent. In his strongest showing to date, Lt. Gov. George McMillan had 16 percent of the vote; Atty. Gen. Charles Graddick was fourth with 10.2 percent, and former Gov. Fob James brought up the rear with 9.8 percent.

The poll added fuel to speculation that Wallace has already made up his mind not to run in 1986.

Despite his conviction on a public lewdness charge, State Sen. Danny Corbitt of Phenix City insists he has no plans of resigning from the Senate. In fact, Corbitt says he will be a candidate for reelection in the Democratic Primary next June.

A new book is now being published on the life and times of former two-time Gov. James E. (Big Jim) Folsom. The book, entitled "Big Mules and Branchheads: James E. Folsom and Political Power in Alabama," is the work of two Auburn/Montgomery professors, Carl Grafton and Anne Permaloff. The writers give Folsom high marks for his compassion and concern for the "average man and woman" of Alabama.

The divorce of George C. Wallace, Jr. last week may have sounded a death knell, at least for the present time, for his political career. Wallace announced some months ago his plans to run for State Treasurer, but none of the polls since then have been encouraging. These bad numbers coupled with the divorce could well delay the young Wallace's long-anticipated entry into the political arena.

Is the Hezekiah Wagstaff affair over? Don't bet on it. Behind the scenes, the pot continues to boil. Cabinet member Bill Rushton quit because of it (he has already landed another and better state job) and the possibility that at least one other Wallace heavyweight may also soon depart is strong.

Letters to the editor

Will all taxpayers benefit from SMC sale?

Letter to the Editor:

After reading the comments of Ballard in your paper, I can only wonder why one who surely must have many personal business interests would involve himself so passionately in a situation that obviously stirs his emotions with intense anger and a desire for vengeance from events of many years past. How pathetic to spend so much time looking back.

I wonder what the people who are so determined to sell the hospital stand to gain? Surely, the measly four-mill tax is not a financial burden on these, or any other persons. Who stands to collect the sales commission and finder's fee of 10 percent? Do they have a plan to distribute it among all the taxpayers or just a few?

I have no faith in the county commission to believe any pledge that the proceeds from the sale of the hospital will be administered any more efficiently than any other funds. If this is the case, they will be coming back to the taxpayers with a hand out to pay the bill.

Let us suppose that proceeds invested now would bring enough money to pay for indent care for the first year. Thereafter, inflation alone will diminish the coverage of this investment. I wonder what they would want to sell next to raise funds.

I implore the people of Shelby County to find out all the facts and vote NO on December 10.

Respectfully,
Faye Hylton
Wilsonville, AL

Editor shouldn't take stand on hospital

Letter to the Editor:

The Reporter is the only newspaper in Shelby County, and for that reason it seems imprudent for the editor to jump into a campaign to influence the people in the up-coming election. How can the people respond if they are not in agreement with him?

What does the editor expect to gain and why is he attempting to keep the hospital a public liability?

The only benefit I can see for him is that as long as the facility is owned by the public, he will have access to board and committee meetings under the Sunshine Law.

This is a great price for property owners to pay to subsidize, not only the hospital, but the newspaper as well.

Reader responds to straw poll on hospital

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following Letter to the Editor is a response by Wade Morton of Columbiana to Doug Ballard's "Straw Poll on the Hospital Referendum." The questionnaire appeared in the Nov. 7 edition of the Reporter. A portion of the questionnaire was amended by Morton to reflect his opinion of the poll. The amended portion will be noted in italics.

•The Nov. 7 questionnaire read, "As you may have read in the papers, the Board of Directors of Shelby Medical Center are equally split on whether they favor or oppose allowing the people to vote their feelings about the sale of the hospital."

•Readers were asked to check a box by one of two statements:

"I think the people should be allowed to express their feelings in a referendum;" and

"It should be left up to the board to make this decision."

•Morton responded by rewriting the first choice as follows:

"I think your above statement of the issue stinks, e.g. it is misleading (i.e. many of those you say are "against referendum" are simply not for our public hospital) and it is intended to prejudice the unwary citizen in favor of your apparently fixed position to sell the public hospital and, consequently, I think the people should be allowed to express their feelings in a referendum so as to now prevent an unwise sale of our public hospital already favored by several members of the Board of Trustees of Shelby Memorial Hospital, who were packed in by the same majority of the county commissioners also already favoring such sale; otherwise, the people will not have their say until the next commission election, which will be too late to save our hospital."

Wade Morton
Columbiana, AL

Animal problems need more attention

Letter to the Editor:

I am writing in regard to a situation in which I have recently found myself. My parents are in poor health; one just out of the hospital and the other going in.

They had a problem with some unwanted cats, which were thrown out on them, not by their choice. I, as a taxpayer in Shelby County, resent the fact that you have to go through so much red tape to ask for assistance in getting something done in such cases.

Sometimes problems, which we as younger adults face, are insurmountable to the elderly.

I called the Humane Society because that was what was suggested to me if we could not do away with the problem ourselves. They are understaffed and, as in the case of every other agency, it seems there isn't enough money to do all the things that are needed to be done.

It is my opinion that each time taxes are raised, it seems to be that the money gets lost in the shuffle before the cause for these taxes can be achieved.

I only know this: my parents are not in need of public assistance, but sometimes things come up that they and may others like them cannot handle or solve by themselves.

The elderly people in this county and this state need any help they can get because if it were not for them, we would not have a county, state and you who read this would not be in this life without parents. And if God lets you live long enough, you too must pass this way.

I feel that the county could do more about these stray animals which are becoming a problem, not only as pests but also disease carrying.

I think each town and municipality should adopt some means of dealing with problems like these and enforce it.

Respectfully,
Mrs. Bobby Jenkins
Helena, AL

Are there ulterior motives for SMC sale?

Letter to the Editor:

Should the Shelby Medical Center be sold?

It is my opinion that all the reasons which I have heard for selling the hospital are the wrong reasons. I wonder if I am getting this feeling because only those people who are advocating selling the hospital, or bringing it to the people for a vote, have ulterior motives for doing so?

If we look at the reason for building the hospital (SMC), then prove that it is not serving that need with ample growth and progress, then maybe it should be sold. But, will costs remain the same? Will indigent patients still receive the same care at the Shelby Medical Center?

If I am convinced that the Shelby Medical Center should be sold, I would vote YES provided the referendum stated that the monies received from this sale would be placed in a Trust Fund, with the interest being used to pay for indigent care first.

Next, I would expect this referendum to state that the sale of SMC would eliminate the need for continuing the Hospital Tax which Shelby Countians are now paying. Therefore, the sale of the hospital (SMC) would automatically repeal the Hospital Tax in Shelby County.

Doctor says county should keep hospital

Letter to the Editor:

The sale of Shelby Medical Center to a private, for-profit enterprise would be of great disservice to the people of Shelby County.

Consider these points:

1. Common sense dictates that if a for-profit corporation spends approximately 30 to 40 million dollars on any investment, its stockholders will expect a return on their money. Who will pay? The people of Shelby County?

2. There are those who play up a few "great benefits" to be gained if the hospital were sold:

a. It is reported that the four-mill tax would stop. This, in fact, is a tiny tax, relative to that paid in suburban counties elsewhere in America. It is a poor reason to sell the county's "greatest asset."

b. The "25 million dollar trust fund" for indigent care, so highly touted by those in favor of selling, shows their absolute lack of foresight. No one knows if this "fund" would be any where near that amount, and the chances are that it would not. The interest on any amount of money in 1986 might have some meaning, but will have much less impact in 1996, given 10 more years of inflation. A hospital serving over the next 10 years will be of much greater value.

c. We are told of the benefits of the tax dollars that would be paid into the county by a private hospital. Who will pay these taxes in the long run? The people of Shelby County. It will be an indirect "tax" on the businesses in Shelby County that pay health insurance premiums and upon those who use the hospital. Selling the hospital to a for-profit corporation will result in an indirect "tax" upon the sick and the injured and the employers in the county.

3. Many people consider selling the hospital as the only way to get politics out of the hospital management. Certainly it has been the county politicians who have been getting the hospital into the newspapers of late: going to court over management procedures, telling the public of the hospital's financial situation before getting the facts straight, administrations going and coming with an ever changing, politically appointed board, etc.

There is an alternative to this confusion:

1. Let the ownership of the Shelby County Medical Center remain with the people of Shelby County so that the hospital can serve them in years to come.

2. Let the Shelby County Medical Center be reorganized to a non-profit hospital, that cannot be changed or controlled by any political body. The actual management of the hospital could be done by an administrative team appointed by the board.

If the residents of Shelby County vote to sell Shelby

Medical Center, and I hope that vote, "no sale," the next step is to change the organization of Shelby Medical Center so that it will serve the people of Shelby County not the politicians.

Thank you,
M. Clagett Collins, M.D.

Intolerant liberals qualify as bigots

Letter to the Editor:

My friends back in Washington, D.C. tell me that I shouldn't use the term "bigot" to apply to political liberals - it seems the word is to be reserved for denigrate conservatives and Southern racists.

Not satisfied, I looked up "bigot" in the recent unabridged dictionary. The relevant meaning reads: "One obstinately and irrationally, often intolerantly, devoted to his own church, party, belief or opinion." Or, almost anyone with an opinion, according to a wag.

Without deliberately distorting the definition, there is no way to exclude qualifying liberals from the meaning of the word. The attempt to do so smacks of the propaganda efforts to define truth as that which furthers the cause, so typical of the Nazis, the communists and other intolerant creeds. Similarly, it is reminiscent of the quite successful campaign to usurp the morally-neutral word "gay" to designate sodomites and other sexual pervers.

But, as the famous bard said: "What's in a name? That which we call a rose, by any other name would smell as sweet."

If the shoe fits, wear it. I will use the word "bigot" to describe intolerant liberals as well as others whose conduct falls within this meaning.

Sincerely,
William C. Holcombe

Readers' opinions are important

Letter to the Editor:
"Half truths, and no truths": Porcine ablution, Mayor! Name ONE and substantiate it.
In my letter on 31 October, 1985, I merely gave the local readers a chronologic collation, the date and source of articles that had previously appeared in public press; articles that you had been a party to and had already accepted. It is amusingly disquieting in your letter of 7 November, when you say in the first column, "the letter is to appear on this same page and it does not refer to an industry." In the last column in the attorney generals letter, quote, "Code of Alabama 1975, Section 11-47-11 authorizes a municipality to expend funds for the promotion of industry." You trashed your whole reply!
In further reference to your two opening paragraphs, one only needs to read the caption that always appears with any papers' Letter to the Editor instruction. The SCR was in no way at fault in publishing my letter of 31 October, 1985. The editor is only responsible for "length" and "libel"; the "meat of the article is my responsibility and I had it thoroughly checked before I submitted it for publication. I am not trying to sell papers. I only want a better governing body and system. I want what I pay for!

I think readers opinions are very important. Thomas Jefferson has always been one of the greatest patriots in our democracy. In a letter to a brother-in-law of the late chief justice John Marshall, he wrote on 16 January, 1787, "The basis of our governments being the opinion of the people, the very first object should be to keep that right; and were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers, or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter."
At the last council meeting, 7 November, 1985, I gave you and each council member a copy of a ludicrous, yes even scurrilous three page poem written by one "Arthur Piques, a.k.a. The Equalizer." I can only think it has to be the work of your political camp; I know it's not mine! It does not offend me in the least, and you can be assured I will never stoop to that level. It does make me all the more convinced of possible irregularities in your administration and fires my ambitions to find out what is really going on.

I have an intense belief in God and Country and our system of government and will always believe that RIGHT will eventually surface in our system. Many of the southern patriots shared this same belief, for there is a most impressive monument in the village square of Tusculumbia, Alabama bearing this inscription near it's base; "The men were right who wore the grey, and right will never die."
You close by saying 'I like living here'. I like living here also! You were probably a native of this vicinity. I came about 1,500 miles from my home roots and a large and close family in western New York to live here. But, I ask you in all humility, is there anything wrong with trying to improve an already comfortable living area? This was the very stimulus of our early settlers existence and survival; carve out a foothold, hang on and improve the area for society as they knew it. I came from an area as much as 200 years older in terms of settlement than Columbiana. I go back yearly to visit, but I still like to live here!

Calera awards bids

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer
The Calera City Council awarded bids totaling $117,423 for grading, drainage, basing, paving and fencing at Oliver Park.
The council approved an additional bid for landscaping if the price can be negotiated lower.
The city only received one bid on the landscaping project. The council asked the project engineers, Carr and Associates Engineers, Inc., to try to negotiate a lower price than $35,000 with either the bidder or another company.
The council hopes the work can be completed in the spring. Councilman Bill Geeslin was present at last Monday's meeting, having withdrawn his resignation upon the council's request.

Geeslin had resigned October 21. "We are very happy Mr. Geeslin did reconsider and is back on the council with us," Mayor George Roy said.
The hiring of a new policeman was announced at Monday's meeting. Jesse Payne will fill the vacancy of Robert Kiker, who was with the department about six years.
The council asked that residents call the city hall to arrange trash pickup. The service is available on the first, second and fourth Wednesdays, but people should first arrange for the truck to come for the trash.

A $10,401 bid for a service truck for the trash department was awarded to Bill Russell, pending approval that the bid meets specifications.
Companies awarded bids for the Oliver Park project were Lemond and Myers Contracting, with a $74,827 bid for grading and drainage and a $27,260 bid for basing and paving, and Siberton Fence Co. with a $15,336 bid for fencing.
The Civitan's Christmas parade December 14 at 6 p.m. was announced.
An open house for the new sewage treatment plant is also scheduled for Sunday, November 24, 2-5 p.m.

Horizon 280 discusses signs

Signs were the topic of the November 13 Horizon 280 meeting.
Charles F. Floyd, president of the Coalition for Scenic Beauty spoke about billboards and on- and off-premise business signs.
The National Highway Beautification Act is very general, with each state setting specific regulations of the use, size and zoning of billboards, Floyd said. He told the group that regulation of billboards would thus require members to seek action from state legislators.

Most states allow five to seven years for removal of illegal billboards already in place when regulations are set, Floyd said.
The Horizon 280 Association is very concerned about the use of off-premise signs, said Cheryl Vanderburg, assistant secretary.

The group works with new businesses to try to keep signs small, low and tasteful, she said.
The association is a group of business leaders dedicated to preserving the natural image of the Horizon 280 Corridor as it is commercially developed. It meets the second Wednesday of each month at 7:30 a.m. at Lloyd's Restaurant on Highway 280. There is a $4 charge for breakfast.

WBHM honored

Birmingham's public radio station, WBHM, has been awarded a certificate of merit in the Best of the South Programming Awards competition, sponsored by the Southern Educational Telecommunications Association.
The station was honored for its production of A Christmas Carol last December, said Robert N. Eastman, general manager.
Eastman, who directed the program, said he is particularly pleased with the recognition because the project was the product of cooperation between the community and UAB. Faculty and students from the UAB Department of Theatre and Dance joined volunteers from the community to bring the story to life for the radio audience.

Calera gets $86,000 grant for drainage

Calera has been awarded an $86,600 Community Development Block Grant for drainage work in the northeastern part of the city around 9th Street.

The area, which frequently faces flooding in times of heavy rain, includes 52 housing units and an elementary school. Most of Calera is low land and this part is particularly low, creating the need for drainage improvements, said City Clerk Lemoine Payton.

The city will add $20,900 to the CDBG funds to install drainage pipes for a more effective flow of high volumes of water, dig ditches, install area inlets, junction boxes and related work to improve the situation.

The project was funded through the Alabama Department of Economic and Community Affairs.

Mayor George Roy, Payton and Councilman Bill Geeslin met with state Rep. Sonny Moore and Ned Butler from the governor's office November 13 for the awarding of the grant.

It has not yet been determined when the work will be done, Payton said.

Volunteers are needed for tax return help

Volunteers are needed to help people file tax returns.

VITA — a volunteer income tax assistance program — is designed to use persons from all walks of life to help people who cannot afford professional help in filing their income tax returns.

The IRS will provide VITA volunteers with free instruction and all the training materials needed to prepare basic income tax returns. An accounting background is helpful but not necessary to be a volunteer.

Training is generally conducted in January at a site convenient for the volunteer. In addition to the actual aids in filing, other volunteers can be used for various aspects of the VITA program.

If you or your organization would like to sponsor a VITA program, contact the IRS in Birmingham at 254-0403.

County schools choose teachers of the year

Phyllis Williams
Calera Elementary School

Teaching is instant reward for Williams

What pleases Phyllis Williams most about teaching is "when the children understand the concept. It's an instant reward. That's when they get the most satisfaction too."

Williams was chosen teacher of the year at Calera Elementary School. She is beginning her third year of teaching third-graders at the school.

Williams grew up in Bessemer and attended Shades Valley High School in Homewood. She 'Things are different, but purpose the same'

Jeanie Morris's class of second graders at Helena Elementary School opened their Weekly Reader magazines and began to read about the problems of hunger in Africa.

The Weekly Reader is about the only thing that hasn't changed a lot, Morris said, since she began teaching almost 25 years ago.

"Things are different," Morris said, "but the purpose is still the same."

While being named Helena Elementary's

Richardson has 800 kids in her family

Tammy Richardson sees more than 800 elementary school children every working day. Teaching physical education at Valley Elementary School, Richardson sees every child for 30 minutes daily.

It gives her a whole lot of names to learn and a whole lot of faces to recognize. But to Richardson — Valley's state-wide teacher of the year nominee — all those faces are the best part of her job.

Teacher's attitude matters in learning

"A teacher's attitude has a lot to do with learning," says Sue Garrett, Vincent Elementary School's teacher of the year.

"I try to get the children I teach to believe in themselves," she explains. "If they have confidence, they can do anything they want to do."

Garrett, who has taught at VES for nine years, has recently left her first grade class to teach third, fourth and fifth graders in the

Crowson is growing great big gourds

Marvin Crowson

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

One of Marvin Crowson's hobbies is gardening, and one of the things the retired machine shop operator grows is gourds. Although he's grown gourds before, this is the first year the Calera man has planted a variety known as Bushel gourds.

One of the gourds Crowson recently harvested weighed 50 pounds and was 60 inches in circumference.

When the gourd dries out however, Crowson said it would probably weigh no more than a couple of pounds.

Crowson and his wife Lyndol have been making various objects from the dried gourds. They've made dippers from the smaller ones. Crowson said he plans to try making a water bucket from the giant variety.

The Crowsons have also made bird houses from the gourds and plan to try their hand at making ornamental lamps.

Eisenberg is champ

Jessica Ann Eisenberg of Calera has been named state 4-H horse project champion. She will attend the National 4-H Congress November 29 — December 6 in Chicago.

The 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Eisenberg has been in 4-H for eight years. She is president of her 4-H club and secretary and vice president of the county 4-H council.

She won gold medals with a demonstration on the versatility of the Arabian horse and in saddle seat showmanship.

She has owned 20 horses, with her first when she was 2 years old.

Eisenberg also belongs to a prize-winning livestock judging team and attended Citizenship — Washington Focus in Washington, D.C. twice.

"We get to see all of them every year," Richardson said. "It's tough to remember their names in kindergarten and the first grade, but then we get to see them grow and develop through the years. A regular classroom teacher doesn't get to do that."

Teaching more than 800 children also makes Richardson well-known almost anywhere she goes. "The children come up to me a lot in other places and I really enjoy that," she said.

While these encounters sometimes bring strange comments to a P.E. teacher who wears athletic clothes while teaching and a dress away from school — "One child came up to me and said 'I didn't know you wore clothes,'" Richardson remembers with a smile — they also give parents a chance to see their children excited about meeting a teacher.

"If those parents see that their children are glad to see us, it makes a positive impression," Richardson said.

A positive impression is what being voted Valley's teacher of the year nominee left with Richardson. "It was a real surprise and it is a real honor," Richardson said. "I am so proud to be a part of this faculty. To say that I teach at Valley Elementary means something special."

Richardson gained both B.S. and M.Ed degrees from the University of Montevallo. Last year's state-wide elementary teacher of the year — Montevallo Elementary's physical education instructor Linda Cicero — came from the same school, and Richardson feels the professionalism of the people at UM has a lot to do with the caliber of people who call that department and school their alma mater.

In her fifth year of teaching at Valley, Richardson is not married. "I tell my children that they are my family," she said.

Between her teaching duties at Valley and coaching girls' varsity volleyball and basketball teams at Pelham High School, Richardson has very little free time for other interests.

"I play tennis and I like to draw, but I don't have much time to do either," she said. "But I love teaching and I love doing it this way. If I don't have the time to do things some other people do, that is my choice and I'm happy with it."

Dr. Calvin Kelley congratulates Bart Lester as his parents look on

Lester gets Eagle Scout award

Bart Lester has been in Scouting since 1978 when he joined Pack 5. After climbing the Scouting ladder for seven years, Bart, who is now 16, has reached the top rung.

On Sunday, the young man from Riverchase was presented his Eagle award in a ceremony at Valleydale Baptist Church.

The presentation was made by the church's pastor, Dr. Calvin Kelley, who is also an Eagle Scout.

After earning 22 merit badges, Bart worked on his service project, which benefited Valleydale Baptist, the church he attends.

The project was to pour a concrete foundation for a dumpster and build a wooden fence to enclose it. Lester chose the project because it made the area safer and more sanitary.

Bart, the son of Ron and Sandra Lester, attends Berry High School where he is a sophomore.

Williams

is a 1982 graduate of the University of Alabama in Birmingham. She and her husband Cedric now live in Birmingham with their 17-month-old daughter Felicia.

Growing up with nine sisters and one brother was "like having a team," she said. "No matter how many I was angry with, I always still had a buddy." Most of her family still lives in the Birmingham area.

"When I was growing up, I wanted others to learn whatever I knew," she said.

She realized teaching was what she should do when she was tutoring in high school. "I enjoyed helping others to learn, so that's when it all clicked: I really enjoy doing this every day."

Williams said she stresses the permanence of such decisions to her students, but tells them that the key is striving. If a class activity is not a success, she said, either she or the students have "let down our end of the bargain," she said.

Williams said her students understand the importance of school and what is required of them to do well.

She likes to "try to stimulate creative thinking and make them feel like they've mastered something."

Parental input is also important to children's performance, she said. Successful teaching would not be possible "without children keeping up their end of the deal and parents working with us."

Williams said most of her time, even away from school, is involved with teaching. "It's not a 7 to 3 job; there are a lot of hours and home."

She said it is good for students to realize the extent of a teacher's involvement. "It makes the atmosphere better when kids understand that you're not just giving them homework, but that their work has to be planned and checked."

Just as she encourages her third-graders, Williams is "committed to the task" — not just to say she will achieve her goals, but to strive for them.

Morris

teacher-of-the-year nominee is what Morris termed the highlight of her teaching career, seeing the eyes of students "light up" when they have learned something is always her greatest reward.

"There are days when you feel you haven't taught them a thing," Morris said. "On one of those days just recently, Brandon Phillips came up to me and said 'Thank you for teaching me that math. I've really got it now.'" Morris said. "That is what makes this job special."

Morris, who comes from a family of educators, credits her mother — Laurie Eddins — with being the greatest influence on her choice of teaching as a profession.

"I guess everything I wanted to do goes back to my mother," she said.

While she always wanted to teach, Morris also considered going into social work. "Then when I got rich from teaching or social work I was going to open my own floristry," Morris laughed.

"In a way," she added, "I got to do all three. Children are a lot like flowers. Some just need a little more tender loving care than others. Some are hearty and you can help them in other ways."

Morris feels that the best service she can perform for her students is to give them a secure and happy environment in which to learn and grow.

"I try to give each of them some positive attention every day," Morris said, "because I don't know what else happens to them each day."

"I would want someone to treat my two children special," she added, "and I try to do the same for my school children as well."

Morris did not teach when her and husband Gene's children were young. But when Mary and Chuck — now a senior and sophomore at Pelham High School — started to school at Helena, Morris became involved as a volunteer, later went to work as an aide, and finally renewed her certificate and returned to teaching.

Morris has been at Helena for nine years.

She holds a B.S. from Livingston, a master's degree from Troy State University and has done additional course work at the University of Montevallo. She belongs to numerous professional organizations, has served on various professional and school committees and attends Helena Baptist Church with her family.

As past-times, Morris writes poetry and bird-watches she is not following the school activities of her children.

These activities are a full-time job, for Morris feels every child that she has taught is somehow a part of her.

"You get attached to them and you feel they are part yours," she said. "It is hard to give them up every year, you want to keep them. But you never want to hold them back from becoming what they can be."

school's Chapter 1 reading program.

"This is a challenge for me," she says, "and a challenge I enjoy. I like working with older children and dealing with the different age levels."

Although she works with 90 students each day, the maximum class size is ten. Since there are so many differences in the reading levels of students even in the same class, Garrett mostly works with the students on an individual basis.

"My approach is always positive," she says. "I think you have to sell a child on the idea of learning."

One of Garrett's selling techniques is game playing. Since taking over the class last month, she has been busy making learning games to teach reading comprehension and phonics.

"It's fun to learn when learning is a game," she says.

Speaking of her selection as the school's Outstanding Teacher, Garrett says, "I was shocked when I found out."

"When a fifth grader brought me the news, I told her, don't joke me," Garrett laughs.

Admitting that she's honored to be selected, Garrett notes that she has a lot to live up to. She calls the two teachers who held the title before her - Ricky Darby and Brenda Lowe - "tough acts to follow."

Both Garrett and her husband Harold grew up in Harpersville and attended Vincent schools.

Garrett graduated from the University of Montevallo in 1977 with a BS degree and returned to school six years later to earn a Master of Education degree from UAB.

In addition to her own school activities, Garrett also supports her husband in his work with the sports program at Vincent High School. Harold Garrett is the school's athletic director and head football coach.

"I don't miss many football games," Garrett says. "In fact, the only one I haven't been to in 12 years was the one I missed a couple of weeks ago because I was sick."

Garrett says she and her husband try to do things with the players to make them feel like one big family, and she also helps prepare the pre-game meals.

In her spare time, she likes to do needlework and is now learning to smock. She also enjoys playing the piano and serves as pianist at Klein Baptist where she attends church.

The Garretts are the parents of two children Amy, 9, and Chris, 4.

DRIVE A DIESEL OVER YOUR LAWN.

After Kubota $300 Rebate $3,695<sup>00</sup>

It looks like a mower. It cuts grass like a mower. But the Kubota G is much more. It's the first lawn and garden tractor of such remarkably small size to have a diesel engine.

There are four different G tractor models, including the G3200 you see here. It has a strong, 10 horsepower 2-cylinder diesel engine and a live front PTO shaft drive to the mower.

See the Kubota G tractors for yourself and you'll want to get behind the wheel of a diesel.

"It ran smoothly," said THS Assistant Principal Donny Kennedy who headed up the event. "There were no equipment breakdowns or no challenges to answers on any problems.

The event included ciphering and a written test, with the scores added to determine winners.

Girl Scouts study Wildlife Education

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

Donna Nye knows her way around a forest. She also knows a good deal about streams and lakes.

Last weekend, Nye and Carolyn Kennedy, a fellow program specialist from the Girl Scout office in New York City, shared their knowledge with senior Girl Scouts and leaders from across the state.

The event - billed as a Wildlife Education Workshop - was held at the Cahaba Council's 583 acre Kanawahala Program Center at Sterrett. It was the first such workshop ever held in the state.

For three and a half days, the 34 participants in the program learned about wildlife and the environmental factors that affect it through a variety of hands-on experiences.

One experience was examining four sites at the camp, studying the plants and animals found there and determining why they were there.

The program specialists showed the group how to measure air temperature and wind speed, how to use a compass and determine soil type and whether it would perk.

Nye and Kennedy also took the group out on the lake and around the shoreline to study the aquatic and marine life.

Learning continued even after the sun went down. Two of the nighttime experiences were an after-dark walk and stargazing.

Among the objectives of the workshop was to create greater interest in wildlife and environmental concerns, and to show participants how they could become active in environmental decision-making.

Project Christmas needs more sponsors

DPS Director Rene Williams is worried because Project Christmas has not received nearly the response it had at this time last year.

Project Christmas finds holiday sponsors for families in need. It coordinates the efforts of several agencies, trying to find help for everyone without duplication of services.

"We don't have a fourth as many sponsors as we did by this time last year," Williams said.

In past years, calls have come as early as October. By November 30, everyone applying for a sponsor had been given one, she said.

With more than 200 families without sponsors and more still applying, Williams is afraid some people will be left out.

Examples of people who may be facing bleak Christmases unless the response to Project Christmas improves are:

- a man not currently working because of a back injury, who has two young children and whose only income is $147 a month from Aid to Dependent Children;
- a severely crippled man whose wife stays home to care for him;
- an elderly person living on $350 a month, homebound and without relatives;
- a young mother of four who has stopped working to stay with her youngest child who will be hospitalized for about four months;
- a 70-year-old woman living off social security payments with her 12-year-old grandson.

The most typical case is the pregnant mother of four whose husband has left, said Lynn Lucas, DPS eligibility sponsor.

A simple gift can make an enormous difference, said

Jeanette Niven, DPS adult services supervisor. Last year a woman who had not gotten a new dress in 15 years was taken shopping for one. Another had always wanted a dish drain. A bedside table for medicinal supplies made one happy Christmas.

"We always need toasters and little ovens - anything that makes their way of life easier," Niven said.

Sponsors can choose both the type of family and the method of sponsorship, Williams said.

Someone may prefer to sponsor a family with children, while others may be rewarded by helping an elderly person, she said.

If a person prefers to make a monetary donation, Project Christmas volunteers can shop for gifts and deliver them to the families. Others may prefer to do their own shopping and deliver the gifts in person. If a sponsor wants to purchase gifts but would rather have the volunteers make the delivery, that also can be arranged, Williams said.

Church groups may want to select several families and deliver the presents as a special project, she said.

Names of people in need are gathered from DPS, the Fraternal Order of Police's Toys for Tots project, personal applications and other sources.

Donations can be made at the Montevallo First United Methodist Church (665-7535) or Christ the King Lutheran Church in Riverchase (988-5004).

These churches will be open for donations 1-4:30 p.m. on October 22, 24, 29, 31, November 5, 7, and November 11-14, November 18-21, November 25-27, December 2-5, December 9-12 and December 16-19.

Seabees put roof on A-Home barn

Work under way on A-Home site

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer
Construction of the county's new Attention Home won't begin until next year. However, one structure is already up on the site on County 26.

Lumber and roofing for a nearly completed barn had to be purchased, but the labor for the project didn't cost a red cent.

Volunteer help came from the A-Home staff and occupants and Seabees from a reserve unit in Bessemer. Another Seabee reserve unit from Huntsville put in the road.

A-Home Director Brenda Lee-Rice said the road work alone would have cost around $10,000 if the Seabees had not offered their services.

The barn will be used to store materials that will go into the new home. Rice said bids on the facility will be put out the latter part of this month or early in December.

Although the facility, which will house 16-20 young people, was originally expected to cost $250,000, Rice said that structural changes made in the plans have probably reduced the cost by $50,000.

Another improvement in the financial picture, Rice said, was notification from United Way that the original $30,000 request will be forthcoming in 1986. Earlier, UW had said $11,000 was as much as they could provide.

Community services available

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is part of a weekly series on the services provided by government agencies in Shelby County. This week's article is the second part of a survey of the offices in the Community Services Building.

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

The Community Services Building in Columbiana houses several offices that serve Shelby County residents.

The Department of Veteran's Affairs serves 7910 veterans in Shelby County. Jim Mayhew offers help with pension benefits, education benefits, service-related compensation, Veterans' Administration hospitalization, military records and burials.

Mayhew has held his position for more than six years. For the housebound unable to come to his office, he will go to their homes.

For information, call 669-6246.

A social security office is open on Tuesdays for applications, questions and problems.

Doug Davis, who works in the office with Martha Fant, suggested people call 939-3900 before coming. Some matters can be handled more easily over the telephone or through the mail. People who do need to come in should be at the office by noon and bring their social security cards and birth certificates.

The office issues social security cards and deals with changes of address or name, applications for disability, retirement or survivors' benefits and other social security matters.

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program offers 273 people over age 60 a chance to "get out of the house and be with people," said Lois Farmer, who heads the program.

The volunteers work with Shelby Medical Center, Briarcliff Nursing Home, the Red Cross, the Health Department and others. Some visit the sick and others offer reassurance over the telephone.

Quilting groups earn money for poor families and the Shelby Youth Services and Attention Home. Eight volunteers work in the SMC emergency room. Others tutor students and help teachers in schools.

Farmer invited new volunteers to call her at 669-9184.

The Program on Aging offers a number of services for county residents age 60 and over.

Seven centers — in Alabaster, Calera, Montevallo, Columbiana, Wilsonville, Vincent and Vandiver — are open five days a week. These centers serve hot meals and offer recreation to about 300 people daily, said Sue Tedford, director of the program.

The centers provide opportunities for crafts, legal counseling, exercise, cake decoration, art, health programs such as blood pressure checks, picnics, fishing and sight-seeing.

Four vans take people to and from the center, to medical appointments, to pay bills, to shop and on other errands.

The Program on Aging also delivers meals to the homes of invalids. If necessary, five hot meals and two frozen meals will be brought to the person's home each week.

Four homemakers do simple household work for people unable to do so. This, coupled with the home-delivered meals, is especially helpful to people who have just gotten home from a hospital stay, Tedford said.

About 80 local merchants give discounts for senior citizens, and more are being added in a reorganization of the program, Tedford said. Senior citizens' cards and a list of merchants are available for participation.

In Vincent and Wilsonville, a postal alert protects people who may be injured or become too ill to call for help. Senior citizens can be put on a list and anyone whose mail is left uncollected for more than a day is checked.

The Program on Aging also loans hospital equipment donated to the agency.

Although donations are accepted, there is no charge for services. If people are unable to contribute, Tedford said she wants them to come anyway.

For information, call 669-6088.

Hair braiding, fruit carving taught

You can learn the basics of football, French hair braiding and fruit carving in just one evening. Not all in the same evening, of course.

But these are some of the one-night classes being offered by the Alabaster Community Education program on Tuesday, Dec. 10 and Thursday, Dec. 12.

The classes, which will last two hours, begin at 7 p.m.

Classes offered on Tuesday are:

- The basics of football for women who want to understand the game is taught by Shelby County Reporter Sports Editor K.A. Turner.
- Jane Cairns will demonstrate the art of carving fruit and vegetables into garnishes that can even be used for centerpieces. Participants should bring two good paring knives, a package of radishes, a lemon and an orange.

Classes scheduled for Thursday are:

- Wreath and bow making for Christmas is taught by Judy Hawkins. Participants are asked to bring ribbon, wreaths and other any other materials they may have for decorating.

- French hair braiding is taught by Sherry Waid who will also show how to make decorative barretts. Participants should furnish combs, brushes, ribbons and a little girl on which to practice.

- Sue Lee will demonstrate how to make molded Christmas candy decorated with holiday colors.

- A holiday travelog, which includes slides and information on places such as Greece, Germany and Switzerland, will be given by Dr. Tommie Harrison. She will also give travel tips.

The cost of the classes is $5 each. To register, make checks payable to Alabaster Community Education and mail to Thompson Elementary School.

For further information, call Tommie Harrison, coordinator, 663-3858.

North Shelby Lions help King's Ranch

The North Shelby Lions is one of the organizations which supports the King's Ranch.

At a meeting last week, the civic organization presented ranch director Tom Owen with a check for $550.

Lion President Hugh Johnson said the club also sponsors four young people from the ranch - two boys and two girls - to attend a leadership training program held each spring at Camp Chandler near Montgomery.

King's Ranch, which Owen and his wife Linda started in 1976 to house neglected, abandoned and abused children, now cares for approximately 80 young people.

The ranch site near Westover now has three permanent buildings. There is also a group home and a temporary home nearby.

In addition, there is a boys' home in Oneonta, a home in Clanton for unwed mothers, and plans for two more homes for unwed mothers.

For his work with young people, Owen was recently presented the Brother Bryan award for outstanding Christian community service.

The award is given by Birmingham's Womens' Committee of 100. Former recipients have been Billy Graham and Norman Vincent Peale.

There will be a colonial bakeshop featuring special freezer-wrapped holiday foods, such as Christmas candies, cookies and cakes. Lunch and light refreshments will be served at The Old Dominion Inn. Fifth grade students in authentic colonial costume will be assisting.

Santa's Secret Shop will provide children an opportunity to buy presents for family and friends and keep their selection a secret. Numerous inexpensive yet attractive gift items will be available. Adult "helpers" will be there to assist the young shoppers.

Special entertainment by choirs, dancers and musical groups will go on throughout the day.

The school is located one mile off Highway 280 on Shelby County Road 17. For more information, call Paulette Williams at 991-7087.

Drama set for UM stage

The University of Montevallo will stage a reader's theatre production of Lorraine Hansberry's A Raisin in the Sun Nov. 20-21. Performances will be held at 8 p.m. in Reynolds Theatre.

Set in a black ghetto during the 1950's, A Raisin in the Sun revolves around the dreams of three generations of the Younger family. The powerful drama is built on sacrifice, heartbreak, love and a mother's struggle to keep her family together.

The cast includes Tina Greenlee, Glenda Kitchen, Belinda Benjamin, Valencia Stewart, Cedric Robinson and Joseph Henderson. UM theatre professor, Stephan Finnan, directs.

The public is invited to attend. Admission is free. For more information, call 665-6413.

A Christmas Carol set in B'ham

The Birmingham Children's Theatre and the UAB Department of Theatre and Dance will present A Christmas Carol on December 6 and 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the Civic Center Theatre.

Dickens's Christmas tale is an age-old favorite of children and adults alike. The stage version by Darwin Reid Payne will be directed by Rick J. Plummer, assistant professor of theatre at UAB. The cast of 33 young and adult actors includes Rick J. Plummer as Scrooge, Alex Eastman as Tiny Tim and Paul Gantt as Bob Cratchit.

Gantt is a native of Birmingham and a professional actor. He has performed in New York and worked in films and television. Also in the cast are many Birmingham favorites such as

Samford has opera

An opera which tells the story of a father's search for a daughter stolen by gypsies, will be performed this week at Samford University.

Mignon, which is based on Goethe's Adventures of the Wilhelm Meister was first produced in November 1886.

The production being staged a century later by the Samford Opera Workshop, will be Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 21, 22, 23, in Wright Center Theatre.

Curtain time Thursday and Friday is at 8 p.m. and at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday.

Tenor recital is part of UM concert series

Tenor William David Finley will perform at the University of Montevallo on Monday, Nov. 25. The recital, part of the Richard Hiram Dollar Concert Series, will be at 8 p.m. in LeBaron Recital Hall. UM alumnus Patricia Vines will accompany him on the piano.

A native of Birmingham, Finley received his master of music degrees in voice from the Yale School of Music and the University of Montevallo. He also holds a bachelor of music education in choral music from UM.

Finley has made solo appearances with the New Haven Symphony, the Yale Philharmonic, the New England Chamber Orchestra, the Bridgeport Symphony and the Fairfield Chamber Orchestra.

The Richard Hiram Dollar Concert Series is made possible by a gift from Nancy Dollar of Birmingham in memory of her husband. The series is designed to bring outstanding music alumni back to the UM campus.

The Briarwood Presbyterian Church Theatre Ministry under the direction of Kathy S. Houser will present Home Again: Portrait of a Family on Sunday, Nov. 17, 6:30 p.m. in the church sanctuary.

Home Again, based on a book by Dennis Skippy with music and lyrics by Jeff Kennedy, is a comedy revolving around a contemporary family too busy for the priorities of the heart until a family crisis confronts each member.

Starring Walter Carroll and Ruth Gordon, Home Again will hit home, tickle your funny bone and touch your heart. The public is invited at no charge.

Home economist explains turkey roasting

by Paula Newbury
Home Economist

HOW TO ROAST A TURKEY

Place the turkey breast side up on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Do not add water. Before placing the turkey in the oven, you may want to brush it with cooking oil, melted butter or margarine, although this is not necessary.

Then cover the turkey with a loose tent of heavy-duty aluminum foil. This prevents overbrowning, allows for maximum heat circulation, keeps the turkey moist and reduces oven splatter.

When using a meat thermometer, insert it through the foil into the thickest part of the thigh muscle without touching the bone. The inner thigh is the area that heats most slowly.

Roast according to the following chart. To brown the turkey, remove the foil tent 20 to 30 minutes before roasting is finished, and continue cooking until the thermometer registers 185 degrees F.

Timetable for Roasting Fresh or Thawed Turkey or Turkey

| Weight (lbs) | Unstuffed (hrs) | Stuffed (hrs)  |
|--------------|-----------------|----------------|
| Breasts.     |                 |                |
| 4-6          | 1 1/2 to 2 1/4  | Not applicable |
| 6-8          | 2 1/4 to 3 1/4  | 3 to 3 1/4     |
| 8-12         | 3 to 4          | 3 1/4 to 4 1/4 |
| 12-16        | 3 1/2 to 4 1/2  | 4 1/2 to 5 1/2 |
| 16-20        | 4 to 5          | 5 1/2 to 6 1/2 |
| 20-24        | 4 1/2 to 5 1/2  | 6 1/2 to 7     |
| 24-28        | 5 to 6 1/2      | 7 to 8 1/2     |

Drumsticks, quarters, thighs 2 to 3 1/4 Not applicable

You should not partially roast a stuffed turkey one day and complete roasting the next. Interrupted cooking enhances the possibility of bacterial growth.

TESTING FOR DONENESS

The most reliable method for detecting when your turkey is thoroughly cooked is using a meat thermometer. The turkey is

From the County Agents' Office

The Alabama
Cooperative Extension Service

done when the temperature reaches 180 degrees F. to 185 degrees F. in the inner thigh of whole turkeys and in the center of the thickest part of turkey pieces. Stuffing temperature should reach at least 165 degrees F. To check the stuffing, insert the thermometer through the body cavity into the thickest part of the stuffing and leave it for 5 minutes. The stuffing temperature will rise a few degrees after the turkey is removed from the oven.

Another method for testing doneness is to press the fleshy part of the thigh with protected fingers. If the meat feels soft, or if the leg moves up and down easily and the hip joint gives readily or breaks, the turkey is done.

Doneness can also be detected by inserting a long-tined fork into the thickest part of the inner thigh. If the juices run clear, not pink, the turkey is done.

As soon as your turkey is completely cooked, you should remove all the stuffing from the cavities. Harmful bacteria is more likely to grow in the stuffing if it sits in the bird after cooking. If you do not need all the stuffing for first servings, you can put the remaining stuffing in the oven for 200 degrees F. to keep hot until you need it.

If you have any questions about preparing your turkey for the holidays, call our office at 669-6763.

Falcons make fourth straight national trip

For the fourth consecutive year, the University of Montevallo volleyball team has earned the right to play in the NAIA National Tournament. The NAIA District 27 champion Lady Falcons secured the bid to the national field by coasting by Carson-Newman College in the NAIA Tri-District 9 championship last Wednesday night in Jefferson City, TN.

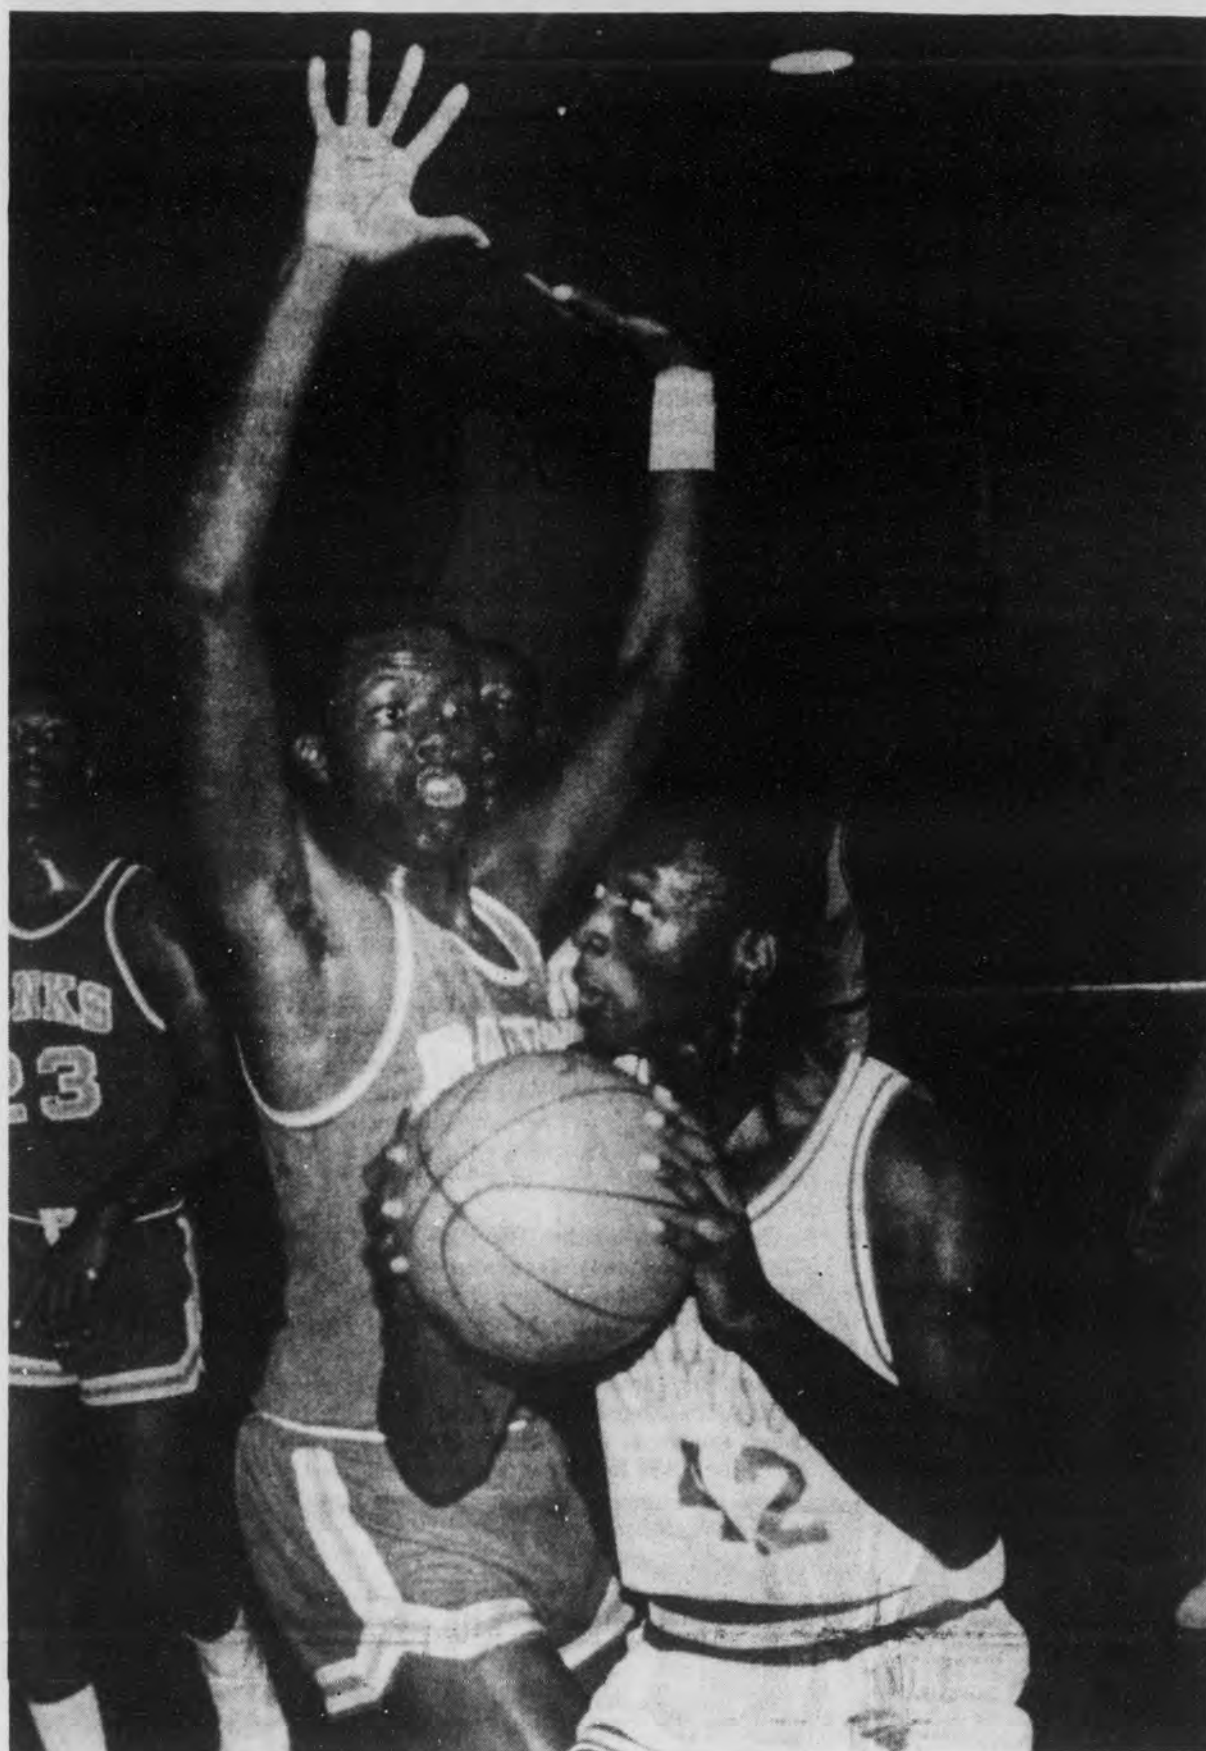

The Lady Falcons, 46-10 and ranked fifth in the NAIA national poll, had little trouble with Carson-Newman posting a 15-3, 16-14, 15-6 win. Sophomore hitter Donna Jenkins had 15 kills and All-American candidate Candi Nicholas posted 11 more in the UM win.

The NAIA National Tournament gets underway Thursday in Milwaukee, Wis. The 20-team field will open with pool play in the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee's Klatsche Center. The finals are set for Saturday afternoon.

The Lady Falcons warmed up for the national tourney by slapping Jacksonville State last Thursday in Jacksonville, 15-3, 15-7, 15-9. In the match with Jax State the Lady Falcons had no service errors in 78 total serves and no serve receiving errors in 49 tries.

Again it was Nicholas and Jenkins doing the major damage offensively, posting 15 and 14 kills respectively. Setter Missy Youngblood dished out 42 assists.

The Lady Falcons need but to post four wins in the national tournament to break the UM school record for wins in a season. Last year's team holds the record with 49.

Thompson's Jerome Taylor gets pressure from Banks

Basketball is back!!!

Warriors win opener

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Thompson Warriors opened the 1985-1986 basketball campaign in Shelby County on a successful note last Tuesday, whipping Banks 73-53.

Demetrius Galters paced the Warrior offense with 16 points in the win. Jerome Taylor pulled down 15 rebounds and added 12 points to the Thompson cause.

"We played pretty well in spots," said THS coach Thomas Johnson. "It wasn't always pretty but I'd rather win looking bad than lose looking good."

Johnson pointed to pressure defense as the key to the opening-game success.

Thompson ran out to a 9-1 lead in the opening minutes of the game, largely due to full-court pressure defense that created some turnovers and prevented Banks from getting into their offense.

From that point, the Warriors were able to play an aggressive zone defense for most of the remainder of the game, thus staying clear of foul trouble.

"We used the press to dictate the pace of the game," Johnson said. "That allowed us to do some things defensively that later helped us."

The Warriors maintained their eight point margin through the half, going into the dressing room ahead 32-24.

In the second stanza, the Warriors got hot from the field and continued to play good defense in coasting to their 20-point win.

Coaches chat about year

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

I felt like I had stepped into a re-union.

Just four days after watching football wind-up in Shelby County, I got to watch the Thompson Warriors open the 1985-86 basketball campaign in Shelby County with a 73-53 win over Banks.

I also got to talk to some of those county coaches I really look up to... it's not that I don't look up to — at least figuratively — the vast myriad of coaches in Shelby County that make my job more pleasant every day, but many of the county's basketball coaches came from successful stints as players to successful stints as coaches and their height makes me look up to them — literally.

After watching Thomas Johnson and his Warriors for a minute, I looked around to see some familiar faces in the crowd.

Vincent's Richard Crumpton, Pelham's Tony Taylor and Montevallo's Bobby Pierson seemed just as interested in the Warriors as I was. While I didn't see Johnson's ex-University of Montevallo teammate and new SCHS coach Charles Dickinson, he must have been in the area because I did run into a couple

Lions win Reporter Team-of-Year

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Briarwood Christian Lions are the Shelby County Reporter's Team of the Year in Shelby County.

Playing in their first year of Alabama High School Athletic Association competition, the Lions posted the county's only winning record in AHSAA regular season play with a 5-4 mark.

In addition, Rick Sayle's Lions made the post-season trip that every high school football team aims for, a trip to the state play-offs. "The kids will be real excited about this," Sayle said late last week. "It is an honor and we appreciate it."

Sayle said throughout the season that playing in their first year of official AHSAA competition would not be something the Briar-wood coaches would dwell on.

But when the Lions were eliminated from the state play-offs by Onoenta in a first round game, Sayle took time to reflect — with some pleasure — on the progress of the Briarwood program in the past two years.

"You have to feel positive about the progress of this program over the past couple of years," Sayle said. "When you look at where we've come from to where we are now you have to feel good."

The 1985 Lion team's success was built predominately, Sayle said, on a strong defensive football unit. "We didn't run up many good offensive stats, but we played pretty well on defense."

The Lions took wins over Marion Institute, West Blocton, Lyman Ward, Montevallo and Vincent enroute to their 5-4 finish, falling to SDhelby County, Ohatchee, Oak Grove and St. Paul's.

The Lions then evened their season record at 5-5 with the play-off loss to Ohatchee.

Bringing the county's football season to a close

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The 1985 football season in Shelby County — interesting and at times disappointing — has come to a close. A recent check with county coaches found most with plans for their off-season programs already underway, while many county athletes have turned their attention to a ball with "rounder edges."

Though 1985 football in Shelby County lacked a state championship like Coosa Valley's 1984 APSA 2A title or a perfect 10-0 season like the 1984 Shelby County Wildcats turned in, county teams and county athletes turned in some commendable performances during 1985.

The Calera Eagles won the only area championship among county schools, bouncing back from an 0-7 start to take wins over Chelsea, St. Clair County and Brighton to post a perfect 3-0 area mark.

Two other county schools joined Calera in the play-offs, Briarwood and Chelsea each posting 2-1 area marks and winning a play-off spot as the area runner-up.

The Shelby Academy Raiders posted the county's only winning record, going 8-3 and claiming the Reporter's Shelby County Private School Championship.

See WRAP-UP, Page D-4

Rushing leader

Chelsea's Larry Offord (center top) is Shelby County's only 100-yard rusher for the 1985 season. Blocks from the likes of Brian Brasher, Scott Grantham, Tommy Kelley, Robert Bur-cham, Don Brasher and Heath Moore powered Offord to the county's rushing title. The nice things about that, Chelsea coach Mike Utter said, is that most of them, including Offord, should return for more of the same next season.

Lots of offense

Coosa Valley's Tad Niblett accounted for more total offense than anyone in the Metro area or the Alabama Private School Association this season.

He had, however, a little help from some friends, notably linemen Brian Moore, Mark Rettig, John Love, Steve Clace, Niel Rasmussen.

Spratlin's hard work keeping fishing a lot of fun

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

Bill Spratlin works hard at fishing.

Whether talking easily or whistling a few bars of the Great Speckled Bird, Spratlin casts quickly and repeatedly into the waters of Lay Lake.

Launching from Lacoosa Marina, Spratlin points his Ranger bass boat toward a familiar weed bed. Spratlin trolls the length of the bed, expertly flicking a white spinner bait into the edge of the beds and reeling it home again.

When 20-or-so casts yield no bass, Spratlin dons his life jacket — emblazoned with the Red Man Tournament Trail finalist insignia — and turns the boat toward a rocky point just up the lake.

As the boat engine dies, Spratlin takes off his life jacket, moves to a fishing chair at the front of the boat, picks up another rod — already loaded with crank bait — and again begins to cast. Moments later, a spot hits the lure but pops off the hook just before landing in the boat. Three more casts, and Spratlin admires a 2¼-pound spot before releasing it to swim again in the waters of the Coosa.

Bill Spratlin works hard at fishing. He knows exactly where and exactly how to fish the waters of Lay Lake. The knowledge comes with hours of practice... practice that has made Bill Spratlin one of Alabama's — and the nation's — elite bass fishermen.

But for Bill Spratlin, who works hard at fishing, fishing is never work. It is always fun.

"If it ever gets to the point that fishing isn't fun, I won't fish anymore," Spratlin said, flicking out another cast. "I'd rather be fishin than almost anything I can think of."

The Red Man I can get some exposure and pick up a sponsor. Then I can just fish."

Bill Spratlin has been fishing almost as long as he has been living. His father taught him the basics of fishing, and the two still fish together often.

"Dad was also my baseball coach," Spratlin said as he flicked his wrist and sent a lure flying. "He would tell me if I batted 1,000 he would take me fishing. He probably would have taken me even if I had struck out, but I had a pretty good average."

Spratlin now fishes, alone or with almost anyone who says "Let's go fishing", three or four days a week. Each trip is practice as well as fun.

"I always hope I come back a little smarter after each trip," he said before talking to a fish and encouraging him to take the bait Spratlin has spinning through the water.

While fishing is serious business for a man who made twice as much fishing tournaments in 1985 as he paid out to fish them, Spratlin is never too busy — or too impatient — to show a first-timer the fishing ropes or untangle a knot in a reel that has been on someone's shelf too long.

He stopped briefly past the rocky points, pulled out a coke and a candy bar, donned his vest, and headed toward another spot that has, in the past, yielded fish.

Switching to yet another rod loaded with top-water bait, Spratlin throws cast after cast, always encouraging bass made lazy by an Indian Summer day's heat on Lay Lake, to take a bite. If they hit and miss, Spratlin figures they have had their chance for one day and moves on, flicking a short cast here or a long cast against the bank... always moving... always fishing.

"I usually try to bow-hunt a little this time of year," Spratlin said as he reeled in a lure, "but fishing season lasted a little longer this year and I haven't been in the woods."

The longer season hurt Spratlin's feeling about as bad as playing football in February will hurt the participants in next year's Super Bowl. The long season marked success for Bill Spratlin. It promises to be one of many years that will see a bow season come and go with Spratlin on the water.

Bill Spratlin works hard at fishing, but its hardly ever work at all. Bill Spratlin is good at fishing because for Spratlin, fishing is fun.

Spratlin admires 'pretty nice bass'

Cross country runners have tough state meet

Shelby County runners must have felt like veterans of a war after running in the state cross-country meet in Birmingham on Veterans Day.

County runners suffered through perhaps their worst running day of the 1985 season while participating in the state meet at Birmingham's Running Club.

Pelham's Bryant Henderson, considered by some the top 5A runner in the state, was injured during his race and could not finish.

Vincent's Earl Lawson, ranked by one local track publication as the runner to beat in the 4A and under division, finished tenth in the state race, losing to several runners he had beaten in earlier meets this year.

Lawson's finish was still tops among a Vincent team that finished fourth in its division but left coach Jim Barnes wondering what went wrong.

"I don't think I prepared them well," Barnes said of his team. "St. Paul's had an excellent team, but we finished fourth to two others teams we had beaten this year."

St. Paul's scored a perfect 15 enroute to the championship in the 4A and under division. Vincent finished fourth with all state performances from Lawson's in 10th place and a 15th place finish from Barry Mitchell. In addition, Troy Datcher finished 32nd, Clark Dates 35th and James Kearn 39th for the Yellow Jackets.

Pelham's Rusty Williams finished 9th in the state in the 5A race, earning all-state honors.

Briarwood eighth grader Weldon Moore, whose times consistently ranked among the top 10 in the state this season, "got out to fast against some good competition from St. Paul's," said BCHS coach Bruce Hubbs. As a result, Moore finished a disappointing 20th in her division for Briarwood's girl's team.

"The most disappointing thing is that every one of our girls had her worst meet time this season in the state meet," said Hubbs. "I just didn't prepare them well the last week."

Robert Welch and Nate Wilson both ran "at about their average" for the Briarwood men, Hubbs said, but the remainder of the BCHS runners also turned in sub-average times.

Spratlin, a home builder who lives in Chelsea, is a professional angler who someday hopes to make his living catching bass. Spratlin's chief success has come in fishing the Red Man Tournament Trail, a series of bass tournaments for the "weekend angler" that offers a $100,000 top prize for winners of its yearly national tournament.

In the second year of the Red Man, Spratlin fished two separate divisions, finished above the cut in both to fish two regional tournaments, and qualified for the national meet.

The recent trip to Lake Havasu, Arizona, while it did not net $100,000, did bring Spratlin contacts for sponsors. Those sponsors may someday make Spratlin a full-time fisherman who builds houses for a hobby, and that would make Bill Spratlin a very happy man.

"That is what I want to do," Spratlin said in the midst of reeling in a cast, "but I'm not going to jump into it and lose my house or something. I think by fishing

Soccer Wildcats head to state

The Wildcats of the American Soccer Club won their seventh straight game of the season Saturday defeating the Homewood Passers 6-1. The Wildcats are undefeated in the Under-8 Green Division of the Mid-State Soccer League.

Passer goalie, Jason Whidden, kept the game close during the first half giving up just one goal to the Wildcats' forward Joe Bassett.

Todd Burgerer, the Wildcats' left wing, got his team off to a quick start in the second half when he took the opening kickoff down the left side of the field and made a near perfect cross field pass to Norman Pickeron who scored from his right wing position.

The Wildcats' center forward Scott Gold, who has scored at least one goal in every game this season, scored a hat trick - 3 consecutive goals - to put the game out of reach for the Wildcats. Burgerer provided the final score for the Wildcats while the Passers' forward Matt Gauden scored his teams only goal.

Coach Rick Browder will now take his undefeated Wildcats to the state tournament in Montgomery to compete for the Under-8 championship.

of the Wildcat players who let me know right quick where I could find the basketball class of Shelby County this year (anyone want to guess where?)

A couple of Calera Eagles were in the neighborhood as well... fancy meeting anyone interested in basketball in a place like that.

With that many coaches and players, I heard a lot of basketball small-talk and predictions. While you learn in my profession that what coaches say and what coaches think are sometimes not the same, I thought you might like to know what the county round-ball head men are saying about their own teams as basketball in Shelby County bounces into action.

"You may see some unfamiliar faces," Vincent's Crumpton said. "We won't look like the same kind of team."

The Jackets graduated two big inside men in the Hamilton brothers — Tony and Bruce — and while youngster Frank Carter promises to take up some of the slack, Crumpton says the Jackets won't be playing quite the same kind of power basketball that proved so successful for them in past years.

Crumpton promises a quick team, however, and says the Jackets may have some surprises in store.

At Thompson, Thomas Johnson was "pretty pleased" with his Warriors first effort of 1985 but saw — like any good coach must — some areas that need improvement.

"I thought they played pretty well," Johnson said. "You'd rather win them looking bad than lose looking good anyway."

Johnson has named the 1985 Warrior team his "no-name" gang. In the past few years, an Arthur Johnson or Chris Thomas have given the Warriors a big name player, but this year's team is a group that Johnson said has been doing the dirty work for the past few years and are now ready to step into the limelight.

"They are a fun group to work with, and I think they'll be one of our better defensive teams," Johnson said.

At Shelby County High, Charlie Dickinson had his Wildcats busy learning offensive plays during practice early this week.

"Just coaching them in football I can tell they are athletes," Dickinson said upon coming to SCHS at the beginning of the school year. "It will be a pleasure to have some talent to work with."

The Shelby Academy Raiders and coach Dwayne Kervin don't get their roundball season started until early December, but the Raiders have already hit the hardwoods.

While Kervin says his Raiders are "a little bit on the short side," especially compared to a 1984 team that parlayed good height into a very successful season, Shelby should make up for its lack of height by playing a good aggressive defense.

If the Raiders run with the basketball, it will probably be off of defensive pressure, Kervin said, and promises to continue the deliberate offense Shelby has used in the past to try to eliminate turnovers and get good shots.

At Pelham, Tony Taylor finds himself in an enviable position with a team full seniors. Nine of the Panthers 11 varsity players enter their senior season, Taylor said, including returning starters Sam Nelms, Lee Snyder and John North.

What Taylor likes even more, however, is the intelligence his team displays on the court.

"After the first six weeks grades, eight of our 11 were on the A-B honor roll," Taylor said. "They are good students and that tells you a little about what kind of people they are."

Taylor indicated the Panthers would be a well-balanced team with good height. In addition to returning lettermen Riley Powell at 6'3" and Kile Turner at 6'2", Ralph Noble brings a 6'5" frame to his first season as a varsity performer after being a leader on the Pelham B-team that won last year's county championship.

Montevallo Bulldog coach Bobby Pierson is "very pleased" with the work his Bulldogs have put in since beginning basketball workouts began both this fall and in last year's spring basketball workouts.

Alfred Pickett has been a "pleasant surprise" for Pierson while last season's scoring leader Tommy Bivins has "picked up where he left off last season."

Danny Holmes has improved as well, Pierson said, while newcomer Demetrius Paschel brings a 6'4" presence to the Montevallo inside game that Pierson hopes will provide needed rebounding strength.

"If we stay together and believe in one another," Pierson added, "we could have a successful year."

At Coosa Valley, John Niblett is trying to put together a team that can accomplish with speed and quickness what they lack the size to do.

"We'll do a lot of pressing and trapping and try to use our quickness," Niblett said. "We'll have to be quick to survive because we sure don't have any size."

Niblett said the Rebels have been having a lot of fun despite working hard toward an early December opener.

"We started last Monday and have been going at it every day since then," Niblett said. "We may surprise some folks."

Size and experience abound at Chelsea High School, and Hornet coach Mike Sims thinks that just might be the combination to give the Hornets a successful season.

"Experience is our biggest plus, and we'll have more depth than usual," Sims said. "but we'll have to wait until after this weekend — and opening games with Briarwood and Altamont — to know much."

Sims said the Hornets game plan will feature the inside strength of some "big folks," 6'4" Keith Welch and Stephen Guthrie. The Hornets have a third 6'4" player in guard Steve Shelton and all return with experience from starting roles last year.

At Calera, new head coach Charles Jolly is faced with a similar pleasant experience, the joy of looking up to a lot of his players. Coming from Simmons Junior High to Calera, Jolly said the abilities of the big and experienced Eagles are very impressive.

"This has been a great group of young men," Jolly said. "When you are used to slow, little kids this is a pleasant change."

The Eagles will be big, inside and out, with Byron White and Greg Haynes inside and Mark Jones at the point guard position. Jolly said Calera will continue to run and play an aggressive style of basketball, because that is what the Eagles are used to.

"But I hope you'll see us being a little more deliberate and not trying to force things," Jolly added.

At Indian Springs, "better athletes at every position" make coach Greg Van Horn think this could be a better year for his club.

"We are looking forward to the year," Van Horn said. "We have been working hard and I think we have a chance to be better than we have been in the past."

Two returning all-area players in Keith Lusco and Randy Mason will provide needed experience for ISS. In addition, Lawrence Garcia, a part-time starter who came on strong at the close of last season, returns experience at the point guard position.

"We'll be able to run with the ball a little more and we should be a pretty good defensive team," Van Horn said.

ISS will count heavily on newcomers John Bodner and Cubi Lathan and will pick up added depth from Sam Burns, Peter Park and Eric Summer.

At Briarwood, new head coach Jim Brown will greet a lot of faces that became familiar during his years as a Lion assistant coach.

Victor Nichols returns from an all-county performance last season to lead a group of guards that Brown says have both depth and talent. Five or six players that move up from a successful B-team program will also add talent to the Lions team.

"We look pretty good right now," Brown said. "I hope we will be a pretty good shooting team before the season is over."

Though the Lions lost several players to Briarwood's state play-off appearance in football and didn't get the full team together until last week, Brown feels his Lions are making progress. "By December or so we should be looking pretty good," Brown said.

Briarwood's Jim Brown

Jim Brown assumes head basketball coaching duties for the Briarwood Lions after four years as an assistant in various BCHS athletic programs. Brown earned a B.S. degree from the University of North Alabama then spent five years in sales before coming to Briarwood. In addition to his coaching duties, Brown teaches government and economics, psychology and world history at Briarwood. He and his wife Lisa have two young sons, Chris and Kevin.

Calera's Charles Jolly

Charles Jolly left high school coaching six years ago and was settled in a job coaching at Simmons Junior High when he heard of the basketball opening at Calera. Jolly took the job with the Eagles largely to "find out what kind of coach" he is after 15 years experience on the high school and junior high levels. After playing college basketball at Clarke Junior College in Mississippi, Jolly earned a B.S. from the University of Alabama and a masters degree from Middle Tennessee State. In addition to his coaching duties, Jolly teaches science and health. He and his wife Lisa have two sons, Adam and Drew.

Shelby County's Charles Dickinson

Charles Dickinson brings success as both a player and a coach to his head basketball coaching job at Shelby County High School. A successful player at the University of Montevallo — where he teamed with Thompson coach Thomas Johnson — Dickinson left the head coaching position at John Carroll in Birmingham to take over the reigns at SCHS after gaining his degree from UM. In addition to his coaching duties, Dickinson teaches driver's education and health classes at Shelby County.

Apollo I opened in Alabaster

When Shelby's Leigh Thornburg finished her instruction at Birmingham Barbering Academy, she decided to open a shop in Alabaster. Thornburg's teacher, Emma Fuller, liked the idea so well she gave up teaching and the two opened Apollo I Barber-Style Shop together.

"We just felt the town didn't have a barber / stylist specialist and it would be a good place to be in business," Thornburg said. "Things are going well so far."

The owners wanted a name that reflected their high tech and advanced outlook on hair care as well as something unusual. Apollo I seemed like just the right choice.

Located on Main Street in Alabaster, the shop offers a full range of easy care hair styles for men, women and children. Fuller is also a cosmetologist, so the shop offers facials and will even do a shave.

"Being barbers, stylists and a cosmetologist we can handle almost anything that is thrown our way," Thornburg said. "We specialize in everything."

SMC gain shown by independent audit

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

Shelby Medical Center had a $536,133 gain from operations, moving up $966,744 from last year's loss of $430,611, according to an independent audit by Ernst and Whinny of Birmingham.

The gain came from a cut in operating expenses by about $2.1 million, from $21,161,720 in 1984 to $19,014,938 in 1985, according to the audit.

Operating revenues fell, however, from $20,731,109 in 1984 to $19,551,071 — a drop of about $1.2 million.

The decrease in operating, according to Administrator C.L. Denton, came in two ways. The average length of stay and the number of admissions were both down, he said.

Denton credits this to the general condition of the hospital industry, troubled by such changes as diagnostic related groups (DRG).

DRGs are the amounts Medicaid has designated to pay for certain illnesses. If hospital charges exceed what Medicaid has designated appropriate for that illness, Medicaid will not pay. Thus hospitals absorb much of these costs.

Another factor in the drop, Denton said, is the unstable image created by change in management and over-dramatization of the hospital's financial problems.

An increase in operating revenue from last year was reported, however, in the outpatient department. Last year it made $3,345,459 and this year it made $4,163,395, an increase of $817,936.

The outpatient percentage of total patient service revenues went up by 3.1 percent during that period, Keith Heartsill, assistant administrator of finance at SMC, noted. He said this is consistent with health care trends at other hospitals.

Many cuts in operating expenses come from "commitment on the part of employees" and from layoffs last year, Denton said.

The decreases were mainly in the service and revenue departments.

The revenue departments are those that directly generate revenue, such as blood bank, pharmacy, lab supplies and room charges. Service departments do not involve direct charges to patients, but indirectly charged items such as housekeeping, medical records and administration.

The service department expenses fell from $7,425,038 in 1984 to $6,343,745 in 1985, a drop of about $1.1 million.

Revenue departments expenses fell from $11,196,204 in 1984 to $9,893,463 in 1985, a drop of about $1.3 million.

At the Shelby County Commission meeting Monday, Doug Ballard, chairman of the SMC Board of Trustees, compared parts of the audit to the unaudited September financial statement.

A loss from operations of $255,000 for the year was shown in the September statement, Ballard noted.

The audit "will show a half million dollar profit," Ballard said, "because of a decrease in contractual adjustments of about $1 million." Otherwise, he said, a loss of $715 thousand would have been shown.

Contractual adjustments are

Commission would remove 4 mill tax

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

The four mill tax will be removed if the county sells Shelby Medical Center, according to the Shelby County Commission.

Also, the funding of indigent care first with interest from the investment of the sale money will be safe, according to Commissioner John Ames.

"The use of the investment will be governed by law, not by the whims of this commission," he said.

The commission acted in response to a statement on the public's concern with these issues from Doug Ballard, chairman of the SMC Board of Trustees.

"I believe if you clear this up, the majority of the people will vote to sell the hospital," Ballard told commissioners.

He attended Monday's meeting with Sherwood Stamps, Joan Simpson and R.M. Byrd Jr., members of Citizens for Proposition One, a group advocating the sale.

Commissioners passed a resolution that if SMC is sold, the commission will dissolve the hospital corporation and remove the four mill tax.

Ames said the corporation cannot be dissolved as long as it owns property, nor can the tax be removed as long as it has debt.

Regarding protection for the interest fund for indigent care, Ames said state legislators will introduce a bill this January mandating that the interest first be used for indigent care.

The commission "took the lead" in asking the delegation not to leave control of spending proceeds from a sale in the hands of the commission, Ames said. "I don't think this five, or any five, should be left with $25 million" without controls, he said.

The commission suggested both the trust fund and the stipulation that interest be used first for indigent care, he said.

"Our number one priority is indigent care," asserted Commissioner Harold Davenport. "If inflation goes up, we still have to meet that commitment."

Alcohol sales to minor bring 11 arrests

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

Eleven people were recently arrested in a crackdown on establishments selling alcoholic beverages to minors.

Flin Suther, the state's ABC agent in Shelby County, said the arrests were made Saturday, Nov. 16, after beer was sold to a 17-year-old high school student who was sent in to 12 places to try and make purchases.

Although one of the persons arrested claimed the student looked as though he was at least 25, Suther said "The one place that turned him down told him he didn't look old enough."

The Circle K stores have signs, Suther said, that say "If you're not 30, show your ID card." "Unless a customer looks as though they are over 40," Suther said, "a clerk should always ask to see an ID card."

Although a law which went into effect in October says alcoholic beverages cannot be sold to anyone under the age of 21, Suther said some 19-year-olds are now grandfathered in.

Suther said the check on establishments were made in the south Calera, Montevallo and Alabaster areas, because of complaints from parents and licensees, and because of anonymous tips of violations.

Three spot checks were made the weekend prior to the arrests, Suther said, to see if there was any validity to the complaints.

He explained that the student recruited for the assignment wore a body microphone into the establishments to buy beer,

Carlton Franks appointed to Columbiana council

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

Columbiana has a new councilman.

Carlton Franks, a longtime resident who has served on city boards for a number of years, was elected Thursday to fill Harold McCord's unexpired term.

McCord resigned because he has moved out of the city.

The council did not consider a request from Shelby County Democratic Conference Chairman George Dailey to appoint a black person to the council.

A letter from Dailey was read to the council, asking that it show a commitment to serving all citizens and a willingness to include all citizens in the governing process.

Franks, who has lived in the city 31 years, received the council's unanimous approval to fill the vacancy.

He had served as chairman of the Water Board for 15 years and has also been vice chairman of the Columbiana Industrial Development Board.

Positions he has held in county government are Administrative Assistant to the Commission, and Supervisor of the Solid Waste Division.

He is now retired from Smith-

Franks Supply Co. in Columbiana where he was a partner for 22 years.

Two other appointments made by the council were to the Park and Recreation Board. Ronnie Conn was appointed to a one year term; Ronald Richey to a two year term.

The council also approved spending $295 to send two policemen to a 10 week course at Jefferson State Junior College where they will study fingerprinting and investigation. Assistant Police Chief Larry Offord and Officer Glen Whitfield will attend the school which begins Jan. 13.

In other business, the council discussed hiring someone to direct traffic at the intersection of State 25 and County 34 leading to the middle school during the time school begins and ends.

The city's request for a traffic light at the dangerous intersection was turned down by the state highway department which recommended stationing a policeman at the intersection.

That is being done until the council decides whether to hire a part time person and station him at the intersection with a police car as some other cities do.

Calera has open house for sewage plant

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

About 60 people attended an open house for Calera's new sewage treatment plant Sunday.

The Water Pollution Control Project is the result of a 13-year effort by the city. A new plant was necessary because the old one violated Environmental Protection Agency limits on wastewater returning to streams.

In 1972, officials hired Lucas, Carr and Associates as engineers to arrange grant funding for the

Brindley speaks at Farm, City banquet

By Jim Parks
Editor

When Dr. Joe Brindley was growing up, his family had a large dinner bell on the grounds of their Blount County farm.

"From my earliest recollection, that bell had two distinct messages: one of warning, such as a fire or death; and the other for joy, like dinner time or a special holiday," Brindley said.

Today, Brindley said he sometimes has a strong urge to go out and ring his bell and "shed bitter tears of anger" in protest of the plight of the farmer.

Brindley, vice president for University and Public Affairs at the University of Montevallo, was guest speaker at the Farm-City Week Banquet last Thursday night at the 4-H Center near Columbiana.

Columbiana was joined by more than 15,000 other communities nationwide in the 30th annual observance of Farm-City activities. This year's theme is "Partners in Progress."

The dinner, attended by some 140 area farmers and city dwellers, was sponsored jointly by the Shelby County Farm Bureau and the Columbiana Kiwanis Club. Attendance included several area mayors, councilmen, commissioners and other local government officials.

Addressing the financial woes of the farming industry, Brindley, who has been a farmer, said "one of the partners in progress - the American farmer - is wounded and bleeding," and he feels the need to "sound the bell of warning, not only for our county, but for Alabama and the nation...a warning which transcends political parties, religious beliefs and individual interests...a warning which reaches the very heart of our country."

Brindley said government and commissioned studies, media reports, polls and speeches "clearly convey a message that the American farmer is in serious condition." He said a retired professor of agricultural economics, giving a speech recently in Montgomery, compared the plight of the farmer today with that of the Great Depression.

"Let me hasten to add, however, that I have a deep and abiding faith in the resilience of the farmer - men and women: hard working, dedicated, honest, tough, strong determination, a will to survive.

"We are a great nation. Great because we care about each other and because we are sensitive to the needs of everyone. Rural and urban people alike recognize the interdependence we have for products and services.

"In my humble opinion, we as a society must return to those principles on which this country was founded. Principles which reward hard work and where patriotism is in vogue."

Addressing the other side of the issue, Brindley cited recent USDA figures.

"American agriculture is the world's largest commercial industry with assets exceeding $1 trillion with some 22 million people engaged in this industry," he said.

The United States has less than three-tenths of one percent of the world's farmers and farmworkers, Brindley said, yet produces the following amounts of the world's total food supply: soybeans, 64 percent; corn, 46 percent; sorghum, 31 percent; poultry, 24 percent; beef, 23 percent; cotton, 18 percent; eggs, 14 percent; and pork, 13 percent.

"In 1963, one farmworker provided food and fiber for 31 people, while in 1973, it was 55," Brindley said. "In 1984, one farmworker provided food and fiber for 80 people, 21 of them abroad."

While the "partnership in progress" may be on shaky ground, Brindley said he "rings the joyous bell of victory, calling us to join hands one and all - farmers and city dwellers, old and young, white and black, and all nationalities - to make a better quality of life for everyone."

Following his speech, Brindley received a certificate of service and appreciation from Joe Downs, president of the Columbiana Kiwanis Club.

The Shelby County Farm Bureau received the Kiwanis Community Service Award, presented by Downs to Joel Bearden Jr., Farm Bureau president.

Montevallo cautious with funds

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

The City of Montevallo doesn't know exactly how much to expect in revenue sharing funds this year, but the maximum amount is $62,856.

In order to be on the safe side and not spend money that may not be forthcoming, the council Monday approved only three requests for the funds totaling $6,000.

The PTO sponsored community education program will get $2,000 to hire a coordinator; the rescue squad will get $1,500 for a unit to administer nitrous oxide, and $2,500 will be spent on the addition being built on the city shop.

When a public hearing on request for the funds was held, a total amount of $99,000 was asked for.

Mayor Ralph Sears said the council will vote on the other requests after it's determined how much funding will be received.

The council also acted Monday to hire Mike Allen from Pea Ridge to be the city's new building inspector beginning Dec. 1.

City Administrator Don Hughes has been filling in since August when Alvin McGaughy's resignation became effective.

Hughes recommended Allen, who was one of the three top candidates for the position, saying he is a contractor who has done work for the city and is familiar with the building codes.

Allen will have a 60 trial period before being permanently hired, which is the policy for all new employees hired by the city.

The mayor said the Allen's duties will also include being fire inspector, inspecting electrical work, and business licenses.

In other business, the city approved the annexation of two parcels of land into the city. A 112.3 acre tract on State 119 is owned by T.M. Burgin, and a half acre lot on Holloway Hill is owned by William Schweitzer.

Wife accidentally shot

An accidental shooting Saturday afternoon left Mary Louise Horton dead on the kitchen floor of her home off County 77 near Columbiana.

Shelby County Coroner Billy Thompson said the 58-year-old woman was killed when a rifle her husband William was cleaning in the next room accidentally went off.

Thompson said the shot hit Mrs. Horton in the back as she walked from the stove, where she was cooking a chicken, to the sink.

Horton was sitting on the living room floor ejecting shells from a rifle, Thompson said, when the gun accidentally fired.

Funeral services for Mrs. Horton were held Monday.

Audit

deductions from revenues for such things as volume discounts for insurance companies.

Contractual adjustments for 1985, as predicted in the September financial statement, were $8,193,346. The audit shows a figure of $7,288,360 for the year.

Heartsill said the change was the result of a normal accounting procedure of year-end adjusting. In October, he explained the contrast between September and the preceding months, saying the September statements for the last three or four years reflect similar year-end adjustments.

One such adjustment was including Medicaid capital pass-through payments in the contractual adjustment column for September. Deductions for contractual adjustments changed from $682,766 in August to $137,931 in September.

Heartsill explained that the Medicaid pass-through payments - of which one-twelfth for the year was credited to the September figure for contractual adjustment - reimburse the hospital for fixed expenses such as depreciation of the building.

In adjusting the September statement, the ratio of Medicare patients was compared to the total number of patients. The reimbursement of pass through payments had not been included in the financial statements before September, he said.

The September statement showed only one-twelfth the impact of such adjustments.

Another adjustment was the recalculation of Blue Cross payments to the hospital per patient, per day, according to Heartsill.

When the cost-formula for Blue Cross payments was reevaluated at the end of the year, Blue Cross was found to have underpaid, resulting in a net payback, he said.

Charity expenses and doubtful accounts made up 13.9 percent of SMC's gross revenues, Denton noted. Charity cost $1,422,399 and doubtful accounts were $2,628,258.

SMC received $1,255,825 in ad valorem taxes for 1985.

The total operating revenues - $19,551,071 - compared with total operating expenses of $19,014,938.

Total nonoperating revenues were $1,857,164, from such sources as the tax, interest income and disposal of assets.

The total excess of revenues over expenses was $2,393,297, compared to $1,274,953 for 1984, and increase of about $1.1 million.

The audit reports a fund balance of $16,291,940 for 1985, compared with $15,016,986 for 1984. The fund balance is the amount by which assets exceed liabilities, or an "owner's equity," said Heartsill.

The fund balance combines with a net income of $2,393,296 for retained earnings of $18,685,236. The net income comes from operations. Retained earnings for 1984 were $16,291,940.

The audit was presented to the finance committee of the SMC board November 20. It was scheduled to be shown to the entire board at its meeting November 26.

Commission

However, with interest money left after indigent care is paid for, the commission favors using it for other needs.

"If you have a critical need to help the board of education, or to erect a public building," Ames said, the commission should not "hopelessly have its hands tied" while watching a growing fund.

The trust fund should be able to handle the county's indigent care needs, said Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden. "As affluent as we are, it just doesn't make sense that a $25 million trust fund wouldn't take care of our indigent needs," he said.

Commissioner Harold Davenport said the money should "more than take care of indigents and at the same time, take care of some capital needs," noting that the money would be used for capital improvements, not for salaries.

Except in emergencies, the county would not be liable for indigent care unless a person had been officially certified indigent prior to medical treatment, commissioners said.

Under the present system, according to Snowden, "we're still liable for indigent care, and if we continue to pay the four mills, we're still going to be stuck with it."

The county is responsible for medical treatments not provided in Shelby County for indigents, explained Gregg Rushton. An exception is that SMC has agreed to take care of indigent births under an arrangement with Carraway Methodist Medical Center.

The county is now involved in a lawsuit with the Children's Hospital for payment of indigent care. Part of the conflict is whether the variety of services included were available or not inside the county, he said.

Snowden said he knew personally of a case where a rare type of headache was not diagnosed at SMC and required treatment at the University of Alabama at Birmingham Hospital.

Another issue Davenport wanted to address was that people wanted to sell SMC for personal gain.

He noted that the referendum calls for sale to the highest bidder that is not under the hospital's market value.

"When you bid something out, there is no finder's fee and no real estate company to pay. Nobody but the people of Shelby County are going to benefit," he said.

However, SMC board chairman Ballard has said sale to the highest bidder may not be best.

SMC should go to the bidder "who gives the best conditions for the county and the people," he said.

"When it gets down to negotiation, different people offer different things," he said. If a bidder offered obstetric care or subsidy of doctors to attract more of them, "that would be worth money," according to Ballard.

At the commission meeting, he said another public fear — that hospital charges would rise if the hospital were sold — was unlikely.

The average charge per patient was $885 a day last year at SMC, he said. Yet Birmingham hospitals average about $200 a day less, he said.

Under private ownership, the hospital "would have to be competitive to stay in existence, and for that reason I think the rates would be less," Ballard said.

Pantherettes need $900 to go to Super Bowl

The Pelham Chamber of Commerce is trying to help send "a super bunch of girls to the Super Bowl."

That is the way Chamber representative Gail Bailey described the 10 Pelham Pantherettes who have earned the right to perform during the halftime festivities of Super Bowl XX played January 26 at the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans.

"We have a chance to help some of our own Pantherettes become Super Bowl stars," Bailey said. "They will make a very positive statement about Pelham High School and the city through this trip."

The 10 girls earned the right to be a part of a 300-member dance team planned for the halftime show by auditioning before a National Football League committee. Sponsor Margaret Bishop stressed from the beginning of the project, however, that the girls would have to find a way to get to New Orleans and back for their dream to become a reality.

It will take, Bailey said, about $900 to fly the girls to New Orleans. Plans have already been made to bring them home, she added.

The Pelham Chamber is coordinating an effort by local business men to raise the necessary travel money through donations.

The Pantherettes who will travel to New Orleans include Kim Wright, Dava Bishop, Julie Clarke, Carmen Cleveland, Angela Newman, Jennifer McCroy, Beth Parker, Melanie McDanal, Kristi Wright and Tammy Gafnea.

Anyone interested in making a donation toward the travel expenses is invited to contact Bailey at the Chamber offices, 663-4542.

a $300 property bond. They are scheduled to appear in district court on Dec. 18.

Under state law, a person found guilty of the misdemeanor may be fined anywhere from $50 to $500 and is subject to imprisonment.

The state ABC board may also impose a $500 administrative fine on the person holding the license, Suther said, with a second offense carrying a fine of $1,000. A third offense may result in the loss of the license, he said.

Suther said minors (anyone born after Sept. 30, 1966), are subject to a fine of $25-$1,000, and imprisonment.

Suther said State ABC Administrators Henry Gray and the Sheriff Buddy Glasgow are concerned about the problems caused by the sale of alcohol to minors and are behind strict enforcement of the law prohibiting it.

Although this was the first time Suther has used a juvenile to check for violations, he said he plans to continue the practice.

The names of the establishments where the arrests were made were not available, but individuals arrested are: Vicki Ann Bynum, Harpersville; Deborah Lynn Floyd, Calera; Catherine Baxter, Montevallo; Dorothy Harris Cordar, Birmingham; Reba Dell Parker, Jimison; Anita Blair Densmore, Montevallo; Mark Randall Johnson, Shelby; James Joseph Lair, Birmingham; Cathy Sanders, Montevallo; William Harbin Nix, Siluria; and Elaine Campbell, Wilsonville.

Letters to the Editor

Board chairman says 'sell'

Letter to the Editor:

Having served as director, interim-administrator and Chairman of the Board of Shelby Medical Center, I think I am qualified to comment on the hospital issue.

The hospital board has directed management (the administrator) to use "WHATEVER RESOURCES IT DEEMS NECESSARY TO SEE THAT THE PUBLIC IS FULLY INFORMED" prior to the election.

I must admit that the people need to know more about the hospital operation because it has been the "BEST KEPT" secret in Shelby County. However, I do not agree with the board that public money should be spent on what appears to me to be a self-serving campaign.

Previous boards have spent money "hand-over-fist" apparently to keep a non-profit status and to keep the 4-mill tax coming. With prudent planning the hospital could have been out of debt and the tax removed.

Recent boards should have known that the "hey-day" of cost-plus reimbursement was over, but they just kept on spending like it would never end. Consequently the Hospital is "OVER-BUILT," "OVER-EQUIPPED" and "OVER-STAFFED." All these buildings, expensive equipment and salaries will cost a fortune to maintain. With the occupancy as low as it is, the worst is yet to come.

The question is not "IF" we should sell the Hospital, but "WHEN." It should have been sold three years ago. At that time, we could have gotten $200,000 per bed for it, but now we will be lucky to get $150,000. The longer we wait, the less it will bring.

You must remember we still have four board members of the Foundation dominating the hospital board. As you know, they tried to take over control of the hospital and still contend that they have a valid contract. It is easy to see why they do not want it sold to someone else. Under the contract they approved for themselves, they could take over ownership of the hospital without paying the county anything. DID YOU KNOW THAT?

For reasons too numerous to mention here and as a business man who has spent over 40-years associated with the Health-Care industry, I am recommending that the people of Shelby County give the hospital board a mandate to "CASH-IN" on our "ASSET" while it still has some value.

Doug Ballard
Chairman, Shelby County Hospital Board

Keep hospital, rid politicians

Letter to the Editor:

Now that our elected County Commissioners have gone public with the fact that they want to sell Shelby Medical Center, other pertinent facts become more clearly understood than they were before.

Tommy Snowden is quite open and vocal about his desires to sell SMC which clarifies for me why he appointed Doug Ballard and Pete Raugley to the Hospital Board of Directors. They too, want to sell SMC.

Harold Davenport, who also wants to sell SMC, appointed Reid Long, to the board and Mr. Long wants to sell SMC. The other commissioners who stacked the board last year were not so fortunate; their appointments to the board along with one of Tommy Snowden's have turned on them and do not want to sell SMC.

Mr. Jake Morris's appointment has stayed true to the county citizens since his appointment.

The only people I know who want to sell SMC are the five commissioners and three of the board members they appointed. (It would seem for just that purpose).

I haven't heard any of us ordinary citizens clamoring for a referendum election to find out if we want to sell the hospital.

Let's also remember that our elected State Representative Mr. John Tanner introduced and passed the bill that allowed the commissioners to call for a referendum when one was not needed nor wanted. Just another waste of our tax money. Whose side is he on....we thought we elected him.

The hospital tax we pay is very minimal and I gladly pay it. The school taxes I pay are four times as much as the hospital tax and some of us can't use the schools, but we can use the hospital. If we are going to complain, we should complain about the school tax...not hospital tax. The average family only pays about $20 per year in hospital tax. How can that be the most hated tax in the county?

Next year is election year in the county for several officials. Mr. Harold Davenport is up for re-election along with Mr. Leon Archer and Mr. John Tanner. As citizens and voters, let us not forget next November, who wanted to sell SMC and that Mr. John Tanner made it possible for them to try.

Be sure to vote on December 10th against the sale of SMC. We need to keep our hospital and get rid of some politicians.

Basic questions should be asked in hospital issue

Letter to the Editor:

In determining whether the people of Shelby County should sell Shelby Medical Center or keep it, it only makes sense to ask ourselves some real basic questions:

First, and most important, do the people of Shelby County need a hospital in the county? I think this question was answered some 26 years ago when the people of this county voted upon themselves a tax for that specific purpose. That need has not ceased, but in time increased due to the increase in the number of the people in the county and the increased need for more hospital service for the people.

If we sell the hospital we may no longer have a hospital in the county operating for the people. The purchaser of SMC may own other hospitals in Jefferson County or other locations and decide for business reasons to force the people of Shelby County to fill the empty beds in those hospitals. This method would discontinue some services now offered by SMC or completely close it. We in Shelby County would have no alternative except fill the empty beds at their other location or be without hospital care.

We also hear there is a plan to set up a trust fund from the sale of the hospital to take care of the indigent patients of Shelby County. What deception perpetrated upon the poor people depending upon SMC. They would have no way of knowing they could get hospital admission at SMC or any other hospital after it was one sold. The people who bought the hospital would then decide who to admit and on what terms. Even if the purchaser agreed as a condition of the purchase they would admit all such patients. What person suffering chest pains, shortness of breath or other symptoms of a heart attack would want to wait for the court to decide whether they were living up to their agreement so they could be admitted to SMC.

We are also led to believe we would no longer have to pay the hospital tax. I wish any county official that makes the statement would cite a tax that has been levied on a county, state or city that has been permanently discontinued. Some have taken on a new name and been reimposed, but after all we have learned that nothing is more certain than death and taxes.

It may be true that over the years the hospital, at times, was not managed as well as it should have been but if that be true, selling SMC will not guarantee any improvement.

In fact it could get much worse and we would have no one in the county to turn to. The profit oriented company we hear about I am sure knows how to make a profit, but do they know about the service we the people of Shelby County are accustomed to at SMC? Let us in Shelby County consider what we who have paid taxes for one-fourth century and have accumulated this multimillion dollar investment would get from the sale of the hospital--nothing, absolutely nothing, no tax reimbursement, no health care care, not even a parking permit.

So with thanks to almighty God for the greatest heritage that man can possess, the privilege to live under the American flag and vote on such matters, I salute the fine people and staff of SMC for a job well done. I say we should keep our hospital and these dedicated people of SMC on the job servicing the people of Shelby County in the professional manner they have served us in the past.

Sincerely
Floyd Kendrick

Message made clear

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following Letter to the Editor is a response by Wade Morton of Columbiana to Doug Ballard's "Straw Poll on the Hospital Referendum."

This letter appeared in last week's edition of the Reporter, but contained an error which inadvertently changed the meaning of the message. The word "not" was not supposed to be in the following phrase: "many of those you say are 'against referendum' are simply for our public hospital..."

In order to clarify the opinion, the Reporter is re-running Ballard's questionnaire appeared in the Nov. 7 edition of the Reporter. A portion of the questionnaire was amended by Morton to reflect his opinion of the poll. The amended portion will be noted in italics. The letter in its entirety.

•The Nov. 7 questionnaire read, "As you may have read in the papers, the Board of Directors of Shelby Medical Center are equally split on whether they favor or oppose allowing the people to vote their feelings about the sale of the hospital."

•"As chairman, I (Doug Ballard) am conducting a private poll at my own expense to satisfy my mind that the public is interested in expressing their feelings on this important issue. Please take time to respond."

•Readers were asked to check a box by one of two statements: "I think the people should be allowed to express their feelings in a referendum;" and

"It should be left up to the board to make this decision."

•Morton responded by rewriting the first choice as follows: "I think your above statement of the issue stinks, e.g. it is misleading (i.e. many of those you say are "against referendum" are simply for our public hospital) and it is intended to prejudice the unwary citizen in favor of your apparently fixed position to sell the public hospital and, consequently, I think the people should be allowed to express their feelings in a referendum so as to now prevent an unwise sale of our public hospital already favored by several members of the Board of Trustees of Shelby Memorial Hospital, who were packed in by the same majority of the county commissioners also already favoring such sale; otherwise, the people will not have their say until the next commission election, which will be too late to save our hospital."

Wade Morton

Don't sell your hospital

Letter to the Editor:

There is a lot of news in the paper lately about Shelby Medical Center and we have a referendum coming up on Dec. 10 so we can vote to sell or not to sell SMC.

Several things come to mind about the sale of SMC and we must all consider these when we vote on Dec. 10.

1. The 4 mill tax is paid mostly by the industries in Shelby County and not the individual citizens or property owners.

2. The tax paid by the average county property owner is only about $20 per year--that's not much for what we receive in return.

3. If the hospital were sold, two things would happen and they are both bad: The cost of health care for our citizens would go up and the taxes we would pay to support indigent care would also increase.

4. We know how much we pay in taxes now but we don't know how much we will pay if the hospital is sold.

5. I believe the hospital board is doing a superb job of managing the hospital as SMC has again made money in a difficult year for all hospitals.

I can't get too excited about paying a $20 per year tax when our poor and elderly citizens are assured of a place to get medical care in our county. I don't know that they would continue to receive care and am not willing to take that chance.

We need our hospital and we need to know that it will always be there when we need it in the future. It has been here for 26 years and I certainly hope it stays for 26 more.

I urge every citizen to go to the polls on Dec. 10 and VOTE NO. Don't sell YOUR hospital.

Doctors resolve to keep SMC

Letter to the Editor:

At the November medical staff meeting, the physicians of Shelby Medical Center adopted a resolution opposing the sale of Shelby Medical Center because of inadequate information being presented to the population of Shelby County and due to many unanswered questions.

Further, the Medical Staff of Shelby Medical Center recognizes that there are many problems from political interference at Shelby Medical Center that need to be resolved, and if the vote is to not sell the hospital, the Medical Staff shall work diligently to resolve these problems.

Perhaps sale is acceptable if politics are removed

Letter to the Editor:

At the risk of further angering those who I offended by speaking up for the county as a whole (while on the Planning and Zoning Commission), I wish to urge a "NO" vote on the hospital sale referendum.

However, IF politics and conflicts of interest MUST continue in public management, and IF some way can be found to protect the public interests in the proceeds of a sale of this valuable property, perhaps JUST PERHAPS that might be acceptable.

Sincerely,

Sale would improve image

Letter to the Editor:

People keep saying "DON'T SELL THE HOSPITAL", we "NEED" the hospital.

I would like to assure them that if someone pays 40-million dollars for the hospital they certainly don't intend to close it down. It will still be right there and will be operated just as well if not better and the rates will probably be less.

The employees will have a permanent future free of politics and the concern of the auxiliary will be even more appreciated.

Just changing the name from a county hospital will serve to improve the image because many people shun it because they look on it as an indigent facility like Cooper Green. This should also serve to attract doctors which is really the key to a successful operation.

I just cannot understand the hospital board's position in hanging on when they know that the day of a free-standing independent public hospital will be a thing of the past in the next few years.

If it's not broke, don't fix it.

Letter to the Editor:

During April of 1976, as my wife and I were moving into our first home and into Shelby County, my mother-in-law, who was helping us, sustained a cut that required treatment at the emergency room at Shelby Medical Center.

Since that time, we have used

Shelby Medical Center for three broken arms, the birthing of a baby, several operations, ranging from major to minor surgery, and a variety of additional trips to the emergency room for cuts, scrapes, falls and all.

My point is that the service we received was outstanding. They say, "If it's not broke, don't fix it." I say, don't sell the hospital; it is one of our most valuable assets. As for the hospital tax being the most hated- not in my household. It is the tax we feel uses our money the best.

Stolen hearse stopped in Columbiana

A hearse, reportedly stolen in Jasper last Thursday evening, was stopped at a roadblock in Columbiana about two and a half hours later.

One of the two occupants was arrested after a chase through town; the other suspect has been identified and an arrest is expected shortly.

Shelby County Sheriff's Department Chief Investigator Reed Smith, one of the arresting officers, said a hitchhiker, who had been given a ride by the two men in the hearse, reported the incident to Calera police.

Smith said the hitchhiker went to the police station after being dropped off at the Calera I-65 exit.

Assuming the vehicle was continuing south on I-65, Calera alerted Clanton police, but deputy Rob Kiker, who arrived at city hall as the call went out, reported passing the hearse on State 25 headed toward Columbiana.

The sheriff's department was notified, and deputy Mike Shaw spotted the vehicle and gave chase.

A roadblock at the intersection of 25 and 70 forced the hearse into a ditch, but the driver managed to get the vehicle back on the road and continue to the next intersection where it was stopped by another roadblock.

Shaw and reserve officer Lt. Chris Curry chased the two men who ran from the vehicle, but eventually lost them.

Twenty minutes later, Smith and Chief Deputy James Jones apprehended one of the men, who was from Jasper, in the parking lot of the Community Services Building. Smith said he was a juvenile.

The hearse had been reported stolen from Kilgore-Green Funeral Home between 6:15 and 6:45 p.m. Thursday.

Aldrich man killed by train

Wayne Shaw of Aldrich was killed on his way to work Saturday morning. His car was hit by a freight train at Harrison Crossing on County 17.

Shelby County Deputy Coroner Billy Rockco said Shaw was on his way to work at Douglas Air Conditioning Company in Pelham when the accident occurred at 6:20 a.m.

The 38-year-old man was killed instantly by the impact which carried the car 95 feet, Rockco said.

An account given by the engineer of the Norfolk Southern train, Rockco said, had Shaw slowing down as though he were about to stop.

Since it was cold that morning, Rockco said the windows of Shaw's car might have been fogged up, but he said witnesses reported hearing the train's whistle blowing.

Garden club meets in Sunny Meadows

The Sunny Meadows Garden Club met Thursday in the home of Vice President Linda Woodward. Andrea Tilson and Jean Johnson were visitors for the Tea and meeting. The program on making Lace Christmas Balls, with a workshop following, was conducted by Linda.

Congratulations were extended to the winners for the two Yard of the Month Awards, Debbie and Richie LaJaunie and Patricia and Steve Key. Judging will be continued on a year-round basis on the first Monday of each month.

The club voted to work with the Sunny Meadows

Neighborhood Association on planting seasonal flowers at both subdivision entrances. Also they will take over the project of decorating the street signs, orders for mailbox decoration and the entrances for Christmas.

The Christmas Luncheon meeting was changed to December 11th. Members are to bring a covered dish, a gift for the gift exchange, two items for the Abused Children's Home Christmas basket and also are urged to invite a guest. The program will be Reading of Truman Capote's Christmas Story by Dr. Hubert Harper of UAB and Town and Gown.

project, Councilman Bobby Phillips said.

Construction began in 1984. Testing of the system and transition from the old to the new one began in June. The new plant was completely on line this September, Phillips said.

"This is probably one of the most modern systems available today to treat raw sewage," he said.

The system has built-in protections against equipment failure. "We have a back-up for every system here except the tanks themselves," said Phillips.

Its current capacity is for 10,000-20,000 gallons, and can double that if ever needed.

The system cost about $3.5 million, including the upgrading of collection lines and replacing pumping systems.

The city has an operation contract with Carr and Associates to operate the system for two years, while the city trains its employees for the job. In the meantime, Chuck Hughes is plant manager.

City officials who began the move for the new system in 1972 were Councilmen Phillips, Bill Geeslin, Terry Snow, W.B. Watts, A.B. Palmer and Mayor George Roy, according to Phillips.

Among those attending the open house were Councilmen

Phillips, Watts, Geeslin, Arthur Davis and Sonny Davis, Mayor Roy, City Clerk Lemoine Payton, County Commissioner Leon Archer and Ben Carr and Ed Stakes from Carr and Associates.

Eagles slam into season

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Calera Eagles slammed their way into the 1985-86 basketball season with a 75-66 win over West Blocton last Tuesday.

A dunk by Greg Haynes with just under two minutes remaining in the game closed the door on the Blocton Tigers and ignited the large crowd that gathered to watch the Eagles home opener.

Haynes slam was the highlight of a game that saw the Eagles battle from behind to win their season opener.

Blocton, coming into the game with an 0-2 record, hit their first eight shots from the field and raced to 10-3 and 20-13 margins. Calera battled back by halftime to tie the game at 36-36.

Using more aggressive defensive play and crashing the boards hard, the Eagles grabbed the lead in the third quarter, never to look back.

First year Calera head coach Charles Jolly was pleased with his team's play in the game.

"It would have been easy for them to lose their composure after falling behind so quickly," Jolly said. "They never panicked and stayed with our offense and played very deliberate basketball."

Jolly also noted that the Eagles picked up the tempo of the game in the second half, a move that worked to their advantage. "We didn't run with the basketball quite enough early in the game," Jolly said. "In the second we ran but stayed under control."

Haynes led the Calera offensive and defensive efforts in the game, hitting 28 points and pulling down 11 rebounds. Mark Jones added 18 points and nine rebounds for the Eagles.

Willie Taylor and Byron White also put up double-figure scoring totals with 13 and 10 points respectively.

"We may have taken Blocton a little lightly coming into the game," Jolly said. "We knew they were 0-2 already."

"But the kids could have folded and started slinging them up after falling behind so quickly," he added. "They never did that, never lost control."

Chelsea off to races with 2-0 start

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

How long has it been since the Chelsea Hornets had a 2-0 start to a basketball season?

"I can't even remember," laughed Chelsea coach Mike Sims. "It's been a long, long time."

The Hornets — and 6'4" triplets Keith Welch, Steve Shelton and Stephen Gutherie — broke into the 1985-86 basketball season with wins over Chelsea and Altamont last weekend.

Sims had said earlier that he would know a lot more about his team after their back-to-back openers. What Sims knows now has him smiling.

"I was pleased," the Chelsea coach said. "We improved from Friday to Saturday and if we can just keep improving we should do OK."

Seniors Welch, Shelton and Gutherie powered Chelsea to their fast start, contributing in every phase of the game.

Welch scored 24 points and grabbed six rebounds against Briarwood then combined a 19 point performance with seven rebounds against Altamont.

Shelton scored 15 points, had 13 rebounds and seven assists in the win over BCHS then followed that performance with 18 points, eight rebounds and seven assists against Altamont.

Gutherie rounded out the trio with 14 points, five rebounds and six assists against Briarwood, then hit 15 points, grabbed six rebounds and gave out six assists against Altamont.

Against Chelsea, Casey Campbell led the Briarwood scoring with 23 points while Victor Nichols added 13.

For a more complete look at Briarwood's opening week of action, see a related story in this week's Reporter Sports.

Pelham opens with big win over MHS

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Pelham Panthers opened their 1985-86 basketball campaign by blasting the Montevallo Bulldogs 92-64.

It was a game in which Pelham coach Tony Taylor felt his team played well, as good hustle and effort served to compensate for some of the "ragged edges" in their season opener.

Montevallo coach Bobby Pierson said that his Bulldogs may have been "too high" for the Pelham game, also the season opener for MHS.

"After last year they want so much to show we have a better team," Pierson said. "I think we may have been just too keyed up."

Hunters: avoid a tragedy with care when using firearms

EDITOR'S NOTE

In view of the tragic fatal accident in Columbiana this week and reports from South Alabama of yet another deer hunter being killed in the field, a review of the basics of firearms safety is in order. Please read and remember these tips.

With the 1985-86 deer hunting season in full swing, the Alabama Department of Conservation's Game and Fish Division is issuing a special appeal to hunters to exercise extra precautions during their hunts.

Hunter Safety Coordinator James Thornhill emphasizes that the key to hunter safety is to properly identify one's target and make certain before firing that nothing else is in the line of fire either before the target or beyond it. Thornhill cautions that hunters should refrain from firing at rustling in bushes or other sounds without clearly identifying the source of the noise.

The little extra time required to positively identify a target will add to hunting pleasure, and more importantly, keep the hunter, friends and relatives from suffering any regret or remorse resulting from a fatal accident or serious injury.

Thornhill warns that familiarity often leads to carelessness, and that's when accidents happen. He reminds hunters to control the muzzles of their guns, to cross streams and fences and jump ditches only with an unloaded gun. When through hunting or taking a break, hunters should unload their firearms and have the actions open.

Loaded firearms leaning against trees, fence posts or a vehicle are accidents waiting to happen. Hunters should refrain from carrying loaded firearms in a vehicle. The muzzles of firearms being removed from vehicles should be safely controlled so they present no threat to the individual removing them or others nearby. Guns should be cased, unloaded, when carried in vehicles.

Loaded sporting arms should never be carried or stored in a dwelling. Hunting guns and ammunition should be stored in separate, locked storage cabinets in the home with the custody of the keys restricted to responsible adults.

Guns loaded or "unloaded" aren't the cause of accidents. Accidents are usually caused by the people who mishandle firearms. Remember, too, alcohol and gun powder do not mix. Some thought, time and effort expended on hunting safety can make the difference between life and death. A good hunt can be cherished with memorable thoughts. The needless death or injury of a victim can create a lifetime of sorrow, remorse and nightmares for the shooter, his family and friends and those of the victim.

Don't let the wrong alternative happen to you, your friend, companion or relative — exercise good hunting safety, judgment and practices and insist that your hunting companions do the same. Make 1985-86 the safest and best hunting season yet.

Alabama readies for annual civil war

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

There are no dividing lines between North and South or East and West, but the separation remains.

The State of Alabama, once again, readies itself this week for civil war.

As that great conflict of the nation's history pitted brother against brother, mother against child, friend against friend, so too this renewal tests the bonds of blood relations and time-tested friendships.

It is Auburn-Alabama week, time for football civil war in Alabama.

This is the story of four friends, once united by a common love for Thompson High School football, who must now face one another as foes for at least a couple of hours.

Jeff Bentley sat last week in a team meeting in the new athletic complex at the University of Alabama.

Crimson Tide coaches were briefing the Bama players on personnel for the Auburn game. Bentley heard the name Arthur Johnson and thought... This is kind of strange. I'm used to playing with him, not against him.

At some point in time in Saturday's clash of warring factions — maybe when starting UA quick guard David Gilmer needs a brief rest — Bentley will line up and find himself needing to block a friend, Auburn strong safety Arthur Johnson.

At some point in time during the warm-ups for Saturday's clash of warring factions, Bentley may feel a blow from out of the blue... literally. From the blue sea of Auburn jerseys on one side of the 50-yard line, Auburn fullback Demetrius Threatt will see Jeff Bentley's crimson number 68 close at hand.

"I'll try to take a minute and speak to him, or maybe I'll just hit him, Threatt said of Bentley. "I remember how we used to wrestle in the locker room after football games in high school."

Then Threatt's white number

Arthur Johnson draws a bead on an opponent

After seeing a lot of playing time as a freshman and sharing a starting role as a sophomore, former Thompson Warrior Arthur Johnson was touted as an all-SEC candidate at strong safety coming into the 1985 year. Johnson started slowly but regained his promised form in mid-season against Georgia Tech and through nine games has more tackles than any other Auburn defensive back and is sixth in tackles on the team. Johnson was named the team's Most Improved Defensive Back following spring drills in 1984 and won the "Big Hit" award following Spring Drills in 1985. Of Johnson, Auburn coach Pat Dye said "I am convinced that Arthur Johnson was the best strong safety in the SEC at the end of the 1984 season. He is a tremendous contact football player."

For the Record

Tom Owen, Shelby County's own world-class weight lifter and founder of the King's Ranch, is turning his considerable athletic prowess to a new sport... boxing.

Owen is currently training for a December 7 bout in Birmingham that will pit him against not one, not two, but five opponents on the same fight card.

Owen will box rounds with sportscasters Ron Grillo and Matt Coulter, Birmingham Stallions head coach Rolie Dotsch, radio "personality" Lonnie Bumpus Jones and Birmingham Stallions guard Pat Saindon in the super match that begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Boutwell Auditorium.

Tickets are currently on sale at the CTO with all proceeds going to benefit the King's Ranch.

Helena's Weldon Moore — Shelby County's reigning women's cross country champion and an eighth grader at Briarwood Christian — was the women's winner of the Sonat Vulcan Runs two mile fun run race.

Moore covered the two miles in 13:42.4, less than four minutes behind the 29-year-old men's winner, Robert Dancy.

More than 3,600 runners participated in the recent Sonat Vulcan Runs which benefit the American Cancer Society.

The University of Montevallo volleyball team loses only one player off this year's 49-13 club, but the loss will be a big one, hitter Candi Nicholas.

This Nicholas capped off an outstanding Lady Falcon career by being named as the University of Montevallo's initial first-team NAIA All-American. UM has placed many athletes on NAIA All-American squads, but Nicholas is the first volleyball player to land top team honors. She was second-team last year.

In her two-year Lady Falcon career Nicholas rang up 1,353 attack kills, including a school record 758 this season. She also holds UM standards for kills in a single match with 37, total attacks in a season with 1,560 and digs in a season with 859.

"Candi is one of the best to ever play the game of volleyball," said UM head coach Bev Warren. "She has taken a great amount of talent and combined it with the intensity to use it to the fullest. That combination is very hard to find."

ISS drops close one

There is only one thing that could have pleased Indian Springs coach Greg Van Horn more than his team's play in their basketball season opener against St. Clair County. That one thing is winning the ballgame.

"We played very well," Van Horn said this week. "We actually played well enough to win."

Two buzzer shots by St. Clair County — one to send the game into overtime and a second to win the contest — spelled a 62-60 defeat for ISS.

Van Horn said, however, that the game could have been different had ISS limited its turnovers and converted some key foul shots late in the game.

"That is still something we have to work on," Van Horn said. "We had a chance to put the game away at the end and had a traveling call."

Van Horn called Randy Mason's performance "outstanding" as he led ISS in scoring with 35 points and rebounding with 11. "Randy played his heart out and did real well," Van Horn said.

ISS also got a double-figure scoring performance from Lawrence Garcia with 10 and got seven points and five rebounds from Keith Lusco.

THS-SCHS a barn burner

by K.A. Turner

New Shelby County High coach Charlie Dickinson called his Wildcats season opener with already 2-0 Thompson an "excellent game."

"Everyone should have enjoyed it because it was a great game," Dickinson said. "Of course, Thompson enjoyed it a little more because they won."

The Warriors ran their record to 3-0 with a 77-76 win over the Wildcats. Demetrius Gaitsers saw to that when he completed a three-point play with no time remaining to give Thompson their one-point win.

Gaitsers' heroics were the last in a long line of efforts that enabled the Warriors to escape a real cat-trap laid by Dickinson and his Wildcats.

"Charlie had them ready to play," THS coach Thomas Johnson said of his former college team-mate. "We played hard enough to win," Dickinson echoed the sentiment.

With just 13 seconds remaining, it looked like that SCHS win was about to become reality.

Down by six, Johnson called his last time out, then watched as Elliott Bivins canned two free throws for the Warriors.

Thompson then grabbed the rebound of an errant Wildcat shot, scored, fouled, rebounded again, shot and got a rebound and put-back basket from Gaitsers. Fouled on the play, Gaitsers then completed the three-point trip and the victory at the line.

"I'm proud of them for fighting back the way they did," Johnson said. "It was a good effort."

Dickinson credited his team with excellent work on execution, defense and for playing with good intensity. He did, however, see problems with rebounding and free throw shooting that the Cats will work to correct.

Jerome Taylor led Thompson's offense against Shelby County, hitting 19 points. Taylor also pulled down eight rebounds to lead the Warriors in that category.

Demetrius Gaitsers had 17 points and Elliott Bivins added

13 points and five rebounds. Dana Washington had six rebounds and Tim Edwards had four assists for the Warriors.

Shelby County's David Wood led all scorers in the game with 25 points, prompting Dickinson to credit him with an exceptional game.

O'Neal Williams added 18 for the Cats while Ashley Phillips hit 16 points.

Wood was the rebounding leader for SCHS with eight while Williams and Phillips grabbed six caroms each.

Ambrose Woods combined seven points with seven assists for the Cats.

Before facing Shelby County, the Warriors picked up their second win of the season on Thursday night in a 68-48 win over Childersburg.

Gaitsers and Bivins shared high point honors in that contest with 17 points each, Bivins adding eight rebounds to the effort.

Though scoring only three points, Anthony O'Neal had six rebounds and six assists in the game for Thompson.

Pelham-MHS

Pelham raced to an early lead in the game then maintained an 11-15 point advantage through three quarters. Late in the third period, the Panther's considerable bench strength began to assert itself, and at one point, Pelham led by as many as 30 points.

"It was really a closer game than the score indicated, at least through three quarters," Taylor said.

John North, Lee Snyder and Sam Nelms, veterans that Taylor is counting heavily on to carry the scoring load for Pelham this season, had good opening games. North and Snyder each hit 21 points while Nelms added 14.

Joe Gerald came off the bench to add 13 points for Pelham.

Riley Powell led the Panthers in rebounds with 12, Taylor indicating that he was pleased with the inside play of both Powell and Kyle Turner.

As a team, the Panthers shot 63 percent from the floor on the night, the single strongest stat of the game, Taylor said.

Snyder hit eight of 10 shots from the field, North canned 14 of 19 and Gerald hit five of six to boost the Panthers shooting percentage.

Montevallo's Tommy Bivins led all scorers in the game with 29 points. Danny Holmes added 16 for the Dogs and Slade Blackwell got 14 points.

"We just didn't play good basketball," Pierson said. "We didn't execute our offense and didn't play good defense."

Pierson added, however, that a study of the films on the game was already proving useful and that the Bulldogs will be "OK" as the season progresses.

While Taylor saw ragged edges in the opening win — especially in his team's free-throw shooting percentage — he was pleased with the Panthers' hustle.

"The effort was definitely there and that is what counts," Taylor said.

Dogs and Panthers anticipate a rebound

Panthers hold athletic banquet

The Pelham Panthers celebrated what coach Billy Tohill recently called their "most competitive season ever" in a banquet for football players and fans last Thursday night in Pelham.

Players, coaches and cheerleaders were honored for their various contributions to a 5-5 Pelham season that featured wins over Montevallo, Hokes Bluff, Calera, McAdory and Vincent.

The 17 seniors on the 1985 Panther squad voted for seven team awards and elected three permanent captains.

Jeff Murphy was chosen the team's Most Improved Player for 1985 while Drew Woodrow won the Mr. Hustle Award.

Jim Burrowbridge and Brett Jones were named the outstanding offensive and defensive linemen of 1985 while Billy Fant and Tony Jeffers won outstanding offensive and defensive back honors.

Jeffers was also named the Most Valuable Player for the 1985 Panther team.

Jeffers, Mike Bramblett and Winfred McCall were named the team's permanent captains.

Lady Falcons finish 7th

For the second consecutive season the University of Montevallo volleyball team has come home from the NAIA National Volleyball Tournament with a seventh-place finish. After winning three matches and losing one in pool play the Lady Falcons were eliminated from the 20-team field Friday night by hosting Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

The Lady Falcons didn't come home from the tournament completely empty handed, however. UM was presented with the national tourney's Sportsmanship Award and senior hitter Candi Nicholas was voted to the All-NAIA Tournament First Team.

Montevallo began national play last Thursday by defeating nationally ranked Texas Lutheran 15-8, 15-11. Following a break for lunch the Lady Falcons had little trouble with Doane (Neb.) College, winning 15-8, 15-4. Missouri Western headed UM its first tournament loss Thursday evening by erasing an 11-2 Lady Falcon advantage in the first game and turning it into a 12-15, 1-15 UM defeat.

Friday morning Montevallo ensured itself of a spot in the final eight by advancing into the elimination round with a 15-13, 7-15, 5-15 decision to the Vulcans. That loss put the Lady Falcons in the loser's bracket opposite Milwaukee-Wisconsin, who was upset by McKendree (Ill.) University. The host school then sent the Lady Falcons packing with an 11-15, 15-13, 3-15 victory.

"Of course I would have liked to have finished a little higher," said UM head coach Bev Warren, "but our kids played very hard and I was proud of them for that."

Falcons win first

After losing a heartbreaker to North Georgia at the buzzer last Monday, the University of Montevallo basketball team handed first-year head coach Rob Spivery his initial Falcon win by downing Troy State 97-89 Saturday in Myrick Hall.

The Falcons will take a 1-2 record to Stillman College Tuesday night. The contest with Stillman begins a road swing for UM that will last until Jan. 14 when Livingston visits Myrick Hall.

Warrior award winners

Warriors honor football team

Demetrius Gaiters was the top award winner as the Thompson Warriors concluded their 1985 football campaign with a banquet last weekend.

Gaiters, whom coach Doug Wheeler often called the Warrior's most consistent performer of 1985, won the Dick Davidson Memorial Award signifying the most valuable player of the 1985 team in addition to being named the team's outstanding offensive back.

Dennis Null was named the outstanding defensive back for the 1985 Warriors.

Outstanding lineman honors went to Harold Threatt on Offense and Alfred Pickett on defense.

Kavin Ballard, Kevin Duke and Null were named the team's permanent captains.

The scholastic award for the 1985 season went to Barclay Simmons. Thompson coached noted that — contrary to the stigma attached to linemen — the winner and three of the other four finalists for the award were all a part of the THS team that played in the trenches.

Thompson finished the 1985 season at 5-5 with wins over Jemison, Montevallo, Shelby County, Oak Grove and Pelham.

BCHS has tough opener

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Briarwood Lions looked "about like we'd had six days of practice" as they opened the 1985-86 basketball campaign with three losses last week.

But new BCBS coach Jim Brown said that, despite the 0-3 start, he saw glimpses of a good basketball team in the Lions.

"We just couldn't shoot the basketball, and that was the game in a nutshell," Brown said of his team's opening loss to Fayetteville, 60-42. "We looked rough around the edges, but the effort was excellent. Once we get the football out of our system, I think we can be a pretty good team."

After being bombed by Fayetteville, Briarwood rebounded somewhat in a weekend double-header with Chelsea and Winterboro. Though the Lions lost both games, Brown said glimpses of the team's potential were evident through the dark clouds of defeat.

Casey Campbell exploded for 23 points and grabbed eight rebounds as the Lions fell to Chelsea 68-60. Victor Nichols added 13 points for BCBS while Chelsea's Keith Welch led all scorers with 24 points.

Against Winterboro, Campbell and Nichols hit 12 points each and Campbell got 10 rebounds in a 46-45 decision.

"There is potential on this team," Brown said. "We are a better shooting team than we have showed thus far."

Against Winterboro, Briarwood put up 33 shots inside the lane, but only 15 fell.

"If we keep getting that many shots in close we will win some games," Brown said.

Brown predicted on taking the reigns for the first time as head coach of the Lions that "by December," BCBS would have a "pretty good basketball team."

Nothing in the opening week made Brown change his mind.

"We have 12 super kids who work hard," Brown said. "By December we can have a good basketball team. I don't know how many games we will win, but we can have a good team."

Lady Falcs are 2-1

The University of Montevallo women's basketball team improved its record to 2-1 by thrashing Tuskegee University at Myrick Hall Friday night. The Lady Falcons exploded to a 46-30 halftime lead and never looked back on the way to a 90-76 win.

The Lady Falcons placed five players in double figures, led by Sharen Douglas' 22 points. Judy Perkins followed Douglas with 19, while former Montevallo High star Ruth Perkins contributed 16 points. Karen Scott and Kelly Green rounded out UM scoring with 15 and 10 points, respectively.

"The first half we played excellent defense and then stayed with that consistency through the second half," said UM Lady Falcon coach Cristy Earnhardt. "Sharen Douglas and Ruth Perkins are continuing to play very steady basketball on the inside."

The Lady Falcons hosted Jacksonville State Monday at Myrick. After taking a Thanksgiving break UM will be back in action Dec. 7 opposite Troy State, again in Myrick Hall. Tipoff for the final game in a four-game homestand is set for 7 p.m.

Civil War

26 on a blue jersey will once again mingle with the others on its side of the 50. It will be a brief encounter at best, but Threath and Bentley grew up together playing little league baseball in Alabaster. They haven't spoken much since they played together in the high school all-star game — "We just keep missing each other when we're home" — so the game provides both with an opportunity neither wants to miss.

At some point in time on Saturday, probably after the clash of warring factions, a small man in Auburn blue will seek out Bentley's crimson and white.

"I'll definitely want to see Jeff," said Auburn cornerback Luvel Bivins. "I've talked to his parents several times when I've been home but it has been a long time since I've talked to Jeff."

At 5'7", Bivins often followed the blocking of Bentley's 6'4" frame when both wore the red and white of Thompson High School. Now, playing defense at Auburn, Bentley's holes could be what Bivins is trying to fill.

It is — every year Bivins says — the biggest game of the season for both schools. Bentley, Bivins, Threath and Johnson now view it from different perspectives, but their views of one another remain the same.

"We grew up together,"

Bivins said last week, "Nothing changes that. We'll try even harder to beat each other, but we still have that love for each other as well."

"All of us got along well together, and it wasn't just in football," Bentley said. In fact, Bentley's relationship with Bivins, Threath and Johnson was almost enough to draw him to Auburn after being an Alabama fan almost all his life.

"You've got to go separate ways sometime, and I'm well satisfied with my decision," Bentley added. "I've made good friends here, but they will always be my friends as well."

Being friends, Threath spoke for all, makes you work harder to face each other. At the same time, however, it also makes you wish for your opponent his best game possible.

"I wish Jeff all the luck in the world," Threath said with a laugh, "but I want us to win the ballgame."

There are no lines dividing North and South or East and West, but the separation is real. For a few hours this autumn Saturday afternoon, the State of Alabama will be in the midst of a football civil war. There will be casualties. One side will lose its right to brag for 365 1/4 days.

But win or lose, Bentley and Bivins and Threath and Johnson will remain friends.

Bentley stalks the sidelines

If he keeps working hard, former Thompson Warrior Jeff Bentley would be the heir apparent to a starting position in the University of Alabama offensive line in 1986. Currently listed second on the Alabama depth charts at quick guard, Bentley expects to be in the hunt for the quick guard position David Gilmer will leave behind after his senior season with the Tide. "I think I have improved my game over-all since the start of summer practice this year," Bentley said. "I started kind of slow but I'm about where I want to be right now." With two years of eligibility remaining, Bentley wants to be a two-year starter for the Tide and plans to spend some time at Alabama this summer working to make that happen. "I'll probably come home for a while then come back to Tuscaloosa to work," Bentley said. "I want to be ready for 1986."

Bivins gets instruction from the sidelines

Former Thompson runningback Luvel Bivins went to Auburn in 1984 and was immediately heralded as the next Lionel James. Similar in stature to the James — now a stand-out running back with the San Diego Chargers — Bivins also put his 5'7" frame into James' familiar orange and blue number 6 jersey. But a stable of fine runningbacks at Auburn caused Auburn coaches to move Bivins to defense. It has been, Bivins said, a very good move. "Things are going great," Bivins said. "Since making the move from offense to defense I feel I have progressed." With two seniors leaving the Auburn defensive backfield after the 1985 season, Bivins hopes to be in the hunt for a starting slot next year. "They don't care how big you are here," Bivins said. "You just have to try hard and hit people."

"I'll always remember him as my teammate at Thompson," Threath said. "Then, Bentley echoed, "I'll say they went to Auburn."

"The bond that we formed playing football carried over into the rest of our lives," Bivins explained. "That will never change."

Demetrius Threath takes a hand-off

Demetrius Threath scored his first touchdown as an Auburn Tiger in Auburn's 29-18 win over Southern Mississippi. "I didn't really realize I had scored," Threath said, "until everybody started to get excited and I looked up to see the referee's arms. Then I got pretty excited too." Threath has alternated between second and third on the fullback depth chart this season, playing behind three-year starter Tommie Agee and 6'2" 238-pound Reggie Ware. While Threath wishes he were playing more, he recognizes the talent and blocking ability of Agee and the physical ability of Ware and works hard to "stay right there with them." Because both Agee and Ware return for the 1986 season, Agee as a senior, a red-shirt year for Threath is a possibility in 1986. "It would give me a chance to keep working and get better but get some playing time later in my senior year," Threath said.

Pasquale's employees work hard in the kitchen

The restaurant has a seating capacity of 64, and Vernon said the place is usually filled on Friday and Saturday nights.

"We usually have a good after-church crowd on Sunday nights, too," he said.

Sonat reports $14 M earnings

Sonat Inc. reported earnings of $14 million, or 35 cents per share for the three-month period ended September 30, 1985, compared with $49 million or $1.21 per share, for the third quarter of 1984.

According to Ronald L. Kuehn Jr., president and chief executive officer, the company's natural gas pipeline business had a decline in operating profit for the third quarter of 1984.

The decline was caused by reduced sales and margins resulting from gas-to-gas competition, especially deep discounting under incentive sales programs which will expire in October; certain take-or-pay settlement costs under its gas purchase contracts; and the absence of one-time favorable adjustments that impacted the third quarter of 1984.

The oil services segment experienced a decline in operating profit in the current quarter primarily as a result of continued weakness in offshore contract drilling day rates.

The exploration and production business reported reduced operating profit in the third quarter of 1985, as compared with the same period in 1984, as a result of decreased gas sales volumes and depressed oil and gas prices.

Kuehn said the company expects the gas volumes to improve over the third quarter with the winter heating season, which is expected to benefit the pipeline and exploration and production segments.

However, future results could be affected by uncertainties resulting from the Federal Energy Commission's new rule on open access to transportation by pipelines announced earlier this month and its impact on take-or-pay obligations, and the outlook for continuing softness in oil and gas prices.

For the first nine months of 1985, Sonat's earnings were $89 million, equivalent to $2.20 per share, compared with $168 million, or $4.12 per share, for the nine months ended September 30, 1984.

Sonat, headquartered in Birmingham, is engaged in finding and producing oil and natural gas, field services associated with oil and gas operations, and transportation of energy products. Sonat common stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol SNT.

Annual interest rate drops to 10 percent

The annual interest rate charged on tax underpayments and paid on tax overpayments will decrease from 11 to 10 percent on January 1, 1986, according to Philip J. Sullivan, District Director of Internal Revenue Service in Alabama.

The annual rate on the underpayment of individual and corporate estimated tax payments will also decrease to 10 percent.

Internal Revenue Code section 6621(b) provides for semiannual adjustments of the interest rate and requires that any change in the rate be established by October 15 and April 15 and be based on the average prime interest rate for the six-month periods ending September 30 and March 31, respectively.

Daily rates for compound interest for 10 percent were published in Table 16 of Rev. Proc. 83-7, 1983-3 C.B. 599.

Beth Scruggs
Wilsonville Elementary

Scruggs gives and gets attention from students

The children in Beth Scruggs's third grade class at Wilsonville Elementary School pay careful attention not to miss anything.

"I try to make my class fun. I want them to enjoy coming to school," Scruggs said. "I act silly with them sometimes. If you're droning on and on, they drift away. I'll even do a little tap dance in front of the class to keep their attention."

Scruggs is Wilsonville Elementary School's teacher of the year.

She said another important element of teaching is individual attention, "including calling parents when a child is not working up to his potential," she said.

Being the mother of a school-age child "has made me more aware of how much I need to keep in contact with parents," Scruggs said. She encourages parents to volunteer to work with classes or to observe classwork.

Earline Isbell

Isbell teaches 31 years encouraging children

Earline Isbell began attending school at Chelsea in the 1930s, taught there for 31 years, and was recently named teacher of the year at Chelsea Elementary School.

Isbell teaches in the chapter one program, giving individual attention with a positive approach to first through third-graders needing help in math and reading.

"These children have the ability; they just need the motivation," she said. That motivation comes from encouragement and rewards.

Because failure is discouraging, a student's individual work begins at a level the child can successfully handle. She helps children redo lessons until they can get the work right alone. "We don't leave any task without 100 percent on a paper."

What pleases Isbell most about her work is "seeing the reactions of the children who have been successful. It helps children to feel good

Ginny Nash
Inverness Elementary

Nash creates ways to learn from experience

In her early teaching career, Ginny Nash worked in a school using the Montessori teaching method with a one on one relationship with her students.

Now she team teaches first grade at Inverness in a class with 50 students.

What she did, said Nash, who was named the school's Outstanding Teacher this year, was to adapt her former method of teaching to a group situation.

"All children learn by doing," she said, "and I like to make things that will help teach a concept I'm trying to get across."

The shelves in Nash's room in the 'attic' of Inverness are filled with her inventive teaching tools. One which she uses to teach counting is a ten square unit of macrame beads.

The creative teacher has even written several playlets to introduce

Indian Springs one of highest in scholarship program

Indian Springs School has announced that 41 percent of its seniors have been named semi-finalists in the National Merit Scholarship competition. This is a record for Indian Springs, and may be the highest percentage of semi-finalists at any school in the nation.

Indian Springs, an independent boarding and day school in North Shelby County, enrolls 220 students in grades eight through twelve. Nineteen of the school's 46 seniors made the list of scholarship-eligible semi-finalists.

Dr. Joe L. Jackson, director of Indian Springs, said, "I am not aware of any school having achieved so high a percentage of semi-finalists in this scholarship program. Indian Springs usually finds 20 to 30 percent of its seniors on the list."

Preliminary examination of the list released by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation shows that the average percentage of seniors earning semi-finalist status at well-known independent schools across the U. S. is about 17 percent. There are very few schools where more than 30 percent of the students are named, and Indian Springs' 41 percent is, clearly, an extraordinary circumstance.

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation cautions against using its test as a measure of a school's performance. "However," says Indian Springs Admissions Director Charles Ellis, "we like to think these test results indicate that Indian Springs is adept at helping students make the most of their potential."

Following is a list of the names of Indian Springs' National Merit Scholarship semi-finalists: Virginia L. Bledsoe, Alice H. Chen, Alex D. Clark, Eric G. Clary, Stacy A. Donohue, Melissa Gay, Katherine R. Gould, James A. Harris, Michael K. Hase, Nick T. Kouhoukos, Mary K. Myatt, Samuel W. Oliver, Michael A. Quinton, Laura Schiele, Rajiv Singh, Stuart M. Smith, Kurt C. Stadskev, Katharine J. Werner and Jay D. Winks.

Jo Ann Hoff's fifth grade at TES

Cindy Ellis' fourth grade at TES

Ellis, Hoff classes win fire safety

Thompson Elementary school students in Jo Ann Hoff's fifth grade and Cindy Ellis' fourth grade took time out for a party recently. But it was serious thought about fire safety that earned the students their moments of leisure and relaxation with popcorn and cokes.

Students in the two classes were the winners in a poster contest sponsored by Alabaster Fire Marshal Mike Ellis. Illustrating the topic "How to Escape a Home Fire", Thompson students made over 25 project posters, most of them created by an entire class.

Hoff's group, Ellis said, drew an excellent escape plan showing two major escape routes. In addition, the class used a cartoon theme with Snoopy, Lucy and Goofy being "dog-gone mad" about lack of fire safety.

The poster even featured an original poem called Lucy's Fire Blues.

Ellis' class produced a booklet on fire prevention that listed home fire hazards and how to correct them and home fire safety equipment such as smoke detectors and fire extinguishers.

Their poster was a whimsical look at how you would plan a fire escape route from a castle.

In addition to their coke and popcorn parties, each class received a smoke detector as a prize. To promote the children's involvement with fire safety in the community, each class will donate their smoke detector to a senior adult family.

Hoff's students include Heath Abbott, Bryant Blackwelder, Michael Brooks, Jeff Burrell, Jeff Burnett, Kenneth Chappell, Chad Douglass, Michael Jones, Randall Kirby, Jamie Metcalf, Robby Morris, Jim Mullis, Kris Palmer, Clint Parker, D.J. Pike, Aaron Sellers, Adam Smith, Marco Warren, Cary Welsh, Jan Alexander, Ashley Brannon, Lisa Booth, Kimberly Collins, Angela James, Robin Johnson, Ashley Litton, Kim Oglesby, Kim Oliver, Nina Sparks, Leona Swift and Helen Wyatt.

Ellis' students include Alice Allen, Keith Allred, Kevin Beasley, Daniel Biddie, Brandon Boyington, William Bullivant, Bryan Capps, Jolene Caudle, Benjie Coulter, Piper Cumbo, Darren Flynn, Robin Hook, Frank Ivester, Kristal Lawley, Lenisha Lilly, Cari Lovelady, Paul Luster, Laura Massey, Daniel Nevin, Terrel Norris, Jennifer Patrick, Shea Posey, Werland Ransom, Mark Rikard, about themselves, after they've been lagging behind in their regular classroom. These kids honestly jump up and down."

Positive reinforcement is important in Isbell's classes. For successful work, children can choose learning activities they enjoy, such as records, games and filmstrips. When children move to a higher level, they are given time to play in the toy box.

Students meet with Isbell for 35 minutes outside of their regular classes. She stressed that her work does not take the place of, but supplements the regular classwork.

Isbell attended the University of Montevallo when it was the Alabama College. She started out in secretarial science and had taken two years of basic courses when she was offered a teaching job because of the scarcity of teachers.

She began teaching in the old wooden frame building at Chelsea. "Once begun, I didn't stop." She went on to earn a bachelor's degree in elementary education from Alabama College and a master's degree from the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

Isbell's five sons — Steve, Roger, Anthony, Mark and Scott, aged 32 to 19 — graduated from the Chelsea school. She lives with her husband Hoyt and Scott and Mark in Chelsea. Anthony, who recently made her a grandmother for the first time, also lives in Chelsea. Steve and Roger live near Helena.

Isbell shares her teaching experience with an adult Sunday School class at K-Springs Church of God. She is continuing her own education with a non-credit class in basic programming at UAB.

In her years at Chelsea, Isbell has seen many changes. In some cases, she has taught three generations.

"The whole scene epitomizes the growth of education in Alabama," she said. When she began first grade, there were four rooms and an auditorium. "We kept growing, and we finally got indoor toilets and a lunchroom." Later, the old building was destroyed and replaced because the state would aid construction of frame buildings.

"The children got good educations throughout the changes. Our knowledge is expanding, but children still have the same needs of being accepted and having affection," she said.

"If we meet these basic needs, the children will learn regardless of the setting. If they don't feel good about themselves — wanted and accepted — it doesn't matter what you have advanced to as far as teaching aids and learning devices."

Parents can best help their children by responding to the positive part of their activities instead of questioning why children did not do better, she said. "I feel if we build on the successes of a child and give him the encouragement, he'll feel good about himself."

Isbell said everyone has a potential that is his alone. Parents and teachers should do whatever is necessary to develop that potential, she said.

"It's kind of like we're all a seed, but we have no idea what these children will blossom and become. All we can do is care for the seed. The child must come first."

Although it takes years, Isbell is rewarded that she has taught long enough to see the results of such care.

Scruggs

Scruggs spoke of the need for parents and students to realize that teachers use much of their own time and money working with the children. She spends Sunday afternoons getting ready for class.

It is also important for students to see their parents support the teacher and the schoolwork. "If parents are not concerned with supporting teachers, why should the children?" she asked.

Her teaching talent is extended to St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, where she has a Sunday School class of first and second grade children.

Scruggs was president of the Shelby County Education Association 1983-1984. She is co-chair of her school's faculty study for accreditation. Committee members will soon go to New Orleans to receive a certificate of accreditation because the school was accredited last year.

She is vice president and president-elect of the Beta Sigma Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa, a teachers' organization.

As a representative to the National Education Association, Scruggs has been able to travel to Philadelphia, Minneapolis and Washington. She would like to take a cruise and visit her college roommate who lives in Bermuda.

Another of her favorite activities is reading. Scruggs said she enjoys autobiographies, fiction, magazines and most anything to read. She is especially fond of The Smithsonian.

Students make modeling debut

Models moved in rapid succession across the stage in the gym at Riverchase Middle School last Wednesday as music blared from the loudspeakers.

The models weren't experienced, but the audience appreciated their performance anyway.

Hendree Thomas, the school's home arts teacher, explained that students in her class modeled the clothing from California Girl to give them the experience of putting on a fashion show and also to raise money for a Toys for Tots project.

Thomas said the class made between $350 and $400 from the event, and will use the money to purchase materials to make items such as stuffed animals, purses and wall hangings to be given to needy families at Christmastime.

Although Thomas said the 17 girls who took part in the show didn't have much time to practice for their performance, the audience told them they had done well.

In addition to the clothing provided for the show, Thomas said another store, the Shoe Inn, had furnished shoes for the models to wear.

her pupils to the principles of phonics and she has also researched and compiled 50 classroom experiments for children in grades K-3. Talking about her desire to teach, Nash said she was sure that was what she wanted to do when she started working with the Brownies after her seven-year-old daughter joined a troop. "I've always enjoyed working with children," Nash explained, "and I decided then that I was going back to school and get a degree so I could teach."

That wasn't an easy task with children 3, 7 and 9 years of age. But after going to school on a part-time basis for seven years, Nash achieved her goal.

She graduated from Carson-Newman College in 1974 with a BS degree in elementary and early childhood education.

Nash took further training in the Montessori Method of teaching and was a first and second grade teacher at the Creative Schools in Birmingham for six years before coming to Shelby County.

Her first teaching job here was at Chelsea where she taught first grade for a year.

Nash said she and husband George are outdoors people. Their favorite activities are camping, fishing, hiking and whitewater rafting.

One of the best trips they've taken, she said, was a nine-day, 126 mile boat trip down the Colorado River which took them through the Grand Canyon.

Although the couple live in Bluff Park at the present time, they plan to build a log home in North Shelby County next year.

"We're going to put it in the middle of three wooded acres," she explained, "and we're going to leave the land in its natural state."

"Now you know I mean it," she laughed, "when I say we really love nature and the outdoors."

Discounts offered in SA coupon book

Shelby Academy hopes to raise $16,500 with a coupon book that will be out just in time for Christmas.

The Shelby Discount Saver Book will feature coupons from area merchants, valued at over $200, and will sell for $1.

The money will go into the school's general fund budget supplement all school programs, with targeted projects being computers, physical facilities and a new science lab.

Coupons will be sold to merchants through the school membership, with a deadline of November 30. Anyone wanting to purchase a coupon can call the school office at 668-2299.

A group of merchants who didn't have items for the coupon book, but still wanted to help, have donated money to the project. Larry Mitchell, a member of the fundraising committee for the school project, complimented these Shelby Supporters.

Diane Stonstrom, another committee member, stresses that the coupon book is a good advertising opportunity for merchants. The ads are expected to cost less than four cents per person to whom it is distributed.

Most of the businesses having coupons will be in Shelby County, but some will also be from Birmingham, Vestavia, Hoover or other nearby areas.

The books will be out December 9.

TES students build Amazon huts

by K.A. Turner
 Staff Writer
 What does a house on the river look like?
 "They build them on poles so the big bugs and big snakes can't get them," said Thompson Elementary School fourth-grader Ronny Nabors. "It is also so the river can't get in because it rains a lot there and makes floods."

 Nabors wasn't describing just any house on any river. Instead, he was telling about a house on the Amazon River. In the process, Nabors showed just how successful a recent unit of study on the Amazon has been for students in David Little's social studies classes at TES.

As part of their three-week unit of study, the students construct small models of the Amazon river-style huts. Little has been assigning the project for the past 12 years. It almost never fails, he said, to bring the desired result.

 "I want them to know that the kind of house we live in wouldn't do any good along the Amazon," Little said. "They understand that it is a different way of life when you need a home you can leave quickly in case of floods."

 Over 100 students in Little's three classes constructed hut models. Many showed attention to detail that Little himself had not stressed — actual straw roofs or ladders made by lashing sticks

For math project

8th graders become architects

A space ship, a Country French home and a storage building. The three structures don't have much in common, except for the fact they were all winners in a project assigned to 8th grade math students at Our Lady of the Valley School.

Students in Jane Kay's class were all asked to design and write up specifications for some type of architectural structure. All of the work was done outside of school.

Kay said students spent about four days working on a rough draft of their project, and another four days on the final draft. Then, she said, the plans were taken to Birmingham where blueprints were made.

A drawing of a spaceship, named USS Nautilus, won a first place award for Brian Woods.

"I just liked the idea of designing a spaceship," explained Brian, who said he thought it would be more complicated than designing some other type of structure.

Russell Kurtts won second place with his design for a storage building and greenhouse which he said he someday plans to build.

"I'll put my four-wheeler in it," he said, "and it can also be used for a lawnmower and tools."

Quinn Hedrick's design of a Country French home recieved a third place award. "I'd like to live in a home like it someday," said Quinn, who thinks he may become an architect.

He said the home is designed for easy living and little maintenance.

The 16 designs submitted for the project included a space orbiter, a cathedral, a house of the future built on stilts and a multi-level playground.

Quinn Hedrick, Brian Woods, Russell Kurtts, confer on plans

Relief efforts cost Red Cross $30.3 million

Following Hurricane Juan's assault on the Gulf Coast, the American Red Cross announced recently that the relief effort to aid victims of Juan is expected to cost more than $12.5 million.

The Red Cross expects to spend a total of $30.3 million on Hurricanes Elena, Gloria and Juan and the mudslides in Puerto Rico, all of which have hit since Labor Day.

In the case of Juan alone, the Red Cross reports that 16,000 families in Louisiana were affected, 12,000 of which applied for aid.

The Red Cross served some 110,000 meals at feeding sites and from mobile vans and operated 10 major service centers which provided victims with emergency shelter, food, clothing and medical supplies.

People wishing to contribute to the Red Cross relief operation can do so through the Shelby County Chapter of the American Red Cross located in Alabaster, 663-4290.

SMC radiology dept one of best equipped

"I do not know any better-equipped radiology department in any hospital this size in the United States," said Dr. Peter Jander, chief of radiology at Shelby Medical Center.

"I've learned this from the people who installed our equipment. They are impressed that a hospital this size is so well-equipped, and they should know. They install equipment all over the world," he said.

Jander said radiology is an important diagnostic tool, and not just for broken bones and chest x-rays as many people may believe.

There are seven specific areas in Shelby Medical Center's radiology department: general radiology, fluoroscopy, mammography, ultrasound, computerized tomography, nuclear medicine and angiography and interventional radiology. Jander said each of these areas contains the latest in diagnostic equipment and the department is staffed with highly-qualified professionals.

Within the department, which contains more than 6200 square feet, there are two general radiographic rooms, where routine x-rays are done. Some of this equipment is unique because it eliminates the need for a darkroom. When an x-ray is taken, the film is automatically processed within the machine.

Another phase of general radiology is tomography. The tomography equipment is used mainly to diagnose kidney ailments.

A dye is injected into the kidney and an image of the organ is projected onto a screen. Cysts and masses of the kidneys can be detected this way. This equipment can also be used to visualize any body part.

SMC also houses a computerized axial tomography scanner.

This highly advanced piece of equipment allows physicians to view parts of the body that could not be seen before. X-rays projected through the body are picked up by sensors in the scanner.

In many cases the CT scanner has replaced exploratory surgery. SMC performed nearly 1600 procedures last year.

There are two fluoroscopic rooms within the department, where radiologists can look for abnormalities of the upper and lower gastrointestinal system.

Dye is introduced into a patient's body and specialized x-rays of the body are taken. Radiologists can identify ulcerations, obstructions and malignancies.

The mammography room contains the latest and most advanced technology for the detection of breast cancer. This equipment can detect lumps that may be missed in physical examinations. Jander stresses the importance of this equipment in early detection.

The ultrasound equipment uses high-frequency sound waves to visualize different organs in the body. It can locate abnormalities of the gall bladder, abdomen and the carotid artery. It also monitors fetal development during pregnancy, allowing early detection of birth defects.

The newest addition of SMC's radiology department is the special procedures suite. The suite contains highly advanced and sophisticated equipment which allows radiologists to better diagnose and treat various circulatory ailments and to treat certain other diseases with new interventional techniques.

The computer associated with the angiography camera, located within the suite, allows radiologists to perform a highly technical and specialized x-ray called digital subtraction.

In this x-ray, the image is subtracted, leaving a picture of only the arteries and veins. By being able to clearly see vessels, a radiologist can better identify abnormalities such as phlebitis (blood clots), stenosis (narrowing of an artery) and aneurysms (dilation of a blood vessel).

The equipment here can also be used to treat these conditions. In phlebitis, a drug called streptokinase is injected through a catheter. This drug can dissolve the clot and restore circulation.

Hypertension caused by stenosis can be treated by a procedure called angioplasty. A balloon catheter is manipulated through an artery to the constricted vessel. When the balloon is inflated, it expands the vessel and restores circulation.

"The equipment in the special procedures suite can save lives," Jander said. "For instance, in trauma cases, such as when the patient is bleeding from the liver, there is usually nothing that can be done. These people normally die. But with this equipment we can place catheters into the bleeding arteries and plug them."

"The radiology department at Shelby Medical Center is fully equipped to do any procedure that can be done to arrive at a diagnosis or to treat certain conditions," Jander said.

"This is extremely important to patients. They now do not have to be sent to another hospital to have tests run. And of course, there are sometimes cases when there is simply no time to send a patient elsewhere. The patient's life depends on this equipment to give a quick diagnosis or treatment," he said.

Radiologist Dr. Dan Thompson agrees with Jander's assessment of SMC's radiology department. "With the exception of one procedure, which is still in the experimental stages at other hospitals, this hospital can perform any necessary radiographic procedure. Besides that, the technicians who work here are well-qualified and the nursing care is excellent."

"Shelby Medical Center has come a long way from its initial stages to currently being one of the best-equipped hospitals in the state," Jander said.

Choosing a personal computer

Has your family started making their Christmas wish list? About this time every year young and old alike start thinking of gifts for their families, friends and themselves.

Usually these gifts are pretty much standard, a shirt and tie for Dad, a nightgown for Mom, a personal computer for the family.

Wait a minute! A personal computer for the family is not a standard gift item, or is it? Computers have played an important role in business and government for years. Only recently have personal computers gained acceptance in the home, however. As their capabilities increase, their prices decrease, and their operations simplify, they appear on more wish lists.

Recently, Shelby County Extension Service was fortunate enough to get a personal computer. As an office we are finding many uses for our computer. Future plans are to use the computer as a teaching tool. However, we are now learning.

Bear with us; our secretaries are doing quite well and the Agents are coming along too. Just as we must learn to use our computer, the family wishing to buy a computer must learn to shop for it. With good guidance a computer was purchased to meet the County office needs. If your family is shopping for a computer this Christmas, maybe the following information can help you make a wise choice.

HOW TO SHOP FOR A COMPUTER

As with any other purchase, it pays to investigate before you buy. Begin by checking magazines for pertinent articles. Experienced computer users and salespeople are also good sources of information, and some stores in your area may offer classes. The best bet of all may be to take a computer course through an adult education program. Nothing beats first-hand experience!

A personal computer consists of two basic parts — software and hardware. Software refers to the program or instructions which, when plugged into the computer, tell it what to do. The term hardware refers to the actual machine which performs each task.

It is recommended that you choose software first and then select compatible hardware, because it is the software that determines what your computer can do. It is available in three different forms — cassette tapes (the least expensive), 8-track cartridges and diskettes. A computer with a cassette tape operates much like a cassette tape recorder. Load the cassette into a recorder and press "play"! You can also use blank tapes to develop your own program.

The disadvantages to cassette tapes are that the best software programs are not available on them, they're bulky to store and slow to operate. Just as it takes a few minutes to find a particular song on a cassette tape recorder, finding the right program can also be time consuming.

With cartridges the computer program is "loaded" instantly into a recorder and you needn't know how to operate the equipment. This makes them ideal for young computer users. Cartridges are more expensive than tapes, however; the selection is limited and you cannot do your own programming.

Diskettes or floppy disks are your most versatile but expensive choice. These magnetic disks resemble a small record and are played on a disk drive, which is a box-shaped device. They can store more information and data can be retrieved within a matter of seconds, making them well worth the additional expense if you are planning to do business programming or word processing. Before deciding on any type of software, ask for a demonstration of each.

A basic start-up system includes the computer and its memory, a keyboard, monitor or screen, and a storage device for software. The computer itself is made up of thousands of miniature electronic circuits containing small "chips." Another set of microchips comprises the memory, which indicates how much information the computer can hold. The memory, which is also called RAM for random access memory, is measured in "bytes." One thousand bytes equals 1K or 1,000 letters, numbers and/or punctuation marks. Most computer games require 8K to 16K. Word processing or home budgeting software uses approximately 32 K to 48K and small business programs need 64K and more. As you become more proficient on the computer, your requirements will probably grow. Make sure its memory is expandable.

To communicate with the computer you use a keyboard. If it will be used by young people, consider getting a flat one with flush keys. They are impervious to soft drink spills and cookie crumbs. A raised keyboard, on the other hand, may be more comfortable to use if you are planning to do a lot of word processing.

When evaluating either type, see if it has numeric key pads for easy entry of figures. What about special function keys - insert, erase and delete? These eliminate the need to type in instructions. Is the keyboard detachable? This is especially convenient if you are short on work space or need to move the computer closer to the phone.

The screen or monitor, which may be either a color TV or part of the computer, displays the information you have typed into the computer. Your selection should depend on the ways you plan to use it as well as the amount you want to spend. For example, if you are using the computer primarily for games and educational programs, a TV screen is probably adequate and your least expensive option. The disadvantage to using a TV screen is that the numbers are less clear and the display area is limited to 40 columns across, which is about half a typewritten page. With a monitor connected to a computer you get a better quality picture but add to the cost of the system. It displays an entire typewritten page and will not interfere with your television viewing.

When you turn the computer off, everything will be erased from its memory unless you've used a storage device. This may be a cassette storage system or disk drive, depending on the type of software you plan to use.

When selecting hardware, it is a good idea to review the training manual. Is it written in plain English and easy to understand? Read the warranty carefully and find out about service. Can the store personnel help you with problems after your purchase? Does the manufacturer have an 800 number to call if you have any questions? Because computers are continually being improved, even the most sophisticated models do become outdated. To protect your investment, purchase a system which can be added onto as new technology develops.

A word to the wise: used computers are sometimes available at much lower prices. If you find a likely one, test all the keys. Are they in good working order? Try the disk drive. Any loud noises could spell trouble. Operate the printer. Do all the letters print? Does the paper advance properly? If so, you may have found a real bargain.

together with cord — that showed the students had done research outside of class.

Although the projects were not judged, Little encourages the students to enter their work in the social studies fair in the spring.

Students used a variety of materials to make their huts. Wood, cardboard, pine straw, glue, paint, sticks, plants, string, toothpicks, leather thongs, rope, clay and dirt were among the most popular ingredients in making projects that featured huts with hammocks, ladders, tables, animal figurines and rivers.

Most students reported that the houses went together in a day or so and that the project made them appreciate the way the people along the Amazon live.

Wright named Christmas Seal chairman

Jefferson-Shelby Lung Association named Leslie S. Wright chairman of its 1985 Christmas Seal campaign.

Wright, chancellor of Samford University, said, "A little known, but crucially important, fact about the Christmas Seal campaign is that 90 percent of the funds donated here in the Jefferson-Shelby district remain in our area to support local programs and services."

Christmas Seals are the principal source of support for the Lung Association's research and programs. Current JSLA programs and services funded by Christmas Seals include:

Smoking and health
• "Freedom from Smoking" features self-help and group workshop sessions.

• "Freedom from Smoking in the Workplace" offers help for businesses and their employees.

Children's lung disease
• "Superstuff" is a program for children with severe asthma to help them understand and control the disease.

• "Growing Healthy" is a comprehensive health education program for grades K-6 which uses films, slides, pamphlets, models and displays.

Adult lung disease
• "Better Breathers" is designed to help people with bronchitis, emphysema or other chronic lung diseases to live more comfortably.

• "Respiratory Update" is an annual conference on the clinical problems faced by doctors, nurses, respiratory therapists and other health professionals in pulmonary medicine.

Educational development
• The Lung Resource Center is a clearinghouse for information on lung disease and its prevention, open five days a week.

FOCUS ON SCHOOLS

The Southern Democrat
Section B

November 27, 1985

by Sue Tidwell

"If anybody had told me three years ago when I was in high school that I would be in prison today, I would have laughed."

Chris was speaking to a class of junior high students at Oneonta City School as a member of the Free by Choice program sponsored by the Alabama Department of Corrections.

Chris

"Welcome to our world," he said. "It's not pretty, and we're not here to preach but to tell you about our involvement in drugs and how it messed up our lives. I came from an upper middle class family, had a Christian home, was the baby of the family. I made all A's in high school and was a jock. We drank a little on weekends, but nobody in my crowd messed with drugs; that was for rednecks."

"When I played ball for a junior college, I started to party every night, messing with drugs. I finally quit baseball and school and went back home...to restrictions. When I first started selling marijuana, it was just enough to smoke free. In search of the ultimate high, I got hooked on cocaine."

At 21, Chris has served seven months of a 10-year sentence in the Frank Lee Correctional Facility on drug-related charges.

Lisa

"My name is Lisa, and I am the property of the State of Alabama. I have been an inmate at the Julia Tutwiler Prison for Women for two years. I smoked my first joint at 15 and liked it. I started smoking all during the week, at school, at home. My grades dropped; my family relationships deteriorated."

Lisa told the students about a friend who was shot during a drug and moonshine party. She quit school at 16 so she could devote all her time to drugs, playing what she calls a "Catch me if you can" game, never thinking of jail.

When she was arrested while driving under the influence, she also had drug paraphernalia in her possession. Her parents didn't kick her out, she said, relating that her father was a Baptist preacher. She was next arrested for trafficking and carrying a concealed weapon. She skipped bond and was arrested again in three weeks when armed policemen swarmed the house where she was hiding. She received a seven-year prison sentence.

"I learned the police are not playing when it comes to drugs," she said. "The game was over, and I lost."

"I can't think of a thing I like about prison. Women are in there for everything from writing bad checks to killing their children. It took about three weeks of saying no before the homosexuals would leave me alone. My six-by-four-ft. living space includes my bed. The only thing to look forward to is mail...and visits. We're allowed five hours every two weeks."

"I'm sorry I hurt a lot of people—my parents—and God only knows how many others I caused to get on drugs," Lisa said. "Think about that when a friend offers you drugs."

Wayne

"Do you drink or know someone your age who does?" asked Wayne. "My problems with alcohol led to my conviction of murder. Alcohol kills more people than any other drug. It's legal to buy if you're over 21, but easy to get any time. Society accepts alcohol but not alcoholics and criminals."

Wayne told of yielding to peer pressure to take his first drink and the problems that arose as he became addicted: driving drunk, stealing his father's credit cards and running up an enormous bill by reselling purchases to buy booze. He told about delirium tremens, a violent restlessness accompanied by trembling and terrifying visual hallucinations that sometimes accompanies excessive drinking.

'... I am the property of the state of Alabama'

The motto printed by his picture in the school yearbook was, "Bad for good."

Wayne fatally shot a man who was trying to tell him to straighten up his life. He "called Momma," and she mortgaged 10 acres to keep him out of jail until the hearing. "I last saw my father when he was buried Jan. 5, 1983. I started serving a 27-year sentence then for the murder of my father."

Penitentiary life is not good, Wayne said. There are a lot of homosexuals and no privacy. There are few privileges, and even those are lost when rules are violated. "I've learned that I do not want to come back; too many people come through, too young. The choice is yours," he told students. "You can take drugs, drink, screw up your life completely, end up in prison, and die. Or...leave it alone, say no, and remain free."

In answering questions the students posed, Chris said he had shot up $1000 in one night in spite of being paranoid about hepatitis. He would like to think, though, that he could have stopped on his own if he had not been arrested. Wayne said he would be subject for parole in October, 1990.

Is this a volunteer program, students asked. Yes, the three replied, emphasizing that they are not in the program for money: it pays only 3¢ a day ($1 monthly), their food, and "Sunday whites," the clothing they wear then they speak. They get no special favors or shortened sentences, but their participation is recorded on their prison records.

Fulltime officers for the program, Sally Bridgman and Ron Williams, said there are now eight or nine inmates who participate in the Free by Choice program, which began last March. Carefully screened inmates speak to schools, churches, and PTA organizations to tell about their lives in the hope of preventing drug abuse. The program DOES work, declares Williams.

A follow-up system, the only program of its kind in the nation, has a toll-free telephone number, 1-800-431-0009, inside Kilby Correctional Facility where calls may be made by anyone wishing to speak with one of the specially selected inmates incarcerated for drug involvement. Correctional personnel monitor all calls to assist in case someone needs immediate emergency help. Williams said about 50% of the calls are from young people, the other half from concerned parents and other adults.

Any principal or school superintendent wishing to have Free by Choice brought to his school should contact Melissa Seal at phone 261-2505, 501 Adams Ave., Montgomery, AL 36130.

Lisa summed up the program, "These kids need to know that a few years ago we were walking into Hardee's and Jack's just like everybody else. We don't want to see them mess up their lives like we did. Our message to them is this: It can happen to you."

'All I thought you did was live in a clean cell'

Oneonta teacher Jim Kilgore, who arranged the Free by Choice program at Oneonta City School, shares the following questions he posed to his students and their responses concerning their reactions to the messages brought by the inmates.

Did the speakers change any ideas or attitudes you held?

Drinking, yes, I admit I drink a beer every once in a while. But just like Chris said, "My girlfriend tells me not to; so I don't." I must say I have never tried a joint! If she found out, that would be the end, and I don't want that.

My attitude was—maybe later I will just try a little marijuana. First, to see what it's like. But after hearing the speakers, I don't even want to see drugs, much less use them.

I guess I always thought of prisoners or convicts (as having) families (who) never cared about them or told them what was wrong or right. But they came from families like my friends and I have.

I have always wondered what it would be like to become an alcoholic and drug addict. Well, yesterday I sort of changed my mind because I don't think I would want to go through what Chris, Lisa, and Wayne went through.

For a long time I thought I wouldn't get caught, just like them. They made me open my eyes and face the truth about things.

I knew that drugs and alcohol were bad and can really get you into trouble, but I didn't know that you could be imprisoned for that long. I know now not to ever start.

If teens drink—no big deal. Now I feel as if there would be serious repercussions.

I used to not mind being around friends that drank, but now I believe I will stay away.

They made me realize that all criminals aren't fifty-year-old degenerate killers.

I feel (now that) once a prisoner always a prisoner, because what you did never goes away. Like Wayne—he can't bring his father back from the dead.

Which of the speakers most impressed you? What point made by the speakers do you most remember?

Lisa. We are the property of the state.

Chris. It's not worth it.

Lisa. I was impressed with all of them, but I can relate to Lisa better. Her father was a preacher, and I am the head deacon's daughter. It's sometimes hard to live up to expectations and the pressures can get you down.

Wayne. That Alabama police are not lenient when you get caught, and you could get in serious trouble.

Chris. How long they had to stay locked up.

Chris and Wayne. That it could happen to anyone. Drugs and booze don't mix; they can make you do things you will regret.

Has your view of prison life changed? If so, how?

Yes. It is very, very nasty. All I thought you did was live in a clean cell.

'It made me realize that some of the worst people are not so bad'

No! Maybe a little. I knew there were gays and food was bad, but I thought you had a little more freedom.

Yes. It made me realize that some of the worst people are not so bad. Those prisoners are human, but they were not what I expected.

Yes. Because I thought that they had more privacy and more time to themselves. But I don't think I could stand the (lack of) room and the people.

Has your view of drugs changed? If so, how?

Yes. My friends always say smoking one joint isn't going to hurt you or make you become an addict. But Lisa said she tried it for the first time and she made it a daily routine because she liked the way it made her feel.

Yes. I feel it is even more dangerous now, and I am more against them than ever.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Tracy Alldredge

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal-length gown with tiered skirt of lace and ruffles with heart-shaped chapel-length train. Sequins and pearls embellished the gown. Schiffler embroidery accented the stand-up collar. The bride made the cascade of miniature white, pink, and mauve silk roses, white and pink stephanotis, and baby's breath accented with iridescent streamers.

Attendants were matron of honor, Mona Alldredge, Birmingham, the bride's sisters, Brenda Butts and Sharon Blocker, and the groom's sister, Donna Alldredge, all of Blountsville. The attendants carried silk nosegays made by the bride.

Henderson, Rt. 1 Oneonta, AL 35121, telephone 274-9529. Most of the park users know that reservations are now required for the picnic shelters or outside tables. However, to avoid disappointment, advance reservations as early as possible are recommended. "The number of visitors to Palisades Park continues to increase each year, and 1985 will undoubtedly set a new record. More than a thousand calls were received about reservations, yet it seems to be working smoothly. Remember to call early and notify the park immediately if a reservation is to be canceled," Loyd says.

Outstanding achievement

The large state trophy awarded Blount's Child Enforcement Program for "outstanding achievement" is shown amid stacks of files of clients Sara Sawyer is helping to receive overdue child support payments.

Blount program honored for making dads 'pay up'

by Suzy Lowry Geno

Many fathers in Blount County who failed to pay their court-ordered child support have been forced to face the consequences during the past few months. New laws allowing wages to be withheld and federal and state income tax refunds to be intercepted coupled with laws that aid in finding fathers who "disappear" in order to avoid paying child support are beginning to make a difference in the amount of child support collected in the county.

The Child Support Enforcement Program operated by Blount County Department of Pensions and Security recently received the state award from the Alabama Child Support Association for its work in collecting support from delinquent fathers.

Sara Sawyer is the caseworker who handles the program here. She says she's proud of the statistics compiled by the state association showing Blount with a 140% improvement during this past fiscal year in collecting overdue child support. But she says, "We've still a long way to go."

Statistics for Oct. 1, '84-Sept. 30, '85 presented at the state association meeting showed Blount had collected $49,528.76 in overdue child support for clients who receive ADC (Aid to Dependent Children); obtained $5082.80 from the federal and state income tax interception program; and obtained $65,921.29 in back child support for those not on ADC.

"I'm just a leg man," Sawyer says modestly. "The new laws have given us new tools to work with."

"All we're doing is trying to help people. I'm trying to do my job. I try to locate the father and try to get information. But ultimately it is the court that has the final decision."

Sawyer explains that if a father fails to pay ordered child support and that child is placed on ADC, the court can order the father to make payments directly to the state. Any payments made above the amount expended by ADC go to the child. Some families are able to go off welfare once they are receiving regular payments from the father.

Tommy Rountree, DPS lawyer, handles child support cases and is designated a special assistant attorney to the state attorney general.

He explains, "Beginning in October of 1984, every child support order that is issued, whether in the original divorce decree or when the case comes back to court, contains a wage-withholding order. If the man becomes 30 days in arrears in his court-ordered child support payments, the judge can order the payments directly withheld from his salary."

"If the father changes jobs and does not notify the court, he can be put in jail for contempt. (His employers are required by law to notify the court if he quits work.)"

"We need to emphasize that when you go to jail for contempt, YOU STAY THERE. The only way you get out is by paying the child support—the full amount—you owe."

These laws are for fathers handled through the Child Support Enforcement Program and those prosecuted by private attorneys hired by the custodial parents.

Rountree says laws passed during the past few years allow wage withholding from unemployment benefits, workman's compensation, military retirement, social security, "and any federal or state checks," as well as normal employment checks. "We weren't able to do that before," he says.

"These laws aid when we are trying to receive help for those on welfare programs but also when clients come to Sawyer for help but are not on welfare and when persons prefer hiring private attorneys."

Rountree also says laws that give Sawyer access to information in her search for delinquent fathers are also vital. "Now she can obtain information from the social security office, the IRS, and even the unemployment folks."

Rountree stresses that a parent is obligated to pay that court-ordered support until the child reaches age 19. In one case he cited, a father who had not paid child support and was not located until the child was 23 was required to pay the entire accumulated amount.

In another case, a man who had not paid $10 weekly child support for nine years was jailed by a judge for non-payment.

One man's child-support weekly payment of $25 for one child was being deducted from his paycheck. The father quit his job, did not notify the court, and was placed in jail.

Sawyer and Rountree praised Judge Robert Austin's attitude toward fathers who say they don't pay because they can't find work. He requires fathers to apply for work at 50 places and to have application forms verified within a certain time or the fathers are held responsible.

Tom Head of Elba, assistant district attorney, said, "We don't want to have to put people in jail. However, some people do need encouragement to fulfill their obligations to support their children."

In some cases, the law allows the seizure of such personal property as motorcycles, boats, automobiles, pickup trucks, tractor-trailer trucks, and mobile homes as ways of collecting delinquent support payments.

Blount DPS Director Frances Hill said she is honored her department received the award and praised Sawyer for her hard work. "We need another worker to help handle the workload," she emphasized.

"There's only one of me," Sawyer adds, "and the work load is unreal. But I have helped some people whom no one has ever helped before, and it is gratifying to see their response. Once they are receiving regular child support payments, it's gratifying to know they are able to provide a better way of life for their children."

Elderly couple needs help

A 91-year-old man and his 86-year-old wife need help. A church has helped the man buy a hearing aid for one ear, but one is badly needed for his other ear for "balanced hearing." The wife needs help with regular medication because of an illness, but it is hard for her to communicate with her husband because of his hearing problems. (Case 437)

A single parent with two children under age 13 needs an electric stove, dining table and chairs, and single bed. The parent is presently unemployed. (Case 438)

Cases are listed in this column only after other avenues of help have been exhausted. Often a family's limited income, though too small to accommodate unexpected expenses, is too large for them to qualify for many government programs.

Several cases listed in past weeks still remain unresolved.

Individuals, church and civic groups, and businesspersons who wish to provide employment, needed items, or financial help should contact DPS volunteer coordinator Jonell Kyle at 274-2351, giving the case number to which help will be offered. Donations can be mailed to Project Sharing, P.O. Box 68, Oneonta, AL 35121, indicating on the check if it's given anonymously.

Donations last week included $10.83 given by Oneonta First Baptist's Adult III Sunday school class and $36 given by the church's Gleaners class for a foster child; $15 given anonymously with no case restriction; and $50 given by the Philadelphia and Nectar Ladies Aid and designated for needy families at Christmas.

Learn new program

Computer network links schools with Montgomery job and education information

by Suzy Lowry Geno

A new computer linkup in all schools but one in the county system will give students direct access to up-to-the-minute education and career information.

College information includes everything from scholarships available, fraternities and sororities on campus, and classes offered, to admission requirements, minimum SAT or ACT test scores needed for acceptance, costs of tuition, availability and cost of dormitories, and information on intramural and other sports. In some cases, students can even learn whether kosher food is served.

Job information is updated for the state every day and includes jobs listed through the Alabama Employment Service.

Every Blount County school except Appalachian is now able to contact the main computer through telephone modems attached to their Apple computers. (Appalachian will probably be ready for the system later). Not only can students call specific information directly to their computer screens but can also print out that information for future use.

Carolyn Gafford, technical assistant with the State Occupational Information Coordinating Committee (SOICC), met with school counselors at the Area Vocational Center Nov. 13. She pointed out several ways students and teachers can benefit from the system.

For example, Jan, a Susan Moore student, might be interested in junior colleges within driving distance of Blount County that offer scholarships and good academic programs for art majors. She could quickly retrieve that information by following simple directions Gafford outlined.

Perhaps Mike, a Hayden student, is moving to Gadsden and needs to know what jobs are available in that area. That information too can be pulled from the computer.

Sandra, a J.B. Pennington student, has grandparents who live in Florida. She can pull information about colleges offering math programs near her grandparents' home.

Linda is thinking about becoming a computer operator. She wants to know the educational requirements, what the work is like, how much she'll earn, and what the employment outlook is.

Although job listings are only for this state, categories for colleges include junior colleges, four-year colleges and universities, and business and technical schools in Alabama and across the nation.

Gafford explained counselors and students can use the direct method for retrieving information if they know the name of a job or the name of a school they are interested in. The search method is used when known facts are not as specific.

Carol may not know for certain what careers suit her education and her preferences. She can enter the information that she enjoys making business contacts with people, traveling, and doing a variety of tasks. She also records that she doesn't like airplane travel.

According to Gafford, once a school meets the original expense of having the proper computer equipment, no further cost is involved in using the system. She explains Alabama was one of eight states in 1975 to receive a grant to computerize career-education information. After four years, the agency was supposed to be self-supporting.

At that time, there were some problems in getting enough users hooked into the system. Since 1979, it has been a part of the SOICC, headed by Dr. Mary Louise Sims.

Because the hookups through the modems are via incoming WATTS lines to the main computer, schools have no long distance phone bills. Having only one main phone line is a problem in some county schools. Some are considering an additional phone line for the computer, which would entail a minimal monthly expense. Others are considering sharing phones with other departments within the schools that may use their phones only certain times of the day.

Counselors said many of the computers are in the libraries or in separate computer labs.

Gafford said 1800 colleges and universities are listed on the files, as is information about the Armed Services, which is cross-referenced with related civilian jobs.

Maxey Baty, Area Vocational Center counselor, said up-to-the minute information from colleges will direct students toward high school courses they will need in order to enter a particular field, that computer information can be more effective than "thumbing through" school catalogs that might be available. Gafford said the information by computer is like "having at your fingertips a mini-catalog concerning each school in the nation."

Baty credited Larry Johnson, Area Vocational Center coordinator, with approving the use of vocational funds for buying the computer modems. The Montgomery computer, in operation 23½ hours every day, seven days a week, can be available at any time to counselors or teachers needing information.

Present at the working session in addition to Gafford, Baty, and Johnson were counselors Lou Jean Morrison, Hayden; Brenda Tidwell, Susan Moore; Mary Nichols, J.B. Pennington; Gay Rutherford, Locust Fork; Bill Earnest, Appalachian; and Carolyn Murphree, Cleveland; librarians Peggy Burgess, Locust Fork, and Linda Williams, Cleveland; Area Vocational Center special needs coordinator Charline Webb; and county school computer coordinator Steve Ellis.

HOUSEHOLD TIPS

You may have scrubbed away your last bathtub ring! Sound impossible? Just keep a bottle of mild liquid detergent in the bathroom and have each member of your family pour a capful into the tub as the water is being drawn. In most cases, the tub will drain ring free!

Another sure way to eliminate bathtub rings is to take showers instead of baths! And you'll save a lot of hot water in the process. In fact, taking a shower instead of a bath can cut hot water consumption by one-third. Since your hot water heater is the second largest energy consumer in your home, (your heating system is first) opting for showers instead of baths can show up in reduced energy costs!

To make the most of your hot water dollars, you should be using a gas water heater from PARGAS. Gas water heaters produce nearly twice as much hot water per hour as electric water heaters. Stop by PARGAS and let us help you select the tank size and model type best suited to your family's needs.

Blount Area Vocational health occupations students rank high

by Suzy Lowry Geno

Your doctor says you need a cholecystectomy? Would you panic or realize he's saying you need your gall bladder removed?

Health occupations students at the Blount County Area Vocational School recently drilled intensively on medical terminology, and several students scored 99% (spelling 297 words correctly) or 100% (spelling all 300 words correctly).

In praising her students, teacher Pat Posey said they "worked hard at their tasks using their cerebrums."

Officers of the local Health Occupations Students of America chapter traveled to Fayette County Junior College Oct. 26 for training in parliamentary procedure. That afternoon, Blount HOSA officers placed second in a HOSA history competition against officers from five other counties.

They say they especially appreciated the hospitality of Dr. Ann Musgrove, Fayette Superintendent of Education, and Fayette AVC director Jerry Lindsey, as well as the expertise of parliamentary-procedure expert Owen Sweatt, and the time and energy given by Blount AVC custodian Judy Tounty.

The 1984-85 Brain Bowl HOSA team placed eighth out of 52 teams in national competition in Nashville in June, and those students say community support played a major role in their success.

Hospital audit is presented to board

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

An independent audit of Shelby Medical Center's finances was presented to the hospital board at its regular meeting November 26.

A representative of Ernst and Whinney, the firm which prepared the audit, spoke of ways in which the hospital compared favorably with averages at other hospitals and listed areas that need work in the next year.

SMC has "a very strong ratio compared to the market as a whole," said Travis Kirkpatrick of the ratio of liabilities and assets.

The current ratio is a figure which compares current assets to current liabilities, which was 2.4 to 1 for 1985. This means for every $1 of current liabilities, SMC has $2.40 in current assets. Last year the hospitals current ratio was 2.9 to 1.

The average in the Southern region is 2.1 to 1, said Keith Heartsill, assistant administrator of finance for SMC.

Because hospitals do not show investments as current assets, the quick ratio is used to compare the hospital's ratio to other industries.

Interest and current assets are combined, giving SMC a quick ratio of $5.8 to every $1 of liabilities, Heartsill explained.

Another figure Kirkpatrick noted was the high rate of uncompensated care — bad debts and indigent cases.

SMC's uncompensated care was 13.9 percent of gross revenues, compared to an average of four to five percent for most hospitals in the Birmingham area. A reason for the lower rate in Birmingham is that Cooper Green Hospital takes much of the indigent care.

Patient admissions and lengths of stay declined by 26 percent. Although that is a normal trend in Alabama, Kirkpatrick said, most other hospitals declined by 15 to 25 percent.

Revenues did not decline as sharply because of rate increases, Kirkpatrick said.

Rates increased by 10 percent October 1, 1984, Heartsill said, and by 3.3 percent October 1, 1985.

The revenue per patient day is higher than most hospitals have in the Birmingham area, Kirkpatrick said, because "gross charges have to be higher if you're going to compete with a bottom line standard" because of the high rate of uncompensated care at SMC, Kirkpatrick said.

He suggested the hospital work on improvements in the accounts receivable area. SMC's figure of 99 days of revenue in accounts receivable is high, compared to an average of 60 to 70 days. Because much of this is in Medicare, cash flow is not significantly affected, Kirkpatrick said.

What SMC would do is to continue to "try to collect what we can as efficiently as possible," Heartsill said. If someone has the money to pay on an account, the hospital will try to arrange payments that can be met, he said.

Kirkpatrick told the board that SMC should "continue to challenge your rate structure to see that rates are properly set."

Heartsill explained that the hospital must be careful to make sure that charges to patients are in line with costs to the hospital. Also, rate increases are less effective if placed in departments with a high rate of uncompensated care, he said.

A problem of SMC that Kirkpatrick noted is that the hospital "is spreading more of a fixed cost over fewer days." The occupancy rate was about 45 percent, compared to an average of about 50 percent.

Ken Williams displays top award

County United Way meets goal, gets Sterne Award

The Shelby County United Way Division has received the highest honor the United Way-Community Chest of Central Alabama, Inc. bestows on a campaign division.

Ken L. Williams, Shelby County's United Way Division chairman, accepted the Mervyn Sterne Award on behalf of Shelby County during a United Way celebration last week at the South Central Bell auditorium in Birmingham.

"At each weekly report meeting, one division enthusiastically reported meeting their assigned goals for that reporting period," N. Carlton Baker, 1985 United Way general campaign chairman, said of Shelby County while making the presentation. "They were also the first division to achieve 100 percent of their goal. Significantly, this division in prior years has had difficulty reaching the campaign budgeted goals. For all these reasons, I am proud to announce the Mervyn Sterne Award for the 1985 campaign goes to Ken Williams, chairman of the Shelby County Division for a job exceedingly well done."

The Mervyn Sterne Award is presented annually by the United Way-Community Chest of Central Alabama, Inc. to the campaign division making the most significant achievement toward the overall success of that year's campaign.

"I am humble, but most of all, I am proud for the many people who will receive help from the various United Way agencies serving the people of Shelby County as a result of this fundraising success," Williams said upon receiving the trophy.

Williams also praised the success of his section chairmen.

"Without the able assistance of the section chairmen, the level of success the Shelby County campaign attained would have been impossible."

The award includes a traveling trophy which is displayed in the offices of Alabama Insurance Exchange on Valleydale Road in Pelham.

The trophy is inscribed as a lasting tribute to the section chairmen working under the leadership of Williams: Leo Karples, Reid Long, Ken Kirkland, Steve Sears and Mollie McGregor — "and to all the 50 volunteers who worked so diligently in the Shelby County 1985 campaign."

Hospital board holds its first forum

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

About 14 people attended the first public forum sponsored by the Shelby Medical Center Board of Trustees on a sale of the hospital.

The meeting was held December 2 in Columbiana.

SMC Administrator Chip Denton spoke to a group that included three board members opposing a sale, two members of the Citizens for Proposition One supporting a sale, three hospital representatives and a few citizens.

Denton showed a slide presentation on the hospital's equipment and finances.

In response to a question from Robert Byrd, a member of Citizens for Proposition One, Denton acknowledged that SMC's percentage of uncompensated care — bad debt and charity cases — is "extremely high" compared to other Birmingham area hospitals.

SMC's average uncompensated care is about 14 percent compared to 4 or 5 percent at other hospitals in the area.

"Other Birmingham hospitals have the luxury of having Cooper Green so they do not see indigent patients at the same level," Denton said.

Betty Ballard, wife of board Chairman Doug Ballard who supports a sale, asked about patient costs per day.

SMC averages $885 gross revenue per patient day, answered Keith Heartsill, assistant administrator of finance for the hospital. Denton was not sure of the figures for other area hospitals, but said "auditors told us it was high."

However, Denton said, other hospitals are not supporting 14 percent uncompensated care, paying for obstetric care for indigents as SMC does to Car-

Ed board loans $12,000 for schools to pay sales tax

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

Two county schools had a rude awakening this summer when they learned that together, they owed nearly $12,000 in state sales tax.

The money was owed from gate receipts at athletic events.

Since the two schools — Pelham and Thompson High — had no way to come up with the money, the Board of Education agreed last Tuesday to loan the money to the schools interest free. Thompson owes $7,494.95; Pelham, $4,254.41.

The board also approved the superintendent's proposal to ask county legislators to introduce legislation exempting secondary schools from the tax in the future.

He noted that the law is not being interpreted or administered the same way in every school system.

Glasscox said in this county, Pelham and Thompson were the only high schools that have not been paying the tax.

The matter was brought to the attention of the Central Office in July, and an audit was conducted at the two schools in August.

Jim Davis, financial coordinator for the board, said the revenue department came up with the amount owed in late October.

Davis said that he was not aware that schools paid any kind of sales tax. He said he has since learned that a law making gate receipts from athletic events taxable went into effect 12-14 years ago.

Since cities get two percent of the tax and counties one percent, Davis said the county, Alabaster and Pelham will be asked to donate their portion of the tax toward what is owed.

Davis said the state also wanted to collect tax on concession stand proceeds.

"But I think we've convinced them," he said, "that our booster clubs, which operate the concession stands, are part of the school and their money is run through school books making it tax exempt."

He said state tax people have been invited to come and see how this is handled.

Chelsea shooting leaves one student dead, one recovering

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

One Chelsea High School student is dead and a second hospitalized following a shooting incident at the school on the Wednesday before Thanksgiving.

Keith Kitson, 16, died Wednesday afternoon following what officials said was a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head.

Wesley Smith, a senior at Chelsea and a friend of Kitson's, was hospitalized after a bullet apparently fired from Kitson's .22 caliber pistol struck him in the mouth and jaw area.

Shelby County sheriff's deputy Billy Thomas said that Smith's shooting was apparently an accident.

Thomas said that, according to witnesses on the scene, Smith was getting into Kitson's car when the pistol that Kitson was holding went off. Kitson then went to his friend and held Smith's head in his lap until emergency medical personnel arrived on the scene and began to work with Smith.

During that time, said Chelsea principal Glenn Fredrick, Smith was asked who shot him.

"I did, Mr. Fredrick," Fredrick said Kitson replied, "but I didn't mean to."

Officials said that Smith repeatedly stated on the scene and afterward that the shooting was an accident.

As medical volunteers from the Chelsea Fire Department worked with Smith, Thomas said that Kitson apparently went back to his car and picked up the gun again.

A teacher on the scene asked Kitson to put the gun down, Thomas said, and he did.

Then, Kitson again raised the gun and shot himself.

Shelby County coroner Billy Thompson said that Kitson was pronounced dead at Brookwood Hospital at 3:58 p.m.

Smith was admitted to Brookwood's intensive care unit following surgery, but was moved out of intensive care on Sunday. His condition is listed as satisfactory and his father, Jerry Smith, said Monday that Smith's prognosis is good.

"It is just a terrible thing that happened," said Shelby County sheriff Buddy Glasgow.

Officially, he added, the incident is being treated as an accidental shooting and suicide.

Fredrick said that the incident is something the people of

GOP also hosts forum on SMC

by Jim Parks
Editor

Meanwhile, on the other side of the county...

About twice as many people attended the GOP's public forum about the hospital as did the SMC-sponsored forum in Columbiana Monday night, but no spokesman representing the hospital administration occupied the podium in Pelham.

The Shelby County Republican Party sponsored a public forum at Valley Elementary School at the same time SMC scheduled one at the Columbiana Community Service Center. The GOP meeting drew about 30 visitors, while some 14 people attended the SMC forum.

SMC, however, will sponsor several additional forums between now and next Monday.

While no clear spokesmen for or against the sale of SMC attended the Pelham meeting, Commissioner John Ames and SMC board chairman Doug Ballard drew questions from the audience under the moderation of Holt Cloud, a member of the Shelby County GOP steering committee.

Cloud did, in all fairness however, read the answers to various prepared questions he had sent SMC administrator Chip Denton prior to the meeting.

Most of the audience's questions centered around the fate of the four-mill tax, the proposed trust fund and indigent care.

Asked if the tax would be removed if the hospital was to sell, Ames replied, "There is no legal use for the tax if the hospital is sold. The county commission could refuse to levy the tax."

Concerning the proposed trust fund - an estimated $25 million - Ames said he would like to see the first year's interest be reinvested into the principle to build it up, then start paying for indigent care and capital improvements the second year.

Ames said a new courthouse or judicial building is one such capital improvement the county needs.

Addressing indigent care, Ames said the cost of indigent care in Shelby County is not $1.4 million.

"Shelby Medical Center does not separate local indigent care from out-of-county," Ames said. "SMC is treating indigents from other counties but we don't know just how many indigents from Shelby County are being treated."

He also said the hospital is not being reimbursed by other counties for their indigent residents.

Ballard, asked why SMC should be sold, replied, "Back in 1957, Birmingham was a long way away and there was a need for a hospital, especially emergency care; now Birmingham is closer and our needs have changed."

Asked about patient costs at SMC and Birmingham hospitals, Ballard said "$885 a day is the average cost per patient at Shelby Medical Center," and about $650 per day in Birmingham.

Ballard said his intentions for selling SMC "is based strictly on business principles. I'm looking at the future."

He is promoting the sale of SMC now to "get the cash value out of it while it still has value."

"Three years ago, we could have gotten $200,000 per bed for it," he said, "now we'd be lucky to get $150,000 per bed."

Ballard also contends SMC is "over-staffed and over-equipped," blaming former SMC boards for spending too much money.

"They've got the fanciest equipment in the world, but the trouble is, they've got nobody to run it," he said.

Other "problems" Ames and Ballard agreed on was the hospital's "image problem" because it is county-owned, and that "the Board of Trustees is not accountable to anyone."

raway Methodist Medical Center, or subsidizing ambulance service.

The figure of $885 includes revenue from both inpatients and outpatients. When inpatients are separated, the gross revenue per patient day is $670.

Sherwood Stamps, chairman of Citizens for Proposition One, asked about the number of beds filled that day.

Denton estimated around 90, noting that although SMC is licensed for 210 beds, it is staffed for less. He said SMC is below 50 percent occupancy.

Ed Lightsey asked about the management of the hospital. He said there should be some compromise that would improve operations without selling SMC.

Denton said organizational models could be used to overcome the hospital's problems, but that this would have to wait until after the referendum and "is not going to be easy."

He noted that SMC is "known in the industry as being a controversial place to work for."

Mike Atchison, a rescue squad member, said he had worked with both SMC's and Carraway's emergency rooms, and "can safely say there is no difference in care."

In response to a question of who might gain from the sale of SMC and whether a finder's fee would be involved for anyone, Stamps said there would be "no finder's fee and no commission. The referendum doesn't provide for such."

The referendum calls for sale to the highest bidder who meets the market value of SMC.

The following referendums were scheduled for the rest of the week:

- December 3 at the SMC cafeteria at 7 p.m.
- December 4 at Inverness Elementary School at 7 p.m.
- December 5 at the University of Montevallo's Comer Auditorium at 7 p.m.
- December 8 at Vincent Community Center at 4 p.m.
- December 9 at Pelham City Hall at 7 p.m.

SMC board has dispute over chairman

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

A dispute over who is chairman of the board of Shelby Medical Center arose at a special meeting of the SMC board December 2.

Doug Ballard has been chairman for 1985 and Laura Willis was elected chairman for the next year at the last meeting November 26.

According to Lou Workman, who was elected vice chairman at the last meeting, the new chairman is to take office at the next meeting after the election. Workman quoted the board's bylaws to support that move.

Ballard, however, said Workman was "out of order" to bring the matter up.

According to the bylaws on special meetings, the agenda includes the stated business for which the meeting is called and any other business approved by six members. Ballard said the change in officers should not be considered unless six members approved it.

Workman's position was that the change did not require a vote or any action by the board, other than its having met.

The change in officers is covered in Section 4 of Article III.

It states that the annual meeting will be the regular November meeting and that officers will be elected at that time. These officers "shall enter upon their duties at the next meeting of the board which is to be held not later than the fourth Tuesday of the next month."

Workman noted that the bylaws do not say that the meeting must be a regularly scheduled meeting.

The bylaws address the procedures for special meeting in Article III, Section 2.

The chairman can call special meetings on his own, or at the request of a majority of members. The chairman must notify all members of the nature of a called meeting. After that business is settled, any other business may be voted on with the approval of six members.

The stated reason for calling the meeting was "to review and evaluate the hospital's status concerning the December 10 referendum."

However, at the beginning of the meeting, Workman said the newly elected officers should "take their rightful positions. Laura Willis is chairman of this board and she should be in charge of this meeting."

Ballard objected that this was not the stated purpose of the meeting.

"Have you heard of such a thing in all your years?" he asked.

Board member C.E. "Bull" Carter said the timing of the change of officers "doesn't really make much difference. It's a different way to go about the thing and I can't see any reason for it. Laura will have her 12 months and I don't see any reason to do it now."

Reid Long suggested the board take up the stated business, calling the move to change officers now "ridiculous."

SMC Administrator C.L. Denton reported to the board about upcoming forums on the referendum on a sale of the hospital. He also showed copies of a pamphlet opposing the sale to be mailed to county residents.

Denton asked members to "encourage the people you know to get out and vote whatever their convictions."

Board member Joe Arledge, who recently received treatment for heart troubles at SMC, spoke to the board about whether the hospital is overstaffed and overequipped.

"I recently had an experience that I was real happy that they had all that equipment," he said. If a private company would sell equipment and fire staff, he said, "that's enough reason for me to fight this thing tooth and nail all the way down the line."

Carter spoke of the conflict over the change in officers.

"I hope we can cut out this bickering and shouting at each other," he said.

He said the board should be able to have discussions without getting mad, and be able to "walk out the door and shake hands and forget it."

In addition to Willis and Workman, Tom Lloyd was elected treasurer and H.A. "Doc" Rubin was elected secretary last week.

For 1985, Pete Raughley was vice chairman, Reid Long was treasurer and Willis was secretary.

Audit

A 14.7 percent return on equity was also reported for SMC, compared to the average of 15 to 20 percent. Kirkpatrick called the figure "a very good, reasonable return."

Kirkpatrick also urged SMC to "market your services. There is no question that this institution is in one of the prime locations in the state from a demographic standpoint. Make sure you get your share of that market."

Heartsill said he is "very pleased with his report and pleased with the progress the hospital made from 1984 to 1985."

Other than accounts receivable, the balance sheet is strong, and he expects more progress next year, Heartsill said.

The audit must be approved by the state chief examiner.

Reaching 105 percent of the division's budgeted goal, the final tally in Shelby County shows $524,967, an increase of 18.2 percent or $80,783 over the 1984 campaign.

Ed board

The board also acted Tuesday on another matter concerning Pelham. A construction bid on a new band room was awarded to Cato Construction Company.

Glasscox said the contract for $338,380 was $100,000 over the original estimate. The contour of the land caused site work to be more expensive, he said, plus the fact the walls had to be reinforced to support future construction above, and steps had to be included for access to the future addition and to the existing building.

Jimmy Bice, who is coordinating the massive building program now underway in the school system, said that the collection of drawings for a new Thompson High School on his desk is getting thicker.

He said the county is now doing grade work on a road to the school which is three quarters of a mile in length - from County 264 to County 26. The road will probably be completed in the spring, he said.

Bice also gave the board an update on other construction projects which include Vincent, Inverness, Chelsea, Riverchase, Shelby County High School, Elvin Hill and Helena.

He said bids on work at Valley will be opened in January and bids for lunchroom work at Thompson, Montevallo and Columbiana Middle Schools will be opened in February or March.

"We have buildings going up everywhere," Glasscox said, "and it's somewhat of a burden, but a pleasant one, to keep up with the progress."

In other business, Barbara Whitman was reelected board president, and Dr. Bill Fancher reelected vice-president.

Commission approves two bond issues

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

The Shelby County Commission approved two industrial development bond issues November 25 and tentatively accepted a bid from a Pelham business planning to buy a county-owned building in Shelby.

Dama Truss and Components, Inc. is planning to move from Pelham to the old Atlantic Wood Industries Building in Shelby. An $85,005 bid on the building was tentatively accepted from the commission, while an appraisal is sought to determine if this is a fair price.

According to Waymon Rasco, president, the company is moving because the building — four times the size of the one it now occupies — will allow an estimated doubling in capacity. The business now has about $1 million in gross sales and hopes to expand to $2 or $2.5 billion.

The work crew of 17 also would probably double, according to Rasco. Plans are to hire some people from Shelby.

"We want to try to help the area of Shelby," he said.

Operation at the new location is hoped to begin by the first of the year, Rasco said.

The commission gave its approval to a $350,000 bond issue involving Calera's Industrial Development Board and Unique Industries, Inc.

The company, which makes special threaded fasteners, such as bolts, for use in construction, is about one and one-half miles from Interstate 65 east of Calera.

The bonds will finance an expansion that will double the company's size, adding about 18,000 feet to the main building and about 1,500 feet to the office. Capacity may be increased by 30 or 40 percent, "but it wouldn't hurt our feelings if we did more," Hugh Taylor, company president, said.

Plans are to initially hire five or six new employees, adding about five or six later.

The start of construction is planned for the first of the year, with completion expected for late March or early April.

The Commission also approved a $5,225,000 bond issue between the newly created Health Care Authority of Shelby County and FloWarr Management, Inc. The bonds are for construction of a clinic to treat adolescents with drug and alcohol abuse problems.

A single building of about 41,000 square feet will be on a 20-acre site near the entrance of Oak Mountain State Park at the intersection of County Roads 33 and 35.

The clinic will bring with it an annual payroll of about $1.5 million, according to George Warren Sr., who operates several similar clinics in the state with his son.

The 80-bed facility will have a recreational area, a family wing, an evaluation unit and a primary care unit.

Construction is expected to begin around the first of the year and to be completed in about 15 months, with operation to begin March 1987.

Responding to a request from county school superintendent Ellie Glasscox, the commission agreed to let highway department employees work on site grading at the new Thompson High School.

The work will be done on a voluntary basis after regular working hours, with workers to be paid by the board of education.

The highway department is already working in the area on access roads for the new school site.

The commission also approved the widening and paving of a 200-foot long road that joins old 280 and new 280 in Chelsea.

The work, which will cost about $1,000, will be financed by Lloyd Chesser, who owns property adjacent to the road.

The improvement of the road will also benefit the community fire department, because it can then move more directly to new 280, said County Engineer Gary Ray.

10 acres in Chandalar donated to Pelham

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

The City of Pelham received a gift from one of its council members Monday night.

Councilwoman Beverly Hall presented Mayor Bobby Hayes with a deed to 10 acres of undeveloped property in the Chandalar subdivision that Hall and Bill Humphries — the original owner of the property — are donating to the city.

Part of the 10-acre tract had recently come under scrutiny from area residents because children in the area have constructed a dirt track for motorcycles and ATVs to run on.

When questions about the land's ownership were raised,

Hall said that she had paid delinquent taxes on the land for two years but did not have a clear title to the property. Upon investigation, Humphries was identified as the original owner and the land was given to the city.

The land has also been posted with no trespassing signs to keep the cycles out of the area.

"That is what Bill originally intended to do with the land," Hall said, "but it was just overlooked."

Hall added that the ten acres border some 55 homes in Chandalar.

In other business, the council:

•adopted an ordinance governing fire lanes in mobile homes

sles lots;

•adopted a companion ordinance to the sign ordinance already a part of the city's zoning regulations making the regulations part of the regular ordinance of the city and subject to enforcement by the city's police;

•moved to re-issue bids on a new fire engine for the city as all current bids exceed the $150,000 budgeted for its purchase this year;

set public hearings for December 16 on proposed amendments to the regulations governing the height of satellite dish antennas in the city and changes on the zoning of a parcel of land along US 31 in Pelham.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

He was as hot as a fresh baked sweet potato, a little guy who stood in a restaurant on the outskirts of town, and testified. He wasn't much bigger than a bar of soap, but he had a mouth like a catfish with words crammed in there as thick as sardines in a can.

"We went 70 yards once before the drive fizzled," he whined. "All the way from our twenty to their ten. And then missed a field goal as slick as soap."

He paused and caught his breath and added: "You know how many first downs we made? 10. You know how many they made? 4."

A man came in the restaurant where we were and ordered a cup of coffee. He had on a cap with Millena written on it. Since Millena was the team that edged his team last Saturday, I figured he'd slow down. But he didn't.

"We made four drives, long drives, and fizzled out every time. For what reason I can't see. They crossed the fifty yard line once and got on our side of the field. One time. The rest we kept 'em backed up, as close to their goal as bark on a hickory."

He ordered a second cup of coffee.

"But you know what? A little runty guy who looked like he ought to be captain of a tiddly-wink team kicked a 53-yard field goal."

He finished his coffee and pushed the cup back.

"It was a pretty night, with the moon out and a little wind blowing, and folks had come from everywhere. We must have had three thousand if we had one, and all of 'em expecting a run-a-way. They had bells and horns and all that stuff to make a racket, but just had to sit there like sacks of mule feed, waiting for something to happen."

He ordered another cup of coffee.

"You know, when it was over you could have heard a pin drop on our side. But on their side, and there wasn't a fist full of 'em, it sounded like a thunderstorm."

The man from Millena got up and started out. He turned and looked our way.

"I've been out of town for two weeks," he said. "Would you tell me what the score was?"

"Three to nothing."

The weekly Good Morning column written by Milton Bird is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member FDIC.

Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

We could be unkind and open this column by saying that after partaking of turkey over the long weekend, lets turn our attention to the turkeys in Alabama politics. We could say that, but we won't.

The next time any of you city or county officials or even you taxpayers are told that there is not enough money available for the Highway Department to repair some road, straighten a dangerous curve, or perhaps fill a few potholes, you might ask them if that is so, how come there was enough money for the Highway Department to provide its employees with an elaborate exercise gym.

It was revealed last week that a new gym which includes weights, exercise bicycles, showers and some very expensive Nautilus machines has been provided for the department employees. They even retained under state contract a most attractive young lady to lead aerobic exercises. Highway Director Ray Bass, who would never be mistaken for Mr. Universe, insisted the sizable expenditure was justified, that physically fit employees performed better on the job.

When George Wallace was campaigning for a fourth term back in 1982, his theme was "jobs, jobs, jobs." The record suggests he was talking about state jobs. Since taking office in January, 1983, the number of state employees has increased by a whopping 2,096. That averages to almost three new jobs a day.

State Treasurer Annie Laurie Gunter has been cleared of charges she violated the ethics law, but she was cleared by the narrowest of margins.

Several months ago Mrs. Gunter authorized the printing of an elaborate, costly brochure on the office of State Treasurer, but the ambitious Mrs. Gunter couldn't resist including in the brochure that she would be a candidate for Secretary of State next year. What that had to do with the Treasurer's office is a mystery.

The Taxpayers Defense Fund filed a complaint against her with the Ethics Commission, but by a vote of 3 to 2, the commission decided to forgive Mrs. Gunter this time.

With the polls continuing to show that U. S. Sen. Jeremiah Denton will be very tough to beat next year, Secretary of State Don Seigelman is leaning more and more to a race for attorney general. He apparently has decided to let Congressman Richard Shelby take on Denton.

Not that it means anything, but history suggests that Shelby, too, should leave the Senate seat well enough alone.

In 1968, the late Armistead Selden gave up the very same Congressional seat to run for the Senate, and he lost. And in 1978 the late Walter Flowers, also holding the very same U. S. House seat, gave it up to run for the Senate, and he too lost. Perhaps Shelby thinks the third time will be the charm.

Ferrell Patrick, a member of the Wallace inner circle, reportedly will soon be departing to join the newly created Business Council of Alabama as a lobbyist. Chalk this up as yet one more sign that Wallace will not be a candidate for office in 1986.

Letters to the Editor

Everyone would benefit from SMC sale

Letter to the Editor:

I would like to urge the people of Shelby County to vote to sell the Shelby Medical Center for the good of all the people throughout Shelby County.

No institution is ever better than its board of directors.

It cannot be since the board sets the policy of an institution and selects its director; and it makes no difference whether is is big business, an industrial corporation, a medical center - or any other institution.

Unfortunately, the few times that the hospital has had a strong board during the past 26 years, there were those self-seeking individuals who were determined to destroy such a board because they wanted a weak board that they could control.

It is time for the voters to take politics out of the hospital and to put the hospital corporation where it can be run in a business-like manner without all the bickering and throat-cutting that has been going on since 1959.

The money realized from the sale of the hospital can then be set up to take care of the poor people; then all the people of Shelby County could be served — not just the special interest groups.

Mrs. John B. Walters Jr.

Wife of a former SMC chairman

Retired teachers give reasons not to sell

Letter to the Editor:

The Shelby County Retired Teachers Association held its regular quarterly meeting on November 19th at the Ranch House in Alabaster. This Association, with members from all over the county, voted to oppose the sale of our county hospital. There were no votes in favor of selling the hospital.

We, who have taught large numbers of our citizens or children of citizens, desire to keep our hospital functioning as a provider of affordable, efficient care for all these citizens, their children, and their children's children.

We submit the following reasons for voting NO on Proposition I, December 10th:

1. Any private hospital will be more expensive than our county hospital and many people may not be financially able to use it.
2. The hospital tax is insignificant and, in our opinion, a mere excuse to sell our hospital for private profit.
3. Our hospital renders outstanding service and provides individual attention for both patient and family members.

4. There are too many uncertainties with respect to a sale:

Do those wishing to sell know more than the other voters know?

- (a) Have they told us whether or how much care rates will increase for private profit?
- (b) Who will be employed if the hospital is sold?
- (c) What physicians would serve it under private ownership for profit?
- (d) Would a private for profit hospital continue the same fine arrangements with the excellent medical facilities in Birmingham our hospital has today?

The only certainty will be the loss of our hospital if sold for profit.

Our hospital presently belongs to all the people of Shelby County and should be continued to be owned by them.

We wish everyone would vote NO on December 10th.

Ballard says public hospitals are dying

Letter to the Editor:

The day of the "free-standing" independent hospital is about over. This is the prediction of many people in the medical health-care field, including Mr. Rush Jordan, former president of Birmingham Baptist Medical Centers.

His quote is "they are dead — they are fossils."

I predict that within the next 3 to 5 years they will be a thing of the past and will be up for grabs to whomever will operate them.

The reason: when third party payers were paying on a "cost-plus" basis everything was fine. The more you spent the more you made. All that has changed now.

The problem was, the lay-hospital board didn't know when to quit. They just kept on spending like it would never end.

Consequently, we now have a "Taj-Mahal" which will cost a fortune to maintain.

As a businessman, along with two other good businessmen on the board, we feel it is time to "cash-in" what some have called our "greatest asset."

An asset is only worth what you can sell it for. So, if it is all that great, we should convert it to cash while it is still worth something.

Doug Ballard

Rushton says hospital sale unwise move

Letter to the Editor:

It is reassuring to find that the public will respond to an issue that has a very profound effect on their lives. The interest your paper has aroused concerning the referendum on the hospital (SMC) may well serve to increase voter participation on December 10th.

Throughout the coverage of the pros and cons surrounding the question, it has been apparent that the consensus of opinion is that the County Commission, in whole, wants SMC to be sold.

Obviously, some members do. Based on the information I have, and I have researched this decision, I am opposed to selling the hospital.

As an individual, not as a commissioner, I fail to understand the shroud of urgency that has been draped around the need for an immediate sale. In the last fiscal year, SMC managed an operating profit in excess of the tax revenues and its investments income. Their statement was audited by a "Big 8" accounting firm and is open to the scrutiny of the Office of Public Examiners. These results were accomplished under the most severe circumstances.

Consider that during FY 84-85 SMC had a lame duck administrator for several months, an interim administrator for three months and underwent some extreme personnel adjustment. The current administrator did not come on board until the middle of the year.

One patient required $200,000 in care while the Medicaid reimbursements were limited to $75,000. Also consider the drastic cuts in health care reimbursements through the institution of the DRGs.

Despite these circumstances, profitable results were shown. This does not indicate a state of urgency to me.

Unresolved yet is the question of the validity of the management contract between the Foundation and the Board. I believe that a cloud such as this will be a deterrent to most corporations that may otherwise be desirous of SMC. Who would make an offer on a property encumbered by litigation concerning ultimate title?

There may come a time when SMC should be sold. Basically, I believe government should not compete with private business. But why sell such a large asset when the current market conditions are depressed?

The health care industry is undergoing an all-encompassing re-evaluation. When the dust settles, things may change. SMC has a highly qualified administrator who can offer sound advice at that time.

My vote to put this question on the ballot does not conflict with my personal position in opposing the sale. The direction and thrust of SMC is an issue larger than five commissioners or 12 board members. Once the votes are tallied, my position will be in support of the majority.

Hospital may be a gold mine in future

Letter to the Editor:

We have grown so accustomed to the access and quality medical care provided by Shelby Medical Center that it is easy to forget what it was like before we had a county hospital.

During my seventy-six years, it has been necessary for members of my family to be patients in all of the Birmingham hospitals with the exception of two. Consistently, the care received at our county hospital has equalled or surpassed that of the other hospitals.

We hear about the fear of our hospital getting into serious financial difficulty some time in the future. Don't we run a calculated risk in everything — life, home work, etc? With Shelby County being the fastest growing county in the state, and some even say in the Southeast, who knows what a gold mine we may have in our hospital and its clinics? If this were not true, why would some groups be so anxious to buy it? Do we want to destroy the goose that lays the golden egg?

Shelby County has more than adequate resources to keep Shelby Medical Center an efficient and technically advanced hospital. If the people who are interested in selling the hospital would direct their talents toward its preservation and improvement, Shelby Medical Center could render even greater medical service. Do we need outsiders to own our hospital? No one has more concern for the people of Shelby County than its own citizens.

Let's show the pride we have in our hospital by going to the polls next Tuesday, December 10, and voting NO to its sale, and thus put an end to any notion of bargaining away Shelby Medical Center.

SMC should continue to deliver babies

Letter to the Editor:

SMC does not furnish service for delivery of babies. They pay another hospital to deliver babies for the poor or Medicaid has to pay at another hospital.

My baby was delivered out of county at a hospital that had a lot of Shelby County new mothers and newborn children. My insurance paid over $2,000 for a C-section delivery and to the doctor. Surely the big hospital, with 150 doctors and all the high tech they keep talking about, could find some way to break even on the O.B. ward they closed up.

If they are to offer all services to the county for the tax dollars they take on property and auto tags, there is no reason they cannot have a delivery ward for newborns, who stay only a few days now as compared to other diseases that are under the Medicare and Medicaid to get you well in less than a week.

SMC board opposes hospital sale

Letter to the Editor:

There have been implications that SMC Board of Trustees is in favor of the sale of Shelby Medical Center. This is not true. The board, by a majority vote, voted that they were not in favor of the sale of the hospital.

At this time, there is no reason to sell the hospital. We have an up-to-date institution, with qualified personnel. We have qualified doctors here in Shelby County. We have a financially sound hospital, which provided $1,422,399.00 in medical services to the needy last year. These are just a few of the reasons the SMC Board of Trustees is opposed to the sale at this time.

I'm not asking any of you to take my word. Check the financial statements that have been published in the papers and/or visit the hospital and find out for yourselves.

Shelby Medical Center
Board of Trustees

Taxes built hospital, county should keep it

Letter to the Editor:

Dear Voters of Shelby County: they want to sell the hospital you and I voted for and paid taxes to build.

We all knew the problem of having to go to Birmingham to get in a hospital.

Our hospital in Alabaster was needed then, and is needed now.

I'm sure the voters who voted for the hospital can find someone to run our hospital who is not wanting to sell it.

Vote NO on December 10th. Let us keep our much needed hospital.

Mrs. Arlene Warbington
P.O. Box 23
Siluria, AL 35144

Politics should be removed from SMC

Letter to the Editor:

Management is one item voters should consider when making a decision concerning the future of Shelby Medical Center.

History tells us "laymen" management and "politics" at SMC has at best had problems: the hospital board has been stacked twice by the commission in 10 years; a million and half dollar facility constructed and unused; an expensive O.B. Birthing Unit added only to be closed shortly after completion; and just recently one faction of the SMC Board of Trustees maneuvering to take control of the hospital from the people.

Health care in rapidly growing Shelby County has become a business large enough to step into the realm of private enterprise. It should be paying taxes, not taking! REMOVE THE POLITICS FROM SMC, and the only way you can is to SELL IT!

Robert M. Byrd, Jr.
Rt. 1 Box 61
Montevallo, AL 35115

Sale of SMC means hospital gone forever

Letter to the Editor:

Not too long ago it was impossible for many of us to even get into a hospital, and as a result many people suffered unnecessarily, and some died. I fear that this situation could return in our county if Shelby Medical Center is sold.

All the costly advertisements urging the sale of the hospital indicate to me that it is a valuable asset which someone wants very badly. This value is recognized by the fine physicians from all over the region who practice in the hospital, and these physicians oppose its sale.

It would thus be very unfortunate for a few people to profit greatly from this sale at the expense of all the rest of us in the county.

One thing is certain: if the hospital is sold, the people will never get it back. It would then be in the hands of some corporation more interested in profits than in providing the fine service we have come to expect. The four mill tax is a negligible amount to pay for this fine service.

The Shelby County Reporter is to be commended for its efforts to inform the public about this most important issue.

This is a cause which we the people can win if we vote. Please help save our hospital. Take your friends, relatives, and associates to the polls on this coming Tuesday, December 10, and vote NO.

Pelham police nab four in burglaries

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

Two separate burglaries that occurred in Pelham last weekend have resulted in arrests by the Pelham Police Department.

Police officials said this week the burglaries do not appear to be related in any way.

Lt. Tommy Thomas of the PPD said Pelham officers answered a call to the Car Stereo Shop in Pelham around midnight on November 28. Thomas said an alarm on the site had been tripped.

Police discovered three white males who had apparently broken into the business on US 31. When police arrived, the three fled on foot, but all were apprehended within a couple of hours, Thomas said.

Jerry Carter Gray Jr., 20, of Bessemer, was arrested and charged with burglary third degree.

Two juveniles also were apprehended and have been petitioned before juvenile court.

Thomas indicated that no property was taken from the business when the three fled.

Pelham Police patrolmen Bob

Sasser and Scott Bottchen and Sgt. Bob Patterson worked the case.

On the same night, Ptl. Bill Gray of the PPD answered a call from residents in the Oak Mountain Estates area to investigate noises at one of the area homes.

Upon reaching the scene, Thomas said, Gray noticed someone hiding under a car.

The white male juvenile was apprehended. Charges are pending, Thomas said.

Pelham annexes land where cemetery planned

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

The recent annexation of a 90-acre tract of land into Pelham has apparently cleared the way for a funeral home and cemetery in the city.

The Pelham Council voted to annex the land into the city during a called meeting of the council on Monday, Nov. 25.

Ridout's-Brown Service, the new owner of the tract located on the northeast corner of the intersection of I-65 and Highway 119, requested that the land be annexed by Pelham.

Steps to re-zone the property are currently underway to facilitate the development of the funeral home and cemetery.

Pelham Mayor Bobby Hayes said this week that he expects the owners to make a formal statement about the development after zoning changes are enacted.

Goggins case goes on

The case involving Calera Principal Danny Goggins and the Shelby County Board of Education is back in Judge Robert Armstrong's court.

Goggins has been fighting the board's attempt to transfer him to Shelby Elementary School for the past 18 months.

The latest development was a hearing in circuit court last Tuesday on the board's appeal of the State Tenure Commission decision which said Goggins' transfer was based on personal and political reasons.

Victor Price, the AEA attorney representing Goggins, and Sonny Conwill, attorney for the board, spent approximately an hour presenting their cases.

Conwill also submitted a brief, and the judge gave Gog-gins and his attorney 30 days in which to answer.

The case began in May, 1984, when the board voted to transfer Goggins at the recommendation of Education Superintendent Ellie Glasco, who said the principal did not have community support.

After a series of rulings by the tenure commission, the circuit court, and the state court of civil appeals, the case went back to the tenure commission, and is now once again in the hands of Judge Armstrong.

Armstrong had previously overturned the tenure commission's ruling that the transfer would cause a loss of status although Goggins would make $4,000 less because of a shorter contract period.

Carters celebrate 50th

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Carter, who were married Nov. 30, 1935, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at a reception held at Alabaster First Assembly of God on Dec. 1.

The event was hosted by their children, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Carter, and Mr. and Mrs. Barry Franks, all of Alabaster, and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Green of Mobile.

The couple has seven grandchildren.

Choir performs Messiah

The first annual presentation of George Frederic Handel's Messiah, will take place at the First United Methodist Church in Montevallo on December 8.

There will be two performances - at 4 and 7 p.m.

When the recruitment of a choir began, musical director Bruce Tolbert said he expected about 35 people to show up.

Instead, he got 90 at the first rehearsal in early October. After some fluctuation up and down, Tolbert said the final number of singers is 80.

He said choir members are from Shelby and surrounding counties.

Soloists will be UM faculty members Jo Ann Dawson, soprano, Shari Boruvka, mezzo soprano and Benjamin Mid-daugh, baritone. David Finley, tenor, earned the bachelor of music education degree and master of music degrees from UM and plans to take advanced studies in music at Yale where he earned a second master of music degree in voice.

Instrumentalists for the performance include violinists Henry Rubin, a University of Alabama faculty member, and Kristine McCreery, teacher in a Suzuki program in Tuscaloosa and adjunct violinist with the Alabama Symphony orchestra; Charles Hott, viola, Carlton McCreery, cello, both UA faculty members; Paula Kornegay, piano teacher in a private studio in Montevallo, and Timothy Owen, organ, a scholarship student in organ at UM and organist at the First Baptist Church in Clanton.

Hospitality stressed in search

The search is on for Alabama's most "Beautiful People," who give real meaning to "Southern Hospitality."

Ed Hall, director of the state's Bureau of Tourism and Travel, announced that four people will be honored at the Conference on Hospitality and Tourism next April.

"We are looking on the grassroots level for Alabama residents who have gone out of their way to make a trip in Alabama memorable for visitors," Hall said.

Nominations will be screened by convention and visitors bureaus and other tourism boards throughout the state before they are presented to the Bureau for final selection.

For details, call the Bureau at 1-800-392-8096.

CHS band marches as The Hornet Pride

What could have been a dismal season for the Chelsea High School Marching Band turned out to be one of the best seasons ever.

Although the band dropped from 75 to 46 members, the group who showed up for practice in August accepted the challenge from band director Dane Lawley to march as The Hornet Pride.

The band entered four competitions, making superior ratings in each and bringing home a total of 19 trophies, including two Best of Class.

But the highlight of the season for the band was the Spirit of Pride contest in Talladega. The band was judged best in its own class and also placed second overall out of 16 bands, some of which marched over 100 students.

Band Booster Linda Brasher said the parents and boosters from Chelsea are extremely proud of the efforts of Lawley, his wife Tanya and each band member, for proving that, "It's quality, not quantity that really counts."

Pelham band season ends on high note

For the Pelham High School band, the fall marching season ended on a high note, said Pat Ramus, band spokesperson.

Directed by James K. Little, the band participated in a total of four competitions, winning many awards, including best in class.

On November 2, the Tower of Power participated in the Atlanta Area Marching Festival, competing against 11 bands. The following awards were won:

- drum major — excellent
- drum line — superior (third place overall)
- color guard — superior
- majorettes — superior (first place overall)
- dance team — superior (first place overall)
- band — excellent

The majorettes, the dance team and the drum line graded superior in all competitions entered this season, according to Ramus.

The band was scheduled to open the Christmas season at Brookwood Mall November 29 at 10 a.m. In addition, it will participate in the Hoover Christmas parade December 10 at 7 p.m. and the Helena parade December 14 at 3 p.m.

The band will also participate in the Wilderness Christmas program at Cross Creek Baptist Church December 16 at 7 p.m.

Why Vote For Proposition No. 1?

Some people say they have never seen a tax removed.

Well, they did it in California with Proposition No. 13 (THE PEOPLE DID IT)

And the people of Shelby County can do it by voting for PROPOSITION NO. 1.

California voted a huge reduction in taxes, and they are still doing fine.

Shelby County can do the same and remove a tax that would have lasted 50-years.

Contrary to what some doctors and others are writing letters and telling you the hospital will still do fine, Maybe better and very likely at less than $885.00 per day.

CONSERVATION HIGHLIGHTS 1985

SHELBY COUNTY SOIL & WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT

ALABAMA RESOURCE CONSERVATION PROGRAM (ARCP)
BIG SUCCESS

District Clerk Louise Haywood, takes application from land owner "Chuck" Lewis as sign up period begins. We received 35 applications requesting approximately $65,000.00 to do conservation work. We feel this cost share program will help landowners protect and improve Shelby County's natural resources.

COUNTY PARK AND AGRI-CENTER UNDER CONSTRUCTION

TWO SHELBY COUNTY PROJECTS FUNDED BY CAWACO -- RESOURCE CONSERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT PROJECT - A U.S.D.A. AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

Pictured here, left to right: Dr. Cecil Mayfield, State 4-H Leader; Don Presley, Project Coordinator; Perry Oakes, Project Engineer and Terrell Guthrie, Administrator of 4-H Center, discuss plans and work to be done on the State 4-H Center. The other project to receive funds was the Shelby County Board of Education. Approximately $75,000 for the Board of Education and $32,000 for the 4-H Center was approved. This money is cost shared on a 65 percent USDA and 35 percent sponsor bases, and is used for erosion control, child safety and beautification of schools and playgrounds. Construction work has already begun on 5 schools and will begin on the 4-H Center in 1986. We are proud of the two projects and feel they will benefit all Shelby countians and 4-H'ers from every county in Alabama.

KNOWING YOUR SOIL CAN SAVE YOU FROM MAKING COSTLY MISTAKES

Pictured here Soil Scientist Harold Neal studies the soil profile and puts the kind of soil on an aerial photograph showing exact location. Such information as depth to rock, permeability, clay content, flooding potential, water holding ability, depth to water table and even productivity for trees, grasses or crops can be determined from this information. From this you can see, that such information is a valuable tool for housing developments, timber management, planting of pastures, building ponds, planting of crops and even building roads and streets. We still have plenty of packets of this information developed especially for Shelby County. Each packet contains maps showing all soil locations and all of the above information on every acre in Shelby County. They are free to you for the asking.

50th Anniversary of America's Soil & Water

Conservation Movement

April 27, 1985 marked the golden anniversary of the Soil and Water Conservation movement in America. It was celebrated in many ways throughout the country. I attended a meeting in Washington, D.C. along with a delegation from Alabama. The meeting was very informative and well attended by representatives from every State in the Union. History was made here in Alabama, also, with voters passing the Alabama Resource Conservation Program in May, 1985. This program will provide state cost-share monies to land owners in their continuing efforts to improve the land and water resources of our great state. There were 3,522 applications taken for cost share assistance over a 30-day sign up period state wide totaling about 7½ million dollars. In Shelby County we received 35 applications requesting approximately $65,000.00 to do conservation work. Shelby County received $26,700.00 as our share of 2 million dollars from State funds. There was only 2 million dollars available in 1985, and 3 million for next fiscal year, 86-87. We are optimistic that this program will continue to gain support and additional funding.

Lawrence W. Garrett
Chairman
Shelby County Soil and Water Conservation District

MULTI-USE TIMBER MANAGEMENT - A GOAL OF MANY LANDOWNERS

The Alabama Forestry Commission calls it "Treasure Forest" and encourages landowners to participate. Pictured here, left to right, County Forester Daryl Lawson, Soil Conservation Service Biologist Bob Waters and Treasure Forest Coordinator for Alabama Forestry Commission, Neil Letson, check this tract of land for qualifications as a Treasure Forest. Basically, this concept of management encourages landowners to leave hardwood on better hardwood sites and manage hardwood and pine forest for wildlife, recreation, esthetic and timber production. You can call the Shelby County Forestry Commission office at 669-4133 for more detailed information about this program.

EROSION - SPARKS LAWSUITS, TEMPERS AND COSTS EVERYONE

Whether you are a cotton farmer plowing the rolling farmland of Shelby County or a developer clearing, grading and shaping lots for houses, erosion of disturbed land is a problem. It costs all of us. Pictured here is an area cleared for a golf course. Most all soil has been washed away leaving exposed rock. And as in most situations, siltation and mud washed down on lower property owners causes great damages and lawsuits. Most of these problems could be eliminated with some forethought and simple inexpensive erosion control measures such as temporary vegetation and hay bale barriers or silt fences across drainways or around disturbed areas. We have assisted 85 developers, engineering firms and farmers with such problems this year.

GULLY EROSION ON COTTON LAND KEEP IN UNDER COVER!

Erosion from surface water runoff strips 15-20 tons of soil per acre per year from our rowcrop land in Shelby County. It costs us all. The land is depleted of nutrients and topsoil requiring more fertilizer and lime to produce a crop. The mud, silt and chemicals fill our streams and lakes killing fish, aquatic life and costing us millions of dollars in dredging operations. Much of this problem can be eliminated with simple, but effective conservation measures such as leaving residue on the land, planting winter cover crops, grass filter strips, waterways and buffer strips of trees or grass planted or left along creeks and major drainways. Call our office at 669-7136 for more information or assistance in protecting your land - and our environment.

PONDS COSTLY - STILL A GOOD INVESTMENT

Ponds are getting more costly to build, but most folks still think they are a good investment. If you need livestock water or just want a good place to relax and enjoy an afternoon of fishing, ponds are worth the money. Depending on the particular site, but usually a 2 acre pond will cost you $6,000.00 to $8,000.00 to build. Pictured here, a pond building contractor cuts a core for a dam on a new pond being built near Montevallo. Call our office for assistance in site selection, survey and design, and construction, of a pond or lake on your property.

As a team, The Shelby County Soil and Water Conservation District Board, Soil Conservation Service Personnel, and the many landusers with whom we have worked have accomplished a great deal. Our goal is to conserve and improve our natural resource base through a carefully planned soil and water conservation program. A program which includes a wide range of activities from engineering surveys and designs of ponds, terrace and water disposal systems, waste lagoons, soils information for development projects, erosion control on urban and row-crop land to total landuse planning, just to name a few. In providing these services, we worked with 605 landowners and provided technical services on over 20,000 acres of land during the 1985 program year. The articles above depict a few of these land use and resource management services. We mention these just to let you know that we are interested in Shelby County, its natural resources, and most of all, you, the landuser in Shelby County. We could not accomplish this without help and cooperation from everyone, especially our County Commissioners, Health Department, Highway Department, Planning Commission, ASCS Committee, Extension Service, Forestry Department, Rural Development Committee, Farmers Home Administration, Mayors, WBYE Radio, The Shelby County Reporter and all of you landusers with whom we have worked. Call our office at 669-7136 if we can be of service to you. Programs and assistance of the Soil Conservation Service are available without regard to race, creed, color, sex, age, or national origin.

Thompson wins holiday classic

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Thompson Warriors didn't let big Thanksgiving dinners on Thursday slow them down on the basketball court on Friday or Saturday.

Instead, the Warriors used a strong press and a quick, aggressive defense to take the championship of their own Holiday Classic basketball tournament with wins over John Carroll and Bibb County.

THS coach Thomas Johnson was understandably pleased with tournament wins that pushed his team's record to 6-0 for the year.

"I have said all along that this is a good bunch of kids," Johnson said. "They work hard in practice and when they get on the court it's all basketball."

The tournament's championship game was a come-from-behind thriller as the Warriors took Bibb County 83-80 in overtime. Trailing by as many as 10 points in the fourth quarter, Johnson swapped from a zone defense to full court man-to-man pressure. The Warriors were able to cause a few turnovers and convert some shots to achieve a 76-76 tie at the close of regulation.

In the OT period, Anthony O'Neal took control of the Thompson offense, canning two important baskets. Johnson said the entire THS defense played well throughout the OT, Elliott Bivins and Tim Edwards keying the effort.

O'Neal ended the game with 18 points and seven assists, his best statistical outing of the yet-young season. Richard Kidd added 17 points, Tim Edwards hit 15 points, Elliott Bivins got 12 and Jerome Taylor and Dana Washington added nine points each.

Bivins and Taylor led the THS rebound totals with six and five respectively.

Those efforts served to counter 30 points from Bibb County's Terry Rutledge, the tournament's most valuable player.

Thompson advanced to the tournament finals with a Friday night win over John Carroll, 71-55.

Thompson's press helped the Warriors to an early lead against JC and Thompson coasted to the win.

"We gave good effort but lacked intensity at times," Johnson said.

Dana Washington had his biggest scoring game of the season against Carroll, hitting 17 to lead the Warriors. Elliott Bivins added 10 points while Richard Kidd and Jeff Thomas had nine each.

Thomas also pulled down nine rebounds to lead the Warriors in that category. Anthony O'Neal and Tim Edwards led in assists with five and four respectively.

Bibb County advanced to the finals with an 80-63 win over Bibb County, Rutledge scoring 22 points.

Fairfield captured the tournament's third spot on Saturday with an 80-50 win over John Carroll, Fairfield's Brodrick Conley hitting 25 points in the game.

Success story: a boy and his horse

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

One of the world's best palomino geldings — at least for 1985 — lives in Shelby County, and a Calera 12-year old is his handler.

Max Eisenberg — following in his sister Jessica Ann's footsteps — started showing horses when he was three years old.

Eisenberg outgrew three ponies and grew to love palominos in the years that followed. Two years ago, Eisenberg began to show a palomino his parents borrowed from a friend.

"We wanted to make sure Max was serious about this before we invested a lot of money in a horse," said his mom, Martha Ann Eisenberg. Max proved himself and his seriousness in one successful show season and, last May, became the proud owner of Golden Veto.

From that point, this story of a boy and his horse is nothing but successful.

Max shows the nine-year-old gelding in 4-H competition and in open shows throughout the nation.

While the team of horse and boy is successful in both arenas, they reached the pinnacle of excellence for the palomino breed in late September when Golden Veto was named the winner of the aged gelding halter class at the Palomino World show in Indianapolis and finished fifth with Max aboard in the Western Pleasure class of the same show.

"Veto is a nice, friendly animal to mess with," Eisenberg said recently. "I spend a lot of time with him, and he returns the love."

While Max enjoys his horse, he still subscribes to the saying that a dog is man's best friend and does most of his talking to his Welsh corgi named Fred. "Fred and I are friends," Max said, "but I guess, in a way, I'm friends with the horse too."

Eisenberg's show ring rewards are not without a price. In addition to his chores around the Eisenberg's Triple E Farm, Max must clean Veto's stall daily, ride him daily and brush him daily to keep his coat thinned out and in show-shape.

Max and Veto show virtually year-round, a necessity if the combo is to gain enough national points to qualify for the world show each year. After winning the halter class and placing fifth in Western pleasure, the two hope to add qualification for the Western riding class to their set of competition classes for 1986.

One might think that showing horses and working with Golden Veto would prevent Max from doing the things most 12-year-olds enjoy, but Eisenberg has developed ways to combine his interests in horses with the other activities he enjoys.

"There's time for all that stuff — basketball, football, four-wheeling, hunting — and riding too," Eisenberg insists. At times, friends help out with chores so that they go more quickly. Max has even taught a couple of buddies to ride and they enjoy doing that together.

"I mix in a lot of things," he added, "but you can always find time for horses."

One of Eisenberg's favorite aspects of showing horses is the friendly but heated competition it brings. His relationship with sister Jessica Ann — at 17, a veteran of the show ring — is also competitive at times. "Sometimes I'm in her shadow, but sometimes I'm not," Eisenberg explains. "Sometimes I beat her, and that is when I know I have accomplished something really special. With her experience, it takes a lot to beat her."

A Shelby Academy senior and seventh grader respectively, Jessica Ann and Max are the children of Alan and Martha Ann Eisenberg.

Owens begins boxing with marathon match

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

Chelsea strong-man Tom Owen has been in training since August to open a new chapter in his book of athletic feats. But it seems Owen is still trying to decide what that new chapter will be, boxing or marathons.

Actually, Owen will launch his boxing career in Birmingham Saturday in what can only be described as marathon fashion, fighting at least five bouts in one night.

Owen will spar two minutes each with TV sportscasters Matt Coulter and Ron Grillo, Birmingham Stallions coach Rollie Dotsch, Stallions lineman Pat Saindon, — the "strongest man in the USFL" — and Birmingham radio personality Lonnie Bumpus Jones as a part of a huge wrestling card devised by Pro Promotions of Birmingham to benefit Owen's King's Ranch community for kids.

As an additional highlight, Owen may be pitted against former fighter now Birmingham police chief Arthur Deutesh if the chief's schedule permits.

Neil Monroe of Pro Promotions likens the Saturday fight card in Birmingham — and a similar one involving Owen in Montgomery on Monday night — to the kind of event that has brought musicians together to support various benefits across the nation.

"The Birmingham fight community has been great in this," Monroe said. "They are really excited about helping the King's Ranch."

In addition to Owens six bouts, there will be four professional fights on the Saturday evening fight card at Boutwell Auditorium. Chief among them will be a welter-weight bout featuring 19-2 Mike Hutchison — an Angelo Dundee fighter from Tuscaloosa — with 13-3 Sammy Rivera from Knoxville.

Vandiver's David McCluskey is scheduled to fight in one of the four professional bouts in the Monday night card in Montgomery's Civic Center. Owen will fight six Montgomery area personalities during that fight.

Tickets for the Saturday fight at Boutwell are on sale at the Central Ticket Office, Pizitz and Pizza Hut. Prices range from $5-$100 with all proceeds going to benefit the King's Ranch.

Nicholson winners named

Byron Chew, Edward M. Friend III, Dr. Carl Sanfelippo and Dr. Eugene Sherlock were winners of the first-ever Nick Nicholson Golf Tournament at Riverchase Country Club last week.

The tournament was sponsored by Brookwood Medical Center to benefit the Nursing Endowment Fund at Birmingham-Southern College. Using a modified scramble format, 52 players competed for a golfing weekend in Tucson, Arizona, and other prizes.

Tied for second place were two foursomes: Percy Badham, Dr. O. Thomas Bolding, Howard Hallmark and Bob Wingard; and Fox Defuniak, Dr. Larry E. Dye, William E. Gowers and Dr. Tom Paul.

Winners of special awards were Bob Bernstein and Robert Hewitt for the longest putt; Fox Defuniak and Dr. Ted W. Sartin for the longest drive; and Roger Gehri and Chandler McGee for coming closest to the pin.

SCHS, BCHS pick up first season win

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

Here's notebooking a week of high school basketball that saw two big intra-county clashes and the season's first win for more than one county school.

The Shelby County High Wildcats gave Charlie Dickinson his first win at the SCHS helm when they bested Montevallo 70-68 in a game that was that close throughout.

Montevallo took a four-point, 33-29 lead — and the momentum — into halftime but the Cats opened the third quarter with a quick burst to take a lead they never gave up.

David Wood led the SCHS effort with 16 points, 13 rebounds and five blocked shots. Ashley Phillips was the leading scorer for SCHS as he hit 17 points. Anthony Mallory hit 15 points for the 'Cats while Ambrose Wood added 12.

Montevallo's Tommy Bivins led all scorers in the game with 32 points. The MHS sensation also grabbed 10 rebounds and blocked two shots during the game.

Danny Holmes had 13 points, five assists and five steals in the game for the Dogs while Demetrius Paschel added 11 points, five rebounds and two blocks.

MHS coach Bobby Pierson also noted that Doug Patrick and George Jackson had good games coming off the bench for MHS and indicated that Jackson may have played himself into the point guard position.

The Thompson Warriors man-handled the Vincent Yellowjackets 85-66 in Vincent last Tuesday in Vincent's season opener. The Jackets played without coach Richard Crumpton who missed the game due to illness.

"Richard not being there may have hurt them," said THS coach Thomas Johnson, "but we jumped on them early with our press."

Twelve first-quarter points from a red-hot Richard Kidd helped to stake Thompson to a 24-14 lead after one period. The Warriors upped the margin to 20 points at the half and coasted to the 19-point win.

Kidd's 15-point total led a Thompson scoring attack that saw all of the Warriors record at least a bucket. Jeff Thomas had 14 points, Dana Washington had 12 points and Elliott Bivins 11 to give the Warriors four players in double figures.

Bivins led the Warriors in rebounding with seven, while Anthony O'Neal dished out nine assists.

Vincent's Frank Carter led all scorers in the game with 20 points. Glen Robertson added 16 points for the Jackets, Hugh Kidd hit 15 points, and Halbert Reynolds added 11.

The Briarwood Lions picked up their first win of the young season — an area win at that — with a 61-40 thumping of Oak Grove.

"We're a little bigger than they are and we jumped on them early using our press," BCHS coach Jim Brown said. In addition, Brown noted that strong inside play from Casey Campbell also made a big difference in the contest.

Campbell posted 18 points and nine rebounds in the game to lead the Lions in both categories.

"Casey got some offensive rebounds and our guards did a good job of getting him the ball inside," Brown said.

Conrad Carpenter chipped in 12 points for the Lions prompting Brown to say Carpenter showed signs of "coming to life" after losing some basketball practice time to the late-ending football season.

Victor Nichols had six points and five assists in the game for Briarwood.

The Calera Eagles picked up a big win against 1A West Jefferson, 87-42.

"We were able to run with the ball all night," said Calera coach Charles Jolly. "Our starters played only about a half, then everyone got some game time."

Calera started quickly and had a 30 point lead at the half. The Eagles strong bench was able to stretch that lead to a 45-point margin by game's end.

Mark Jones led the Calera scoring with 22 points and pulled down 10 rebounds. Byron White played his best game of the season in hitting 18 points and pulling down 18 caroms.

Desilyn Avery gave the Eagles a third double-figure scoring total with 13 points while Willie Taylor added nine and Tim Goggins eight.

The Chelsea Hornets picked up their third win of the regular season and prepped for holiday tournament play with a 54-46 win over Moody.

"We swapped baskets until the last couple of minutes," Chelsea coach Mike Sims said. "It was nip and tuck until we got a late lead and slowed the game down."

That move forced Moody to try to match the tall Chelsea team on a man-to-man basis and the Hornets made key baskets or sank key foul shots to secure the win.

Steve Shelton led the winners in scoring with 27 points and was also among the leaders Sims noted in rebounds and assists.

Stephen Guthrie and Greg Dawkins each added nine points for the Hornets.

Guthrie was also among the assist leaders while Mike Beavers was among the top rebounders.

Indian Springs coach Greg Van Horn left 35 opening game points at home when his team traveled to face Gilmore Bell last week when a case of the flu forced senior Randy Mason to stay at home.

Those were 35 points that Van Horn and ISS missed in their 63-50 loss to Bell.

"We aren't deep enough to leave that much scoring behind," Van Horn said, "and we didn't play well besides."

Keith Lusco hit 19 points for ISS in the game and led in rebounding with six.

A general lack of rebounding strength and some key turnovers, Van Horn said, were instrumental in turning the tide of the game in favor of Gilmore Bell.

"We'll just have to regroup and do better this week," Van Horn said.

Applications being taken to stock ponds

Applications for stocking fish in private ponds will be accepted by the Department of Conservation through January 31, 1986, for the 1985-86 season said Game and Fish Director Charles D. Kelley.

Kelley emphasized the sooner an application is received in the district fisheries office the earlier the pond can be stocked. All pond construction or renovation should be completed before the winter rains begin so that ponds can fill and fish be stocked before the weather begins to warm.

All ponds must be free of fish prior to being stocked with hatchery fish and the district fisheries biologist must determine the accurate size of the pond. A fee of $30 per surface acre will be charged for stocking private ponds with bream and bass.

Payment must be received at the Eastaboga Hatchery (Box 158, Eastaboga, AL 36260) by Feb. 7, 1986. Ponds with approved applications and fees paid by December 8, 1985, can be stocked before Christmas.

Fisheries section chief Barry W. Smith said pond owners will be provided a combination of largemouth bass, bluegill and redear sunfish. Smith says that the stocked pond, if managed as directed, should produce good fishing by June, 1987.

In Shelby County, obtain your fish application by writing the District II fisheries office Box 158, Eastaboga, AL 36260.

New regs for hunters

Hunter Orange is being seen throughout Alabama with increasing regularity.

The main reason, said Game and Fish Chief Enforcement Officer Dalton Halbrook, is the new requirement that all deer hunters are required to wear either a vest with a minimum of 144 square inches of Hunter Orange or a full size Hunter Orange hat or cap during hunter's choice gun deer season.

Deer hunters hunting on open public land or on open permit land, whether for fee or not, must also wear hunter orange. Those hunting from a tree stand elevated 12 feet or more above the ground are not required to wear hunter orange; however, they are required to do so when traveling to or from the tree stand. The hunter orange must be of solid color and visible from any angle.

Hunters are encouraged to be aware and abide by these new regulations for two basic reasons. First, hunter orange offers added safety for a successful hunt. Secondly, ethical hunters who abide by the rules derive greater fulfillment from the sport of hunting.

Hornets take tourney 3rd

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Chelsea Hornets split games with Fayetteville and Alabama Christian to bring home a third place finish in last weekend's Fayetteville Holiday basketball tournament.

Mike Sims Hornets suffered their first loss of the season in Friday's tournament opener with Fayetteville, 69-57, then bounced back to whip Alabama Christian 70-38 in the game for the third place trophy.

This week's touch of winter hit the Chelsea basketball team a little early. In the third quarter of what had been a close game with Fayetteville, the Hornets hit a cold shooting streak and could manage only four points while giving up 17.

The teams again matched basket for basket after that point, but the damage had been done.

Steve Shelton and Stephen Guthrie led the Chelsea scoring with 15 points each. Keith Welch added 10 and Mike Beavers hit seven for the Hornets. Welch, Beavers and Shelton were the rebounding leaders, Sims said, while Guthrie and Shelton also contributed several assists.

Kelcey Townsend led Fayetteville with 20 points.

In the consolation win, Chelsea got scoring from every player as they smashed Alabama Christian.

"We have been able to play everyone in every game this year," Sims noted. "That is making us a stronger team."

Shelton and Welch each scored 17 points to lead the Hornet scoring totals against Alabama Christian. Guthrie added 12 points while Beavers and Earl Niven each kicked in nine.

Sims said that Shelton and Welch also shared the rebounding lead while Shelton and Guthrie dished out a lot of assists.

Jeff Krantzusch and Jim Frizzel each scored 12 for Alabama Christian in the game.

For their efforts in the tournament, Shelton and Guthrie represented Chelsea on the all-tournament team.

Fayetteville won their own holiday classic with a 68-56 win over Weogufka.

UM takes wins into holiday

Both the men's and women's basketball teams from the University of Montevallo broke for the Thanksgiving holiday on a winning note. On Monday the Lady Falcons posted an 84-64 win over visiting Jacksonville State and the following night the Falcons evened their record at 2-2 with an 87-78 road win over Stillman College.

The Lady Falcons, now 3-1 and riding a three-game win streak, had little trouble with the Lady Gamecocks. UM roared to a 40-22 halftime lead and then coasted to the victory.

Junior Karen Scott led a parade of double figure scorers for the Lady Falcons with 26 points. Sharen Douglas followed Scott with 13 points, while grabbing 14 rebounds. Former Montevallo star Ruth Perkins and freshman Diane Collins rounded out the scoring with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

Tuesday night at Stillman the Falcons converted 70-percent from the field in the first half and 64-percent for the game, but still had to scramble to hold off the Tigers. UM led 52-41 at the halfway point, but with three minutes to play were scrapping to hang on to a 78-76 advantage.

Then in the final two minutes, with the game on the line, senior guard John Battle canned six consecutive free throws to ice the win. Battle finished with eight points, all from the free throw line.

Eddy Norris had 17 points and eight rebounds to pace the Falcons. Kennedy King chipped in 12 points and eight more boards. Reserve guards Anthony Lawrence and Sammy Jackson contributed 10 points each.

Youth Warriors gain wins

The Thompson Warriors recorded two big wins in consecutive weeks of action recently.

The 105-pounders defeated Park West 55-0 then beat Hoover 54-0 as Derico Jones scored four touchdowns in the two games.

Kip Hale had three TDs in the two games while Eric Kendrick, Pee Wee Stoudmire and Patrick Wootton each scored twice. Single touchdowns were scored by Ches Harris and Chris Lovelady and on a pass from Brian Young to Brian Tucker.

Pete Dupree and Andy Jones recovered fumbles against Hoover while Pee Wee Stoudmire and Kenneth Garner had recoveries against Park West. Danny Evans also blocked a Park West punt.

Coaches tabbed Jeff Burrell and Isaac Lewis as the top defensive players for the Hoover game.

The remainder of the Thompson youth teams had a rough time in recent action.

Park West defeated the Thompson 85-pounders 14-6 despite an Adam Kayton TD for Thompson.

Thompson's 80-pounders dropped a 12-6 decision to Gardendale and a 32-0 decision to Park West.

Against Gardendale, Bran Dill, Jami Davis and Douglas

Miles provided the blocking for Mike Zelwak to score Thompson's only TD. Coaches tabbed John Burke and Jonathan Williams for their play on defense.

Against Park West, Jason Young and Mike Zelwak made interceptions for the youth Warriors. Coaches noted the defensive efforts of Jason Young, Chris Colburn and Seth Vines.

The Thompson 120-pounders ended regular season play with a 20-0 loss to Gardendale. The youth Warriors finished second to Gardendale in the JeffCo League's regular season competition and will meet Gardendale again in league play-off action.

State offers gamewatch

Thousands of hunters will be taking to the forests and fields in the hope of harvesting some of Alabama's surplus game animals and birds.

Most hunters are true sportsmen. Occasionally however, property owners and sportsmen hunters will spot or be confronted by illegal hunters in action, witness or become knowledgeable of their illegal hunting activities.

Such illegal hunting activities should be reported immediately to your local conservation enforcement officer or sheriff's office. If neither of these officials is available, call the toll-free Gamewatch number 1-800-272-4263.

That's the advice of Game and Fish Director Charles D. Kelley who says, "The illegal hunter is a thief. He robs legitimate sportsmen of the harvest of surplus game, developed by management programs financed by sportsmen through their purchase of licenses, permits, migratory bird stamps and the excise taxes they pay when purchasing guns and ammunition."

Accurate and quickly reported information on illegal hunters can result in them being successfully apprehended, prosecuted, and eliminating the threat they pose to proper game management and legitimate hunting.

The cost of the toll-free Gamewatch number continues to be borne as a public service by the Alabama Wildlife Federation representing sportsmen throughout the State.

Kmarts provide food baskets

K-mart stores across the nation will provide a two-part holiday feast on Thanksgiving and Christmas for over 50,000 needy families, K-mart Chairman Bernard M. Fauber announced today.

On Wednesday, Nov. 27, 10 families received food baskets from each of K-mart's 2,100 stores. The baskets contained turkey, potatoes, vegetables, stuffing, bread and pumpkin pie — all the trimmings necessary for a traditional holiday meal.

Local civic and social service organizations were contacted by each K-mart store to help locate that community's most needy families.

The second half of the program will take place Tuesday, Dec. 24, Christmas Eve, when another 15 families will receive food baskets from their local K-mart store.

According to the latest U.S. Census Bureau Current Population Reports, 35.3 million persons live in poverty in our country," said Fauber. "Each and every community must face the reality of hunger and do something about it," he said. "Corporations have the power and resources to reach out to these people during this holiday season. K-mart asks that U.S. businesses organize similar programs to help feed the poor," Fauber added.

K-mart corporation is the second-largest retailer in the world, with 1984 sales of $21.1 billion. The company operates more than 2,100 K-mart discount department stores in the U.S., Puerto Rico and Canada.

safe, enjoyable, and prosperous

HAPPY NEW YEAR!!!

Wes J. Westphal Plus all of our members

After the parade, members of the PTO will light a Christmas tree in the vacant lot adjacent to the bank. Then everyone will be invited to the elementary school for their annual bazaar and supper. The big night will also include super sales in many of the city's businesses. And to make shopping even pleasanter, garden club members made Christmas wreaths to decorate stores throughout town.

By coordinating activities with the elementary school and PTO,

Chamber of Commerce Parade Chairman Janice Everse said the event is expected to be the most successful ever held in the community.

Rodgers has 33-year love affair with children

I've had the children ask me 'You love us, don't you Mrs. Rodgers?' I always tell them 'Yes I do... Yes I do.'

Corene Rodgers is in the midst of a 33-year love affair with children. The affair — the last 18 years of which has been carried on at Thompson Middle School — has lasted through five school systems and the rearing of two children of her own. Corene Rodgers is a teacher because she wants to help children.

Rodgers teaches Chapter 1 reading and math at TMS. Chapter 1 is a program designed to give students extra help in areas where their progress is below grade level, and 14 years ago the administration at TMS asked Rodgers if she would take the program.

Rodgers answered yes and gave up her sixth grade classroom to

Pendleton enjoys nature for school and vacation

Predicting the weather and tagging butterflies are two of the many things Emily Pendleton really enjoys.

Pendleton, who for the second consecutive year, was named Montevallo Middle School's Outstanding Teacher, teaches a unit on weather to 8th grade science classes, and when time permits, tags butterflies for the University of Toronto.

Explaining how she got started on the butterfly project, Pendleton says one of her classes a few years back wrote to an author of a National Geographic article who was an authority on the Monarch butterfly.

She eventually received a letter from the man, Pendleton says, asking if she would be interested in tagging the butterflies.

"When my husband, Dudley, and I go on vacation, I always

Boone's students learn from positive experiences

"Kids learn from positive experiences; negatives slow them down," said Carolyn Boone, teacher of the year from Columbiana Middle School.

Boone teaches reading and math to sixth and seventh graders in the Chapter One program. Chapter One is designed to give individual attention and motivation to underachievers.

She adapts all lesson work to give positive impressions. Rather than teaching cause and effect relationships with sentences that say a child could not play because it was raining, she adapts with examples such as "Joe made the honor roll because he studied."

The key to motivating low achievers is letting them know a teacher cares and helping them to believe in themselves, Boone said.

Egger is congratulated by Probate Judge Tommy Snowden

Egger honored for community work

A Westover man has received recognition for his community service by his church and the Westover Volunteer Fire Department.

George H. Egger has been an active supporter of the Westover Volunteer Fire Department and of the Mt. Tabor Methodist Church, and was recently awarded plaques from both groups.

Egger was a driving force in getting land donated for a fire station and revitalizing the department, said WVFD fire chief Pete Patmalnee.

He has been a board member for three or four years and has been active in fundraising and recruiting help from others.

"He's just dedicated to it," said Steele Hodges, assistant fire chief. "We think the world of him."

Egger said the fire department is making progress, but needs more help from the community.

He encourages Westover residents to become sustaining members for the fire department by paying $60 a year to help with equipment and expenses.

"If we can get everybody in the district to join, it would be self-supporting," he said.

He thanked county officials, particularly Probate Judge Tommy Snowden and County Engineer Gary Ray, for their support of the fire department.

Egger was also honored by the congregation of Mt. Tabor Methodist Church in Westover where he has attended for more than 10 years.

He is trying to find new members for the church also, and did a lot of painting and other work when he was in better health.

Egger was born in Birmingham, but has lived in Shelby County for the past 40 years.

Local students are chosen UM senior elites

Six area students were named Senior Elite at the University of Montevallo's Elite Night Nov. 13.

Chosen by the departments as outstanding seniors in their respective fields were Ellen Arnold, Sheila Bird, Nita Fridley, Ruth Perkins, Carolyn Simmons and Sheila Spates.

Miss Arnold, daughter of Terry and Eleanor Arnold of Montevallo, is the Senior Elite member from the English department. A 1982 graduate of Montevallo High School, she is majoring in English and art at UM.

Pendleton

take my net along," Pendleton says. "Dudley tries to pretend he doesn't know me," she laughs.

Talking about her selection for the Outstanding honor two years running, Pendleton says she it made her feel strange.

"I asked the teachers if they didn't want to reconsider," she laughs. "But, really, I was honored."

One of the roles Pendleton took on at MMS was chairing the steering committee which worked on obtaining Southern Association accreditation.

That goal was accomplished this fall, and Pendleton was one of the group that traveled to New Orleans during the Thanksgiving holidays, to accept official certification.

Pendleton says the achievement gives her a great deal of satisfaction.

"The students benefit when the school meets Southern Association standards," she explains. "They have the required number of books in the library, a full-time librarian, a full-time counselor and certified teachers teaching in their field."

She first leaned toward becoming a teacher, Pendleton says, when she entered fourth grade at Montevallo and the teacher was Minnie Dunn. "She was a wonderful teacher," Pendleton remembers.

Then when Pendleton entered Alabama College, now the University of Montevallo, Dunn was teaching there. "It just seemed natural for me to gravitate toward her and take education courses," she says.

Pendleton earned a BS in elementary education in 1956 and a MAT in education, biology, in 1962. She taught at Montevallo High School from 1956-1969, and since then has been at MMS.

What she tries to do in her teaching Pendleton says, is to try and get students interested in science and to learn things they can apply to everyday life.

For example, Pendleton says students learn about nutrition so they will know what makes for a healthy diet; they learn the basics of first aid and also how to care for animals.

Animal care is taught right in the classroom with the three guinea pigs that live in cages in the front of the room.

"The students have total care of the animals," Pendleton explains. "They feed them and clean the cages."

The guinea pigs are also used during discussions of genetics and reproduction. One of the guineas, in fact, is expecting at the present time.

"That's Emily," Pendleton laughs. "She's my namesake." The other guinea pigs are named Jellybean and Oscar.

She has not seen much change in students in the 29 years she's been teaching, Pendleton says. "Oh their interests change," she admits, "but students this age are still so unpredictable. They're just wonderful and interesting."

Her interests outside the classroom include anything that has to do with nature, and reading. "I like to read just about everything," she says.

She and her husband like to camp, and she's been a faithful member of the choir of the Montevallo United Methodist Church for many years.

The Pendletons have two grown daughters, Debbie and Pam.

MISSION ACCOMPLISHED.

The MISSION of the University of Montevallo is, in part, to provide UM students a "small college" public higher educational experience of high quality... designed for their intellectual and personal growth in the pursuit of meaningful employment and responsible, informed citizenship.

For more than a hundred Montevallo students, the FIRST STAGE of accomplishing the latter portion of that MISSION is ending in a few days. Soon they will be

The unique photographic treatment of the University of Montevallo ceremonial mace, composed against a contemporary background, suggests that the strength of our past is not being forgotten as we move into the future. Indeed, in preparing for tomorrow, we are committed to preserving the basic principles contributing to our humanity—such principles as those embedded in: Honor, Industry, Fidelity, Charity, Fortitude, Dedication, Responsibility, Virtue.

Each Latin word above was engraved on one of the "burns" on the head of Montevallo's mace by silversmith Herr Dr. Franck Kiss. The mace, engraved also with the founding date of the University, A.D. 1896, is carried by a student leader in five academic ceremonies annually, including graduation and Honors and Founders Day convocations.

The mace thus is a symbol of our tradition—and of our tomorrow.

entering upon a NEW STAGE of experience of the life-long adventure of learning and earning a living.

At Montevallo, we like to say we are preparing graduates for their LAST jobs — not just their first ones. That's certainly been the case of the members of the Fall Class of 1985. As they soon join in the long procession of Montevallo men and women who have preceded them since 1896, UM faculty and staff feel confident, therefore, in proclaiming MISSION ACCOMPLISHED.

WELCOME THE FALL 1985 GRADUATING CLASS

The UM students whose names are listed below are in the final process of fulfilling requirements for graduation on December 13, 1985—in a ceremony featuring Mr. James C. White, Commissioner of Revenue for the State of Alabama, and managing partner of Banks, Finley, White and Company, Certified Public Accountants. We invite you to join us in saluting them for their ACCOMPLISHMENT—and to welcome them into your personal and professional communities. We at Montevallo believe they will prove to be valued friends, neighbors, colleagues, employees, and citizens.

The 35-member club is made up of students who must maintain an A-B average in school and are admitted only after being recommended by a teacher on the basis of good citizenship and character.

Officers for the group include president April Mask, vice president Patrick Wootten, secretary Cindy Thathenurst and projects chairman Paige Luna.

"Our club's purpose is to serve the community," said sponsor Debbie Patterson. "It is quite an honor to be a member," sponsor Ralph Vogel added.

help these special students.

"In doing this, I can reach children who are below grade level," Rodgers said. "They need me."

Often, the children's biggest need, Rodgers said, is to know that someone cares about them and believes in them. "They need to develop a better self-image," she added, "and we try hard to help them do that."

Rodgers takes a simple approach to improving her students' image of themselves.

"First," she said, "you give them work that they can accomplish if they work hard. Then you tell them 'you are somebody and you can do this.'"

If they fail once, the instructions become "Yes you can, just try a little harder."

Finally there comes the reward - "I knew you could do it!"

Positive re-enforcement is a key in dealing with improved self-image. For that reason, Rodgers and her students enjoy the addition of computers in the classroom that have made a big difference in the program over the last few years.

"It is almost a reward in itself for most of them to work with the computers," Rodgers said. "It gives them a chance to see success and they can build on that."

While teaching doesn't leave a lot of free time, Rodgers does enjoy singing in her church choir at First Baptist Fairfield, reading fiction and cooking.

Rodgers has also earned a master's degree at the University of Montevallo after beginning her teaching with a B.A. from Miles College.

Rodgers and her husband, Lucious, an assistant county agent in the Alabama Extension Service, have two sons, Anthony Dwight and Ronald Pierre.

"That's what makes this worthwhile," she continued. "In teaching, it's not the monetary rewards that count. It is how the students feel about you."

"Anytime you're talking about low achievers, you're talking about children who don't feel good about themselves," she said. Sincere, honest encouragement is essential to changing that, she said.

Boone wanted to become a teacher after watching her sister teach in a small country school, she said. She helped grade papers and attended class parties.

Even now, she said, "I love to grade papers. I like to see children making progress; I want to know what they're doing."

The satisfaction in teaching is the opportunity to be an influence in the lives of children, she said.

As a student, "I respected my teachers more than anyone else. All the ones that really meant a lot to me were enthusiastic about what they were teaching and made me feel like they cared whether I learned or not."

The Chapter One style of individualized teaching is "a wonderful opportunity to be that kind of teacher," she said.

Outside of her own class, Boone is actively involved with school programs. She is sponsor of the school newspaper and chairwoman of the Miss Merry Christmas contest currently underway.

Boone also has worked with textbook selection, the fall carnival, homecoming and other school events.

She has traveled with students from Columbiana Middle and High Schools to Washington, D.C. and will go to London this year with the students and four other teachers.

Boone started college at Southeast Missouri State University in 1963. After attending for two years, she worked as a social worker and as a Head Start teacher.

She returned and received a B.S. degree in education in 1969. She has an M.A. in education from Murray State University in Kentucky and was certified for elementary principalship and supervision at the University of Louisville in Kentucky.

Boone moved to Shelby County from Louisville four years ago. She lives in Riverchase with her husband John, a staff manager with South Central Bell, 16-year-old GERALYN and 9-year-old Jeremy.

"We're all individuals and yet we all support each other and do a lot of things together," she said.

The family enjoys camping, canoeing, running and soccer playing.

Pierre currently attends Memphis State University on an assistantship where he is working on an advanced degree in communications.

Anthony is married and lives in Texas, making a home for the Rodgers only grandson, Nicholas Dwight.

"I wish he was not so far away," Rodgers said. "I have to spoil him at a distance."

But Rodgers has other children to love when she goes to school every day.

"If you can see just one child make progress, that gives you the power to continue," Rodgers said. "Sometimes they will come back, days or years later, and

Grandparents honored

by K.A. Turner
 Staff Writer

Students in Sherrell Cochran's first grade class at Valley Elementary were not surprised when their teacher wore an "Indian suit" to school on the day before Thanksgiving. The students were dressed like little Indians as well.

Valley student Hillary Anderson wasn't surprised when her grandmother and grandfather from Oregon showed up at school on the same day. A lot of her friends had grandparents there as well. Grandparents Days has become a Valley tradition on the day before Thanksgiving.

Valley Elementary School was a busy place last Wednesday as students celebrated Grandparents Day by hosting their grandparents for lunch in the school cafeteria.

More than 350 different grandparents were present to eat turkey and dressing with their grandchildren. They came from Pelham and the surrounding area, and they came from as far away as Pennsylvania, Florida, Indiana, Oregon and Texas.

But what was most important, said Valley Elementary principal Dr. Norma Rogers, was that the grandparents came to be a part of their grandchildren's school lives.

"This has become a popular tradition here at Valley," Rogers said. "We have Grandparents Day on the day before Thanksgiving so that many grandparents will be in the area visiting families and so they can share a nice meal with the children."

Students from throughout the school met their grandparents at 10:30 a.m. for lunch and an optional tour of the school facility.

Grandparents also were invited to see the playground and to visit the library where a book fair was in progress.

This year, two special awards were also presented: one to the grandparents who had traveled the farthest to be with their grandchild and one to the oldest grandparent present.

Fifth grader Kristie Dunaway and her grandmother Clara Dunaway of Pelham shared the prize for the oldest grandparent present. Clara, who readily admits to being "79 years young" said she enjoyed all of the activities of the day because "age doesn't ever bother me."

Dunaway is not unfamiliar with the halls of Valley, as Kristie is the last of several grandchildren Clara has visited there.

Hillary Anderson and her grandparents, Marlyn and Mary Anderson of Portland, Oregon, shared the prize for the grandparents who traveled the greatest distance.

The Andersons are visiting their son, Kent, and his family for a week and made the trip to Hillary's school their first visit from the house.

A few of the grandparents had to look through war paint and

SMC covers variety of advanced surgeries

The surgery department at Shelby Medical Center has kept pace with the rapid growth of medical technology.

"SMC now does most all surgery except brain surgery and open heart surgery," said Dr. Paul Salter Jr., a general surgeon and chief of surgery at Shelby Medical Center.

The surgery department houses three major operating rooms and a room for urological procedures. The surgeons who practice at SMC include specialists in neurosurgery, urology, orthopedics, ophthalmology, plastic surgery, cardiovascular and thoracic surgery and gynecology.

"This is the best-equipped hospital of its size in the United States," said Dr. Kiret Patel of Alabama Anesthesia Associates. Patel is the anesthesiologist for SMC.

"The monitoring, anesthesia and surgical equipment is all state-of-the-art, and the anesthesia staff is board-certified. Professional visitors (surgeons and anesthesiologists) are always surprised that a hospital this size is so well-equipped," said Patel.

One of the newest surgical techniques to be used at SMC is "interlocking nailing." This technique is used in setting leg fractures when the bone is completely broken or broken in several places.

A long steel nail is inserted lengthwise through the bone and is then locked into place with screws. This method allows for less movement of the fractured bone and lessens the possibility of shortening of the leg bone.

SMC is one of the first hospitals in the area to use this technology, said Rebecca Langston, coordinator of the surgery unit.

A total of 24 active and associate physicians and 10 dental surgeons perform surgery at SMC. They are assisted by Mrs. Langston, five registered nurses, three operating room technicians, an instrument technician, a nursing assistant and a unit clerk.

When asked how SMC's surgery department compared to other area hospitals, Salter, who has been on staff at SMC for 25 years, said, "I can best answer that by saying that all members of my family who have required surgery have been operated on at Shelby Medical Center."

Last year the department handled 3,658 cases, an average of more than 10 for every day of the year.

New program gives tips to kids alone at home

Children throughout Shelby County now have three new services to help them handle situations while at home alone.

These services, part of the KID'S AT HOME ALONE Project, were first offered to Jefferson County Elementary School children in September.

They include:

1. A handbook, in the form of a coloring book, of personal safety and coping skills to be distributed to all elementary school children between the ages of 6-12, produced by the YW and funded by the Junior League of Birmingham;
2. An educational video tape provided by the Junior League of Birmingham and filmed by Mr. Norton Dill, director of television, Vestavia Hills United Methodist Church, which focuses on the most typical situations a child might face alone and teaches the child how those situations may best be handled (funding for the additional video tapes for Shelby County was made possible by Dr. Butch Goldblatt and the AMI Riverchase Health Center);

3. A telephone reassurance line, 328-KIDS, staffed by the Crisis Center after school from 3 - 6 p.m.

County men listed in Outstanding volume

The Board of Advisors for the Outstanding Young Men of America awards program announced that Mark Randal Hall of Helena and James Merrill Roberts of Pelham have been selected for inclusion in the 1985 edition of Outstanding Young Men Of America.

These men were selected from nominations received from senators, congressmen, governors, mayors, state legislators, university and college presidents and deans as well as various civic groups.

In every community, there are young men working diligently to make their cities, as well as their country, better places in which to live. These men, having distinguished themselves in one or more fields of endeavor, are outstanding and deserve to be recognized for their service to community, professional leadership, academic achievement, business advancement, cultural accomplishments and civic and political participation.

The men listed, along with fellow Outstanding Young Men throughout North America, will be featured in this prestigious annual awards publications.

Learning center graduates sixteen students in first class

The Learning Center in Alabaster graduated its first class November 27.

Sixteen people aged 55 and over completed a 14 week course in office skills, designed to help them re-enter the job market, according to instructor Margaret Ennis.

The organization also works with the employment service and with graduates' resumes to help them find jobs, she said.

A new class is scheduled to begin December 9. Some places are still open and anyone interested should contact Ennis at 663-2524.

Indian vests to find their grandchildren as students in Sherrell Cochran's first grade class concluded a unit of study on Indians by dressing the part.

In addition, the first graders made an Indian teepee by drawing authentic Indian symbols on a large piece of brown paper then wetting it and rolling it to look like deer hide.

"We even had to have lodging poles that could have been dragged behind a horse," Cochran said of her students' insistence on realism.

In addition to their teepee, each student made a vest and headband which they wore throughout the day.

The unit included studies on each of the four main Indian tribes, their habitats and food. The students saw films, learned Indian songs and learned sign language. In addition, some students fashioned tomahawks at home or brought arrowheads to share with the class.

"It has really been an experience," Cochran laughed.

Library to mail books

Shelby County Public Libraries announces a new free public service, "Books By Mail," available first to readers who are 55 or older and to readers who are homebound regardless of age.

When requests from these two groups are met, the service will be extended to other interested readers.

Books By Mail, which will be based at the Harrison Regional Library, headquarters for the Shelby County Public Libraries, will send books, books on cassette, and LARGE PRINT BOOKS through the mail and pay postage both ways. A catalogue of titles available will be mailed to each participating reader and will be supplemented periodically with new titles.

Readers will receive request cards with the catalogue and they may request their first order of books by mail on these cards or by phone. A new request card will be sent with the first book order and returned with new reader selections indicated when the books are returned by mail.

Special requests of titles not in the catalogue will be taken on the request card or by phone and filled as quickly as possible.

Books By Mail is being funded by a Library Services and Construction Act grant made to the Shelby County Public Libraries. This grant is scheduled to become effective November, 1985.

Studies of Books By Mail programs in other library systems indicate that this service is very cost effective when compared with other outreach library service plans.

The present collections of books in the Shelby County Libraries headquarters is sufficient to begin the program and the present staff is sufficient to initiate the program. More books, books on cassette, and LARGE PRINT BOOKS will be purchased as needed.

The Department of Pensions and Securities and the Program on Aging are cooperating with the Shelby County Public Libraries to publicize this service.

A bulk mailing will be made soon to send information and application blanks to at least four thousand county residents.

If your group or agency, club or church is interested in helping to publicize Books By Mail or in participating in Books By Mail please call the Harrison Regional Library at 669-3171 and ask for Books By Mail.

Advice on parental kidnapping

By Charles A. Graddick
Attorney General

There are very few people who would ever intentionally harm their own children.

Yet, as unbelievable as it sounds, thousands of children are kidnapped each year by one of their own parents. Usually, these folks do not have legal custody of the children following divorce, abandonment or separation.

Research has shown that even if the kidnapping parent has "good" intentions, these kids still suffer a lot of emotional and psychological damage resulting from being uprooted from their homes, being separated from the remaining parent and from being forced to spend their young lives "on the run" from parents and officials who are searching for them.

It is apparent to me, as attorney general, that the problem is getting worse.

That is why I have chosen child kidnapping as the topic for this week's column. I hope the information will help readers who have been victims of this kind of crime and will alert others who may face similar problems some place down the road.

When parental kidnapping occurs, there are possible criminal remedies as well as civil remedies available to the "victim parent."

The police, the district attorney, the Alabama Bureau of Investigation and the FBI are part of the criminal system. Your lawyer, private investigators you hire and the Family Court are part of the civil justice system.

My advice to you is to seek help from both the criminal and civil parts of the system, at the same time.

Locating the abducted child is the single most important task facing the parent; there can be no peace of mind until you know where your child is.

I urge you to take some specific steps: First, once you are sure the child has been kidnapped, file a Missing Persons Report with your local police department. There is a federal law (Public Law 97-292) ensuring that a complete description of your missing child can be entered into the FBI's National Crime Information Center Computer even if the abductor or suspected abductor has not been charged with a crime.

The law is found in Title 28 of the United States Code at Section 534. No matter what you are told by persons who may be unfamiliar with the law, you do not need a custody decree to file this report.

Next, obtain legal custody of your child if you have not done so already. You may petition the court for custody even after your child has been abducted. You may have to hire a lawyer to help you get a custody decree.

Third, consider asking the district attorney or the police to file criminal charges against the abductor if you intend to press charges after you get your child back. You will need to meet with the district attorney or the police personally for this.

Also, remember it is almost always necessary to have a custody order to press criminal charges.

Fourth, if the district attorney charges the abductor with a felony crime, make sure the state felony warrant is entered promptly into the National Crime Information Center Computer.

Also, ask the district attorney to ask the local U.S. Attorney to issue something called an Unlawful Flight to Avoid Prosecution (UFAP) warrant. If your case meets the criteria for a federal warrant, the FBI can then assist in the search.

When your child is located, send a certified copy of your custody decree to the Family Court in the place where your child is living. Then, request the local police (where your child is living) to help recover your child.

If the local police will not help without a court order, petition the Family Court to enforce your custody decree. Your lawyer can help you do this.

When your child is returned, go back to Family Court. Ask the judge to limit the abductor's visitation rights. Also, ask the judge to add provisions to your custody decree to prevent further abductions.

Finally, try to find a parental kidnapping support group to help you and your child get over the emotional upset resulting from the abduction. The Attorney General's Office has a list of Parental Kidnapping Support Groups throughout the United States.

Also, my office has a list of books and articles for parents and their attorneys as well as some printed materials that can be very important in helping you find your child.

If you will call the Attorney General's Office of Victims Assistance at 1-800-626-7676, I will see that these materials are sent to you. Remember, this is a free phone call from anywhere in Alabama.

Finally, most states have an office called the State Parent Locator Service. In Alabama, that number is 205-832-6236. If you have trouble reaching it, the number of the Federal Parent Locator Service is 301-443-4950.

District attorney is people's representative

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is part of a weekly series on the services provided by the governmental offices in Shelby County.

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

As part of the 18th Circuit, Shelby County shares a district attorney and staff with Clay and Coosa counties.

Lawyers in the district attorney's office represent the State of Alabama and victims of crime in the state legal system.

Filling this role involves a complicated process, said Bob Williams, deputy district attorney.

It can include giving legal advice to law enforcement agencies about investigation or to magistrates about issuing warrants of arrest.

The office represents the public and victims throughout the court system, including arraignments, preliminary hearings to find if there is enough evidence to have a grand jury, grand jury hearings to find whether a trial is needed, pre-trial conferences, trials, sentencing hearings, revocations of probation and parole requests.

Although some cases are settled without going to trial, Williams stresses that "We do not have plea bargaining, per se, in Shelby County."

The office consults with law enforcement personnel and victims and takes prior criminal activity into account when deciding whether to offer a settlement and under what terms.

"Handling criminal cases is not like selling a used car," he said. In most cases, a defendant must take the sentence offered or try his luck in court. The office rarely accepts counter-offers from defendants' lawyers.

About 90 percent of people charged with felonies in Shelby County plead guilty, he said.

Of 2945 felony cases tried since 1979, only three county cases have been lost, according to Williams.

The staff is also pleased that the level of crime has gone down. In 1980, felony crime had increased at a rate of 101 percent since 1978. By 1984, the felony rate had decreased by 31 percent since 1980. In 1980, Shelby County had 569 felony cases, but there were only 384 in 1984, he said.

Williams credits that drop to cooperation between the district attorney's office and law enforcement officials, to strict enforcement of Alabama's habitual offender act and to hard standards in the disposition of certain cases. For example, he said, prosecutors always insist on a jail sentence for anyone who sells drugs, commits a burglary or a violent felony, even if it's a first time offense.

As well as prosecuting felony cases, the office prosecutes all misdemeanors in the district court and works in the juvenile court with delinquent cases and children in need of supervision.

The staff handles civil suits to seize items used in illegal activities, such as cars used in drug crimes, and sells these, with the money going to a law enforcement agency earmarked for drug investigation.

Attorneys review audits of county agencies and present any embezzlement to the grand jury.

The office also is the depository for challenged ballots in elections.

Although the office has the authority to give legal opinions and interpret statutes, this is generally done by the state attorney general's office.

In addition, there are several special programs administered through the district attorney's office.

Attorneys cooperate with law enforcement officials and the Department of Pensions and Security in a child abuse system.

The first goal is to protect children by immediately removing them from the abusive situation or by arresting the abuser, Williams said. Secondly, the system works for long-term protection, through prosecution of the abuser and by making sure the child is not returned home until it is safe.

Mental health organizations work with the child abuse system to prevent further emotional trauma from being inflicted on the child by the legal system.

Part of the network of police, social workers and attorneys working with child abuse cases is the Hands Off organization. The group — of which Assistant District Attorney Jim Fuhrmeister is a member of the board of directors — educates children to prevent abuse.

Free videotaping of children for identification is also available. Copies are kept in the district attorney's office for use if a child disappears.

A child support unit is kept separate from the criminal prosecutions, devoting all its time to collecting payments owed by non-custodial parents.

Here, too, the office works closely with DPS. Failure to pay child support can be reported to DPS and the district attorney's office will prosecute the cases. Civil remedies, such as wage withholding and citations for contempt of court are sought, Williams said.

"We're really proud because we're collecting more and more each year," he said. In Shelby County for 1981-1982, $55,000 was collected, compared to over $256,000 for 1984-1985.

The 18th circuit was among the first to have a worthless check unit, as provided by the Alabama Legislature in the spring of 1984.

Merchants would receive worthless checks totaling thousands of dollars, but individually too small to be worth prosecuting. Under the current law, merchants send notices to writers of bad checks that the case will be turned over to the district attorney's office if payment is not made within ten days.

After ten days, the victim signs an arrest warrant and the check writer is sent a notice to contact the district attorney's office within ten days to avoid prosecution. Offenders can pay restitution and service fees and the warrant will be dismissed.

Of 863 cases since September 1984, only 30 percent have required trials. The office has collected $20,000 in restitution.

A welfare fraud program involves close work with DPS and the state attorney general's office.

Information from applications for food stamps and Aid to Dependent Children is verified by computer. DPS feeds its report of the number in the household, the number employed and other income into a computer from the Alabama Industrial Relations Board.

If the computer finds income that was not revealed in an application, or other falsification, the attorney general's office sends this back to the local DPS.

Investigators often verify the information in person. In cases where little mistakes resulted from misunderstandings, restitution is handled administratively. Where fraud is found, it is prosecuted.

"The accent, as in all cases, is on full restitution." The office asks that restitution be made a condition of probation, work release or parole.

White collar crime is dealt with by investigator Bob O'Connor, who went to a special school on the subject about three years ago. The range of white collar crime faced by the office goes from embezzlement in the cable television industry involving several hundreds of thousands of dollars, to prosecutions of grocery store checkers.

The district attorney's office is helped with white collar crime by the attorney general's office also. In addition, it was selected to join the Regional Organized Crime Information Center, a selective clearinghouse of information on organized and white collar crime in the Southeast.

O'Connor also works with the Shelby County Drug Enforcement Agency, with Fuhrmeister serving as prosecutor advisor.

District Attorney Billy Hill was appointed to fill an unexpired term in 1979. He was elected to a six-year term in 1980.

Bob Williams is deputy district attorney. Jim Fuhrmeister is assistant district attorney and Bob O'Connor is investigator. Brenda Cook is secretary.

Joy Gipson is victim service officer and also works in the worthless check unit. The child support unit has an attorney, Amy Wilkerson; a secretary, Gale Farr and an administrative assistant, Barbara Kidd.

John McBrayer is part-time assistant district attorney for misdemeanors and juvenile cases.

New site is planned for North Shelby library

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

Plans for a new location for a North Shelby County Library are under way.

Two acres on County Road 495, a quarter of a mile off U.S. 280, have been donated as a building site for the library, according to Nancy Woosley, director of the county library system.

A one-half acre lot was previously donated at the intersection of Alabama Highway 119 and County Road 29. That land is now being used as a station for the Shelby County Bookmobile, which is immobilized because of mechanical problems.

Moving the location of the future library has several advantages, Woosley said.

The two acres will allow a building twice as large as originally planned. A 200 foot frontage compares to 35 feet in the first lot.

The new location, on a side road by Lloyd's Restaurant, will "put the library on the edge of a major development," Woosley said, allowing it to serve a much larger area.

The library will be able to serve Beat 12, Beat 13, Shoal Creek, Westover and potentially Sterrett and Dunnivant, Woosley said.

The library system has applied for a $200,000 grant from the state to fund construction of the new building. A local match of 25 percent is required, but the land can be counted as the local contribution, she said.

The state is expected to announce who receives grants March 19, Woosley said.

The Shelby County Commission has approved a resolution supporting the library system's agreement with C.W. Daniels, who donated the land, and agreeing to fund improvements to County Road 495 if the grant is received and the new library is built.

If the library is not built, the land will revert back to Daniel's ownership. The commission was concerned that the new library be definite before improving the road, so that the county would not be funding improvements for a private citizen.

County Attorney Frank "Butch" Ellis noted that the letter of intent calls for ownership of the land and building to revert if it ever stops being used as a library.

He suggested that after a certain number of years, the agreement should call for the right of first refusal to purchase the land rather than for ownership to revert. That change would be helpful if the library system ever needed to arrange financing, he said.

Commissioners also asked Woosley to gather estimates on all repairs needed to put the bookmobile back into operation.

The county's highway department estimated $8,000 to repair the broken crankshaft, according to Woosley. Commissioners wondered if replacement with a remanufactured part might be more economical.

Other repairs to the bookmobile are also needed. Woosley said the library board has been considering options such as replacing the bookmobile with a Books-by-Mail program or delivery by a much smaller van. A new bookmobile would cost $85,000, she said.

In the meantime, the bookmobile is stationed with books at Hwy 119 and 29. It will be open Tuesdays, except for Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve, from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

State will issue driver's licenses

A new procedure for issuing driver's licenses will begin in January.

Licenses are now issued instantly at the local level from a probate judge's office or a license commissioner's office. After January, they will be issued centrally from the Alabama Department of Public Safety.

Applicants will still go to the local office and be given a temporary license without a photo. A photograph will be taken at that time and the negatives will be sent to Montgomery to be developed and printed on the new driver's license. The old license will be kept in the interim for identification.

People with valid licenses will not have to apply for the new license until that one expires.

The Probate Judges Association opposed the new procedure and tried to have legislation passed to prevent it, but failed.

Alabaster City Hall will soon have ramp

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

A ramp for the handicapped will be installed soon at Alabaster City Hall.

The ramp will be in the front of the building, between the city hall and the water and gas board, with two parking spaces off U.S. Highway 31.

Work is expected to begin next week and will be completed in about six weeks, according to City Clerk Dot Henry.

At its meeting last Thursday, the city council awarded the job to Passmore Construction, which submitted the lowest bid of $9,230.

The council also approved a grant proposal for installing sewer lines on old Highway 31, now County Road 283. The city is getting cost estimates and applying for an Alabama Small Cities Community Development Block Grant.

Columbiana applies again for sewer grant

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

The Columbiana City Council agreed Monday to have another go at getting a CDBG grant to extend the sewer system.

Allen Creel from the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission, told the council the filing deadline for the grant is Monday.

Last year, the city's grant application was rejected because the sewerage treatment lagoon is already operating at capacity.

Since project engineer Ken Layton is working on a proposal using new and innovative technology in hopes of getting an EPA grant for improvements to the lagoon, Creel advised the council to reapply for the CDBG grant.

Creel said six agencies are working on coordinating the See SEWER GRANT, Page A-2

News briefs

Helena garbage pick-up changes

Helena residents should note the following changes for garbage pickup during the Christmas and New Year's holidays:

Because Christmas Day and New Year's Day each fall on Wednesday this year, those pickups normally made on Dec. 25 and Jan. 1 will be made on Monday, Dec. 23, and Dec. 30.

The regular Tuesday pickups for Dec. 24 and Dec. 31 will not change.

SMC vote will be covered next week

The results of the hospital referendum do not appear in this week's edition of the Reporter because the newspaper was printed before the vote was counted.

The Reporter is regularly scheduled for printing in Selma before 5 p.m. on Tuesdays to ensure rack and home delivery for most of Shelby County on Wednesdays.

Bookmobile opening at 119 and 29

The Shelby County Bookmobile has been stationed at the corner of Highway 119 and County Road 29. It will be open for people to check out books on Tuesdays, beginning December 10, from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Weather

Wednesday will be increasingly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of showers, according to the National Weather Service. The high temperature will be near 70 degrees, with a low probably in the 40s. Showers are predicted for Wednesday night and Thursday, with thunderstorms likely.

The high Thursday will be in the middle to upper 50s. Friday is expected to be much colder and still cloudy, with a drop into the 30s and the temperature expected to stay in the 30s without much rise all day.

Saturday will be very cold, with lows in the lower 20s and highs expected to be in the mid 30s.

Sterrett couple forming corporation to help needy

by Jim Parks
Editor

Some folks appreciate what they have; then some folks really appreciate what they have.

For nearly a year, Bob and Inez Thompson of Sterrett have evidenced their appreciation for their life's good fortune by sharing it with others less fortunate.

The couple's benevolence started with the elderly but has since spread to several families with children.

Because the cost of providing food and clothing for every family the Thompsons would like to help is unaffordable, they are in the process of incorporating a tax-exempt organization - Operation Helping Hands.

Members of the corporation are the Thompsons, their son Ken, and the Rev. Thomas Wood and his wife, Mildred.

"We'll be getting the final papers soon," Mrs. Thompson said. "Once we receive our tax status, we can buy food from the United Way Food Bank. We're also looking for a building and looking for the Lord to continue to bless us."

A retired couple, the Thompsons have been helping folks every since a friend, who was giving away some extra clothes, asked Mrs. Thompson if she knew of anyone who could use them.

Those clothes were passed on, then more clothes were given.

"We later decided to buy food for some of these people," Mrs. Thompson said. "I asked my pastor's wife and my neighbors for names of anyone needing food and clothes in the area."

"At first, we helped the elderly, then it snowballed on us. We began helping families with children; and the need is growing."

Mrs. Thompson also has been asking DPS for referrals.

So far, Operation Helping Hands has provided food and clothing for needy families in Westover, Sterrett, Chelsea and Vandiver, "but we don't want this just to be a local project. We want it to be neighbor helping neighbor throughout Shelby County."

On Thanksgiving, the Thompsons provided groceries for 16 families with more than $300 they raised this past year. Mrs. Thompson raised most of the money by crocheting Christmas ornaments and afghans which she sold to her friends.

This Christmas, Mrs. Thompson said Operation Helping Hands plans to provide food and clothes for at least 40 families.

The Thompsons also are donating their own Christmas money to the project rather than buying presents for themselves and their children.

"We've had a lot of sickness in the past, but this year has been great for us health-wise, and we wanted to show our appreciation for God's grace by sharing with others," she said. "We told our children we wouldn't buy Christmas gifts this year, but would use the money to help the needy."

The thought was well received and their children have sent checks for the cause.

"Some people are too proud to let you know they are in need, but it's a pleasure to give, and they do open their little hearts to us when we give," Mrs. Thompson said.

Anyone wanting to make a donation of food, clothing or money to Operation Helping Hands can call Mrs. Thompson at 672-2045 or write to P.O. Box 48, Sterrett, AL 35147.

all," said Shelby County Probate Judge Tommy Snowden. "We're real disappointed that we seem to be taking a step backward."

The reason for the change, according to Col. Byron Prescott, director of the Department of Public Safety, is to decrease fraud and abuse of licenses.

The instant issue system is prone to abuse, he said. "Far too many fraudulent licenses have been issued to unscrupulous individuals who drift into Alabama and use the licenses to prey on Alabama's citizens and the business community," Prescott said.

Another reason, according to Maj. John Hammond, chief of the driver's license division, is that "the instant issue license thwarts efforts to keep a four-year photo license out of the

Columbiana opposes Sunday opening of rec center

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

The new owner of Columbiana's Recreation Center asked the city council Monday if he could open his business from 1-6 p.m. on Sundays. A majority of the council turned down the request.

Larry Burchfield, who purchased the Main Street business from Jimmy Rowe earlier this year, said a number of customers had asked him to keep the business open on Sunday.

"The city doesn't have a lot of recreational facilities," Burchfield said. "If we were open, maybe some of the young folks wouldn't be doing some of the things they're doing now."

Customers play pool in Burchfield's establishment. He said the only type of refreshments available are soft drinks, chips, peanuts, candy and crackers.

City Attorney Bill Justice said there is no city ordinance prohibiting the business from operating on Sunday. He said there is no state law either, except for the blue law, which is now under attack.

The motion to permit Burchfield to open on Sunday was made by Councilwoman Jessie Jones and seconded by the council's new member, Carlton Franks. Frank Owen, Willard Cross and William Rasco voted against the motion.

Franks, who was sworn into office Monday by Justice, said he looks forward to serving on the council.

"I think we've got a good council," he said, "and if we all work together, I think we can solve most of the city's problems."

Some of the problems that cropped up Monday concerned the city's animal control ordinance and variances in the mobile home ordinance.

Mayor Buck Falkner told Luther Carter the council was looking at ordinances on animal control from Alabaster and other cities that pertain to fowl and other animals besides dogs.

Carter had complained to the council at the last meeting that a neighbor's chickens were tearing up his yard.

"We'll have some relief for you soon," Falkner promised.

Carter also said he thought the mobile home ordinance ought to be changed to allow a person to put a mobile home in areas where they are prohibited now if there is a legitimate need.

The city attorney said the planning and zoning board needs to propose a change in the ordinance to the council to provide for variances.

One member of the audience was upset about the city hiring an untrained dispatcher. He wondered why a person with training did not get the job.

Falkner did not explain, saying only that the public safety committee, of which he is a member, agreed on the person selected.

Among the board positions still to be filled, is a vacated place on the park and recreation board. The mayor said Randy Rowe, whose term expires in 1989, has tendered his resignation because he felt a younger person might have fresh, new ideas.

said, the office checks information from Montgomery by computer.

"If it shows a problem, we call Montgomery," he said.

Hammond said, however, that by the time the Department of Public Safety learns of license suspensions and revocations, under the instant issue system "the dangerous driver has secured his Alabama license and is not likely to be found."

Thirteen other states follow the central issue system, affecting more than 40 percent of all licenses issued in the United States, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Other new practices are designed to decrease use of driver's licenses for people under 21 to buy alcohol and to increase the pool of organ donors.

Special computer print will be used for the license number and the date of birth to discourage alteration by people wanting to appear older to buy alcohol. Also, an embossed star will be on licenses of people under age 21.

Intentions to donate organs can be noted on the back of the new licenses.

hands of a dangerous driver who comes to Alabama from another state where his license is suspended or revoked.

Hammond said all new applicants are checked with the National Driver Register, but that this takes time.

The new procedure brings many opportunities for complications, said Pat Sewell, chief clerk in the county probate office. Snowden said problems could be caused by bad negatives, people closing their eyes in pictures, improper lighting or losses in the mail.

"I just hope they don't blame us," Sewell said of people who may be inconvenienced by such problems.

Snowden did "agree on a new procedure for duplicate licenses," saying these could be abused. "But even now, we have to go through a state trooper to get duplicates," he said.

Before any new or duplicate license is issued, applicants must go through a state trooper's office, Snowden said.

Before licenses are issued from the probate office, Snowden

It was ADEM's concern about the lagoon that caused the city to lose out on the grant last year.

Should the grant be funded, sewer line will be extended down County 47 S and in the Jointown community, allowing 134 families to hook on.

"We're being told," Mayor Buck Falkner told the council, "that we're almost guaranteed of getting both these grants next year. I believe this town is really going to be on the move in 1986."

withdrawn from commission activity concerning the firm, but the opinion is being sought because of the firm's connection with the board of education, the hospital and other county business.

Mayor Roger Wheeler said the city needs property for new fire stations.

About three acres are needed for a training station and "one spot to get all vehicles out of the weather," he said. Around County Road 264, Alabama Highway 119 would be good locations, he said.

A station on U.S. Highway 31 in the future would be useful, Wheeler said. Less land would be needed for substations. "We want to try to serve everyone," he said.

"We just have a crowded situation, and we want to get out further and have a training area," Henry said of the need for more stations.

Councilman Willie Arrington said signs have been put up for two streets recently dedicated to the county. The streets, off County Road 11, were named Reese's Drive and Alton Drive. Another, off Fifth Avenue Southeast was named Fourth Place Southeast.

In other business, the council reappointed the following members to the Beautification Board: Ora Marcus, Robert Tolbert, Sammy Speigner, Voncille Jones and Elnora Pass.

•The commission approved two Industrial Development Board bond issues, one for $400,000 and one for $1.6 million. The bonds will be used to buy truck trailers which will be leased to South Truck Leasing Project and to Wiley Sanders Truckline, Inc. for use by Wiley Sanders Jr.

•County Engineer Gary Ray gave the commission an update on the repair of Bains Bridge on County Road 275, (old Highway 31). The bridge has been out for more than a year, making a detour onto new Highway 31 necessary. Ray said the project should be let for bids early in 1986 and that work will probably begin 30 to 45 days later.

•The commission approved a liquor license for Charlotte's Package Store at the intersection of Hwys 25 and 155 in Montevallo.

•The commission reappointed Dot Scruggs to a four-year term on the Law Enforcement Personnel Board.

Valley PTO launches campaign

Friends of Valley is a new fundraising campaign started this year by Valley Elementary PTO.

Through this program, parents and the surrounding business community are being encouraged to give a direct tax deductible contribution of $100 to the school.

The contributions will help meet the many needs of Valley that are not being met through the current state and county tax structure. This year's contributions will provide a music teacher for all the students and copy services used by teachers to support the students' education activities.

If most parents support the program, enough money will be raised also to repair clocks, repair the air conditioning system for all kindergarten and first grade classrooms, buy additional classroom supplies for each teacher, etc.

The Friends of Valley was initiated essentially for three reasons:

1. Parents had complained consistently about the number of door-to-door sales conducted, and expressed concern about the safety of children carrying out these activities.

2. A direct donation would be 100 percent profit for the school (rather than 15 - 30 percent from sales) and 100 tax deductible for the contributors (unlike sale items.) This approach seemed to provide maximum benefit to the school and contributors.

3. The business community derives substantial benefits from the positive academic reputation of Valley in terms of attracting new residents into the area. This influx translates into increased numbers of customers and/or potential employees. Active solicitation and recognition for financial support from local businesses through the Friends of Valley program offered an opportunity to make business more aware of the school's needs and encourage their support.

Rick and Sandy Pickering, PTO co-chairmen, said parents and teacher have made many contributions to enhance the educational opportunities at Valley Elementary.

"More than 160,000 hours of volunteer time were donated by Valley parents last year," Pickering said. "We are asking those parents to make an even greater investment this year by selecting Valley Elementary as their top priority for gift giving and make the $100 donation in support of our school, its teachers and all its children."

Pickering said hopes are high that the project will be so successful that the contribution will become an annual commitment by parents and local businesses.

Then, the PTO can focus on "fun-raising" events that emphasize family participation such as the Halloween Carnival, Arts and Craft Day and the Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony, according to board members Debbie Fayh, Delilia Chandler and Gayle White.

Other board members involved in the success of these events are Sandra Bailey, Terry Blankenship, Renee Booker, Alicia Carlson, Sherrell Cochran, Paula Coker, Nancy Cole, Linda Goodson, Tannie Helms, Donna Kilpatrick, Melonie Lee, Judy Marshall, Kathy Mikos, Angela Stanford, Judy Sullivan and Linda White.

All contributions to the Friends of Valley will be recognized at a reception, scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 17, from 7 p.m. - 10 p.m. at Riverchase Country Club.

Four vehicles involved in wrecks at dangerous Pelham intersection

Two accidents took place at the same Pelham intersection last week. Although the accidents occurred around the same time, they were on different days.

Joseph Hanby of Helena, the driver of one of the vehicles involved in a wreck Friday evening, was listed in satisfactory condition Monday by a spokesperson for Brookwood Hospital. He was the only person in the two wrecks requiring hospitalization.

Pelham Police Chief Allen Wade said the intersection at I-65 and State 119 is dangerous because of the volume of traffic on the road and because so many trucks leave the interstate to gas up at the service station on 119.

Even though the state allowed a five mile reduction of the 55 mph speed limit inside the Pelham city limits on 119, Wade said it was still faster than it is at some other intersections.

Another factor contributing to wrecks there, he said, is the absence of a cloverleaf. Vehicles coming off the interstate sometimes have to cross an oncoming lane of traffic.

In Friday's wreck, Hanby, who came off the southbound lane of the interstate, was crossing the westbound lane on 119 when his 1984 Dodge Charger collided with a Dodge van occupied by three teenagers.

According to Pelham police reports, Hanby said he stopped before crossing the lane and did not see the oncoming vehicle.

Hanby's mother, Sara, received slight injuries, but none of the occupants of the van were hurt.

That accident took place at 9:10 p.m. On the following evening, at 8:34 p.m., another collision occurred at the intersection, when a car coming off the northbound lane of the interstate was hit while crossing the eastbound lane of 119.

No injuries were reported in this accident, however.

Bar suspends Pelham lawyer

Pelham lawyer Earl W. Hall has been suspended from law practice, effective Dec. 31, for failure to comply with the Mandatory Continuing Legal Education required by the Alabama State Bar.

According to the suspension order, issued by the Disciplinary Commission of the Alabama State Bar, Hall failed to comply with the CLE requirement in 1982 and failed to furnish an affidavit indicating his reason for failing to comply with the mandatory requirement.

The order, issued Nov. 25, said Hall's suspension will become effective Dec. 31 unless he files satisfactory proof of compliance with the Disciplinary Commission before then.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

'Gee, they were happy'

There were five of them. The oldest must have been about nine and the youngest two. Last year I came up this same road, looking for this same house, knowing what I would find, but today it was different. I had a new partner. A fine young man named Ken Seale.

When we drove up they ran out to meet us, little tow-headed kids with happiness dancing in their eyes. We had toys for them and candy and fruit. It had been a long time since last Christmas, but nothing had changed. It was the same murky day. The same shabby house. And the same little kids who would have Santa Claus because a lot of folks cared.

It was Ken's first time for helping Santa so I let him carry the packages inside. He was gone a long time. While he was gone a lady came out of the house next door. We talked about folks. Folks who had plenty, and folks who didn't have much, and how love got mixed up in it, and the way it turned out sometimes.

Ken came out then and we started away. He didn't say anything at first. He just sat there, looking out. And then he said: "Gee, they were happy."

I think if Ken were my son, this is where I would have wanted him to be on this last Friday before Santa came. And this is what I would have wanted him to know about Christmas.

That was many years ago. Ken is grown now and married to a lovely girl named Kay and is a dentist in that big town across the Cahaba River. And sometime pretty soon somebody will come around taking up money so little folks will have a happy Christmas. Little folks who wouldn't if others didn't care.

You see, that's why we're still doing it today.

The weekly Good Morning column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member FDIC.

Camp doesn't know either

If Billy Joe Camp doesn't know, nobody knows. What we refer to are the future plans, politically, of Gov. George Wallace.

Camp, the governor's long-time press secretary and confidant, has said he is in the dark as much as everyone else about Wallace's 1986 plans. And what Wallace decides to do is more important to Camp than most. If Wallace runs for a fifth term, Camp will be at his side; if Wallace doesn't run, then Camp would like to do a little running of his own...for lieutenant governor.

Camp did give out one interesting bit of information--he fully expects Wallace to make a decision by the first of the year, rather than keep everyone guessing right up to the qualifying deadline as he has been prone to do throughout much of his career.

And speaking of the governor's race, Republican hopeful Larry Barton isn't given a Chinaman's chance in the gubernatorial campaign, but he is going to make life miserable for some of the other challengers nonetheless. Last week, for example, Barton's primary target was Lt. Gov. Bill Baxley, who he labelled as "immoral."

Hezekiah Wagstaff, the best known assistant press secretary any governor ever had, has apparently talked himself out of another job. Wagstaff was fired by Gov. Wallace after he had some critical things to say about the governor. Recently he was in line to be named as a lobbyist for Alabama A&M University, but he was told the job was his if he would refrain from saying unkind things about Wallace. He didn't refrain, so he didn't get the job.

Alabama taxpayers haven't indicated any enthusiasm for a new law which allows them to give $1 of their state income tax refund to one of the two major political parties. In the first year of the law's operation, a total of $8,929 was given to the Democratic Party while the Republican Party got $7,936.

Death has claimed 53-year-old C. M. A. (Max) Rogers of Mobile. A prominent banker, Rogers was a first-rate state legislator a couple of decades ago.

Several lawyers are jockeying for position in Montgomery, hoping they will be named to succeed retiring U. S. District Judge Bob Varner. Varner announced last week he was retiring next June. The appointment will be made by President Reagan, but for all practical purposes it will be made by U. S. Sen. Jeremiah Denton.

For years many high-placed state officials (and some not so high-placed) who were assigned state cars have used their influence to get regular license plates on their vehicles, rather than use the distinctive "S" tags. It permits them to use the cars for any purpose they like, whereas they might be reluctant to go shopping, to a football game or to the coast in their state car if it had the state tag. The Taxpayers Defense Fund has launched an effort to put an end to such practices, except for law enforcement vehicles.

The Alabama Association of County Commissioners said it will give top priority in the 1986 regular session of the Legislature for a bill which would earmark 10 percent of revenue generated by the oil and gas trust fund to counties. Many counties are in a terrible financial bind as a result of a cutback in federal revenue sharing funds.

Pelham officials are praised for city's look

Letter to the Editor:

While attending a recent meeting at Pelham City Hall I admired the much improved beauty and design of the building's front lawn, shrubbery and related landscaping. This also brought to mind the greatly improved maintenance of the medians along Pelham's section of Highway 31.

According to Mayor Hayes, Ken Holler is Director of the city's Public Works and the gentleman deserving of recognition for his contributions to the City of Pelham.

No doubt, there are other areas of good work by Mr. Holler's department that are not noticeable, but, nevertheless, they do exist.

As Pelham continues to show signs of progress and pride with the new Sign Ordinance revealing a "cleaner" look for Pelham, there will be even more reason for Mr. Holler and our Pelham City Fathers to be appreciated by everyone in Shelby County.

After all, Pelham city limits is the first doorstep into this county. And you know the saying--"You only get one chance to make a good first impression."

SMC should be run by professionals

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following Letter to the Editor which appeared in the Dec. 5 edition of the Reporter is being rerun because a phrase was inadvertently omitted which may have confused the message. The Reporter apologizes for the error and is happy to set the record straight.

I would like to urge the people of Shelby County to vote to sell the Shelby Medical Center for the good of all the people throughout Shelby County.

No institution is ever better than its board of directors. It cannot be since the board sets the policy of an institution and selects its director; and it makes no difference whether it is big business, an industrial corporation, a medical center - or any other institution.

Unfortunately, the few times that the hospital had had such a board during the past 26 years, there were those self-seeking individuals who were determined to destroy such a board because they wanted a weak board that they could control.

It is time for the voters to take politics out of the hospital and to put the hospital into the hands of a professional hospital corporation where it can be run in a business-like manner without all the bickering and throat-cutting that has been going on since 1959.

The money realized from the sale of the hospital can then be set up to take care of the poor people; then all the people of Shelby County could be served - not just the special interests groups.

Christmas seals bring joy, fight lung disease

Letter to the Editor:

Each year at this time a holiday tradition is reenacted, Christmas Seals from the American Lung Association of Alabama arrive by mail at countless households in our area.

Most of us grew up knowing the real joy of licking those Seals and proudly sticking them on holiday packages and envelopes.

Somehow they seemed to be just the right final touch to a lovingly wrapped package or cheery Christmas card. Somehow, even as children, we knew we were doing something good for others during a season dedicated to giving. And there are those of us who are old enough to remember when those pretty bits of paper funded a great crusade against tuberculosis, which for decades was the leading cause of death in this country.

Today, donations to Christmas Seals are still funding a great crusade - against all lung diseases.

The work of the American Lung Association of Alabama is more vital, more urgent with each passing year. Because the sad fact is that the death rates from lung diseases, including lung cancer, are accelerating while those from other forms of cancer, heart disease and even accidents are leveling off or even decreasing.

Christmas Seals have been an enduring holiday custom for 78 years, so it's easy to take them for granted. But they still symbolize the American Lung Association's ongoing and profound commitment to the lung health of this nation.

That is why we ask that once again the citizens of Jefferson and Shelby Counties contribute to Christmas Seals and join in this truly great effort to control and prevent all lung disease.

Sincerely,
Dr. Leslie S. Wright
Chairman,

Lawyer offers mini-series for Gov. Wallace

Open Letter To The Governor of Alabama

Please contact me immediately and let me know whether that rumor about your not running for governor again in 1986 is true or not based on repercussions from the Hezekiah Wagstaff affair. If it is not true, you can continue to count on me as your self-proclaimed campaign manager to further the interests of your family and the democratic party, these interests being one and the same.

If that rumor is not true, don't worry, I have a plan that will employ your entire family as well as, that of Hezekiah Wagstaff and you won't have to sing "Amazing Grace" to get the job and the rest of your cabinet won't have to resign. What I have in mind is to produce a television mini-series patterned after "Dynasty," the exception being that instead of two powerful families fighting against each other for financial power, our television show will feature three families fighting each other for political power in Alabama. Just as "Dynasty" has the Carringtons and the Colbys, my show will feature the Wallaces, the Wagstoffs and the Folmars; their cronies, brothers and sisters, and respected citizens, respectively.

We'll chronicle the years 1982 to 1986. Our first episode will begin with Hezekiah coming in the back door of the Governor's Mansion to join in the celebration of your 1982 victory over Emory Folmar. Hezekiah will make his first political enemy during the first scene as he accidentally bumps into Elvin Stanton's chair, causing Elvin to spill his drink on a stack of travel brochures of Hawaii. Elvin's anger is immediately cooled as Joe Reed and Alvin Holmes quickly clean up the mess and refill his drink. Scene two will turn to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Folmar, where Mayor Folmar is thanking his campaign workers for having tried in vain to educate the majority of Alabamians the past several months on the virtues of "Truth, Justice and the American Way" in their political views as opposed to "Lies, Unjustice and the Chinese Way" (i.e. the Chinese Way being that he who has the numbers, no matter how ignorant or gullible, wins the election).

Governor, this television series has endless possibilities what with Cornelia, Lisa, George Jr. and an infinite number of possible future Mrs. George Jrs., and all. Just think in 'one of our final episodes set during the year 1986, we'll have the Wagstaff family opposed to your family heading toward the general election, with Hezekiah and all his supporters planning to jump on the Republican bandwagon; when George Jr. saves the day by marrying Hezekiah's sister and, blood being thicker than water, the Republicans lose again.

Please think about my proposal and let me know. If you don't like the idea of a mini-series, I have a great idea of a TV game show along the lines of "The Family Feud."

Anyone can give priceless present - sight

Letter to the Editor:

In this holiday season, one often hears the complaint that the practice of Christmas gift-giving has developed into a meaningless this-for-that exchange - transfers of tangible goods often deliberately balanced in terms of dollars and cents value. People give, but they expect to receive in like measure. Yet, the spirit of Christmas which we celebrate is the spirit of selfless charity, giving for the sake of giving.

The Alabama Eye and Tissue Bank, located in Birmingham,

Mobile and Huntsville, offers the suggestion that this year each of us give a unique gift of the latter type - one so inexpensive that it costs us nothing; yet so priceless that it could not be bought with all the money in the world.

This is the gift of sight, a gift that each of our citizens holds the power to give some person now living in complete darkness.

The gift of sight, made possible by the donation of human eye tissue on death, is one which is given with the expectation of nothing in return - except the donor's eternally warm knowledge that he has performed perhaps the greatest act of charity of his lifetime. The gift of sight costs nothing. The recipient pays nothing for it. Yet, its value is unbelievably limitless.

Through the miracle of modern medical science, it is now possible for eye tissue, taken from the eyes of a deceased person, to bring sight to another individual.

Corneal transplant operations have now become commonplace and the incidence of success is high. Already, many thousands of blind Americans have been given sight, sometimes for the first time in their lives, because someone cared enough to pledge his eyes on death.

This holiday season, give the gift of sight. The gift that cannot be bought or sold.

Those who desire more information about eye donation may contact The Alabama Eye and Tissue Bank by mail or by phone, the address is P.O. Box 55322, Birmingham, AL 35255-5322, the number is 205-939-3937.

Shelby County Humane Society helps "crying animals"

Letter to the Editor:

I would like to bring to your attention the services of the Shelby County Humane Society.

This facility provides this county with a very valuable service. Hardly a day goes by that I don't see a stray dog on the side of the road or in garbage dumps. Puppies and kittens are discarded without protection from the elements and without food.

The Humane Society tries to render this problem the best they can with the resources that they have. The county could do more for these animals if there was enough money and resources.

One way to eliminate the problem of unwanted animals is to better educate the public of the spaying and neutering of their pets. It is an animal's natural instinct to breed once it has reached maturity. Puppies and kittens aren't asking to be born into unwanted homes, but they are.

If people would open their eyes and look about them they would see that "the animals are crying."

CAPITOL GAINS

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — When Gov. George Nigh says money is being pumped into the state's coffers all the time, he isn't kidding. Oklahoma's Capitol sits directly over an oil field, and at one point had two dozen producing wells on its grounds.

Millions of barrels of crude have been produced since drilling began Nov. 10, 1941. But much of the oil has been depleted and currently Capitol Site No. 1 is the only producing well, says Phillips Petroleum, the operator.

Known to Oklahomans as Petunia, a nickname it got from the petunia patch that covered the area where the well was dug, the well is more than a source of capital, says the governor. "You'd be amazed at the number of people every day snapping photos of the oil wells with the capitol behind them," he says.

APROTEIN PLANT?

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — Nearly everyone has heard of rubber trees and sunflowers, but what is a protein plant?

For Provesta Corp., it's a factory where high-quality protein is produced. The protein plant produces a single-cell protein that is used as an animal feed ingredient and, eventually, may be suitable for the human food market.

EAST MEETS WEST

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles is home to more Koreans than the entire city of Seoul, South Korea's capitol, which ins 1988 will succeed Los Angeles as host city for the Olympic Games.

If current growth rates continue, Asians soon will displace blacks as California's second-largest minority, according to a survey by a sales magazine. Hispanics are the largest minority.

ARIGHT TOLIGHT

NEW YORK (AP) — While New York is known for its skyscrapers, there is growing concern among civic organizations that bigger isn't necessarily better.

Neighborhood associations are banding together to promote rezoning to preserve the city's brownstones and small buildings. They are campaigning for legislation which would limit the height of new buildings in residential areas.

Robert K. Walkup, president of the East Fifties Association, says, "We have a right to light. Small buildings are being gobbled up by large real estate investors who plan to construct giant towers. We're seeking to preserve our neighborhoods. We don't want to live in the shadows of high-rise dwellings and office buildings which block out the sun."

Westover cancer victim encouraged President

When Ronald Reagan was in the hospital several months ago, he received a letter from Larry C. Webb Jr. who wanted to give the president encouragement.

Webb, a native of Westover, was dying of cancer at the time, but "felt like I needed to witness to him. I told him to have faith and believe in the Lord."

Webb, who was living in Greenwood, Mississippi at the time, received a reply from the president.

Reagan's letter, dated Sept. 13, said, "...I was sorry to learn of your health problems but you make it clear you know God gives us the strength we need when things seem most difficult. Your courage in dealing so well with the setbacks you have suffered deserves every commendation..."

Webb died on November 20 at the age of 24, and was buried at Morrishill Baptist Church Cemetery near Hoover.

He attended Chelsea High School and was a drummer and singer for 15 years with the Singing Webb Family.

Bo: 'the best' breaks a tackle

Bo: a hero for kids

"Of course he's the best! He won the trophy didn't he!"
Randy Coleman
Chelsea School fifth grader

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

During a trip to Auburn to cover the Tigers, I had a chance to talk with a dedicated Alabama fan who was making his first visit to the Loveliest Village on the Plains.

This Alabaster nine-year-old went into Jordan-Hare stadium with every intention of pulling for East Carolina, the Tigers' opponent of the day.

But Mark Rikard came out of the stadium wanting an orange-and-blue jersey emblazoned with the number 34. "I'm still an Alabama fan," he explained with a grin, "but I like Bo Jackson."

Vincent "Bo" Jackson, the Auburn Tigers' senior tailback, could not walk through the streets of any town in Shelby County without being recognized. He probably couldn't walk through any street in Alabama without being recognized, and there are a lot of places outside the heart of the Heart of Dixie where Bo is a familiar face as well.

That is what comes with being the best at what you do. Bo Jackson became Auburn University's second Heisman Trophy winner about five o'clock Saturday afternoon. While the voting was close, young athletes and fans throughout Shelby County would tell you the matter was settled long ago. After all, as Randy Coleman put it, Bo Jackson is a hero.

"A hero is a person who has done something big and you admire him," Coleman said. "You want to be like him, and that is what Bo Jackson is like."

Coleman is not the only Shelby County school child for whom Jackson is a model.

Thompson elementary fourth grader Jimbo Tucker had on a well-worn number 34 jersey when he arrived in Linda Mullin's class on Monday. It seems that Jackson has the power to help children and adults alike see people not as black or white but see them in orange and blue.

"Sure I like him," Tucker, who just happens to be white, said. "I think he's neat and I want to be just like him."

Yes, in Shelby County, Bo Jackson has a following. "Of course I now who Bo Jackson is," said Johnny Jones, a Calera Elementary fifth grader. "He's a football player for Auburn. He's played hard all year and he acts real nice. I'm glad he won that trophy."

"He played with two broken ribs," said Elvin Hill fourth grader Jack Robertson. "That shows you that you have to try hard and do things even when it isn't easy."

"I was hoping he would win that trophy," said Montevallo Middle school sixth grader John Vickery. "I like him and I think he's nice."

Sayle named Coach of Year

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

Briarwood Lion coach Ricky Sayle has been named the football Coach of the Year in Shelby County by the Shelby County Coaches Association.

Sayle piloted his Lions to a 5-5 record and a state play-off berth in Briarwood's first year of Alabama High School Athletic Association competition. The Lions were also named the Reporter's Team of the Year in Shelby County.

Sayle was pleased and surprised when he learned of the award last week, saying that it means a lot to have the other coaches in the county give him such an honor.

In his third year at BCHS, Sayle is beginning his second coaching career.

The first began in Arkansas, then saw him move to Tennessee for seven years of coaching in the public schools ranks.

Sayle then took a position at Evangelical Christian School in Memphis and coached there for three years.

Sayle coached football, baseball, basketball and golf during that career, but gave up coaching to go into business after staying at ECS for three years.

The opening at Briarwood, however, lured him back into a field he enjoys.

"I got out of coaching for four years," Sayle said, "but decided that coaching was where I was supposed to be."

"As long as I can feed my family and support them," he added, "coaching is what I want to do."

While Sayle said that his coaching philosophy does not differ radically from many other coaches in the area who are Christians, he feels lucky to be in a position like the one at Briarwood that is supportive of that philosophy.

"This situation affords us the opportunity as coaches and players to talk freely about our other commitments in life," Sayle said. "If all we teach a kid is to block and tackle and don't teach their inner being as well, we have failed. We might not be a failure on the scoreboard but may have failed in a bigger way."

It is in the intangibles of football that Sayle sees the worth of the sport and a reason to coach it.

"My greatest satisfaction as a coach came the year that we played every ballgame almost as well as we could play," Sayle said. "The kids were so committed to our goals and the principles of the school that they didn't have a down game. That is satisfying. That is what makes success."

Sayle believes that athletics have value in what they can teach kids.

"Athletics requires you, if you are truly going to be an athlete, to develop characteristics that will last you the rest of your life," Sayle said.

Discipline, commitment and humility were among the attributes that came most quickly to mind for Sayle.

"Humility..." he said with a smile.

Raiders, Rebs clash in opening week

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Shelby Academy Raiders and the Coosa Valley Rebels culminated their first week of basketball by playing each other on the Raider home court last Saturday, Shelby winning the game 47-43.

The win gave the Raiders a 3-0 record in their opening week while dropping the Rebs to an 0-2 start.

But SA coach Dewayne Kervin wasn't as excited about the week as John Niblett, his CVA counterpart was.

"As far as a winning goes, I guess we had a good week," Kervin said, "but we are really struggling. We're not shooting real well, not rebounding well, and we're making too many turnovers."

It has been, Kervin added, only a strong defensive effort that has kept the Raiders in the win column thus far. But, he conceded, winning — whether you play real well or not — is more fun than losing.

Niblett, on the other hand, called his Rebels opening week a decent effort.

"We're getting just about all we can out of the kids physically," he said, "but our inexperience is showing. We're making some mental mistakes that are hurting us."

Niblett offered 41 turnovers in two games as evidence.

"I'm still pleased with the effort," he added. "I think we will be okay."

A third quarter that saw Shelby outscore Coosa Valley 15-4 proved to be the difference in the first Raider-Rebel clash of the young basketball season. After going into halftime trailing 23-18, the Raiders put together some timely buckets and key foul shots to capture a lead they would never give up.

In the fourth period, the Raiders won the game on the line, as 13 of their 15 points came at the charity stripe. The Raiders foul shooting — while not as good as Kervin would like to see it — was enough to overcome an 11-point fourth quarter scoring burst from Coosa Valley's Tad Niblett, who finished as the game's top scorer with 20 points, hitting 75 percent from the field.

Steve Silvani led the Raiders in scoring as he hit 15 points. Mike Upton added 12 to the Shelby cause.

Silvani was also the leading scorer as the Raiders defeated Southern last week, 44-35. Silvani hit 17 points and Kelly Tibbals grabbed eight rebounds to lead the Raiders in that game.

Tibbals hit 12 points and Vince Pickett and Mike Upton shared the scoring lead with 14 points in the Raiders opening win over Edgewood, 53-18. Pickett was also the leading rebounder in the game with nine.

Coosa Valley fell to Bessemer 61-47, opening their season on the road.

Tad Niblett had 18 points and Bobby Crumpton hit 10 for the Rebs in a game that saw foul trouble take its toll on the Rebs.

Toby Green was Coosa Valley top rebounder in the game.

Niblett also had six steals in each of the first two CVA contests.

Panthers pounce on Warriors 78-58

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Thompson Warriors came into Panther gym with a 7-0 record, fresh from an area win over Homewood. The Panthers greeted them at 3-0, fresh from an area win over McAdory. The clash of Shelby County's basketball titans was a noisy battle. But when the dust had settled in Pelham, the victor was clear.

The Panthers exploded to a 78-58 win over their cross county rivals to give themselves a 4-0 season mark — the best start in the history of Panther basketball — and establish themselves as the team to beat in their 5A area race.

"This had to be one of the best defensive ballgames we have ever played here," said PHS coach Tony Taylor following the win. "We also executed our offense well. The final score shows

Coaches Association tabs football all-county

by K.A. Turner

Five unanimous selections led the 23-member group of football standouts on the 1985 Shelby County Coaches Association All-County Team.

Calera senior Mark Jones, Chelsea junior Larry Offord, Pelham senior Tony Jeffers, Shelby County senior Tony Revis and Vincent senior Hugh Kidd were the five players who gained a vote from all eight of the county coaches to make them unanimous selections on the team chosen yearly by a vote of the county's coaches.

The Thompson Warriors led the team in number, placing six on the dream team. Pelham placed four, Montevallo three and the remaining county school two each as the coaches honored 23 players with all-county status. An additional 23 were named as honorable mention members of the squad.

Defensive specialists and linemen dominated the all-county selections for 1985. Only three quarterbacks and six runningbacks were named to the team, and many of those players did double-duty in defensive positions. In choosing nine, the coaches tabbed more linebackers for the squad than any other single position.

The 1985 Coaches All-County Team includes:

County squads find success in full week of action

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Shelby County High Wildcats bounced back from a tough loss to Abrams last Tuesday night to hand the Briarwood Lions a 68-51 setback in Columbiana on Friday.

David Wood turned in 23 points, eight rebounds, three assists and three blocked shots to lead Charlie Dickinson's Cats to the win, their third of the season against two losses.

Playing his first full game at the point guard position, O'Neal Williams responded well to the move by hitting 13 points, grabbing six rebounds and dishing out six assists. Ashley Phillips added 11 points and four assists and Ambrose Wood had six assists in the game.

Dickinson also credited his bench with their best effort of the season, especially citing the efforts of Harold Washington (six points, six rebounds) and Norman Cotton (five points and five rebounds).

For Briarwood, Casey Campbell recorded 14 points and nine rebounds, Phil Rooks had nine points and eight rebounds and Victor Nichols had nine points.

Shelby County's win over Briarwood followed a heart-breaking 72-70 loss to Abrams, a game that Dickinson said his team played well enough to win.

"We are five points away from being a 5-0 team," Dickinson said of close losses to Abrams and Thompson. "I keep telling these kids they have lost a couple of games, but no one has beaten them yet."

Failure to execute in the final minute of the game cost SCHS to Abrams contest. We played very well except for one minute," Dickinson said. "It's a shame it had to be the final minute."

The Wildcats threw a very balanced scoring attack at Abrams, Ambrose Wood leading the way with 17 points. David Wild hit 16 points and had eight rebounds, Ashley Phillips added 14 points and O'Neal Williams got 12 for the Cats.

"This is a very unsleazy group," Dickinson said. "They pass the ball to the open man and share the scoring well."

The Montevallo Bulldogs recorded their first undefeated week of the season last week with wins over West Blocton and Briarwood.

Two big scoring quarters of basketball powered the Bulldogs to the wins that evened their season record at 2-2.

Two slams by Tommy Lee Bivins and some timely steals powered Montevallo to a 29-point second quarter in the Dogs 78-69 win over Blocton.

Bivins turned in a stellar performance for the game, hitting 37 points, grabbing 16 rebounds, making four steals and shooting 71 percent from the field.

Danny Holmes finished with 21 points, three steals, six assists and seven rebounds for Montevallo while Glenn Davis came off the bench to score 12 points and dish out five assists.

Otis Hill and James Arrick shared the Blocton scoring lead with 16 points each.

It was a 26-point fourth quarter against Briarwood, however, that had Montevallo coach Bobby Pierson excited about his Bulldogs week.

"We learned to win with 26 points in that fourth quarter," Pierson said. "We had not played well, but in that quarter we got good hustle and a total team effort to pull off the win."

Bivins again led the Dogs in almost every category, hitting 18 points, grabbing 16 rebounds, making two steals, blocking a shot and handing out an assist.

Danny Holmes added 14 points, four steals, nine assists and six rebounds.

Casey Campbell led the Briarwood scoring with 12 points while Phil Rooks led in rebounds with eight.

BCHS coach Jim Brown noted that a 7-20 shooting performance from the line had a lot to do with his team's second loss of the week. "We hit some of those foul shots and it could have been a different game," he said.

The Vincent Yellow Jackets sandwiched a 51-40 loss to Lineville between their first two wins of the season last week, a three-game stand that saw the Jacket record go to 2-4 on the year.

Vincent plastered Oak Grove 58-39 to pick up their first win of the young season then decked Gilmore-Bell 62-32 later in the week.

In the process, the Jackets may have found a new star.

6'3" sophomore Halvert Reynolds moved from a guard position to playing inside and helped the Jacket in their final two games last week.

"He's playing about as well as you can expect any sophomore to," said Jacket coach Richard Crumpton. "He had a good week."

Reynolds scored 16 points and grabbed 21 rebounds in the loss to Lineville then came back to score 22 points and take in 20 rebounds in the win over Gilmore Bell.

Hugh Kidd added 20 points for Vincent against Bell.

Frank Carter was the leading scorer for the Jackets in the win over Oak Grove as he hit 19 points. Kidd added 16 points and Glenn Robertson pulled down 10 rebounds in the game.

The Calera Eagles recorded area wins over Briarwood and St. Clair County to run their record to 4-0 for the season.

The Eagles went up 22-7 early in their meeting with Briarwood then coasted to a 61-54 win but had to come from behind to beat St. Clair County 52-40 after the visitors had rushed to an early 16-4 lead.

"We're just playing hot and cold streaks on offense right now," said Calera coach Charles Jolly. "A good strong board game and patience in our defense is what is saving us right now. You can't win close games shooting 35 percent from the floor."

Willie Taylor led Calera in the win over Briarwood as he hit 18 points. Byron White was the Eagles leading rebounder with 19, and he added nine points and 10 blocked shots.

Greg Haynes hit 16 points for the Eagles.

Casey Campbell led the Briarwood scoring with 17 points while Victor Nichols added 12.

Campbell was also the rebounding leader with eight, followed by Phil Rooks with seven caroms.

Against St. Clair, Haynes had 24 points and 16 rebounds to help put away the Saints who came into Calera with a 3-1 record.

Willie Taylor added nine points and Byron White got eight in a game where the Eagles outscored their opponents 23-6 in the final period.

Indian Springs recorded an undefeated week when they followed their upset win over Chelsea with a 67-50 win over Moody. An eight point spurt just before the close of the first half gave ISS a 31-23 halftime advantage, and Greg Van Horn's team never looked back.

Randy Mason led ISS with 25 points and 12 rebounds. Keith Lusco has 16 points and seven assists in the game with Lawrence Garcia adding 14 points and nine rebounds.

Paul Brasher led Moody with 16 points.

The Chelsea Hornets rebounded from the upset loss to Indian Springs to take a 66-59 win over Brighton in a big area game played on the Bears' home court.

"It was a big win," said Chelsea coach Mike Sims. "It was a total team effort where everyone did their job. It was especially good to win it up there."

Keith Welch led the Hornets with 21 points and 13 rebounds in the game. Steve Shelton added 16 points and 10 rebounds and Stephen Guthrie chipped in 16 points, three rebounds and three assists.

The Pelham Panthers prepped for their area win over Thompson by taking a 58-51 area win over McAdory last Tuesday.

"We played almost everyone we had and they all played well in crucial situations," said PHS coach Tony Taylor. "The whole team is playing well right now."

John North led Pelham with 14 points in the game. Riley Powell hit 12 and Ralph Noble, Lee Snyder and Sam Nelms each added eight for the Panthers who had 34 rebounds as a team.

Stephanie Johnson hit 13 points to lead the Briarwood Lady Lions to a 26-20 win over Altamont last week.

Sandy Brasher had 20 points and eight rebounds and Deboprah Shirley added 13 points as the Chelsea Lady Hornets beat Indian Springs 52-17.

Elizabeth Lockhart had 13 points for ISS.

Vickery also thought that Jackson's fame could be useful. "Children will pay attention to him when he says don't use drugs because he is someone they know and admire."

Jackson himself admits to having a soft place in his heart for children. Apparently, children of all ages throughout Shelby County have a similar spot in their hearts for him.

"He's a nice man, and I really think he likes kids," said Valley first grader Holly Swaim. "He is a great player. He gets the football and runs over people with it."

Within that statement lies Jackson's duel claim to fame. He is an extraordinary athlete and he is - most would agree - a nice man.

Bo Jackson is human, but it makes him a believable hero. "Just because he gets hurt just shows he is a person," Coleman said. "That makes him easier to like, not worse."

Bo Jackson... the best college football player in America, the best college baseball player in America, a world class sprinter, a lover of children... a hero to many kids in Shelby County.

Like the legendary Paul "Bear" Bryant at Alabama, Bo Jackson has united the true football fans in the state of Alabama. The Auburn faithful love him more, like the Alabama faithful loved Bryant. But all unite to admit that Bo and the Bear are among the elite at what they do.

Most of all, Jackson gives children a role model, a goal for which to strive.

"When I grow up," said Morgan Lawley of Montevallo, "I'm going to Auburn and I'm going to be even better than Bo. They won't remember Bo. They'll be saying Go! Mo! Go!"

If he can accomplish that, Lawley - and any other aspiring athlete whose wish is the same - will have accomplished a great deal. For Bo Jackson is a hero. Watching him run with the football, it is easy to understand why.

ISS surprises Chelsea 81-68

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

Indian Springs coach Greg Van Horn said he was looking forward to a fun basketball season. In fact, he even hinted early on that his ISS crew might surprise a few folks.

The Chelsea Hornets beame the first Shelby County team to "enjoy" an Indian Springs surprise party when ISS upset the Hornets 81-68 at Indian Springs last week.

"It was just a big, big win for us," Van Horn said, "a great game for our boys."

The win over Chelsea also gave ISS the momentum to even their season mark at 2-2, going 2-0 for the week after coming in to the Chelsea game with an 0-2 mark.

For Mike Sims Hornets, the game was one in which nothing went right. "We were out-coached, out-played, out-everythinged," Sims said. "They were well prepared for the game a did a good job."

Sharp-shooting at the foul line by Indian Springs proved to be the difference in the upset win. Up by only four points with five minutes remaining, Indian Springs canned shot after shot from the line to insure the win. ISS posted a sizzling 29-37 mark from the line for the night, Keith Luisco hitting nine of nine, Lawrence Garcia hitting seven of nine, and Randy Mason hitting nine of 13 enroute to a 35 point performance on the night. Lusco added 23 points for ISS while Garcia chipped in 15. Mason was the rebounding leader with 11 caroms while Lusco dished out five assists.

Van Horn also complimented the defensive play of Eric Summer in the win.

For Chelsea, Steve Shelton hit 23 points, grabbed 13 rebounds and had three assists. Keith Welch had 19 points and 10 rebounds in the game.

Raiders and Rebs make all-district

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

Both the Shelby Academy Raiders and the Coosa Valley Rebels were well represented when the APSA District VII All-District team was announced last week.

Both the Rebs and the Raiders placed six on the district dream team, Shelby landing six seniors on the squad while Coosa Valley was represented by four seniors and two sophomores.

The six players from each school brought good effort to 12 positions, as all saw action on both offense and defense for their respective clubs.

Linemen Vince Pickett, Ched Burton and Brad Stamps, quarterback Doug Thomas, runningback Mike Upton and flanker Kelly Tibbals represented the Raiders.

Receivers Mike Payne and Scott Thompson, fullback Robert Strickland, linebackers Bobby Crumpton and Toby Green and quarterback Tad Niblett represented the Rebels.

laugh. "Boy, can it teach you humility if you are open to learn."

While Sayle admits to entertaining thoughts of coaching on the college level when he was younger, that kind of goal is not now a driving force in his life. "I'm happy in the situation I'm in right now," he added.

Part of that good situation, Sayle said, is due to his assistant coaches.

"I'd like to share this honor with them because they have done a good job," he said.

Jim Brown is the defensive coordinator for the BCHS Lions. Gary Eubanks works with the receivers and defensive backs.

Sayle and Kay — his wife of 18 years — have three children: daughters Jennifer and Janna, who are 15 and 11, and a 14-year-old son, Jason.

All are in school at Briarwood, and Jason will become one of his father's athletes next year.

"That will be interesting," Sayle said. "You never know how you'll react to something like that until you do it."

that."

The Panthers also rebounded well (42 total, 28 defensive boards) and posted an excellent turnover ratio (six turnovers while gaining the ball 25 times) enroute to the win. Their play left little doubt as to the winner by the mid-way point of the third period.

Pelham took a nine point lead into the half, but a scrappy Thompson team closed the gap to four in the early minutes of the third period.

Suddenly, however, the Panther lead was 12 again, and the margin was maintained and enlarged through the remainder of the game.

In the final analysis, the Panther bench was probably the difference in the game. When starters Riley Powell and Brad Youngblood got in early foul trouble, players like Kile Turner turned in such good performances that the Pelham big men stayed bench-bound through most of the night.

"Our bench played well, and the crowd support was tremendous," Taylor said.

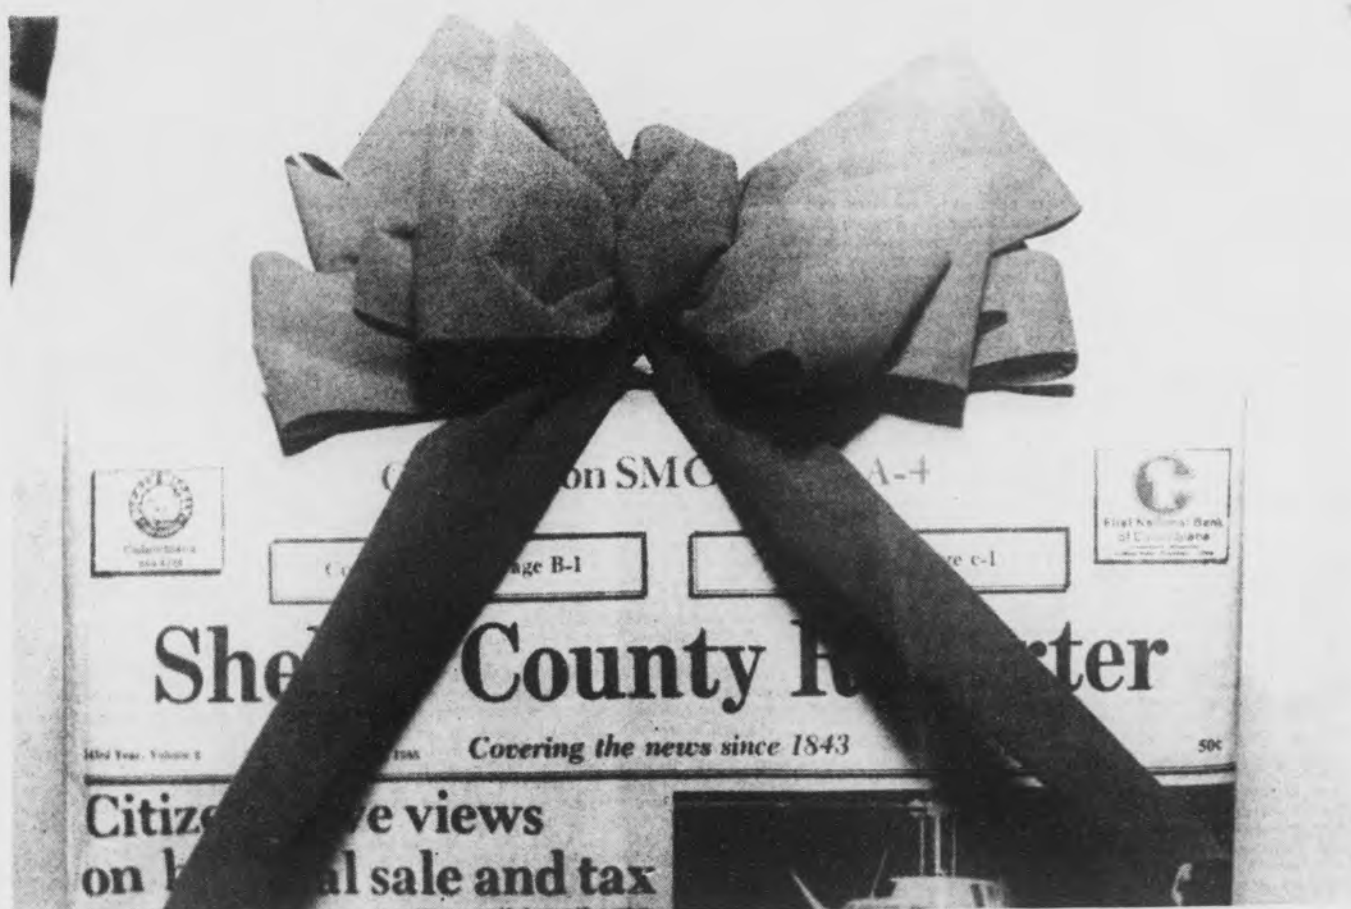

John North led the Pelham scoring with 24 points, hitting 63 percent from the field and four of six at the line. Sam Nelms added 14 points and Ralph Noble got 13 for the Panthers. Powell and Youngblood were the rebounding leaders with eight and seven respectively.

Dana Washington led the Thompson scoring with 21 points. Anthony O'Neal hit 14 for the Warriors.

For the record

Pickett and Payne are all-stars

Shelby Academy Raider Vince Pickett and Coosa Valley Rebel Mike Payne represented the county in the Alabama Private School Association's senior all-star football game last Friday night.

SA coach Dewayne Kervin and CVA coach John Niblett said that both looked good in a large amount of playing time for the East team, Pickett playing defensive end and Payne holding down a cornerback spot.

The game ended in a 15-15 tie.

Blake bags turkey

Brantleyville hunter Andy Blake recently bagged his first turkey. The 10-year old brought home the 22 pound bird complete with eight inch beard while hunting with his father David near Maylene.

Blake used a 410 shotgun to nab his first bird.

Bud Brasher

Brasher gets deer

James "Bud" Brasher of Calera bagged a six-point buck while hunting near Calera late last month.

Brasher is another 10-year-old hunter.

Lady Falcons fall

Troy State erased a second half University of Montevallo lead to post an 82-67 women's college basketball win in Myrick Hall Saturday night. The loss was the first at home for the Lady Falcons this season and broke a modest three-game win streak.

Despite holding a 53-47 advantage with just over 15 minutes to play and 16 points by former Montevallo High star Ruth Perkins, the Lady Falcons couldn't hang on for the win. Perkins connected on 7-of-12 field goals and converted 2-of-3 from the free throw line to lead UM, now 3-2.

Troy State, behind Angela Moore's game-high 24 points, improved to 3-1 with the win.

Karen Scott and Sharen Douglas had 11 points each for the Lady Falcons, while Pam Johnson chipped in 10.

Richey gets first deer

Nine-year-old Chad Richey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Richey of Homewood, shot and killed his first deer while hunting near Harpersville on the opening day of deer season.

Richey, armed with a 12 gauge shotgun and a special antlerless deer license issued by the Department of Conservation, bagged the doe from a tree stand while hunting with his father.

Richey is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Johnson of Harpersville and Guinton and Shelby Richey of Vincent.

Lady Hornets are scrappy group

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles featuring the girls' varsity basketball teams in Shelby County. More will follow as the girls head toward their county tournament in early February.

"If we had a strength I guess it would be speed and quickness," said Chelsea girls varsity basketball coach Richard Conkle.

"Then again, I guess our height is pretty good," Conkle added. "Maybe that is our strength."

"Then again, maybe we don't have a strength," he laughed.

All in all, Richard Conkle knows that he has a "pretty scrappy" bunch of girls making up the Chelsea Lady Hornets basketball team.

Just over two weeks into their season, the Lady Hornets have posted a 3-2 record with wins over Briarwood, Altamont and Indian Springs.

The losses came against Moody and Brighton. Against Moody, Conkle credits a fast 2-0 start with "going to our heads a bit" and causing the loss.

Against area foe Brighton, Conkle credits another twosome for contributing to the defeat — Kim Wilson and Laverne Moore.

The Lady Bears went into the season ranked as the second place team in the state and return all five starters from a 1984-85 team that finished among the state's top five. Wilson and Moore give them a deadly outside shooting combo, and — Conkle feels — the edge in the area race.

"The rest of us will just scrap in there behind them and see what happens," Conkle said.

The Hornets counter their opponents with a pretty good scoring machine of their own.

Sandy Brasher returns for her senior season at Chelsea after leading all scorers in the county during her junior year. The 5'11" center is averaging 28 points per game through five games this season.

Brasher is paired with two other 5-foot, 10-inchers inside in Deborah Shirley and Leslie Weston. While both are young, Conkle said their offensive production in support of Brasher may be the key to the Chelsea season.

"We need some scoring from them inside to be successful," he said.

Point guard Shel-lee Burdett, guard/forward Suzanne Roberts and forward Stephanie Grubbs round out the other players in Chelsea's six-man starting rotation.

From that point, Tonya Whitley, Liz Webb, Janet Isbell, Chanda Brasher, Amy Davis and Tina Gainer provide depth off the bench.

"We're still making some mistakes due to youth," Conkle said this week. "In the next couple of weeks we should learn a lot about ourselves."

Be careful when using a tree-stand

The use of treestands for deer hunting has increased tremendously in Alabama during the past five years. With this boom in treestand usage has also come a higher ratio of accidental falls from treestands. These accidents have resulted in numerous broken bones, sprains, torn ligaments, and in a few cases severe permanent injury.

Statistics taken from accident reports filed with the Game and Fish Division indicate that treestands were responsible for more than 11 percent of all reported hunting accidents during the 1984-85 hunting season. None were fatal, but several hunters were seriously injured.

This statistic may not seem significant when as many as 150,000 hunters use treestands, but each of these accidents could have been prevented. The Alabama Hunter Education Program hopes that you will take heed of the points listed below and prevent treestand accidents.

- Carefully check all stress points on your treestand before using it for the first time each season.
- Treat every treestand with the respect due a platform raised above the ground.
- Test your treestand and make certain it is safe while near ground level. Carefully control each step you make as you climb.

- Be sure your stand is securely attached to the trunk of a properly sized tree.
- Be certain your gun is unloaded before pulling it up or letting it down from your treestand.

- Always use a safety belt when hunting from a treestand.
- Excessive movement of your stand may cause you to lose your balance, so make sure that stand will not move unexpectedly.
- On a self-climbing treestand, do not place your weight close to the tree.

- Clear away obstructing tree branches, especially before trying to shoot a bow and arrow from a treestand.
- Respect the property of landowners and do not damage trees.

Treestands give hunters a better view of the surrounding area and increase the chance of seeing game. The Game and Fish Division approves of this hunting method, but stands are only as safe as you make them. So abide by the common sense rules of treestand safety and have a safe hunting season.

Kmart in Pelham

The Jaycees will treat the youngsters to a special shopping spree at 8 a.m. Saturday, Dec.

"Kmart is aware that there are some children in our community who are unable to participate in Christmas activities," Kmart manager H.F. Kirk said. "Helping some of these children with their Christmas shopping is our way of making this holiday season happier for them."

The Pelham store is one of 2,100 Kmart's participating in the nationwide shopping spree for needy children. Kmart Corporation is the second largest retailer in the world with 1984 annual sales of $21 billion.

Science class gives Czerw 'best job in county'

"I have the best job in the whole county," says Montevallo High School science teacher Carol Czerw (pronounced Sir). The reason she likes her job so much, Czerw explains, "is because I teach such fun courses and I have a super bunch of kids to work with."

Czerw, now in her third year at MHS, was voted this year's Outstanding Teacher. "I was very flattered that the people I work with would select me for this honor," she says.

In her 14 years of teaching, Czerw says the faculty at MHS is, "the best I've ever worked with."

Although she didn't set out to become a teacher when she pursued a bachelor of science degree at Jacksonville State, Czerw is glad it worked out that way.

"I had really intended to be a chemist and work in a laboratory," she explains, "but a high school offered me a teaching job two months before I graduated."

The reason for the job offer, she says, is because schools were having a hard time finding someone to teach physics and chemistry.

As a librarian and teacher, Gardner helps children explore

Teachers have special roles as "enablers," Patti Gardner believes.

"More important than teaching the subject matter in question — though that is extremely important — is to enable a child to think, to reason, and to seek out information. We want to enable students to discover their own uniqueness, to develop positive attitudes toward themselves and others and to understand our democratic way of life," she explained.

Gardner, the librarian at Vincent Middle School, was chosen as teacher of the year. She feels she was chosen because of a special appreciation the faculty has for the importance of libraries. The school's strong support has made its library a "focal point," and made her job much easier, Gardner said.

"What I probably enjoy most about the library is helping bring books and students together," she said. Gardner tries to both find books to fit children's current interests and to provoke their interest in exploring new subjects.

Even though she does not have the same close contact with students as classroom teachers have, Gardner still considers

Love keeps Stanford in teaching over 20 years

There are, said Patti Stanford, several important considerations in teaching.

Communication, inspiration, challenge... all are important in dealing with students. But none is more important than genuine love. And it is that love for her students that has kept Patti Stanford in teaching through a two-part career that spans 12 years.

"The love of these kids," Stanford said, "that's what keeps me in teaching."

Stanford began teaching in Chicago over 20 years ago. "The arrival of son Scott 19 years ago called a halt to her teaching, and Stanford spent more than a decade at home, raising first Scott, then Kelly, then Mike.

But when Mike, now 13, started to school, Stanford went with him, beginning her second teaching career.

"A short while ago someone asked me if I worked outside the home," Stanford said. "When I answered a very positive yes, she asked what I did."

When Stanford replied she was a teacher, the woman could only ask why.

Czerw

Czerw began teaching with a provisional certificate and later earned certification at the University of Montevallo.

In her classes at MHS this year, which include biology, chemistry and physics, Czerw teaches approximately 140 students.

One of the things she believes is important in teaching, Czerw says, is to have respect for the students.

She also thinks it's important to give a student a push when necessary. "If you don't expect a lot you won't get it," she says, "and I do expect a lot."

What makes her job so much fun, Czerw explains, is that no two days are the same. "There's so much variety in the subjects I teach."

Gardner

herself very much a teacher, training children in library skills.

"I'm constantly trying to find new ways to put material in front of children so that they're interested in exploring further. I love to read to them," she said.

She finds that when a teacher is enthusiastic about a subject, students catch that enthusiasm.

"You can just see them waking up to it. Often, it is just that the child doesn't know what is out there when they think they don't like something," she said.

Before she began her work in the library, Gardner was a classroom teacher. She grew up in Russellville playing school with her sisters, and all three followed in the footsteps of their mother, who was also a teacher.

She received a B.A. from Birmingham Southern College, with a major in music and a minor in English. She began her career teaching public school music at Graymont Elementary School in Birmingham.

The next summer, she married Carroll Gardner Jr., who has been her husband for about 30 years now. She began her family which includes four adult sons and "going back to work full-time seemed, at that point, out of the question."

During that time, she taught piano lessons, served as organist for Cahaba Heights Baptist Church, worked with the children's and youth choirs and sang in the chancel choir.

"The church has always been important to me, and it was a natural thing, as our children were growing up, to begin to teach church school classes," Gardner said. In church she has worked with pre-schoolers through adults. "The skills I gained through professional workshops in Christian education, as well as those acquired through practical experiences, kept me abreast of the changing trends occurring throughout the field of education."

In the early 1970s, her children were older and she decided to return to teaching because "I always wanted my life to make a difference in someone else's. I believe that's what we have our gifts for."

She taught sixth grade reading at Cahaba Heights Elementary School for two years, received a master's degree from the University of Montevallo in 1975, and returned to the school for two more years.

Her goal was to challenge students to reach their peak performances without pushing them to their frustration points. Any of her own frustrations have been "completely overshadowed by the joy of those moments when the light of understanding dawns in a child's eyes, or when we know that, somehow, we have helped a child to feel better about himself or herself and his or her ability to achieve."

At the time, she became so fond of children's literature that she told her husband "I believe I missed my calling. I should have been a librarian."

Through an Accelerated Cooperative Program in Library Media, she became certified in 1984.

Gardner said she has "the best of all worlds," combining her love of music, teaching and libraries. She recently began working with a choral group at the school.

Though she misses the close classroom contact, she finds that "through good literature there are wonderful opportunities to challenge, to teach values, and to foster appreciation of people, of truth and beauty."

Seniors can win computer scholarship

Graduating high school seniors who have computer programming knowledge may win a scholarship in a competition hosted by Birmingham Southern College.

The competition will be held Jan. 11 in the college's new state-of-the-art Franklin W. Olin Computer Science-Mathematics Center.

Seniors who have knowledge of programming in Basic or Pascal languages are eligible to apply. The deadline for entries is December 15.

Applicants must furnish high school transcripts, college entrance exam scores and a report of personal achievement.

Winners are eligible for a new scholarship - the Ronne and Donald Hess Honors Scholarship in Computer Science, a $3,000 per year renewable award, plus several Presidential scholarships.

To get an application or for more information, contact Robert Dortch, Box A-18, Birmingham 35254, or call 226-4686.

She says her students can relate because the subject matter she covers is all relative to what is going on in the world. "I'm teaching about life," she says.

Her students enjoy both classroom demonstrations and working in the lab, she says. Her biology students keep her well supplied with samples of the subject matter being studied. "My desk is always full of slimy stuff," she laughs.

Something that sets her lab apart from most others, is the commercial bee hive positioned in a window.

"It's a working hive I use in teaching a unit on insects," she explains. The glass frames were made by MHS vocational ag teacher Tony Berry.

Czerw says she got the idea for the hive in a museum she visited. When she made inquiries on purchasing one, she was told the price was around $600.

"I said forget that," she laughs. After Berry constructed a hive, Czerw ordered the bees, half of which escaped while she attempted to put them in the hive.

Since they can't live for more than a day outside the hive, Czerw says she had dead bees everywhere the following day.

More frames are going to be added, she explains, and by the end of next summer, the class should be able to collect honey for the first time.

Aside from her teaching duties, Czerw has other responsibilities at school that occupy a great deal of her time.

She often remains after school working with the cheerleaders, which she volunteered to sponsor, and she accompanies them to most games.

"I like working with the girls," Czerw says, "and my seven-year-old daughter Beth loves watching them. She's generally around when they're practicing."

Because she likes to dance, Czerw also volunteers to chaperone at school dances. "When the doors open, I'm always here," she says. That means she's ready to dance too. "I dance with students, faculty members; anyone who asks me," she laughs.

Her latest endeavor, Czerw says, is learning to play golf. "Since I like to walk, I thought this would be a good sport to take up," she says.

On the subject of her hard to pronounce name, Czerw says she answers to just about anything. Over the years, she says she's been saving labels with the name spelled a variety of ways, from Sir to Seer.

Stanford

Why? Because teaching offers the best avenue for helping young people through their adolescent years, Stanford said. The four major aspects that Stanford sees as important in teaching are also important in the lives of her students.

"I want them to be successful," Stanford said. "When I get old, I want someone to know what is going on in this world."

Stanford teaches government and law to eighth graders at Riverchase Middle School. It is a challenge, Stanford said, because it is a crucial time in the molding of the attitudes of the young people.

"I can expose them to all phases and models of citizenship," Stanford said. "In teaching, I constantly ask their opinion, constantly ask why."

Needless to say, communication is one of the areas of education Stanford feels is most important. In addition, Stanford said, education must inspire and challenge students, all the while conveying love.

Stanford feels that she can explore all aspects of teaching in her current situation at Riverchase. "This is a good school," she said. "It is a pleasure to work in a situation where the parents care and the kids are conscientious."

"Everyone works together here," she added, "that is what makes Riverchase successful."

When she is not teaching, Stanford enjoys aerobics and jogging. In addition, she and husband Shaffeur — "just call him Buddy, everyone else does" — stay busy being the parents of three teenagers.

But a large part of Patti Stanford's life centers around teaching. It is a life where more students than not leave her classroom never to speak with her again. But a few do come back, come back to tell her they want to be a lawyer or a teacher and thank her for her influence. That, said Stanford, further justifies her life as a teacher.

"A teacher never knows where his influence stops," Stanford said. "Good teaching affects eternity. I'll continue to teach both their minds and their hearts, hoping that when the facts have faded, the impressions of love of God and country will remain, and the experience we shared together will be remembered fondly."

Law helps find missing people

By Charles A. Graddick
Attorney General

Although many of us have heard the term "missing persons" used in radio and television programs, it really has a chilling effect when circumstances force us to use it in real-life situations and it is especially bad when children are involved.

In a recent column we discussed Parental Kidnapping and spoke of something called the National Crime Information Center Computer. If you did not have a chance to read about it, the NCIC Computer in Washington, D. C. is the key to a national computer-based information network that can be invaluable in helping police departments and law enforcement officials all over the country locate lost and missing persons.

To help Alabama "tap into" the NCIC computer system, your Attorney General's Office strongly supported a bill that became law in Alabama this past May. Law H. 936 created a statewide information center that will be operated by the Department of Public Safety (the Alabama Troopers). The center will be known as the Missing Children Bureau. It will receive reports and investigations as well as report information relating to missing and unidentified persons.

The Bureau will also provide lists of missing school age children (K-12) to the State Board of Education. This will help school officials identify previously unknown children who may be parental kidnapping victims that show up in classrooms throughout the state. Another important aspect of the law is that it establishes a toll-free telephone number that can be used to report missing persons.

One of the best things about the new law is that it requires the Missing Children Bureau to receive and promptly enter all reports of law enforcement agencies and other persons and agencies into the state's computer system as well as into the NCIC computer system. By requiring this, the law will enable Alabama to coordinate investigations with other states. This ability should prove to be of immeasurable value in finding missing children.

In addition, the Missing Children Bureau will serve as a link between the general public and official state and federal agencies responsible for missing person investigations. In this way, families of missing children will not feel isolated from the investigation as they often have in the past.

Since time is critically important when it comes to finding missing persons, the law requires all law enforcement agencies to report a missing person complaint to the Bureau within 72 hours of receiving it. Hopefully, this will avoid many of the paperwork delays that have angered and frustrated both law enforcement officials and distraught families in the past.

Certainly, the prospects of an unidentified deceased person in another city or state, being identified as a missing loved one is something no one likes to think about. Yet, families who have experienced this kind of tragedy have told me personally, that at least knowing their loved one is at rest and knowing where they are is far better than not knowing and worrying that they are in great pain or are being harmed and tortured. So, another potential benefit of the Missing Children Bureau will be the information it shares to help law enforcement officials and medical examiners around the country identify unknown human remains. In this way, the emotional suffering and anxiety of many families can at least be shortened.

It is never easy to think about things as dreadful as a missing loved one. Yet, we are extremely fortunate that something has been done right here in Alabama to help short-circuit such terrible tragedies. The fact we now have a Missing Children Bureau in the Department of Public Safety makes me feel a lot better about the safety and security of my own three small children. I hope it comforts you, as well.

If you would like to know more about the Missing Children Bureau, please feel free to call on the Attorney General's Office of Victim Assistance. We will be very happy to get the information for you, or to provide you with the proper names, telephone numbers and addresses, you can contact us, toll-free, from anywhere in Alabama by simply dialing 1-800-626-7676.

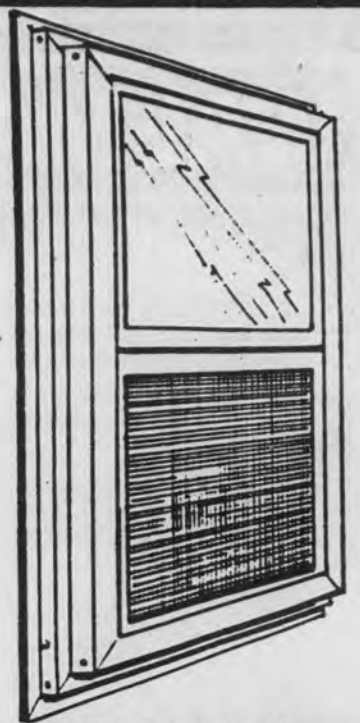

Stay in touch and take care of yourself!

CABLE FOR CHRISTMAS

A Christmas Project of Cablevision

Many of us have fond memories of the holidays—feasting on many holiday treats, greeting friends and relatives and exchanging gifts with loved ones.

With all the holiday spirit in the air, it is sometimes difficult to remember that for some, memories of Christmas and the holidays may not be fond ones. Every holiday season there are people who go hungry and children who will not experience the joy of unwrapping a toy on Christmas morning.

We at Cablevision are asking you to help these individuals discover the magic of Christmas this year through our "YuleHelp" project. If you contribute a new or usable toy or canned food to our "YuleHelp" project, you will be eligible for FREE INSTALLATION! This will include new and any upgrading of service, a savings of up to $25.00.

To participate, stop by our local office between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. to place your order. Present our customer service representative with a new or usable toy or canned food worth at least $5.00 or more and you will receive FREE INSTALLATION of cable service on your first set. Your toys and food will be distributed to needy families in your area during the Christmas season.

You'll be making some people very happy...and you'll also be happy with our gift to you...Cablevision service is like Christmas itself, a veritable Santa's stocking of entertainment.

Please stop by our local office before December 20, 1985 and say you would like to participate in our "YuleHelp" project and receive free installation of cable with your donation. You'll be giving yourself an entertainment value that you will be able to enjoy year round and also help a needy family share in the wonderful joy of Christmas. It will be a Christmas they will never forget.

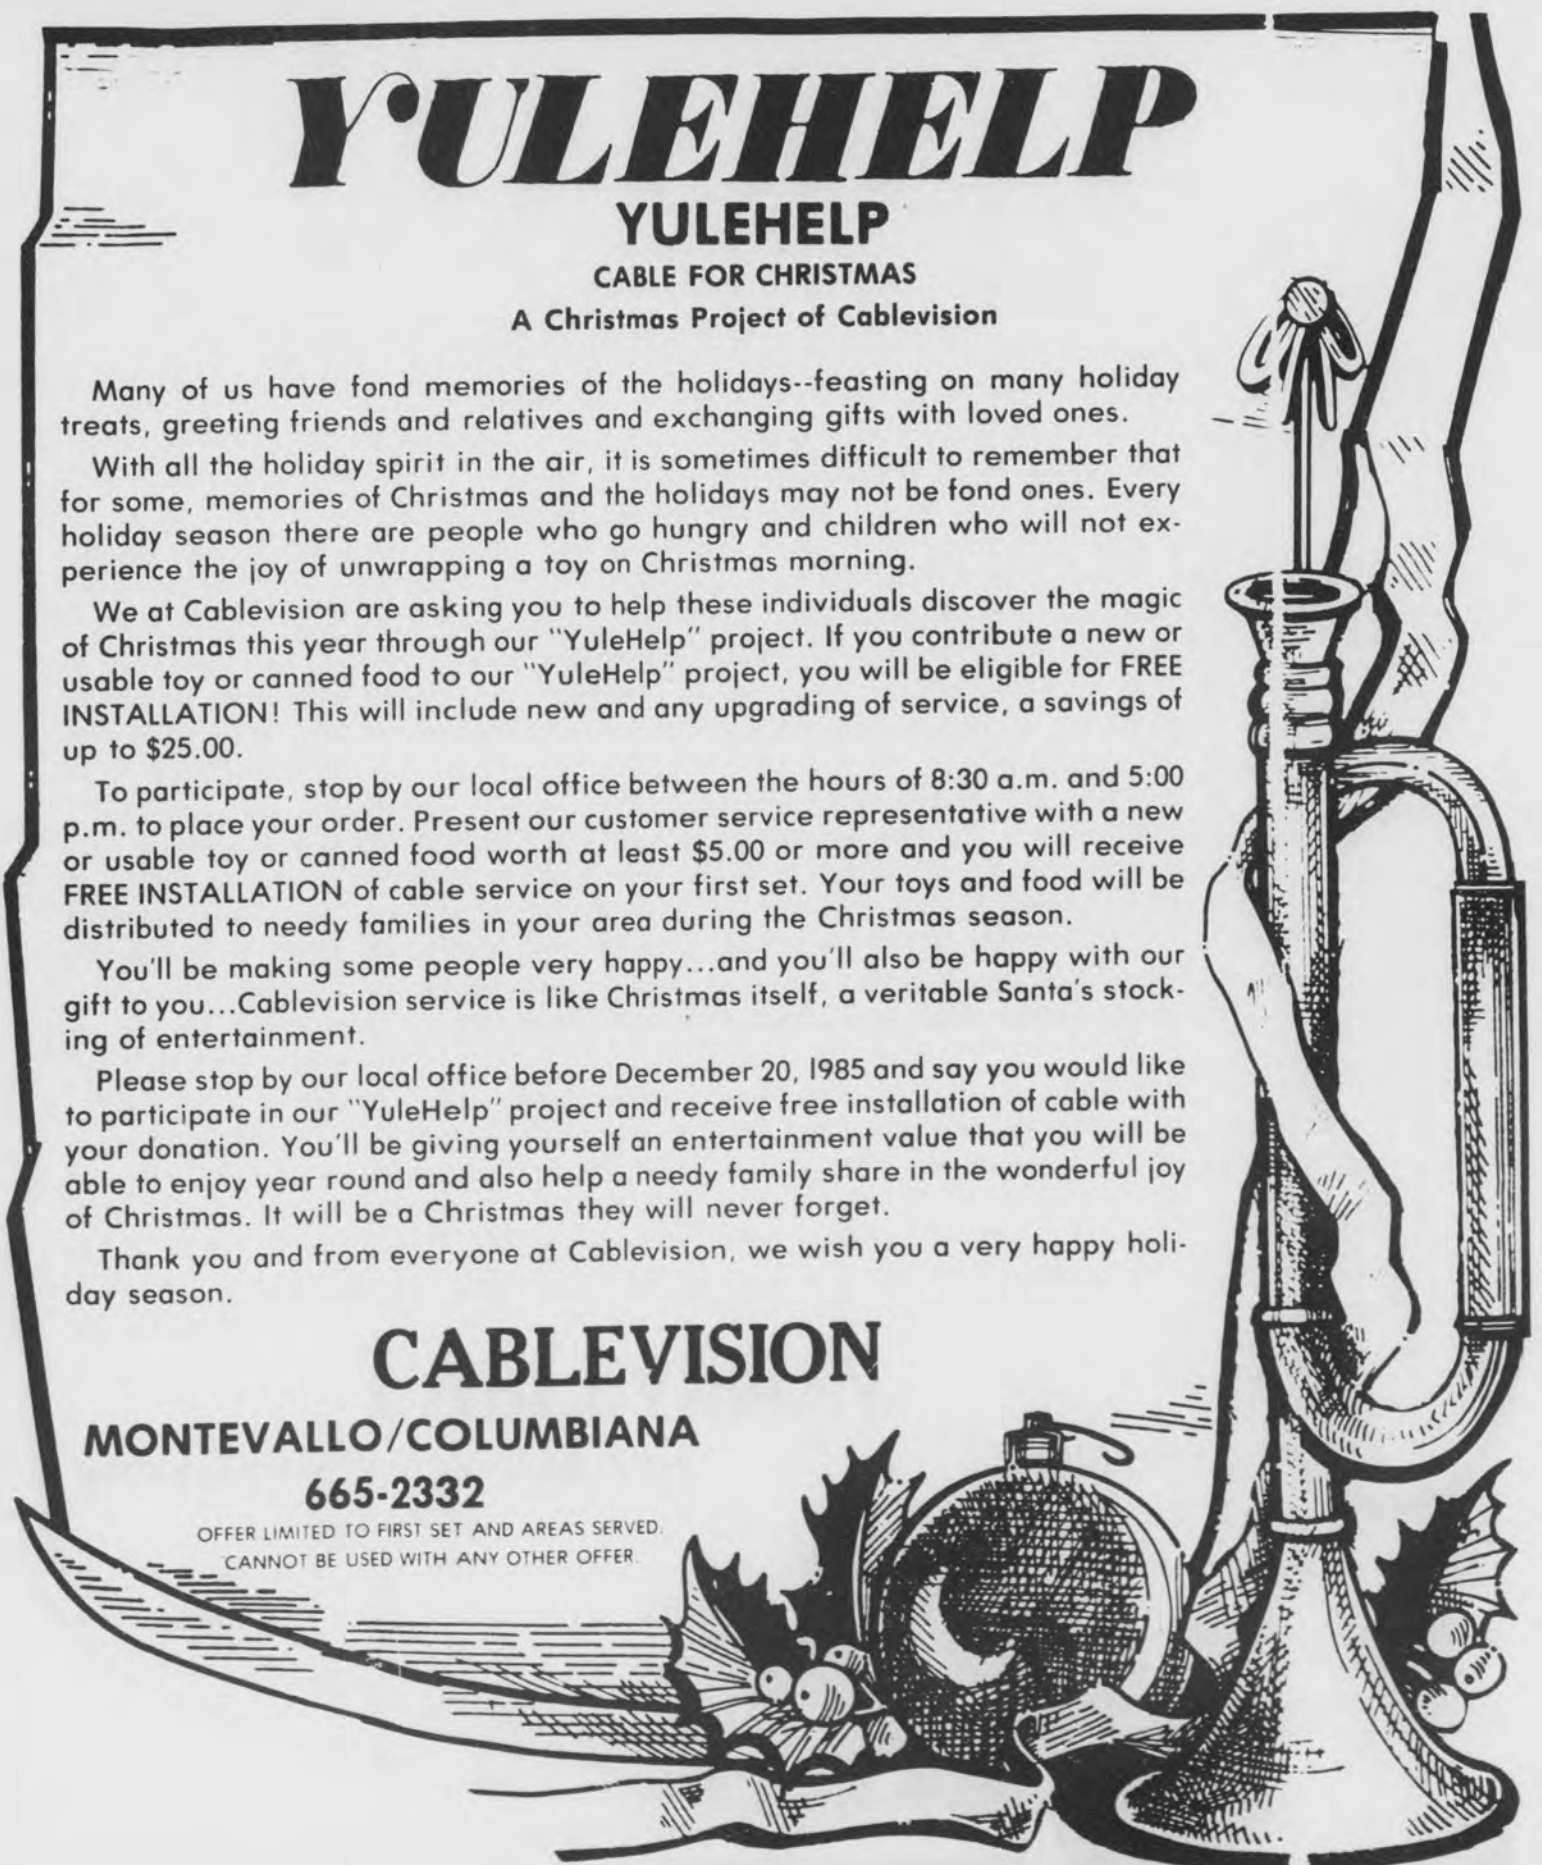

Thank you and from everyone at Cablevision, we wish you a very happy holiday season.

Beauty pageant funds computer

A beauty pageant is responsible for the computer that will soon be installed in Pam Holmes' second grade classroom at Helena Elementary School.

At the present time, the school has three computers, but two of them are in the Chapter 1 reading room, and the third must be shared by the entire student body.

"We wanted our own computer," Holmes explained, "so we decided to sponsor a beauty pageant."

The event proved to be a success with the proceeds totaling $1,400.

Fifty-nine contestants took part in the pageant which had three divisions.

The three Miss Helenas were: Kristie Connor, grades 4-6; Angel Matherson, 2-3; Rebecca Johnson, K-1.

Winners in other categories, which included best dressed, most beautiful smile and most stage presence, were: Christina Griggs, Mandy Patty, Aimee Sapp, Vanessa Cross, Stephanie Todd, Lyndsay Allan, Dawn Echols, Angie Godwin and Kimberly Mason.

MES fund gives help to needy

Although Lisa Pemberton is no longer a teacher at Montevallo Elementary School, the fund she started is still helping needy children who go to school there.

On occasion, Principal Jimmy Jones has used the money in the Children's Fund to outfit an underprivileged child at a local discount store. It has also gone to supply medical and hygienic needs.

A clothes closet at the school usually has a supply of good used clothing donated by various parents. But Jones says it's difficult to find a good used pair of shoes that will fit a child needing shoes. And jackets are another item that are in short supply, he says.

The contributions made last week to the Children's Fund should go a long way toward supplying those needs.

Members of the Centrala Garden Club donated $300 to the fund, and the Spring Creek Cumberland Presbyterian Church gave $80, with plans to continue making monthly contributions.

"I think it's great," Jones says, "that people show they care by sharing with us, especially at Christmastime."

Lisa Adney with Bronko

Mike and Donna Adney with Legend

Of 'perfect dog'

New Puppies may fulfill dream

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

For 15 years, Adneyhaus Kennels — that's Mike, Donna and Lisa Adney of Columbiana — has trained, bred and carried on a love affair with the German Shepherd breed.

Mike and Donna Adney had German Shepherds before they had their daughter Lisa.

"We've been involved with them for 15 years," Donna said recently. "They were our children then and they still are," Mike added.

The Adney's children — two-footed and four-footed — grew together, Lisa coming to love the dogs her mom and dad so much enjoyed.

Working together, the Adneys enjoyed success with Adneyhaus Kennels. The cornerstone of the effort became their obedience-trained shepherds that were further trained as Schutzhunds, a German method of protection training.

The chief block in the cornerstone was a shepherd named Shadow, a dog whose "love and loyalty" Donna said cemented the Adney's attachment for the breed.

But Shadow's influence left the kennel over a year ago when the dog died suddenly of a heart attack.

While Shadow is missed, Adneyhaus Kennel's success has not ended. In fact, Donna said, the Adneyhaus dream of the "perfect dog" seems even closer to reality.

To fill the void, the Adneys began to search for a new dog — a dog with a pleasant temperament and good conformation — a dog that could produce champions.

Letters were sent throughout the nation, phone calls went out requesting pedigrees or pictures. Finally, Robert Scholes and Nordlicht Kennels of Seattle provided a "dream-maker" for Adneyhaus. The dreams came in a rather large package, Von Nassau's Ginina, a shepherd female with a personality to match her classic looks.

The Adneys bought Ginina, and soon saw their dream take shape in six little wiggly forms, puppies in the Adneyhaus Kennels.

The puppies grew and entered conformation training with Martha Putnam, the classes sponsored by UAB and the Birmingham Kennel Club.

As they matured, puppies Bronko (a male) and Legend (a female) distinguished themselves among their siblings and were given the first shot at show performances.

The pair impressed judges and handlers at informal match shows. In addition, the puppies earned the respect of Mary Putnam, and she agreed to handle

Sheriff's dept phone aids deaf

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

John McGrath was home alone when the pains in his chest began. McGrath (a fictitious name) wouldn't have been able to summon help a few weeks earlier because he's deaf.

However, McGrath had a TDD (telecommunication device for the deaf) phone installed prior to the heart attack and was able to call the police department in the city where he lives.

Now the hearing impaired in Shelby County have access to emergency service through the sheriff's department.

The TDD phone which was recently installed allows individuals who cannot hear to call and report whatever type problem they may be having.

Dispatcher Marilyn Campbell said the need for the phone was brought to the attention of the department a few weeks earlier when a deaf person had a friend call and report a burglary.

Lin Fulton, who works with the Independent Living Center in Birmingham, showed dispatchers how to use the TDD device which has a keyboard to type messages and a viewing screen. There is also a print-out of the message received.

The hearing impaired person can tell when the phone is ringing by a signal light. At an extra cost, a sound activated device can be purchased to make the lights blink in every room when the phone rings.

Fulton said most of the 25-30 hearing impaired individuals in the county now have the phone. She said the price has come down in the last few years, making them more available. The phones now range in price from $159 to $500.

It would be helpful to handicapped people, Fulton said, if businesses would get TDD's. However, she said Alabaster Optical and Hearing Aid Service is the only business in the county she knows of that has one.

Robin Price from the Independent Living Center said that the facility offers a relay message service for the deaf.

Giving an example of the variety of calls the center receives, Price said, "Just today, a youngster called from school saying to tell her father, who is deaf, she needed her spelling book."

Price said other calls from non-hearing individuals have been for such reasons as making a doctor's appointment, telling a mate to bring home a loaf of bread and even making a date for young man who wanted to ask a certain young lady to go to the prom.

However, the calls relayed through the Independent Living Center must be made between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

After that, the hearing impaired person must depend a friend or relative unless an emergency situation arises, where a call to the sheriff's department will bring a quick response.

Dispatchers learn to use new phone them in point shows — the first shepherds Putnam had agreed to handle in five years.

Adney

"Don't be disappointed if they don't do well immediately," Putnam warned the Adneys. "They are good dogs, they'll be O.K."

Disappointment, however, was not a stop on Bronko and Legend's flight to a dream. In their first show, — a German Shepherd specialty show — the puppies finished first in their classes and Bronko was named the best puppy in the show.

Next show, similar success for both dogs.

Next show, a glimpse of a dream coming true.

First, Bronko and Legend won their respective puppy classes. Next, Bronko won reserve champion status as he competed with the winners in all other male categories.

Legend, showing against champions in other age groups, won best of winners among the female classes. Then, in an honor almost unheard of for a six-month-old puppy, Legend was named best of breed in the show.

"This is the thrill of a lifetime for us," Donna said. "We are so grateful for the advice of Robert Scholes and our friends Bill and Martha Putnam."

For the Adneys, the almost instant success of Bronko and Legend provides a glimpse at a dream that will grow through the years. Not only do the Adneys feel that Bronko and Legend will become champions, but their four litter-mates hold potential as well.

Donna and Mike can even see obedience and Schutzhund training in the future for the dogs, training that would make them the "perfect dog" for which Adneyhaus has searched.

"We want a dog with good conformation, a pleasant personality and obedient," Donna said. "These dogs can be champions in all of those aspects."

Holiday recipe booklet ready

by Paula Newbury
Assistant County Agent

Christmas is just around the corner. The decorations are all in place on every corner in town and everywhere you look there are signs of Christmas.

One of the larger Christmas projects that our office has each year is putting together a Holiday Recipe Booklet. These booklets have grown quite popular and the reason must be that so many fine cooks in Shelby County share their recipes with us. Because of increased production expenses we will have to charge a small fee, not much at all. You can pick these books up in our office located in the Shelby County Courthouse Annex. For more information call us at 669-6763.

TV program

If you're an early Saturday morning riser you might enjoy a TV program called Extension Roundup on Channel 13. It airs at 6:30 a.m. Each week, county agents from Jefferson and sometimes surrounding counties appear on the program with host Everette Holle. The show's topics vary from home economics to agriculture to 4-H in subject matter.

Occasionally, John Jones and I are on the show. I recently taped a show with a local potter, Becky Bolton Crisswell. This tape will be shown again December 21. Anyone interested in Pottery for the Home may want to catch this one.

Cleaning for Christmas

Most of us wait until there is a special occasion before we do some of our real serious cleaning, such as silver and brass. Christmas is one of those occasions when you usually polish them for use.

Flowers and fruit are lovely in silver containers, but the acid formed as they decay can etch the container and cause serious damage. If silver bowls are to be used for this, use a glass liner.

If silver pieces are to be used in a room, they should not be covered with plastic, which detracts from the beauty of the silver and may discolor it.

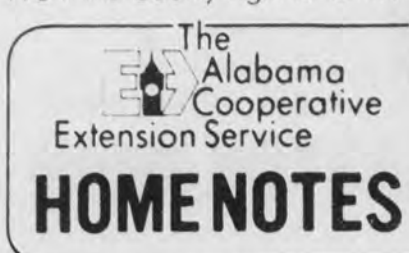

When washing silver, use hot, soapy water. Rinse and dry it soon with a soft cloth. Air-drying causes water spots, but these can be removed with silver polish.

Silver doesn't have to be polished each time it is used. However, tarnished silver is easy to clean. Apply polish in long, even strokes, not across or in a circle. There are several fine commercial silver polishes, which should be used by following the directions on the label.

You can make your own polish, however.

- Make a paste of one part clear household ammonia or denatured alcohol and three parts whiting. Dampen a soft cloth with water and dip it into the paste. Apply the paste and rub until the tarnish is removed. Wash the silver in hot, soapy water, then rinse and dry.
- Make a cream of one-fourth cup of soap flakes dissolved in two cups of boiling water. Let it cool. Add a little water to one and one-half cups of whiting. Add the whiting to the cool soap mixture and stir to make a smooth paste. Dampen a soft cloth with water and dip it into the paste. Rub silver until the tarnish is removed. Wash it in hot soapy water. Then rinse and dry.

- You can clean silver with toothpaste on a soft, damp cloth. Use only a small amount, and buff the surface lightly until it's clean. Then polish with a soft, dry cloth.
- Never use a polish that contains abrasives. Antique silver should not be polished frequently. Also, don't rub it too hard. Store silver in a chest or drawer lined with a tarnish-resistant cloth or in a tarnish-resistant bag.

There is a way to clean silver known as electrolytic cleaning or electrolysis. This is the use of aluminum foil in a soda solution. Most silversmiths do not recommend this method because it removes not only the tarnish, but also the shading in the pattern and patina.

Brass looks best if it is kept shining. You can retard tarnishing by coating brass pieces with laquer, a synthetic finish, tung oil, lemon oil or products sold for this purpose.

Brass without a coating will tarnish and must be polished. There are several ways to clean and polish brass, and some are listed here. Test any cleaner to be sure you get the effect you want. Some cleaning methods remove the mellowness of antique brass.

- Wash the piece in hot, soapy water. Rinse and dry it to remove surface grime. Wax, if desired, with a furniture wax.
- Dampen a soft cloth with boiled linseed oil. Rub it on the surface until you get a good shine.
- Make a paste of rottenstone and boiled linseed, salad or olive oil. Rub it on the surface to polish it.
- Make a paste of whiting and denatured alcohol. Rub it on the surface and allow it to dry. Polish off the white film. Wash the piece in hot, soapy water. Rinse and dry.
- Rub the piece with table salt moistened with hot vinegar or lemon juice. Wash it in hot, soapy water. Rinse it in hot water and dry.
- Dip a lemon into table salt. Rub it on the surface. Wash the piece in hot soapy water, rinse and dry.
- Pour ammonia into a glass bowl. Soak the brass piece for a few minutes. For large objects, rub them with a cloth dampened with ammonia, turning the cloth as it becomes soiled. Wash the piece in hot, soapy water, rinse and dry. Polish it using a paste of whiting and linseed oil.

VA reduces loan interest rates

The Veterans Administration has reduced its maximum home loan interest rate from 11.5 percent to 11 percent, effective November 20.

Noting that the 11 percent rate is the lowest in more than six years, Montgomery VA Regional Office Director James W. Conway said the reduction is a sign of continued improvement in the mortgage market.

Conway said many veterans who currently have VA home loans with interest rates as high as 17.5 percent may be able to refinance their homes at the new, lower rate. He urged veterans who still occupy their VA-financed homes to contact local mortgage lenders for details on VA's interest rate reduction refinancing program.

This is the fourth decrease in VA home loan rates this year. The last change occurred June 5 when the rate went from 12 percent to 11.5 percent.

The VA has also decreased by one-half percentage point the maximum rates for graduated payment mortgages (GPMs) to 11.25 percent and home improvement loans to 12.5 percent. In addition, the rates for manufactured homes will also be decreased. The new maximum rates are 13.5 percent for unit only loans and 13 percent for loans to purchase either a unit with the lot or to purchase a lot upon which a unit already owned by the veteran is to be placed.

The rate change does not affect existing loans whose interest rate remains the same for the life of the agreement. VA home loans may be used to purchase, construct, alter, improve, repair or refinance a home. This includes the purchase of condominiums and manufactured homes, with or without a lot.

Look for 'safe toys'

Keep safety in mind when you purchase or use toys this holiday season, the Alabama Department of Public Health cautions. Although toys today generally are safer than in years past, not every toy is safe for every child.

Approximately 126,000 toy-related injuries were treated in hospital emergency rooms in 1984, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates. The commission also received reports of 33 fatalities associated with toys last year. Of this number, seven deaths resulted from children choking on balloons. Fortunately, most injuries associated with toys are minor and can be prevented by taking precautions.

"In selecting toys for children it is important to be concerned with the safety aspects of each individual toy," according to Jim McVay, director of the Health Department's Bureau of Primary Prevention. "The foremost concern is to choose toys that fit the age and ability level of the child."

When buying toys be sure to look for quality design and construction. Read and follow label recommendations such as "not recommended for children under 3" and "flame retardant/flame resistant" on fabric products. Make sure new toys are free of sharp glass and metal edges and that new toys do not have long strings or cords which may become wrapped around an infant's neck and cause strangulation.

Toy caps and some other noise-making guns can damage hearing. Do not allow children to fire them closer than one foot from the ear. Also, projectiles such as guided missiles can injure eyes.

"Plan for safety this Christmas," McVay concluded. "There are no substitutes for responsible adult supervision of children at play."

CES students in serving line

CES goes 'self-serve'

One of the ways to get the message on good nutrition across to students is to let them choose those foods at lunchtime.

Calera Elementary is one of the schools in the county that does just that.

Among the improvements in the lunchroom this year, is a self-service serving line. The new service line is part of the Board of Education's lunchroom renovation project at six county schools.

The new method of serving has increased participation in the Child Nutrition Program, and it's also used in the instructional program to teach students to identify and choose food groups that are both appetizing and nutritious.

CES teacher Debbie Horton and a group of 15 parents were responsible for other improvements made in the lunchroom. These include a canopy over the serving line, Wizard of Oz murals on the walls, and new window shades. Materials were provided by the PTO.

"We are proud of the improvements that our parents have made in the physical facilities of the school," said Principal Philip Haynie.

"But we are equally pleased," he said, "with the support our parents have given the instructional program."

At a county-wide open house event this fall, won by CES, for the fourth time, Haynie said 82 percent of the school's students were represented by at least one parent.

Landowners must combat pine beetles now

Pine Beetle Alert!

Alabama has been placed under a southern pine beetle alert...All counties in the state fall within the alert area...Severe damage has been reported in Texas and Louisiana and experts believe that Alabama may experience similar destruction by late spring or early fall, 1986...Forest landowners in the state are advised to take precautionary measures immediately to reduce the likelihood of extensive damage on their property...

This may sound pretty ridiculous, but the situation is, in fact, just that serious.

Texas alone has suffered losses totalling $51 million. Pulpwood in Louisiana has reportedly dropped to $2.50 a cord because of the surplus of salvaged timber. Let's not let the same thing happen in Alabama. Measures can be taken to prevent major destruction.

Forty-eight counties in Alabama have shows evidence of an active pine beetle population. Of these, 26 counties have reached the epidemic stage. On October 1, more than 1,500 spots with about 50 trees to a spot were reported statewide.

No doubt about it, the beetles are here.

With precautions calling for above average temperatures for this winter, their eggs will not be destroyed and spring can mean a new movement.

What can landowners do to reduce losses? Cut those beetle spots now.

"For each spot removed this winter, the landowner can prevent the formation of 10 new spots next spring," says Jim Hyland, chief of Pest Management with the Alabama Forestry Commission. "Landowners who cut spots now while the infestation is low will find a more favorable market situation."

"If they wait until next spring or summer when everyone is going to be flooding the market with beetle timber, prices will drop and we'll be faced with the same problems as Texas and Louisiana."

Alabama Forestry Commission personnel have been flying counties and pinpointing southern pine beetle damage. Landowners who have infestation are contacted immediately and advised of the situation. Information also is provided as to the steps which should be taken.

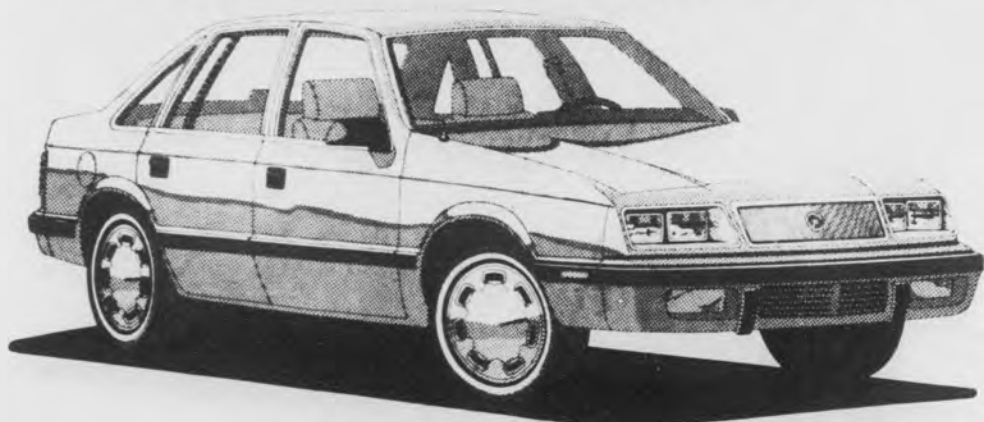

Anyone who needs additional information in Shelby County can contact Daryl Lawson, county supervisor, Alabama Forestry Commission. Telephone: 669-41433.

Fuel wood has many benefits

The first cool days of fall, the distant hum of chain saws, or the rhythmic chop of an axe may lure our thoughts back to childhood when firewood cutting was a family outing. Time was when almost no home escaped the oak or hickory fragrance of an open fire.

With the rising fuel costs of the last decade, many American families again turned to wood as a heat source. After finding that wood was not only relatively inexpensive, but also easily accessible, many chose to continue using wood even though other fuel costs had declined.

Whether you are a wood user or a forest landowner, there are advantages to obtaining fuelwood from our southern forests. Working hand-in-hand, consumers and forest landowners may both realize economic benefits.

First of all, in Alabama there are many low grade hardwoods growing within potentially productive pine stands. These hardwoods compete with the pine for nutrients, water, and will eventually crowd out what could become valuable timber. Cutting these hardwoods as fuelwood could be an excellent solution to this management problem.

The pines, no longer competing, would grow into high quality trees.

Besides in pine stands, some low-grade hardwoods also compete with higher grade hardwoods on hardwood stands. A wise landowner would remove the less desirable trees, perhaps through a firewood cutting, and allow the others to continue to grow into quality wood.

In selecting those trees to be left, the following guidelines should be considered:

- The straighter the trunk and the higher the first main fork or limb is from the ground, the higher the chances that the tree will become more valuable if left to grow.

- Trees which show no sign of insects, disease or past fire damage are healthy prospects for a future sale.

- However, don't overlook the value of leaving some snags or hollow trees to be used as wildlife dens.

- Even after trees have reached maturity and a final cut has been made, there may still be profits on the ground. Residual limbs and tops left behind would be ideal for someone's fireplace.

What species are best for use in a fireplace? Generally oaks and hickories have the highest heat value. Also to be considered are the locusts, pecan, elm, ash and sugar maple.

Of the pines, longleaf has the highest heat value, followed by loblolly and shortleaf, and then the least desirable white pine.

Of course, other wood types will burn. Remember, dry wood has a higher BTU content than green wood, so try to stack your wood so that it will dry out before you burn it.

How is fuelwood measured? Generally, firewood is sold by the cord.

Many think that a pickup truck holds a cord of wood. Not always. A stack eight feet high by four feet wide makes a cord.

Since most firewood comes in lengths shorter than four feet, there's an easy way to determine whether you have a whole cord.

Stack the wood as neatly as possible. Multiply the width (feet) times the height (feet). Take this figure and multiply times the length (feet). By dividing this product by 128, you will get a percentage of a standard cord for your stack.

Let's say your stack is four feet high, two feet wide and six feet long (4 x 2 x 6 = 48).  $48 \div 128 = .375$ . You have a little better than a third of a cord. It's to the consumer's advantage to remember this simple formula.

Now that you know what to cut, don't let those faraway hums just be your memories. Why not make some memories for your kids, too?

Before you do, contact your Alabama Forestry Commission office at 669-4133 for tips on locating sources for firewood. Cutting a landowner's trees without permission is timber theft.

Also, you need to be familiar with chainsaw safety. Don't turn those family outings into a nightmare.

Home care speeds up process in local burn victim's healing

by Julie McAlister and Elizabeth J. Patterson Reporter Staff

After two months in the University Hospital Burn Center, James Foster was afraid to leave the security of the hospital for home.

Foster had been burned over 60 percent of his body in an industrial accident early this fall. While in the hospital for skin grafts, he experienced kidney failure and had to wait until he was stronger to begin the grafts again.

Three days after his second surgery, he was released but was very afraid of how he would recover away from the care of the hospital.

Foster was reassured when a social worker explained that a nurse experienced with burn patients could visit and care for him in his home.

Patrice Jones, a nurse with the Visiting Nursing Association who lives in North Shelby County, began seeing Foster every other day, decreasing visits as his burns improved. While at his home, she would ask about any problems or changes in his condition, listen to his breathing, check his blood pressure, weight and temperature, take blood samples for tests and change his dressing.

A physical therapist from VNA will continue treatment at Foster's home for the next couple of months. Work with the therapist will reduce scarring and improve mobility.

Foster said he feels comfortable with his treatment, and that even though he is home, he has been well-cared for.

Once assured that he could be safely cared for at home, he found that being home helped him heal faster.

"I was sick of the hospital routine," Foster said, noting that he wanted some home-cooked food. "I don't feel like I would have done as well if I was still in the hospital."

Jones said such success comes from a close working relationship among the family and patient, the physical therapist and herself. One result of such cooperation is that Foster is eating better now.

The VNA program cannot work as it is supposed to without complete support from the patient, Jones said. Foster follows medical orders exactly, she said.

One of the benefits Jones enjoys as a home health care nurse is that she is able to follow up her patients' conditions and see improvements. During her visits, Foster shared his progress as he was able to walk and move better.

Along with nurses and physical therapists, a variety of home health care services are available.

Among the programs offered by VNA are speech therapy, nutrition programs, social work services, health aides, sitters and companions and homemaking assistance.

VNA — a non-profit agency serving Shelby, Jefferson and Walker counties — is affiliated with the United Way.

Medicare, Medicaid and many insurance plans cover home health services. The United Way helps VNA to be able to see people regardless of ability to pay, although the sitter and 24-hour service are not included in this arrangement.

The local VNA was established in 1938 and has its central office in Birmingham.

Screening exams aid in stroke prevention

Last year in Alabama, about 84 of every 100,000 people had strokes. This number is somewhat high compared to statistics for all southern states, which indicated that about 72 per 100,000 people had strokes.

What's more, southern states had the highest incidence of strokes per 100,000 people than any other region in the country!

The reasons for these statistics are not certain, but experts do know that screening examinations have a lot to do with the prevention of strokes.

Stroke and its causes

Stroke occurs when a portion of the brain suddenly stops functioning because blood is not reaching it. There are three causes of stroke: a clot of blood forming in an artery to the brain; a rupture of an artery with hemorrhage into the brain tissue; a clot formed in a blood vessel elsewhere traveling to an artery of the brain and blocking it.

Many times, stroke results from a disease called atherosclerosis (more commonly known as "hardening of the arteries"). It is known that people with atherosclerotic heart disease have a much higher risk of developing atherosclerosis in other arteries in the body. Sometimes the arteries are affected only slightly and do not produce any problems. At other times, the arteries are affected in a major way, and produce problems like gangrene or stroke.

Preventive Measures

There are several pieces of equipment used to test a patient's arteries and veins to check for any signs of atherosclerosis. Tests are non-invasive, which means nothing is introduced into the body such as a needle or catheter, and they are completely painless. These tests study many characteristics of blood flow, such as how fast it is flowing, the direction of the flow, pressure within the blood vessels and other measurable characteristics.

Know the Warning Signs

There are a number of warning signals usually associated with stroke:

- A sudden, temporary weakness or numbness of the face, arm or leg, or paralysis of the extremities.
- Temporary difficulty or loss of speech, or trouble understanding speech.
- Sudden temporary dimness or loss of vision, particularly in one eye.
- Difficulty in speaking and swallowing.
- An episode of double vision.
- Loss of bladder and bowel control.
- Unexplained headaches, or a change in the pattern of your headaches.
- Temporary dizziness, confusion or steadiness.
- Convulsions.
- A recent change in personality or mental ability.
- Diminished consciousness; coma.

Yes, there's a permanent way to remove hair

Women today who don't have a problem with unwanted facial and body hair can count themselves among the lucky few. Some experts place the estimates at 80 to 90 percent who do have a problem.

Although unwanted hair still isn't talked about much by those who have the problem, more and more women are turning to the only proven method of permanent hair removal: electrolysis.

The Food and Drug Administration recognizes probe type electrolysis as the only method of permanence when it comes to removing hair. There are many temporary solutions, including shaving, waxing, creams, depilatories and tweezing. However, the fact that electrolysis salons seem to be thriving, suggests that more women are interested in a permanent solution.

Gloria Jean (G.J.) Richardson, an electrologist for the past 10 years, owner of Electrolysis Clinic of Hoover & Montclair, believes the demand for services will continue to increase.

Richardson believes that electrolysis can solve most every hair problem. It is the only permanent method of hair removal approved by the FDA as well as the American Medical Association. The medical profession has recognized its benefits over 100 years and many dermatologists choose electrolysis as a treatment for their patients with problems of unwanted hair.

As some people may have been led to believe, it's not a method whereby a needle is stuck into the skin.

"A very fine probe is inserted alongside the hair in the hair follicle. A small amount of electrical current is then applied through this probe to destroy the hair root."

"Does it hurt? 'It can be slightly uncomfortable, depending on the individual and the area being treated. The equipment we use is operated at the highest comfort level, which means we do all we can to minimize any discomfort.'"

Side effects are kept to a minimum, although a slight redness is normal for a short time afterward. The redness is concealed by medicated makeup.

The expertise of the electrologist has a lot to do with the safety and effectiveness of the treatment.

The staff are members of the International Guild of Professional Electrologists and Mrs. Richardson serves as guild representative for Alabama. She is an officer in the Alabama Association of Electrologists and is active in the Southern Electrologists Association.

Electrolysis is a medical expense which can be claimed on tax returns. In some instances, insurance will cover some of the cost.

Mainly, its success among a growing number of women, and men, too, is because it has become more acceptable than temporary methods that are available. Mrs. Richardson believes its success will continue to influence the people with unwanted hair into realizing they don't have to live with their problem; they can be rid of it forever.

The Electrolysis Clinic Staff consists of five electrologists: G.J. (Gloria Jean) Richardson, Nancy Fox-Sharifi, Peggy Chamblee, Wanda Bethea, Donna Coshatt.

Silent disease attacks bone

Osteoporosis, a "thinning" of the body's bone structure, is the 12th leading cause of death in the United States, yet many of its victims have no idea they are vulnerable until it is too late.

"Osteoporosis is a silent disease with no early-warning signs," says Dr. William Peck, chairman of the 1984 National Institute of Health Consensus Panel on Osteoporosis. "The first symptom is almost always a bone fracture, usually in the spine, hip or wrist. The bones become so fragile that a vertebra can break just from getting out of bed in the morning."

Bone loss is particularly severe in post-menopausal women. While there is no proven method to add new bone and reverse the decline, good preventive measures can better your chances of avoiding the disease.

John Pekkanen, writing in the November Reader's Digest, declares that adequate calcium is the cornerstone of any diet to prevent osteoporosis. "The NIH panel recommends that pre-menopausal women get 1000 mg. of calcium daily, the equivalent of three eight-ounce glasses of low-fat milk alone," he writes. "Post-menopausal women not on estrogen-replacement therapy should consume 1500 mg. a day."

The sad fact is their calcium intake is far short of that goal. "American women from their mid-40's on, average only about 450 mg. of calcium in their diet, and studies show a disturbing trend toward even lower amounts," he continues. Moreover, alcohol, caffeine and nicotine speed the body's excretion of calcium and other minerals.

Along with diet two other factors are seen to be helpful in avoiding osteoporosis. One is exercise, which increases bone mass and reduces bone loss. How much exercise and what kind have not been determined, but anything that puts mechanical stress on the bones is helpful.

Finally, estrogen-replacement therapy is recommended. The hormone estrogen decreases sharply at the onset of menopause and so does a woman's ability to absorb calcium.

"Estrogen replacement poses a risk-benefit question," Pekkanen notes, "because it does increase slightly the risk of endometrial cancer. By including another hormone, progesterone, the risk of endometrial cancer appears to diminish, and bone loss may be slowed even further."

Depression

'Single' holidays can get you down

by John S. Brumley
Executive Director
Chilton-Shelby County
Mental Health Center

Leigh had only recently moved to town. Over 1,000 miles she had come to accept a new job - a job sure to secure a bright and successful future.

Leigh was a smart girl, a pretty girl, a popular girl. But, here, with the stress of a new job and the struggle to prove herself indispensable to her new employer, she had found very little time to make new friends. She, she has friends at work, but most were married, and many had children. Leigh was single.

So, night after night, after day after day of hard work, Leigh came home to a silent, empty apartment. At first, she could handle this because she was tired and needed the rest in order to be fresh for work the next day.

But, as the holiday season approached, everything began to pile up - the stress, the emptiness, the loneliness.

Leigh threw herself deeper into her work. "Keep busy," she told herself. "you won't have time to be depressed. You won't have time to be lonely. The emptiness won't matter."

Wrong! Depression set in like a slow, chilly, April rain.

Leigh had grown up in a household where holidays were special. Reminiscing, she could almost smell the turkey, ham and pumpkin pie - all her favorites.

The thought of being away from her family at Christmas time could only compound her problems. She was too far to go home. There would be no family, no friends to share the usual light-hearted loving, laughing, caring, giving with this year. Neither would there be a turkey, a ham nor a pumpkin pie. Anxiety burned within her like a wildfire.

As days passed, as Christmas grew nearer, depression grew darker and anxiety heightened. The hustle and bustle of shoppers and the twinkling, bright lights were only blurs through her tear-glazed eyes.

Leigh slept more, but when she would awaken, things were much the same. She was still a very depressed, young, single woman, alone during a holiday season.

The happy ending to Leigh's story? There isn't one.

As always, the holiday season came and went. The heavy veil of depression, stress and anxiety lifted...for a while. But, alas, there will be other holiday seasons. Perhaps, these will be happier for Leigh; but for thousands of singles, young and old, of every race, creed and background, the story will be much the same as Leigh's.

For many, the feelings of loneliness, depression, distress, the unwanted feelings will come and go with the season. Unfortunately though, many do not bounce back so easily.

For some, a single holiday season may result in a life-time of alcoholism, drug addiction or even suicide.

The single life liberates many people - gives them a sense of freedom, of independence. However, the lack of a close relation with whom you can share thoughts and feelings can be detrimental to one's mental and physical well-being.

Amidst a holiday season, the fear of living out the rest of your life alone becomes more horrible and seems more realistic than ever. The fear of being forever alone is a threat to even the most secure individual.

The conflicts that single people encounter with themselves are numerous. The effects of these combined with outside influences can be earthshaking.

Be a friend; seek a friend.

There are many singles who need friends, especially during the holiday season. Don't let "A Single Holiday Season" get you down.

Steps to keep heart attack from happening

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, written by Patrick Huyghe, is condensed from Science Digest and reprinted with the permission of Reader's Digest; December 1985 Edition.

Nearly a million Americans die each year of cardiovascular - or heart and blood-vessel - diseases. That's almost as many as the number succumbing to all other causes of death combined.

But while the mortality totals are gloomy, the trends are encouraging. The death rate from coronary heart disease has plummeted 37 percent in the past 20 years. The decline is particularly impressive among these 35 to 45 years old, where the drop is nearly 50 percent.

Experts say the encouraging statistics are due in part to improved hospital care, surgical intervention and emergency life-support services. But even more important, they say, has been our increasing ability to control the known risk factors.

Much of our knowledge about these risk factors comes from an ongoing project known as the Framingham Heart Study. Since 1949, public-health officials have followed the living habits and medical histories of some 5,000 residents of this Boston suburb. Over the years, they have found three major risk factors associated with heart disease: cigarette smoking, high blood pressure and high cholesterol levels.

Other controllable risk factors identified by Framingham and similar studies include stress, obesity, diabetes and lack of exercise. There are also several conditions beyond our control that increase the likelihood for a heart attack: are (four out of five deaths from heart attack occur after 65), sex (under age 60, twice as many men as women have heart attacks, although after 60, the numbers begin to level out) and heredity.

Dr. Jan Breslow, a geneticist at Rockefeller University, estimates that five to 10 percent of the population are genetically highly susceptible to heart disease, and that an equal proportion are probably highly resistant.

Little can be done about congenital heart disease. It is in dealing with the controllable risk factors, however, that much progress has been made in the past two decades - and more progress can be expected.

Here is what we now know about the preventable dangers of heart disease and what you can do about them:

Cholesterol. Cut back on bacon and eggs, buttered rolls and rib-eye steaks. These standard items of the American diet - high-fat dairy and meat products - are the primary sources of saturated fat and cholesterol in the diet. They can raise the blood's cholesterol to excessive levels, which promotes atherosclerosis of the coronary arteries, the most common form of heart disease, and the increases your risk for heart attack.

Atherosclerosis involves the buildup along the inner walls of the arteries of a substance known as plaque, which is composed of fat, cholesterol, calcium and cellular debris. The vessel walls eventually become so hard and thick that the blood moves with difficulty through the narrowed channels, and this can cause chest pains or a heart attack.

While the exact process by which atherosclerosis occurs is not well understood, there is no doubt that without cholesterol it just does not occur. Consequently, the medical community today views a high level of cholesterol in the blood as one of the most wanted killers.

In Japan, where the smoking habit is as common as it is in the United States and where high blood-pressure levels are as frequent, one sees about an eighth as many heart attacks. A striking difference in the two populations is their cholesterol levels. Studies of Japanese who migrated to Hawaii and California and adopted American life-styles and eating habits showed that their cholesterol levels increased, as did their rates of heart attack.

Last year, the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute (NHLBI) released a 10-year study on cholesterol.

"This study is a break-through," says Dr. William P. Castelli, director of the Framingham Heart Study. "It has shown beyond a shadow of a doubt that, if you have a high blood-cholesterol level, for every one percent you lower it, you lower your chances by two percent of having a heart attack."

The average American typically has a blood-cholesterol reading of 210 and 220 mg per deciliter. According to a recent blue-ribbon panel of the National Institutes of Health, adults over age 30 should have serum-cholesterol counts under 200.

Dietary changes alone could reduce high blood-cholesterol levels 10 to 15 percent, according to Robert I. Levy, former director of the NHLBI study, and thereby decrease the number of deaths from heart attacks in the United States 20 to 30 percent.

Drugs are available that lower cholesterol levels, but some are very expensive and not very palatable, while others have limited usefulness. Even though efficient cholesterol-lowering drugs are expected within this decade, for most people, dietary adjustments will still be the cornerstone of all efforts.

Smoking. About 170,000 heart-attack fatalities each year - up to 30 percent of all coronary deaths - are due to cigarette smoking. Studies have shown that smokers have a 70-percent greater risk of dying from a heart attack than non-smokers have. The risk rises to 200 percent for the two-pack-a-day smoker. And while using low-tar-and-nicotine cigarettes seems to decrease lung-cancer rates slightly, it doesn't appear to reduce the risk for cardiovascular disease.

Smoking increased atherosclerosis in coronary arteries and in the body's major

SMC Cardiology department saves lives

In 1985 the cardiology department at Shelby Medical Center performed more than 3,700 cardiac procedures.

"Most people in Shelby County do not realize that Shelby Medical Center's cardiology department has progressed to the point that it is as good as any in the area," said Dr. Dale Elliot, chief of cardiology at SMC.

"The new 2 D echocardiogram and computerized treadmill are among the most modern and up-to-date pieces of equipment available. And with the opening of the cardiac catheterization lab last April, we are now able to do anything any of the other hospitals in the area can, with the exception of open-heart surgery," Elliot said.

The primary function of the cardiology lab, said Sharon Barnes, manager of the department, is to diagnose, evaluate and, in some cases, treat heart disease.

The 2 dimensional echocardiogram, installed last December, projects a detailed picture of a patient's heart upon a screen, where cardiologists can measure heart function and locate some types of abnormalities.

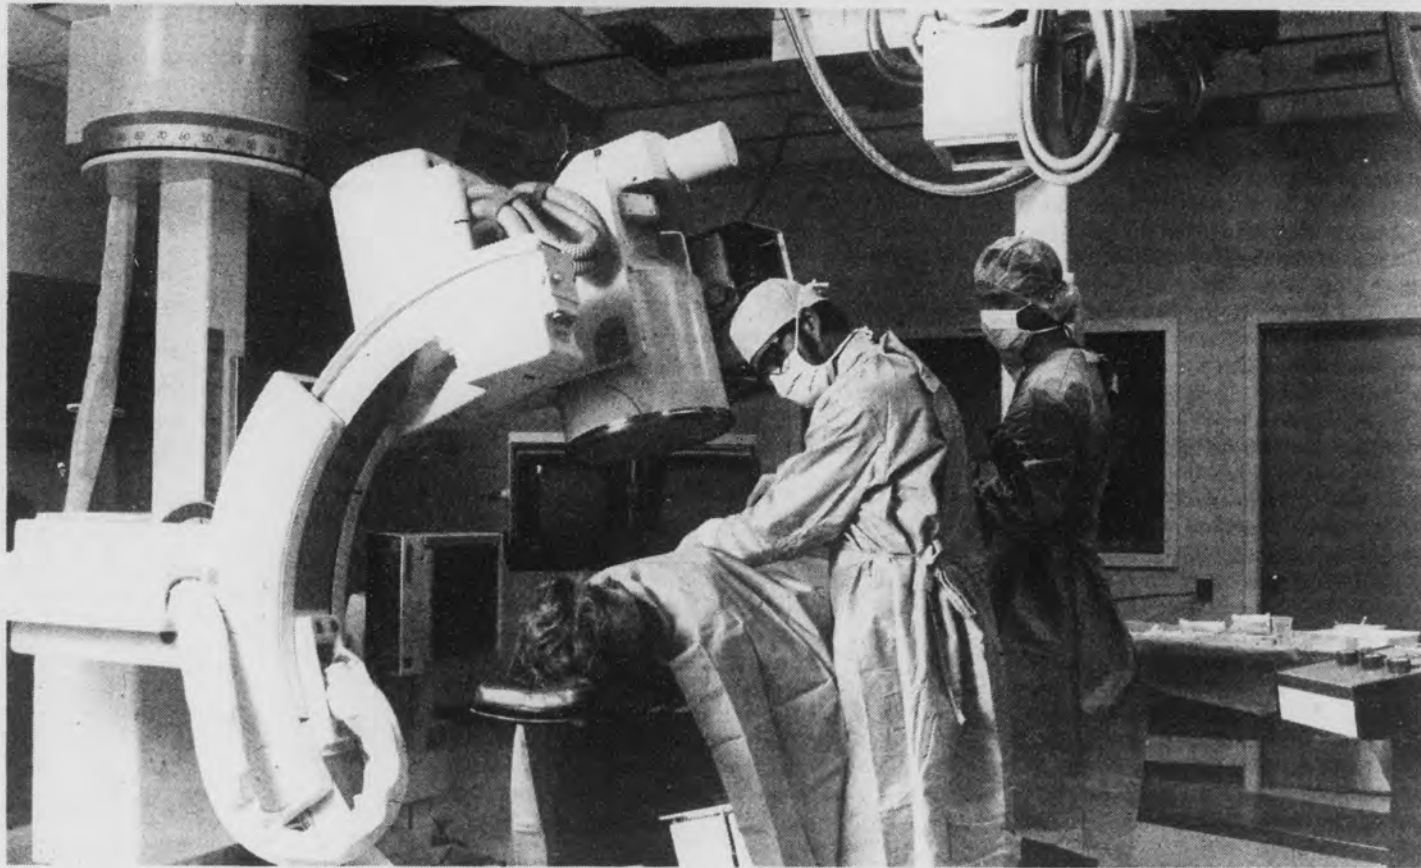

This machine had been delivered to the hospital only two weeks before Alabaster resident Donald Davis was rushed to SMC, the apparent victim of a heart attack. After examining Davis, though, Elliot suspected that Davis had instead suffered an aortic dissection, a condition where a weakened area in the aorta tears and spills blood into the chest cavity. Elliot used the new 2 D echocardiogram to confirm his diagnosis, then made a quick call to Chief Cardiologist Dr. Albert Pacifico. Since this condition required an aortic graft and heart valve replacement, Elliot asked Pacifico to

Blood was Lori's best Christmas present

At 21, Lori Crews still believes in Santa Claus.

During the 1982 Christmas holidays, Lori needed emergency open heart surgery. Her doctors used 199 units of blood to save her life.

Although she wasn't aware of it then, the blood used to save her life was given as a lifesaving holiday gift from many volunteer blood donors playing "Santa" by giving blood at a time of the year when blood donations traditionally decline, sometimes to dangerous levels.

Today, Lori is a senior at Auburn University at Montgomery. Because she remembers the 199 Santas who gave blood in 1982 so that she could live, Lori spends much of her time encouraging students to become blood donors.

"Many young people at AUM are touched by my story, because what happened to me could happen to anyone. My illness wasn't expected — it wasn't hereditary," Lori said. "Many healthy young people don't realize how important volunteer blood donation really is."

Three years ago, Lori was hospitalized with a swollen heart valve which blocked her circulation and caused intense pain. Before the problem could be corrected, her aorta — the blood's main pathway from the heart — ruptured.

Lori spent a total of 30 hours in surgery, while doctors inserted an artificial heart valve in her own aorta, which doctors wrapped around an artificial aorta.

Her surgery required an enormous amount of blood — about 33 times the five to seven units used in a normal open heart surgery. Lori needed 199 units of type B blood throughout the operation.

During her 55-day hospital stay, which included Christmas, Lori learned that all the blood came from Red Cross volunteer donations in Alabama.

"I received Christmas cards from people I didn't even know who had given blood in my name," Lori said. "I decorated the walls of my hospital room with those cards. Each of those 199 Alabama Santas gave me the best Christmas gift ever — my life."

"I had a little bit of 199 different, generous people in me — and I'm very grateful," Lori said.

One year later, as a student at AUM, Lori learned from a Red Cross volunteer that the blood supply had been critically low during her surgery and hospital stay in 1982.

"I felt very lucky that enough people cared during the holidays to give blood and ensure that my emergency blood needs were met. I hope blood donors will remember that it's very important to give blood during the busy holiday season," Lori said.

Red Cross Blood Services, Alabama Region, like all Red Cross Blood Services programs, operates on the community responsibility principle. Under this principle, healthy adults in the community regularly donate blood to ensure a safe blood supply for everyone. No preplacement or replacement of blood is required under the community responsibility principle.

Lori said she encourages anyone who will listen to give blood regularly. "I am the AUM self-appointed blood drive chairman for winter 1986. I put myself in charge." She added that the Montgomery Area Chapter of the Red Cross sometimes calls on her to tell her story to potential blood donating groups.

Through talking to people, Lori said she has learned that most people don't give blood because they have never been asked. "I ask," she said. "I tell students and groups that most healthy adults between the ages of 17 and 66 are eligible to donate blood if they weigh at least 110 pounds."

"You look like Santa to us!"

That's what the Red Cross will be telling blood donors this holiday season. The message will be communicated through public service television commercials, posters and radio spots featuring blood donors as "Santa in disguise."

Holiday blood donors are generous givers — just like Santa Claus. So, Red Recently, Lori underwent a second successful surgery to repair leaks in her aorta at the Houston Heart Center in Texas. She needed 110 units of blood during surgery.

The huge quantities needed to keep her alive during these critical operations made Lori all the more aware of the need for volunteer blood donors.

Cross sees this important group as Santa without the beard or red suit.

Because of the busy, irregular schedule of regular blood donors from Thanksgiving through New Year American Red Cross Blood Services, Alabama Region faces the possibility of a decline in blood donations.

"I can't give blood, but I can encourage others to give and realize the importance of blood donation," Lori said.

The future looks bright for Lori. She does not anticipate any more surgery. She will graduate from AUM with a degree in communications and looks forward to a career in public relations.

But those blood donations are more important than ever during the holiday season.

You can look like Santa to Red Cross if you're a healthy adult between the ages of 17 and 66 and weigh at least 110 pounds. Give blood — it'll be somebody's best Christmas gift ever.

Cancer patients go to camp

Men and women, from their teens to twilight years recently gathered for a special three-day event — Camp Bluebird. Though they came from varied backgrounds, the campers all had one thing in common — cancer. While some were dealing with a progressive stage of cancer, others were in remission.

The group of patients and counselors, who are members of the St. Vincent's Hospital oncology team, boarded the bus at the hospital Oct. 15 for Camp Bluebird, the only known adult cancer camp in the nation. This was the second time the camp was held. The first camp was in April.

The camp was designed to provide a vehicle for play for the cancer patients, according to Louis Josof, camp organizer and St. Vincent's cancer program coordinator.

"In the clinical setting, the hospital addresses the importance of the medical and sociological needs of the patient and family," Josof said. "With Camp Bluebird, the hospital staff is taking an active role in providing a safe, secure environment for play for cancer patients."

The setting for Camp Bluebird was Hargis Retreat Center in Sterrett, Ala., about 25 miles southeast of Birmingham. The lake, mountains, hiking trails and rustic buildings provide a comfortable, peaceful setting for the camp.

Campers could choose from a variety of activities including boating, horseback riding, fishing, arts and crafts, photography and horseshoes. Group sessions focused on such topics as coping with the side effects of chemotherapy and radiation therapy, nutrition and lifestyle adjustments.

The staff included physicians, nurses, a social worker, a dietitian, a pharmacist, a physical therapist, pastoral care associates and volunteers. Thus, medical attention was available at all times for those who needed it.

Apart from the active schedule of recreational, devotional and educational activities, several special programs were integrated into the camp's format.

Kay Kelley, a Birmingham artist, introduced the group to oil painting. The campers were able to choose from a wide variety of items and crafts to paint. Nan Pizitz led campers in stretching exercises.

The shining light reveals problems

by Dr. Stencil Handley Family Vision Care

Have you ever wondered what the eye doctor is doing when he shines all those bright lights in your eyes? A complete visual examination deals with several areas.

Usually the eye doctor will want to take a complete health history and question you about such things as your overall health and any medications you might be taking. This history could lead him to a possible visual or health problem. During the history questioning, the doctor also wants to know about any health problems you have or think you may have.

The next part of the visual examination usually is the testing of your existing visual acuity with your current glasses or contact lenses, or unaided if you have no current corrective lenses.

The doctor can then perform a refraction, which is a means of determining if you need a spectacle correction and, if so, the prescription required to best correct your vision. Some of the possibilities here would be that you might be farsighted (hyperopia), nearsighted (myopia), have a loss of focusing amplitude (presbyopia), have astigmatism, or a combination of the above.

Lots of eye doctors will also do binocular testing to make sure your eyes are functioning together. In this part of the examination, you would be tested to see that your eyes were straight when fixating both distant and near targets. If they were not, prism lenses might have to be incorporated into your spectacle prescription, and sometimes surgery might even be required if the deviation is major.

Your depth perception is also tested in this part of the exam, and usually also your ability to focus near objects, your ability to follow a target through all fields of gaze and your ability to converge or turn your eyes in are tested.

The next part of testing will usually be for possible systemic problems and/or eye disease.

Most doctors will perform tonometry, which measures the pressure inside your eyes. Increased pressure could indicate glaucoma. Just as the body produces blood, it produces a fluid or liquid inside the eye. Glaucoma is an eye disease in which either too much fluid is produced or normal drainage of fluid does not occur causing pressure to build up inside the eye.

Increased pressure in the eye can damage parts of the eye and cause loss of vision or even blindness if not detected and treated early. When glaucoma is diagnosed, treatment by an appropriate health care practitioner can consist of special eyedrops and/or medicine, and in some cases, surgery.

Cataracts are another condition that might be found in this part of the examination. Cataracts are a clouding of the clear lens of the eye that distorts the light entering the eye, causing blurred vision. They can lead to blindness, if left undetected and untreated.

However, most cases of blindness can be prevented through early detection. If the cloudiness becomes dense enough to blur vision beyond use, eventual surgical removal of the clouded lens of the eye can prevent blindness.

The doctor will also look inside the eye at the optic nerve head and retina. He can view the inside of the eye by looking in through the pupil with an ophthalmoscope. During this phase of the exam, he might detect optic nerve disease, retinal disease or systemic health problems such as hypertension, vascular disease or diabetes.

Spine is healing avenue

It was 1895. In a small town called Davenport that lay along the lazy path the Mississippi River takes through Iowa, something happened that changed a man's life.

Dr. Daniel David Palmer, "D.D." to the many in Davenport, examined Harvey Lillard, the janitor in his office.

Lillard had been deaf for 17 years, ever since — as Lillard said — something popped in his back upon bending over years before.

Palmer's examination revealed a bump on Lillard's back, a spinal vertebra that was out of place. Once his back was re-aligned, Lillard quickly regained his hearing.

From that incident, the chiropractic method of health care was born.

The modern doctor of chiropractic works directly and indirectly with the nervous system because of the belief that every function of the body is under its control.

Complete, perfect, natural health, says the doctor of chiropractic, comes only when you have a normally functioning nervous system.

Every science of healing must have its avenue of approach.

In medicine, a hypodermic needle or the stomach may provide the avenue through which a drug gains access to the body. Nothing need be wrong with the skin that is pierced or the stomach that digests a pill, but they provide a vehicle through which healing can travel.

For the doctor of chiropractic, the avenue is the spine.

The spine houses and protects the spinal cord, a kind of switchboard for the body's nervous system. The nerves leave the spinal cord through openings between moveable bones called vertebrae. If these bones move out of alignment, the function of the nerve can be impaired.

The doctor of chiropractic feels that many ills have their root in this misalignment of the vertebrae. An adjustment can serve to correct the misalignment and, in turn, the illness.

All 50 US states have statutes recognizing and regulating the practice of chiropractic as an independent health service. Chiropractic ranks second only to medical practitioners as a health care provider in the US.

The doctor of chiropractic must now have four years of chiropractic college plus, in most cases, two years of pre-chiropractic study. Chiropractors are certified through the Commission on Accreditation of the Council of Chiropractic Education, a commission recognized by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The doctor of chiropractic often sees himself as the doctor of the future. In fact, a quote by Thomas Edison reveals that aim of the chiropractor.

"The doctor of the future," Edison wrote, "will give no medicine but will interest his patients in the care of the human frame, in diet, and in the cause and prevention of disease."

Hearing loss is a "handicap" that is receiving a great deal of attention these days. From implant surgery to Closed Caption Television, to President Reagan's new hearing aids. The advancements that have been made in medicine as well as hearing rehabilitation are mind boggling. In fact, it may be safe to say that there is no one that can not be helped in some way.

If you, or someone you know is suspected of having a hearing problem, make an appointment to have a hearing evaluation or see your Family Physician. A hearing loss is a problem you don't have to live with.

SMC on call 24-hours

Shelby Medical Center's emergency department is open 24 hours daily, and a physician is on duty around the clock. The department is fully staffed and equipped to handle any emergency needs.

Some of the special features in the department are:

- a trauma center with room for four patients
- seven general treatment rooms
- two cardiac rooms equipped with monitors
- a pediatric room specially decorated for children
- a heliport to safely accomodate emergency helicopters

The department contains specialized equipment such as cardiac monitors, defibrillators, advanced cardiac life support equipment and telemetry field-to-hospital communication. In addition, the department can offer all the resources of a fully-equipped hospital, should the need arise.

The radio equipment in the emergency department provides a link with ambulance and rescue units throughout the country. This system enables physicians at SMC to communicate medical orders directly to paramedics in the field. This year SMC's emergency department used the equipment to assist in more than 2,400 emergencies.

In conjunction with the emergency department, SMC subsidizes two Shelby County ambulance services. In 1985 these ambulances made nearly 600 emergency calls.

The department served more than 17,000 patients this year.

Test Your Knowledge

Facts And Fiction About Strep Throat

Sore throats account for up to 40 million doctor visits each year. In most cases, they are just another bit of discomfort to be endured with the common cold — and just as incurable, because the same virus is to blame. But one out of 10 sore throats is caused by bacteria called streptococci — or strep for short.

In late winter and early spring, the strep toll may be as high as six or seven out of ten sore throats. We have all come to fear strep because it can cause rheumatic fever and other serious complications. But how much do you really know about strep throat? Test your knowledge with this quiz.

Q: How can I tell if I have strep throat?

A: You can't. Even a physician may have difficulty making a correct diagnosis without a laboratory test.

Q: Are there certain telltale symptoms that are seen commonly with strep throat?

A: Yes. They include beefy red throat, swollen lymph nodes, fever, and the absence of other cold symptoms, like runny nose. But these same symptoms may be seen with other diseases.

Q: True or false: Strep throat is a childhood disease.

A: False. Although youngsters between the ages of 5 and 15 are at highest risk, anyone can get strep throat.

Q: How long does it take before the doctor gets laboratory results back?

A: If your doctor's office has the Culturette 10-minute Group A Strep ID test, it's a matter of minutes. The traditional throat culture takes 24 to 48 hours.

Q: Are strep throat symptoms the same in babies and adults?

A: No. Babies and toddlers often have more nausea and vomiting, while adults suffer from painful swallowing.

Q: Is there a "strep season"?

A: Yes. In fact there are two: early fall and the late winter/early spring months.

If you did well on the quiz, you know that there is good news and bad news about strep. The bad news is that strep can be serious and is difficult to diagnose. The good news is that the simple 10-minute diagnostic test from Marion Laboratories is becoming a new weapon in the fight against strep. Because lab results are immediately available, treatment can begin on the spot and the patient will usually stop being contagious within 24 hours.

assemble an open heart surgery team.

Afterward, Pacifico credited SMC's ability to make this diagnosis and save precious minutes with saving Davis's life.

The computerized treadmill, also installed in December, is the most modern treadmill available, according to Barnes, and has greatly increased SMC's cardiac diagnostic capabilities through computerization.

The Holter Monitor allows physicians to monitor a patient's heart away from the hospital for 24 hours. The patient wears a small device so that irregularities in heart rhythm can be observed.

The cardiology department also contains the equipment to check pacemakers by phone. A patient with a pacemaker calls the department from any telephone, then places the receiver on an instrument he has placed on his chest. This instrument transmits high-frequency sounds. The technician places the phone receiver within the department on a machine which picks up these sounds and processes a "rhythm strip." This strip tells a physician how well the pacemaker is working. The department conducted 1,400 such tests last year.

The cath lab, which has been in operation for less than six months, enables SMC cardiologists to perform extensive cardiac testing and interventional techniques.

In a diagnostic cardiac catheterization, dye is injected into the heart through a small, flexible tube. A viewing machine picks up a picture of the heart in action and observe any abnormalities. A catheterization can detect blockage of the arteries and show the location and extent of blockage.

The cath lab also enables physicians to perform emergency heart attack treatments which can effectively stop a heart attack and reduce damage to the heart muscle — if performed within four hours of the onset of symptoms.

Streptokinase infusion is one of these treatments. A drug called streptokinase is injected through a catheter into a blocked coronary artery. In many cases, this drug dissolves the blockage and stops the heart attack.

Percutaneous transluminal coronary angiography is another heart attack treatment that can be performed at SMC on an emergency basis. In this procedure, a tiny balloon catheter is floated into the blocked artery and inflated. The balloon expands the restricted coronary artery and restores normal blood flow through the heart.

"Heart disease is the number one killer in Shelby County, and cardiac catheterization is the most useful procedure for diagnosis and treatment of this disease," Barnes said. "That's why it is essential that we are able to provide these services. The people of Shelby County deserve to have the best medical care available locally."

In less than six months of service, the cath lab at SMC performed more than 180 cardiac catheterizations.

blood vessel, the aorta. Carbon monoxide displaces oxygen in red blood cells, and nicotine constricts blood vessels. Animal studies have shown that cigarette smoke can lower the threshold for ventricular fibrillation, an electrical instability of the heart muscle that leads to sudden death.

Though 50 million American adults still smoke, the prevalence of cigarette smoking has decreased over the past 20 years, and many experts believe that this is at least partially responsible for the decline in cardiovascular mortality.

"One of the things I love to tell my patients," says Dr. John H. Holbrook, chairman of the American Heart Association's subcommittee on smoking, "it that if you quit smoking, within weeks to a few months the risk of a heart attack drops as much as 50 percent."

High Blood Pressure. Hypertension, the medical term for high blood pressure, affects as estimated 55 million to 60 million Americans.

"But only a little more than half of those who have it know they have it, and less than a fifth are being treated effectively," according to Dr. Aram Chobanian, director of the Cardiovascular Institute at the Boston University School of Medicine.

Hypertension contributes to many of the 1.5 million heart attacks each year and is the primary cause of stroke, a form of cardiovascular disease that kills 154,000 people each year by blocking or rupturing the blood vessels that supply oxygen to the brain.

Any person whose blood pressure is greater than 140 over 90 is considered hypertensive. The increased pressure exerted against the walls of the blood vessels can injure them and can lead to atherosclerosis and enlargement of the heart.

Causes of hypertension are not known in most cases, but body weight and diet may play an important role. Populations that consume more of some nutrients, such as potassium, calcium and unsaturated fats, and lower levels of sodium have been found to have lower blood pressure.

Yet, salt's link to hypertension is not conclusive. One recent analysis at Oregon Health Sciences University suggests that too little calcium and other nutrients, rather than too much sodium, may be a factor in hypertension. Some experts believe that the salt link is probably genetically influenced. It may be that 25 to 50 percent of people with elevated blood pressure are sensitive to salt.

Whatever the causes, hypertension is one of the most easily treated risk factors for heart disease. Numerous drugs are available.

"With these drugs," said Chobanian, "there is almost no one in whom we cannot lower blood pressure."

Lack of Exercise. Dr. Kenneth H. Cooper, who founded the Aerobics Center in Dallas and helped start the exercise movement in the United States, once thought that exercise could overcome the damaging effects of the other risk factors. Now, he admits, he was wrong.

"Over the years, people who were exercising exactly as I had prescribed but ignoring body weight, diet and smoking habits were nevertheless dying of heart attacks in their 50s," he said.

Yet, the benefits of exercise are undeniable, Cooper maintains. He admits that vigorous exercise can be dangerous for individuals who already have heart disease, but he believes that, overall, exercise helps protect people from heart attacks.

One recent study found the risk of cardiac arrest in men who did at least 20 minutes of strenuous exercise once a week was only 40 percent that of more sedentary men.

Americans have responded enthusiastically to recommendations for exercise. A recent Gallup poll shows that 59 percent of the adult population are now involved in some type of regular exercise, compared with 24 percent in 1961.

Type A Behavior. The classic example is the individual who is unusually impatient and easily roused to hostility.

"Type A behavior is a struggle that a person indulges in when he fights time & other people," explains Dr. Meyer Friedman, who directed the Recurrent Coronary Prevention project of Mount Zion Hospital and Medical Center in San Francisco. Since the behavior pattern was identified by Friedman and fellow cardiologist Ray Rosenman in 1959, studies have shown that Type A people are more at risk for a heart attack than are the more patient, less hostile Type B people.

Although some authorities disagree with his conclusions, Friedman believes that all three of the major risk factors are the consequence of Type A behavior.

"I think a heavy cigarette smoker is almost always Type A," he said. "I also think it's very difficult to have high blood pressure without being a Type A. And I think that the person who has a serum-cholesterol level of 275 or more is nearly always a Type A. In fact, we use cholesterol levels as an indicator of how well we are reducing Type A behavior."

Friedman admits that it's often difficult to get the leopard to change its spots. But he believes that, for Type A people, modifying behavior is a key to avoiding heart attacks.

To many heart experts, the benefits of managing risk factors are so obvious that they wonder why medicine has not made this its highest priority.

"We do coronary-bypass surgery, we do laser shoot-ups of your arteries, we do artificial hearts - all these spectacular things - instead of what we should be doing," says Framingham's director Castelli. "We don't try to do the easiest things. We try to do the hardest things. And always it's after the fact."

Yet the future looks bright. Cardiac surgery will be much less common in 30 years, predicts Dr. Jay N. Cohn, head of the cardiovascular division at the University of Minnesota Medical School. And therein lies medicine's goal for the next decades: to prevent the progression of heart disease rather than just to treat its advantage stages.

Alabaster youngster battles leukemia

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

Up until a few months ago, Jeremy Davis was pretty much like any other active six year old boy.

He played short-stop and first base for the Royals in Alabaster's T-ball league and was even named an All-Star. He liked doing "wheelies" on his bike, and playing outdoors with his friends.

But Jeremy's life isn't fun and games anymore. It revolves around pain and needles and keeping medicine down.

For Jeremy, life has turned into a fight against leukemia. Instead of looking forward to spending Christmas here, in a home in Park Forest near Montevallo, Karen Davis is anxious to take her son and get on a plane for Seattle.

That's where Jeremy's doctors are sending him for the treatment which involves removing his bone marrow, treating it and returning it to his body.

"But Jeremy has to be in remission before we can leave," Karen says, and that hasn't happened yet.

Although the diagnosis of leukemia in September was a tremendous blow to the entire family, Karen Davis says her son is holding up well despite all he's been through.

"He doesn't fight the doctors and nurses when he has to have blood drawn," she says. "I've even heard him tell them he's sorry if he twitched."

Karen credits her son's faith in God for his abill illness as well as he has.

"He prays before they stick him with needles," we both pray when he has to take medicine, that keep it down."

Besides asking for the Lord's help for himself, that Jeremy also has a concern for others.

"He's always prayed for the sick and hungry," sl lately, after watching TV, he's worried about the in Africa."

"What are we going to do about those people?"

Although she too is concerned about the sick and world, right now, Jeremy's health is the main th mind.

Remembering when the nightmare began for he band Terry, Karen says they had little warning seriously ill.

"Right before school started, he started having h lasted about 10 seconds. I assumed it was sinus."

SMC gets 'no sale' vote

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

The people of Shelby County voted about 2.5 to 1 against a sale of Shelby Medical Center in a special election December 11.

The vote was 2,064 in favor of a sale to 5,075 against it. About 18 percent of the 39,388 registered voters in the county participated.

SMC Administrator C. L. Denton called the election "a very clear affirmation that the people in this county support and respect Shelby Medical Center."

Denton said the referendum had "such a large turnout and such a large majority, it's clear that the people of Shelby County support this institution and want it to do well."

County Commissioner John Ames said the election was called to "see what the people wanted. No matter how you interpret the vote — if it was too few, or people were too uninformed — we agreed to respect the wishes of the people and I expect that's what we'll do."

Commissioner Harold Davenport said he was not unhappy with the outcome.

"I'm glad the people had their choice," he said. "The people showed me they want to keep the hospital and I'm going to do

New sewerage system a reality

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

Ground was broken this week for construction of a new sewerage treatment system in Pelham.

The Pelham City Council adopted a package of ordinances and agreements during a called meeting last Friday that paved the way for $16 million project.

City officials, members of the city's Governmental Utilities Services Corporation and officials representing the Parsons Company then signed the agreement which will bring sewerage treatment facilities to the majority of Pelham's residential and commercial customers by January 1, 1987.

A service agreement and a sewerage use ordinance were the major components of the package adopted by the council.

The use ordinance mandates that all residences and commercial customers in the city must tie to the system.

The tie-on fee for residences will be $100 per fixture not to exceed $500 — half of the tie-on fee for the small system currently in operation in Pelham — with a $19.50 monthly charge anticipated for the years 1987 and 1988.

The monthly rate will vary after the initial two years of service based on the number of users on the system and other factors.

For commercial users, the tie-on fee will be $100 per fixture and not less than $1000. Motels and hotels will also pay a $1000 per fixture while restaurants will pay a flat fee of $2500.

Apartment will be treated as individual residences.

Charges for other commercial or non-domestic users will be levied on a case-by-case basis depending on the volume of waste generated by the user and its organic content.

In explaining the ordinance to the Pelham Council, Walter Monroe — the city's legal representative in the project — noted that rigorous pretreatment standards would be in effect for users and that no industrial waste should be discharged into the system.

The monthly fee for commercial users will average twice that of residential users.

The second major part of the agreements between the city and

Pelham businesses robbed

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

Separate robberies of two gas stations in Pelham remain under investigation by Pelham Police.

The latest occurred, said Pelham Police Sgt. Sherwood Florence, at 6:30 a.m. last Saturday morning at the Amoco station on Highway 31 in Pelham.

Florence said that reports indicate a black male in his early 20's — approximately 5'8" and 145 pounds — walked into the station just after it opened Saturday morning.

The man, who allegedly carried a blue steel automatic pistol, apparently took $64.97 from cashier Deanea Dupree before leaving on foot, Florence said.

That incident followed a November 30 robbery at Thoni's next to K-Mart on Highway 31.

Florence said that a black

Frost homeplace destroyed by fire

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer
A Shelby County landmark went up in flames early Saturday morning.
The old Frost homeplace on County 12, which was built around the turn of the century, burned to the ground in an early morning fire.
Although everything in the home was lost, including two cars parked in the carport, everyone inside escaped without injury.
Shelco Fire Chief Doug McGaughy said the home had been purchased by the Robert Wilson family only six months ago.
McGaughy said he was notified of the fire at 6:20 a.m. and was on the scene in less than five minutes.
However, there was nothing firefighters could do to save the cern about a lack of communication with the city's water board and not having input in board decisions.

Now the council is asking the three member board to amend its charter to include two additional members. At least one of the additional members would be a councilperson.
At the Dec. 9 council meeting, Councilwoman Catherine Legg made the motion to write the board, requesting the change. The motion included a 30-day deadline.
The motion came after an hour long executive session during which the council discussed the water board situation and its members.
Board Chairman Philip Lacey, whose term expired this month, has said he does not want the board expanded.
If Lacey does not agree to amend the charter, Mayor Ralph Sears said he probably will not be reappointed to the position.
Sears said it's the thinking of the present administration that the council is ultimately responsible for the water board's actions since the council is elected and the board appointed.
"It would really be better for the city to have some input on the board," Legg said. "We use the same management and the same equipment."

The council attended the last water board meeting and informally discussed the proposal with its members.
Board member Alvin McGaughy said he sees no reason to expand the board. He said the board is in good shape and working on improving the sewer system.
Lacey has said he does not want to comment on the situation at this time, but McGaughy said the chairman wants to stay on the board another year to see the plans he set in motion through to completion.
Dudley Pendleton, the third board member, has said he has no objections to expanding the board.

everything in the world I can to carry that out."

Davenport said he is glad the referendum is over and that he hopes "the hospital issue will settle down now."

Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden said the election had served its purpose of letting the commission know the feelings of the people "who cared enough to vote."

Snowden said he hopes everyone will work together for the hospital now.

"It's a fine hospital," he said, suggesting that the SMC board "turn loose and let Chip Denton run the hospital. He's an able administrator."

Commissioner Leon Archer called the turn-out encouraging. He said he had come to expect a margin of about 2 to 1 against the sale in the last few weeks, but had feared a turn-out of about 10 percent.

"As far as I'm concerned, the people have spoken. I feel like the commission ought to abide by the wishes of the people. I know Leon Archer is going to."

Archer said he hopes the commission can work with the hospital to create a positive image. "It's a fine facility — a very nice, well-equipped hospital."

"I feel good about how it turned out," he said, calling the sale "a dead issue with me."

Archer said he will "support the hospital 100 percent" and help board members in any way he can.

Commissioner Gregg Rushton thought "a lot more people voted than anyone anticipated." He said he had expected 4000 or 4500.

Rushton said the turn-out showed how strongly people felt about the issue.

"It's unheard of for 7000 people to come out and vote two weeks before Christmas on a single issue."

His advice for the hospital's future was that it continue along the same lines it has since Denton's arrival about nine months ago.

Rushton said the hospital seems to have been run smoothly by a "qualified administrator and I would not like to see anything move in alternate direction."

The new chairwoman of the SMC board, Laura Willis, was "well-pleased with the turn-out. For a special election, it was great."

She said the election both demonstrated the people's support for SMC, and revealed that many are not well-informed about the hospital.

She said people should be aware that SMC is "a financially sound hospital and that it's a very good hospital. It is better than most and we have a highly qualified staff."

With the referendum behind, Denton said he will be working on reorganization plans of how SMC can "be insulated from the politics that have buffeted it for so many years" for the board to consider.

Denton said he could not give details about what might be involved, but that the first step will be to find appropriate legal help on the matter, which would include "a thorough analysis" of laws under which the board operates.

With the referendum behind it, Denton said, "I think you'll see the board coalesce and operate without the friction that has been evident over the last few months. I think life will be better for everybody."

Denton said the election has given SMC employees "a new sense of pride."

"I think the referendum has cleared the air and will instill in everyone a sense of permanence and confidence that have not been here for a number of years," he said.

The election results will help SMC's image, Denton said, but reorganization will still be needed. "Our job truly has just begun."

Pete Raughley also resigned.

Raughley, who had previously served on the board, said he had returned "to see that the people have the right to make a choice."

Raughley called it his "mission" to "give the people the right to vote on it and put the issue to bed."

He said he was not worried about liability in lawsuits.

The hospital has $5 million in liability insurance coverage. An additional $5 million was recently canceled when the insurer "became aware of the referendum issues," said SMC Administrator C.L. Denton.

He said the board's coverage comes in two layers, comparing them to a sheet and a blanket of coverage. "The sheet layer is in place," but the carrier of the second layer canceled, he said.

The hospital is working to regain that $5 million of coverage. An insurance broker for SMC "assures us we will have it within this month," Denton said.

He said the outcome of the referendum should help in replacing the insurance.

In his letter of resignation, Ballard refers to "judgements awarded in excess of $22 million against medical facilities in Mobile County."

Ballard said he suspects SMC will be the subject of "some very large lawsuits in the near future." A judgement above $5 million "could result in claims against individual board members."

For that reason, the letter continued, Ballard resigned.

Ballard said he was concerned about what large lawsuits would mean to the institution itself. "One good lawsuit could wipe the hospital out and then the greatest asset would be gone."

When Ballard read his letter to the County Commission December 12, Commissioner John Ames talked about county liability in hospital lawsuits.

Ames said the county has successfully removed itself from past lawsuits against the hospital.

The county attorney explains that the commission's only input into hospital management is appointment of board members and avoids being part of the lawsuits, he said.

In his letter, Ballard referred to "sinister individuals with ulterior motives working behind the scene who have an interest in keeping things just like they are."

He wrote that the election was used to demonstrate political clout, but would not say more about who the individuals or what the motives might be.

Commissioners said they don't plan to replace the two board members. By state law, the board must have at least nine members and the two resignations bring the number down to 10.

Commissioner Leon Archer and Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden both said they expect the board to be reduced to nine members by attrition through resignations or ends of terms.

Laura Willis, the new chairwoman of the SMC board, said it is hard to reach agreements with 12 or 15 different opinions, advocating a smaller board.

Denton said business and hospital literature advocate smaller boards.

Get the spirit

How's the Christmas spirit perking at your house? It's cooking right along at mine. Actually, I really like to ham it up for the holidays. Wondering what this perking, cooking and hamming nonsense has to do with Christmas spirit? It's easy if you know the recipe. Think about it. What's the most popular activity at Christmas - besides getting lots of presents, that is? It's eating. Most of us consume more calories between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day than we do the rest of the year. I'll bet even Richard Simmons has a bag of chocolate-covered sunflower seeds stashed in his Christmas stocking. My holiday specialty is not chocolate-covered, but it goes just as quick and it's guaranteed to perk your Christmas spirits if they are down. It's strange how folks feel down this time of year, but many do. And since I can't counsel to all the depressed people of the world, I offer this special treat to lift their holiday blues. But you don't have to feel bad to try it. It's my favorite Christmas recipe - although I have snuck it in on a few special mid-year occasions. I can't stake claim on the original recipe, however, I stole it from Mrs. Linda Halford of Brewton several years ago. Brewton, you know, is a town south of the Cahaba River on U.S. 31 - about 200 miles south. Mrs. Halford has been a featured Cook of the Week in the Brewton Standard, Escambia County's leading newspaper. It takes a lot to be a featured cook in the Standard. Not only does the cook have to prepare something special, she must also serve it to the reporter doing the article. I really miss doing those stories. Mrs. Halford calls her dish something traditional like ham roll. I call it Instant Christmas Spirit That Doesn't Come In A Bottle. Let's try it.

Pack of long sliced sandwich ham (about 3 inches by 5 inches)
Sliced Swiss cheese (one slice per piece of ham)
Large block of creamed cheese
Candied pickle strips or sweet pickle
1 tablespoon your favorite coffee in a coffee cup

Place the creamed cheese and the Swiss cheese on the counter for a hour or so until they are soft enough to roll without breaking. Pour hot water into the coffee cup and stir. Drink it while you wait for cheese to soften. When cheese is soft enough, place one piece of ham on a platter and top it with one piece of Swiss cheese. Take another sip of coffee. Cut the creamed cheese block into four equal parts and spread one part on top of the Swiss cheese, covering all corners. Lick your fingers. Place the candied pickle strip across the width of the ham and cheese slice at one end, and roll into a tight log. Stick a tooth pick into the ham so it won't unroll. Place the log into the refrigerator and let chill. Have another cup of coffee and make another log. When ready to serve, slice each log into coin-sized pieces and have a Merry Christmas.

Santa won't miss a house

I saw him last year, on Christmas Eve, with his little brother. He must have been about five and his brother four. Two little boys with big eyes and bright smiles. A. L. Muncy and I were working with the Christmas Fund folks and we had come out to his house looking for his mother. "Is your mother home?" I asked. He gave a little start and dashed off toward the house, his little brother tagging behind. I heard him call out and the door opened and a lady looked out at us. She looked at us and a little smile played on her mouth and a little light popped up in her eyes. "We're with the Christmas Fund," I said. "I know." She didn't have to say it. Her eyes told us, and the little smile that played about her mouth. Somewhere, far off, I heard a bluebird. Just a peep or two before he flew out of hearing in a murky sky. Then today I saw them again. They were a little bigger now, with the same big eyes and the same bright faces. But they seemed more excited somehow. Like maybe the excitement of Christmas had come so close to them some of it had rubbed off. I was on the corner and they were in front of a toy window. It was a cold, murky day and the Christmas lights were on. They stood so close to the glass that their breaths made little spots of fog on the window. After a little their mother came out of the store and called to them. But they didn't notice. She called again and they backed away still looking in the window. Somewhere, far off, I heard another bluebird. He was so high in the murky sky I barely heard him. But he kept peeping, soft, and far off, until the boys and their mother had passed on down the street. A man who had been watching them, the same as I, turned to me and said: "I hope Santa finds their house." "He will," I said. "How do you know?" "This town raises close to a thousand dollars every year. Just so Santa won't miss a single house." That was years ago. This year we'll raise $3,000. Because the people who live in this vicinity are determined Santa won't miss a single house. ### Letters to the Editor

119 South is in dangerous condition

The following letter was mailed to Ray Bass, Alabama Highway Director, and submitted to the Reporter as an open letter to the people.

Dear Mr. Bass: After driving on Alabama State Road 119 South several times recently between Alabaster and Montevallo I was prompted to write this letter.

The condition of this road is a disgrace to the state of Alabama in my opinion. The yellow lines are not there and or can not be seen on a wet rainy night and the ruts all along edge of the highway pavement makes driving very hazardous.

It is believed police records of Alabaster and Montevallo together with the records from ambulance companies will reveal that a large number of accidents have happened on this state road and could be laid to cause of condition of this road.

This road should be 4-laned between Alabaster and Montevallo in my opinion. I intend to do all I can to make it a political issue next June unless there are favorable commitments by this Administration to remedy this dangerous condition as specified.

I ask why was State Road 119 North widened some to eliminate the narrow pavement and the dangerous ruts alongside pavement edge and absolutely nothing like this has been done to State Road 119 South?

Our great state of Alabama is further embarrassed by the fact that our proud University of Montevallo faculty and visitors as well as enrolled students have to travel this state road I say is a bad image for our state that stresses beautiful and safe roads and Interstates.

I am personally inviting you Mr. Bass, as well as others, to travel this road to especially include nights, rainy weather and peak traffic periods to see for yourself just what I am talking about. If you already know the condition of this road...then Mr. Bass, why hasn't some action been taken to remedy this problem?

Reading the new 1985-86 Official Alabama Highway Map, showing your picture Mr. Bass and also our Governor Wallace, that makes reference to this: "You can drive safely and conveniently from the mountains of north Alabama to the Gulf Coast of south Alabama on our 11,000-mile state highway system." It is noted that this reference is to our state highways and not the other reference to our Interstate of which we have 800 miles of safe travel.

Respecting your high office and recognizing you have a big and responsible service to perform I humble and respectfully request some action be taken to correct the problems outlined above.

I have known and supported our Governor George Wallace since the time many years ago, before he first became governor, when we were both sworn in to the Moose Lodge at the Birmingham Liberty National Life building. I cried when Lurleen died and I cried when our governor was shot and have never asked for anything from any politician...but now I ask these things to possibly save lives and property.

It was noted some months ago that a newspaper article indicated that Alabama counties were being held accountable for damages drivers encounter due to unsafe and bad roads. It is therefore believed our state of Alabama likewise should be held accountable.

Sincerely,
Curtis Lee Johnson, Retired

Calera workers thanked for saving boy

Letter to Calera Rescue:

Thank you so much for answering my emergency call when my 15-month old son was in desperate need of rescue and needed medical attention. (See related photo, page A-2) As a resident of Dry Valley, I truly appreciate your response and concern for my son Jonathan, who had accidentally fallen into an abandoned well. Your immediate professional actions raised my son unharmed 50 feet from the bottom of a muddy well, and prevented what would have been an unbearable tragedy for my entire family.

Thanks again to the people of Calera Rescue who gave their time and talent Sunday Dec. 8 to save my son. You will never know the relief and satisfaction your rescue unit brought to my family.

May God bless each of you as you continue to serve the people of Calera and surrounding areas.

Election is tribute to people, government

Letter to the Editor:

The voters of Shelby County have overwhelmingly rejected the proposal to sell our County Medical Center. This message should be loud and clear to everyone.

Congratulations to the Shelby County Reporter, and to all the other participants. Such democracy in action is a tribute to our people and to our grand form of government.

All of us gained valuable new friends and associates during this contest. We should maintain these friends and associates and cultivate others. This will enable us to better defend and enhance our Medical Center in the future.

Hospital still has much to improve

Letter to the Editor:

Now that the hospital referendum is in the past, it is my hope that the interest shown can be directed toward improving our hospital, and in my opinion it can certainly be improved. It would be a big mistake for the hospital board and administration to get the impression from the recent opinion poll that the majority of Shelby County citizens are satisfied with the way the hospital is now being operated.

I consider the first priority now is to resolve the question of the so-called "Hospital Foundation." Now that the voters have indicated they do not want the hospital sold, and the only objective of the Foundation that has been stated is to prevent the sale of the hospital, the three person Foundation should voluntarily dissolve and void the questionable contract with no further litigation at the expense of the taxpayers.

It is entirely possible that some such organization to operate the hospital may be needed but a contract with such an organization should certainly be entered into with only a reputable company with experience and expertise in the medical services field.

The appointed hospital board should be reorganized and composed of people with good business experience, expertise in the medical service or related field if possible, of unquestionable integrity to act for the good of the county and good basic intelligence. All too often political appointments are made with no consideration for the qualifications of an individual other than the way they voted in the past. Sometimes even despite their known qualifications or lack of same.

Although I have never met Mr. Denton, I have heard he is a capable administrator and I think the hospital board should allow him to administrate the operations of the hospital and back him with required administrative policy. The advice of medical staff doctors should certainly be considered but not as an absolute determination of operational policy of the medical center. Also, the board should get rid of outlying facilities at this time and concentrate on helping improve medical services to the citizens of Shelby County which I think is the primary purpose of Shelby Medical Center.

Since the taxpayers of Shelby County contribute over one million dollars a year through the hospital tax, I think each Shelby County patient should get a one percent discount on their hospital bill.

There are many changes that could be made in the operation of the hospital that could result in an overall improvement. Attitude of the staff and employees should be improved as to helpfulness, courtesy, evidence of caring about the patients and families and exhibited willingness to perform their duties. I have no problems about the "image" of a county hospital except that caused by the people involved.

I am sure many people have not encountered such problems but unfortunately I have in my personal dealings with Shelby Hospital. From comments I have heard apparently other people have also, to the extent the problems should be considered. More than a few times, I have heard comments of the noticeable difference in attitude between Shelby and other hospitals including Brookwood.

The reported cost of an average patient day at Shelby is over $800.00, about $200.00 above Birmingham area hospitals. On three occasions during the past two years, a member of my family has been a patient at Shelby and the cost per day has been over $1,000.00. I believe often equipment is used that is more sophisticated (costly) than necessary, more tests are run than are reasonably required and some of the equipment used just does not do the job it is supposed to do.

I honestly believe the uncollectable debt could be substantially reduced if each bill was an itemized statement. I personally hesitate to pay a bill unless I know about what I am paying for. Often the bill is for another member of the family and I have no idea of all services required or provided and the patient was too sick to remember.

The doctors and medical staff are by no means exempt from some of the problem areas. Failure to provide information to next of kin on seriously ill patients can cause grave concern, confusion, frustration and anger. Conflicting diagnoses and test results can also contribute to confusion.

While this issue is still a topic of discussion, I hope more citizens will resolve to stay involved and interested. Attend the public meetings of the hospital board to observe who is running your hospital and what they are doing. The board usually meets at 6:30 p.m. on the 4th Tuesday of the month. Inform your county commissioner that you are interested in appointments to any board appointed by the commission. I suggest that a potential appointee to any board be publicly announced with the known qualifications of the appointee stated and the actual appointment made at the following commission meeting.

Open Letter to the Voters of Shelby County:

As representatives of the Shelby Medical Society, please accept our appreciation for your vote of confidence in the recent election not to sell Shelby Medical Center.

We look on your vote as an affirmation of your feelings that the hospital provides fine medical care, and that the tradition of ownership by the people should continue.

We, as physicians, are pleased with this vote of confidence, and accept the challenge to continue to provide the excellent medical care that you all deserve. Thank you very much.

Jeremy

A couple of weeks after he started school, Karen says her son started feeling sick, didn't want to eat, seemed tired and ran a low grade fever.

The doctor she took Jeremy to said it looked like he had a virus that was going around school at the time.

When the doctor noticed little dots on his skin, which Karen describes as looking like freckles, she says a blood count was taken and he was immediately rushed to the hospital.

"Within an hour," she says, "the diagnosis of leukemia was confirmed."

"We were in shock," Karen remembers. "The pain was so bad I could hardly cry."

From the time the diagnosis was made Sept. 21, Karen says her son has been in the hospital all but three and a half weeks.

When he's at home, she says he isn't allowed to play with his friends because of the danger of infection.

However, one neighborhood youngster comes to the house, she says, and the two talk and play through the glass storm door.

Most of the time however, Jeremy watches television or plays quietly with his GI Joe doll.

Although she has no idea why he's so attracted to it, Karen says her son loves to watch wrestling on TV.

"When he's feeling better, we're going to try and take him to a match," she says.

Jeremy is also an avid Alabama fan, and Tide quarterback Mike Shula is his favorite player. Among his treasured possessions now, are autographed pictures of Shula, offensive lineman Jeff Bentley from Alabaster and Tide coach Ray Perkins.

Without friends and relatives to help care for her 11-month-old daughter, Karen says she would have been hard pressed to have stayed with Jeremy in the hospital and to have cared for him at home.

When she and Jeremy leave for Seattle, Karen says her sister and sister-in-law will share the responsibility of caring for Jennifer.

Expressing her gratitude to everyone who has helped by offering prayers and making financial contributions, Karen says she never realized the family had so many friends.

"Jeremy had a roomful of balloons at the hospital," she remembers. "When a nurse remarked on them, he said he'd like to take them and float up to heaven to see what it was like."

Although that trip won't be possible, Karen says a group who grants wishes to seriously ill children have offered to send Jeremy on a trip to Disney World or some other place he would like to go. She says he hasn't decided on a place yet.

Right now, Karen has her sights set on Seattle though. But the trip, the stay of several months and the medical treatment itself will cost a great deal of money.

Thompson Elementary School has collected $1,115 for Jeremy and Jason Connell, another seriously ill child.

Friends, neighbors, businesses and churches also are planning fund raising events or making contributions to help the family.

If anyone would like to make a contribution, they can make a check payable to the Pelham Church of God, noting that it's for the Jeremy Davis fund, and send it to SouthTrust Bank, POB 246, Alabaster, marked to the attention of Emma Higginbotham.

Calera drops collision insurance

The Calera City Council voted Monday to drop the comprehensive collision insurance on its vehicles, but kept the liability insurance to cover damage to other vehicles.

This will mean an annual savings of about $6,000, of which $4,969 was used to cover the 1978 fire truck, according to City Clerk Lemoyne Payton.

Council members discussed the possibility of putting the money aside and collecting interest to create a self-insured account. Mayor George Roy estimated that such an account would now have $25 or $30 thousand, plus interest, if this had been done five or six years ago.

The city may later take collision insurance to cover the new police cars it plans to purchase.

Roy told the council that dropping the insurance was a gamble, but that if one of the old police cars was wrecked, "we probably wouldn't spend that much on getting them fixed anyway."

If the new fire truck was in an accident, Payton said, the other vehicle would be more likely to be destroyed than for the truck to suffer major damage.

Councilman Bill Geeslin said he would investigate a complaint by Calera resident Clarence Jones that he had been mistreated by Calera police when he was arrested in September.

Geeslin said he would investigate the charge and report his findings at a future council meeting.

The council also announced four new members of the city's rescue squad: Mike Phillips, Mark Dyer, Tracy Loftin and Pamela Peters.

Pelham

Parsons is a service contract which provides that Parsons will design, build, operate and maintain a waste treatment system for the city over a long period of time. The initial agreement provides for a 25-year agreement between the city and Parsons, a California firm.

Parsons will establish a subsidiary company in Pelham, Parsons of Pelham, to construct and operate the plant.

Under the agreement, should Parsons fail to complete the majority of the project by January 1, 1987 the company will have to pay off the $16 million in bonds issued for construction.

The treatment system will have an initial capacity of 1 million gallons per day and includes the availability of expansion as the needs of the system grow.

The treatment system will be located in the Pelham Industrial Park at the site of the city's current system treatment plant. Parsons has agreed to lease the existing system from the city for 25 years.

The first phase of the Parsons will pipe all residences and commercial users along the US 31 corridor in Pelham and is scheduled for completion in mid-1986.

The second phase will bring service to 90 percent of the city's residential users and must be completed by January 1, 1987.

The third phase of the system, piping the Hunter's Glen subdivision and locating a small treatment plant in the area, is set for completion in the spring of 1987.

In presenting the package to the Pelham Council, Monroe said that the city should be pleased with the reception it has had in the financial community and the growth potential experts feel exists in Pelham.

The bond issue to construct the system is actually tied to

Pelham's Governmental Utilities corporation and does not affect the city's borrowing power. Tax credits for Parsons and the tax-free bonds that resemble industrial development bonds make the project a $16 million one instead of the $30 million estimate that Pelham city officials originally faced.

"From everything we can determine," Monroe said, "the fees and charges for the system are very attractive. It should be a very positive factor in Pelham's growth."

man — approximately 5'11", 145 pounds and in his late 20's — apparently walked into the station just as it was closing and took an undisclosed amount of cash from attendant Mazie Beam.

The man then allegedly locked Beam in a closet and left on foot, Florence said.

Pelham police are looking for a customer that apparently walked into the store just after the robbery to purchase a package of cigarettes.

"Someone apparently came in while Beam was still locked in the closet and left money for a pack of cigarettes on the counter," Florence said. "It was so close to the time of the robbery that she thought the man had come back and did not say anything."

Florence said another customer freed Beam several minutes later.

Florence added that this robbery was apparently a "strong-arm" job, the man indicating that he would hurt

Beam but never producing a weapon.

There was however, a butcher knife missing from the station following the incident, Florence added.

Anyone — especially a customer who may have bought cigarettes at Thon's about 10 p.m. on Saturday, November 30 — who has information concerning the robberies is encouraged to contact Florence at the Pelham Police Department, 663-6304.

Centralla Garden Club surprises city workers

The Centralla Garden Club in Montevallo gave a Christmas party for about 50 city employees December 12.

The workers thought they would be attending an insurance meeting at the city hall when the garden club surprised them with a brunch.

The party was given in appreciation of help from the city with such projects as the fall

Trade Day sponsored by the club, according to Linda Lawley, who headed the committee working on the party.

About ten members of the garden club were at the city hall to greet and help serve the guests. Others were unable to attend because of work, Lawley said.

A similar party was given about five years ago, she said.

Chelsea puts on skit

Pilgrims and Indians abounded during Chelsea's Celebration of Thanksgiving held Wednesday, Nov. 27.

grades combined efforts to decorate the school lunchroom as an Indian village and to perform the Indian Buffalo dance.

An overflow crowd viewed the program and participated in a photographic session afterwards.

Rux Carter

Columbiana based agency serves Shelby County and beyond

"Serving all your insurance needs."

That's the motto of the Rux Carter Insurance Agency in Columbiana. This company has been serving Shelby County at least since 1907 under various ownerships before Mr. Rux Carter bought the business and changed the name in 1947.

Today, the independent insurance agency is owned by George Bentley, a 15-year veteran in the business. He and company vice president William Rasco have built the agency's reputation to extend beyond the borders of Shelby County to serve policyholders also in Chilton, Jefferson and Bibb counties.

Office personnel Pat Shaw, Sue Walton, Rebecca Brasher and Peggy Wood also play a major role in the success of the company.

Today, the agency insures some 2,500 policyholders through such carriers as The Continental Fireman's Fund, Safeco, Home, Great American and The St. Paul. Coverage includes home, auto, life, business...basically anything you need.

The business is automated with two advanced computer systems to provide its customers with quick and accurate insurance service.

For all your insurance needs, see George Bentley or William Rasco at Rux Carter on Main Street in Columbiana. Business hours are 8 a.m. - 5 p.m., Monday - Friday; telephone 669-3158.

Davis Drug has opened its doors every day of every week of every year since July 1, 1956. That kind of reliability is important when you need a prescription filled or first aid supplies. Even when you want a bit of advice about feeling better.

Come in Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 7 p.m.

We're also here Saturday from 8 a.m. until 6:30 p.m. and Sunday from 1 p.m. until 6 p.m. Since accidents and illnesses don't take holidays off, we're here then too.

Come to Davis Drug tomorrow. We'll be here.

You'll see why people say we're more than just another drug store.

Richard Conkle
Chelsea High School

As a coach and a teacher, Conkle motivates with love

Richard Conkle is an administrative assistant dealing primarily with the high school division of Chelsea School. Conkle teaches Alabama History every day and, in the fall and winter, coaches the girl's basketball team.

Richard Conkle, however, doesn't answer to Mr. Conkle very often. Folks at Chelsea always call him "Coach."

Conkle came to Chelsea School in 1966 to teach and start a football program. Chelsea and Chelsea School have since become home for the Conkles, and this year, the school honored their former football coach by naming him the Teacher of the Year in the high school division.

"It was a total surprise for me," Conkle said of the honor. "It is a real honor to be thought of as a part of such an elite group, especially as many good teachers as we have here at Chelsea."

While Conkle realizes that coaches often carry a questionable reputation as teachers, the man who has gained honors in both fields feel the two professions go easily hand in hand.

"In order to coach you have to be able to teach," Conkle said. "Teaching and motivation are the important things whether you

Thompson's desire to help leads to counseling career

"I've always wanted to be in a helping profession," says Frances Thompson, guidance counselor at Shelby County High School.

When she was a youngster, Thompson thought she might like to be a nurse. "I changed my mind though," she laughs, "after I was around sick people."

During her second year at the University of Montevallo, Thompson decided to major in counseling and guidance and psychology.

Thompson's family undoubtedly had some influence on her career choice. "They've all been in helping professions," she says.

Her father, Frank Sloan, was the county's health administrator for 33 years. Her mother, Nell, was a teacher, and is now bookkeeper at Shelby County High School. Her sister Anita, who now teaches in Florida, was a former Outstanding Teacher at SCHS.

This year, Thompson was the recipient of that award. "It was a big honor," she says, "and it also surprised me because what I do doesn't always make me popular."

Thompson explains that the testing she performs often disrupts

Ann McGaughy
Calera High School

McGaughy uses fun examples; prepares students for real world

"I try to prepare my students for the real world," said Ann McGaughy, Teacher of the Year at Calera High School.

In teaching home economics, she tries to give practical lessons in "things that I think they will go home and do."

To make practicality fun, McGaughy uses the latest equipment. Electronic sewing machines that do monograms are a favorite with students, she said. She also uses microwave ovens and hopes to get an electronic microwave that stops automatically when food is done.

McGaughy also works to make sewing a pleasant experience. Since about half her students are now high school boys, "I've had to really change the way I teach," she said.

Rather than making "cute little blouses and skirts," her students begin with stuffed pillows in the shapes of telephones, guitars, football helmets and other items.

"These are so cute, they all want one," McGaughy said.

But only a small amount of her class time involves traditional home economics activities such as sewing and cooking, she said.

Along with basic home economics, McGaughy teaches home

News from the military

Spec. 4 Alton McMullen Sr. has completed a U.S. Army primary leadership course while serving with the Third Armored Division in West Germany.

He is the husband of Nellie McMullen, daughter of Lula B. Yelder of Montevallo. McMullen is the son of James and Lizzie B. McMullen of Aliceville. He is a 1981 graduate of Stillman College in Tuscaloosa.

Navy Seaman Recruit Felecia D. McCord, daughter of Ida L. McCord of Montevallo, recently reported for duty at Naval Communication Area Master Station, GU.

A 1983 graduate of Montevallo High School, she joined the Navy in March 1985.

Army National Guard Private Hoyt H. Bunt Jr., son of Hoyt H. Bunt Sr. of Vincent, has graduated as a reconnaissance scout at the U.S. Army Armor School, Fort Knox, KY.

The training was conducted under the one station unit training (OSUT) program, which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training into one 13-week period.

Known as the "eyes and ears" of the unit, the scout's job is to make a complete evaluation of a tactical situation and report what he has observed or learned to his commander.

A U.S. Army husband and wife team, Pvt. 1st Class Tammi L. and Sgt. Fred C. Emery, has arrived for duty with the U.S. Army Information Systems Command in West Germany.

Tammi Emery is the daughter of Alice L. and Edward H. Mason of Alabaster. She is a 1980 graduate of Colonial High School and is now a data communications operator.

Her husband is the son of Fred D. Emery of Zephyrhills, Fla. and a 1979 graduate of Zephyrhills High School. He is also a data communications operator.

They were previously assigned at Fort Detrick, Md.

Conkle

are in the classroom or on the football field. It's the same in both places."

But the most important thing to remember, Conkle said, is to let the kids you work with know that you love and care about them.

"I believe that teachers must recognize that each student has worth and must provide for each the opportunity to learn how to cope with change and meet the challenges of the future," Conkle said of his teaching philosophy. "Most of all, a teacher must have genuine love for children of all ages."

While Conkle and his wife Sarah — also a teacher at Chelsea — have two children of their own, all of the students at CHS have been unofficially adopted into the Conkle family.

"All of these are our kids," Conkle said.

Richard Conkle grew up in Cedar Bluff, Alabama and played football at Cedar Bluff High School. Wanting to travel, Conkle spent nine years in the Marine Corps, pulling three over-seas stints as a part of the engineering corps.

"The places the military chose to send me did not necessarily rank high on my list of places to see," Conkle said, "but at least I got to travel."

Upon exiting the service, Conkle earned a BS degree from Auburn University and began teaching at Talladega County High School in Lincoln. Two years later, he learned of the opening at Chelsea and applied and Conkle and his high school sweetheart wife have been teaching there ever since.

In Terry, now 23, the Conkles have raised one son to become a teacher and a coach. Greg, now 20, is a student at the University of North Alabama playing football and majoring in sociology.

"They are interested in people," Conkle said. "I guess it would be hard to have two teachers for parents and not be interested in people."

Conkle now owns a masters degree from the University and hopes to move more and more into the field of administration. Conkle won't however, lose sight of the classroom teaching situation that is the basis for his success.

"I don't ever want to lose contact with the kids and the classroom situation," Conkle said. For it is there that he finds both the biggest need and the biggest joy in teaching.

"If I could change one thing about education to make it better," Conkle said, "I would take some of the paperwork away from teachers and let them teach."

And what would he miss most if he never taught again? "The relationship with the students," Conkle said immediately. "You learn a lot from kids."

We at Cablevision are asking you to help these individuals discover the magic of Christmas this year through our "YuleHelp" project. If you contribute a new or usable toy or canned food to our "YuleHelp" project, you will be eligible for FREE INSTALLATION! This will include new and any upgrading of service, a savings of up to $25.00.

McGaughy

and personal management, marriage and family living, consumer education and parenthood education.

"I think it is important to keep abreast of what is going on as far as young people in our society are concerned," she said. "It takes a lot of effort and nonjudgemental attitude to stay in time with students so that we can truly communicate about problems of vital importance to them."

McGaughy likes to use "hands-on lab work" and guest speakers to communicate with students.

She used a recent film about AIDS, An Early Frost for classwork. A representative of Lloyd Noland Hospital recently talked to students about stress and drug abuse. After Christmas, two state prisoners will tell about the connection between their crimes and drug abuse.

In her family living class, a bride and groom are elected for a marriage enactment in which everyone has a part. The latest took place in a local church with a florist who was a former student.

"There's so much you can do in class if you think about it. It's just a matter of having enough energy to do it," McGaughy said.

Energy is not a problem for her however. "I can come to school feeling bad, and then I just forget about it."

Even though she sometimes feels burned out, this only lasts a few hours.

The reward of teaching comes from "knowing that you have helped someone to learn how to do something. Sometimes you see someone who says they have used the things you taught."

Having been at the school since 1960, McGaughy has taught both parents of some of her students.

In those years, one of the main changes she has seen is a shorter attention span and patience level.

"I entertain mine. I tell them stories and laugh with them and fuss with them — anything to get their attention."

She encourages them to take the time to create better quality materials, which involves such efforts as making tiny stitches instead of using glue on projects.

On the other hand, she said, "They are good kids. They want to learn."

Furthermore, "They expect you to teach them something. They get ticked off if they come in and you're not ready to roll and have something ready for them to do."

McGaughy graduated from the University of Montevallo in 1957. She lives with her husband Joe and son Sidney in Montevallo.

Outside of school, she is active in the Montevallo Flames, a group of wives of volunteer firemen. Her husband is assistant chief of the Montevallo department.

McGaughy also belongs to the Central Garden Club and is a former president of the Alpha Nu chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma in Shelby County.

Thompson

a teacher's class.

"Last week," she says, "I was in all the ninth grade classes doing testing in connection with the new career plan program."

The testing program, which is designed to help students in planning their curriculum and making career choices, has been a major task to implement, Thompson says. But she believes the ongoing four-year program will be a big help to high school students.

However, for her, the testing often results in additional conferences.

"Our enrollment jumped by 40 students this year," she says, "and you wouldn't think that would make that big a difference in my work load, but it does."

Thompson calls her responsibility of working with almost 520 students, "very challenging."

Although she does group counseling, she says a great deal of her time is spent on a one-to-one basis.

The solution to a student's problem sometimes occurs to her at home, Thompson says. "I guess it's because there aren't as many pressures and my head is clearer."

She says an answer may come while she's working around the house or taking a shower.

There are times however, when she doesn't see a problem resolved right away. "Sometimes," she says, "It may take two or three years to work something out."

"But every once in a while, when a student comes back to thank you for your help, it makes it all worth while," she says.

In order to show the students her interest in them is genuine, Thompson mingles with them at ballgames and dances.

"They notice that I'm there," she says, "and somehow it makes them feel freer to come and talk to me."

After a hectic day at school, Thompson unwinds at home by playing the piano or doing needlework.

Besides the relaxation playing the piano at home affords her, Thompson has also used her musical talent at church and Sunday School. She has played for both the children's choir and at Sunday School at the Columbiana United Methodist Church.

Her latest diversion on the home-front, is a nine-month-old cocker spaniel named B.J. Thompson explains she's a MASH fanatic, and that she named the dog after one of the show's stars, B.J. Hunnicut.

She likes to work with plants, too, but says she doesn't have a green thumb like her mother.

Gesturing to the plants hanging in her school office, Thompson says, "I always seem to just about kill them, but mom always manages to bring them back to life again."

Home is half a world away for some at UM

"There's no place like home for the holidays," sings Perry Como, but for many of the 84 international students at the University of Montevallo, Christmas at home is half-a-world away.

During the holidays, the UM campus is desolate. Offices close and dorms empty, leaving many foreign students alone for the four week break.

"Last year I had Christmas dinner at the Omelet Shoppe," said Krishna Papanaiakam, a native of Malaysia. "It was my first year at Montevallo and I didn't know many people. I really didn't get to experience Christmas in America."

Papanaiakam, a sophomore finance major at UM, is Hindu by birth. His family did not celebrate Christmas, but he often spent the holiday with Christian friends.

"After midnight mass, the Christian families opened their doors to people of all faiths," Papanaiakam said. "Each Christmas Eve, a group of my friends would get together and knock on doors. We made our rounds."

As for this year, Papanaiakam said he has "no plans."

For other foreign students, Christmas is not so lonely. Some are fortunate enough to have friends or relatives in the United States.

Jacque Wee, also a Malaysian and a junior English major at UM, usually travels during her break. She spent last Christmas with a friend in San Francisco and the year before in New York. This year she plans to visit her aunt in Maryland.

"I try to get out of Montevallo during Christmas," she said. "It's instant depression here with no one around."

She said Christmas is always a special season for her Catholic family, with the festivities much the same back home as they are here.

"We do all the regular stuff," she explained. "We go shopping for presents. It's just as commercialized there as it is here."

As in America, festive foods are an important part of the holiday celebration in Malaysia. Plum puddings, mince pies and Malaysian delicacies such as dodol, satay and nasi lemak grace their tables during the three days of festivities.

"We have an open house from noon to midnight during Christmas," she said. "All our friends who do not celebrate at home come over and eat and sit around and chat. We linger over dinner for hours. Conversation is important to us."

In Taiwan, Christmas is a family affair, according to Yvette Yeh, a sophomore biology major.

"There aren't many Christians in my area," she said. "The family gets together on Christmas day. We exchange gifts around the tree, then have dinner, go to church and go caroling."

Christmas dinner is usually rice, roast duck and fish balls, a dish made from pounded, rolled fish.

"When I was young, Christmas was not that big," she said. "Now, it is getting more and more commercial. I have never spent Christmas in America, but I have noticed how they start advertising for it in May."

Yeh said she, too, plans to leave Montevallo during the break. She will spend the holidays with her uncle in New York.

Many international students who do not have family or friends in the United States participate in the Fellowship International House at Christmas program. This allows them to stay in the home of an American host family during the holidays.

Last year, Japanese natives Toshinori and Harue Ishikuma spent Christmas break with two families in Alexandria, La.

"We had a great time," said Ishikuma. "We spent Christmas Eve with the family's neighbors and friends and preacher. Some people came caroling. Christmas Day, we went sight-seeing with some church members."

Ishikuma said he was most surprised by the Cajun food served during his stay.

"It was almost like the food in Japan," he said. "We ate a lot of rice and seafood. I especially liked the gumbo."

Newborn has personality, long ears

by K.A. Turner
Staff Writer

A couple of years ago, Fred Nichols decided he wanted to become an adoptive parent.

A year ago, Nichols decided another baby would be nice.

A week ago, the baby came, and Nichols is already wrapped around its little... hoof.

A couple of years ago, Nichols adopted a burro from the Shelby County Humane Society and named her Buttercup.

A year ago, Nichols and a neighbor who owned a male burro decided that a baby might be nice. With just under a year of waiting complete, Nichols is a grandfather of sorts, grandfather to a baby burro named Rosebud.

The baby, born the first week in December, arrived on the scene in Summer Hill — a suburb of Columbiana — weighing about 20 pounds and looking, Nichols said, just like a stuffed animal with long ears.

At six days old, Rosebud still looks like a fluffy stuffed animal with long ears, but has already gained about 10 pounds.

One thing that hasn't changed, however, is Rosebud's personality... friendly from the first moment.

Nichols' son Jerry was the first to see the new baby.

"When I went down there and started to pet Buttercup, the baby just leaned up against me," Jerry recalls. "She never seemed afraid."

In that way, Rosebud is following in the footsteps of her mother Buttercup who has become more of a pet than a farm animal since her adoption two years ago.

"They have a pen and a barn but they usually stay in the yard," Nichols said. He remembered that Rosebud was a bit scared when she first came to live in Summer Hill. "I spent a lot of time with her when she first came," Nichols remembered, "and it didn't take long for her to become spoiled rotten."

Nichols highly recommends burros as pets. "They live on almost nothing and they are a lot of fun," he said. "They make great pets."

Nichols reports that Buttercup is being a very good mother but still has plenty of time for the treats that the family uses to spoil her. When she is not mothering the baby or eating the sweet potatoes she enjoys, Buttercup will take time out to pull Nichols grandchildren, or children, in a little cart.

All in all, Nichols said, she's a much better pet than a dog.

Thompson Middle School begins scholastic competitions

The excitement mounted at Thompson Middle School last week as the home team was ahead in a competitive event with an out-of-county school.

Then the opponents surged ahead to score the winning points in round one.

Although it may sound like a sporting event, the players in this competition were seated at a table with most of the activity being mental in nature.

The event TMS hosted Tuesday, Dec. 3, was a Scholar's Bowl match with Mountain Brook. The players were eighth grade students picked from the school's Scholar's Bowl club.

In the two rounds played, TMS narrowly missed winning the first round, but the Mountain Brook team was the decisive winner in round two.

TMS teacher Marilyn Minor, one of the sponsors for the 7th and 8th grade teams, said this was the first of the matches which take place every two weeks.

In the spring, she said, there will be 2-3 county-wide and area tournaments. Last year, in the county-wide event, the 6th and 7th grade teams from TMS took first place awards and the 8th grade team took a second.

The day after area event with Mt. Brook, the TMS scholars participated in another type of academic competition. This time they matched wits with students from across the nation by answering questions via computer.

The TMS team, composed of 7th and 8th graders, ended up second place winners in the state, and were 23rd out of the 300 participating middle schools in the country. This put the team in the top 10 percent nationwide.

Nancy Hicks, another club sponsor, said the state winner, Pizitz Middle School, was only 100 points ahead of TMS. And Minor noted that the TMS team outscored Riverchase, which has been acclaimed as one of the outstanding schools in the nation.

Sharon Gaydon, who sponsors the TMS club's 6th grade team, also helped out with the computer conducted competition known as the Knowledge Master Open.

While the Scholar's Bowl match had four team members playing at a time, the Knowledge Open had 12 member teams.

Minor explained that any team member could hold up a card designating their answer to a multiple choice question as A, B, or C. But she said it was up to team captain Max Jones to choose the answer entered in the computer.

There are 48 students in the TMS Scholar's Bowl Club. In order to become a member, a student must have high scores on achievement tests and be among the top scorers on Scholar's Bowl screening tests.

Students who competed in the Scholar's Bowl match included Max Jones, Steven Jones, Wayne Forlines, Tiffany Prater, John Higdon, Danny Self.

With the exception of Forlines, those students also took part in the Knowledge Open along with Bill Steadman, Nikki Price, Kevin Flynn, Jeffrey Sides, Amy Tucker, Tara Stanley and Brian Young.

Brain power

TMS students recently gathered around a school computer to match wits with students in other states in a national competition known as the Knowledge Open. The TMS group made the second best score in the state.

Christopher Byrd
Rt. 5 Box 371
Montevallo, AL 35115

Dear Santa,

We are writing you as spokesmen for a group of girls called the Pantherettes. We are a group of dancers from Pelham High School. Even though this is our first year at Pelham High School, we have done many things to bring recognition to the Pelham community and to Pelham High School.

We have participated in:

(1) Competitions in Atlanta, Midfield and at Thompson and Shelby County High Schools. We have received superior ratings in all of these field performances accompanied by the Pelham High School Band.

(2) Ten Pantherettes* have been elected to dance in the Super Bowl pre-game performance on January 26th. They were selected out of almost 3000 girls at American All-Star Dance Team Camps all over the southeast. They then completed auditions for a 300-girl team in October of 1985.

(3) The Pantherettes opened the Christmas season along with the Pelham High School Band at Brookwood Village on November 29th in a parade through the mall. Santa, who can be in 6000 places at once, followed behind in a white and silver sleigh.

We are writing this letter to you, Santa, because the Pantherettes are in dire need of financial support. We need money for transportation to the Super Bowl and to attend Mardi Gras parades in Louisiana. Of course, we also need money for props to use in our performances so that we can be as good a representative of the Pelham community as the "Star-Spangled Girls are to Homewood."

Since you are the one who brings children's to life, Santa, we thought that we might ask you to print this letter so that local businesses might aid the Pantherettes in their financial crisis.

Santa, please tell them that they can send the donations to PHS Box 38, c/o Mrs. Bishop (Mrs. Bishop is a teacher and the Pantherette sponsor at PHS). Thank you and Merry Christmas!

Julie Bullard and Allison Barnes
P.S. There's an extra cookie on Christmas Eve in it for you!

GIFT WRAP A KUBOTA.

A Kubota diesel lawn and garden tractor is a gift that's useful all year. It's a snowblower this winter. It's a mower when summer comes. There are also tiller and front blade implements to make it even more versatile.

And with a water-cooled 2- or 3-cylinder diesel engine, a Kubota is built to outlast ordinary gas mowers by several seasons.

There are four new Kubota G-Series lawn and garden models, from 10 to 14 horsepower. So there's one to fit in every Santa's bag.

Alabaster prepares for Santa Claus parade

You better watch out, Alabaster! Santa Claus is coming to town.

Santa Claus will pay a first-hand visit to Alabaster residents on Christmas Eve when he rides through the city on the back of an Alabaster Fire and Rescue Truck. The Santa Claus parade is being sponsored for this, its first year, by the Alabaster department and will feature Christmas music along with a view of Ol' Saint Nick.

Alabaster Fire and Rescue Chief John Cochran said last week that residents could gather on street corners or in cul-de-sacs for a brief visit with Santa. Santa's Christmas Eve schedule through Alabaster includes visits to:

•Southwind and the northwest section, 4:30 p.m.
•Meadowlark, Kingwood, Port South and the southwest section, 4:45 p.m.
•Scottsdale, 4:55 p.m.
•Navajo Hills and Terri Lynn Trailer Park, 5:30 p.m.
•Green Valley and Siluria, 5:35

Santa plans to take ride through Pelham

'Twas the Night before Christmas and all throughout Pelham, Santa was riding as is his tradition.

No Dasher, no Dancer, no Prancer, no Vixen, a Pelham fire truck provides transportation.

Santa Claus' ride through Pelham has become a tradition with the Pelham Fire Department. Once again this Christmas Eve, the PFD will parade Santa through the highways and bi-ways of Pelham to let the young and the young at heart gain a glimpse of the Merry Old Elf.

Engines from both the Pelham fire stations will tour the city unless an emergency causes a slight hitch in the schedule.

Santa should appear in:
•Southgate Estates and Deer Springs at 6 p.m.
•Greenpark South at 6:15 p.m.
•Hunter's Glen and County 361 at 6:30 p.m.
•Valleydale Trailer Park and King Valley at 6:45 p.m.
•Indian Hills and Sykes at 7 p.m.
•Wildwood, Brookfield and Cedar Cove at 7:15 p.m.

•Oak Mountain Estates at 7:25 p.m.
•Chandalar and Wildwood at 7:30 p.m.
•Cahaba Valley Estates at 7:45 p.m.
•Oak Ridge at 8:15 p.m.

•Belle Vista Trailer Park at 8:45 p.m.
•Lee Valley Trailer Park and Little Mountain Chateau at 9 p.m.

UM makes wreathes

The room resembles Santa's workshop. Brightly colored ribbons, greenery and silver bells dot the long folding table.

Wreath makers work like assembly line elves — tying bows, pinning ornaments and shouting out final destinations as they add the finishing touches to some 90 Christmas wreathes which will decorate the doorways on the University of Montevallo campus.

"We try to get as many people involved as possible," said Dale Prichett, assistant director of grounds at the University.

Involvement is the key word for this operation. For the past several years, Prichett has sent the word out around campus and to the Montevallo community that anyone interested in making wreathes should come by and lend a helping hand.

His Christmas workshops are held on two nights after Thanksgiving in the building and grounds complex.

We start around 6:30 each night and stay for as long as the workers can hold out," Prichett said. "And we're always happy to have people drop by anytime during the season to learn how to make wreathes."

According to Prichett, the most difficult part of wreath making is tying the bows. Now everyone, he said, has this particular talent.

"We have some pretty good bow tiers here," he said. "Bill Logan, a UM staffer, and Johnny Cates, a local florist, are especially good. Some people come by just to learn how to tie bows. And we love to teach them."

Wreath decorating here is an assembly line project. Some people tie bows, others tape them to the ready-made hemlock wreathes, while still others pin on ornaments or more greenery. "In the past, we made the wreathes from scratch," Prichett explained. "We cut the greenery and pinned it to styrofoam rings."

"This year we're doing it a little differently. We bought our wreathes pre-formed so that what we actually do is decorate them. We found out that it's much quicker and, in the long run, cheaper to do them this way. But we're always happy to show people how to make them the old way."

But mass production does not mean that all the wreathes are identical.

If a building has a certain character we try to make an appropriate wreath," Prichett said.

"If we know a lobby is painted a certain color, we try to use that color ribbon. We made one for the child learning center and filled it with all kinds of neat little ornaments."

Prichett and crew are also responsible for decorating the campus. This includes finding and trimming the large tree in the school's cafeteria.

"I usually start looking for a tree in July," he said. "This year, Joe Cardone from the math department donated a beauty. It must be at least 18 feet tall."

Holiday managing

by Paula Newbury
Assistant County Agent

Is Christmas a deadline on your calendar? Don't we look at it just that way. Think about it! Between now and Christmas Day you probably have added many extra details on your to do list that are not ordinarily there. You may have parties to attend, gifts to buy, extra cleaning, extra cooking and baking, entertaining and the list could go on. Christmas is a very special time for many people for religious reasons or just for the sake of showing love to their families and friends. Many of these details on our to do list are the way we plan to make Christmas special. However, sometimes it just doesn't work out that way.

Look around you. Have you noticed that there seem to be a lot of short-tempered people where ever you go? As my Mom would say, "Someone licked the red off their candy." Anyone around you complain of being tired lately? These are common problems during the holidays. We all get so busy we sometimes forget to stay in control. In all fairness to everyone else, take care of yourself.

Be in control of yourself. In order to have these holidays turn out as you would wish learn from the experts and use some basic rules of good time management to help you stay in control during these busy days ahead. In fact, you may want to add these rules to your New Year's resolutions:

Rule 1: Be decisive. Don't be afraid of making a mistake. Success is not measured by lack of mistakes but by the extent to which sound decisions outweigh poor ones. Remember, to decide not to decide is to decide.

Rule 2: Act promptly once you have decided what to do. The sooner your action follows your decision, the easier it will be to carry out. Don't put things off. If you procrastinate, you will spend valuable time justifying why you are not doing the job.

Rule 3: Recognize time thieves for what they are and eliminate them. Daydreaming, excuses, frustration, irritation, impatience and worry are common time thieves. Force yourself to work.

day by thinking of the many things to be done later.

Rule 6: Learn how to save time. Time is a resource. Therefore, time is manageable, it is limited, it can be exchanged for other resources, and it can be used to expand other resources. You exchange money for time in a variety of ways. You buy time when you substitute the telephone or letter for a visit or an automobile for walking. You save time when you write letters or plan your next chores while waiting for appointments. Another practical way of saving time is to develop the habit of making notes.

Rule 7: Plan your day. Make a list of the activities you must do during the day and carry this list with you. Check them off as they are completed. Remember, everyone needs some free time to be creative, to think about problems, and to search for "easy" ways to solve them or some shortcuts.

Rule 8: Do first things first. Arrange your day so that you get the most important things done first. Spend your most productive time doing the important jobs. Leave routine matters for less productive times.

Rule 9: Learn to say no. Evaluate requests, projects, assignments and invitations. Determine if each is a best use of your time. If not, say no firmly.

Rule 4: Have confidence in yourself and your goals. Set realistic goals for the day and keep going until they are finished. Never let a day go by in complete idleness; start something every day.

Rule 5: Concentrate on the task at hand. Be immune to the many non-essential interruptions. Don't clutter your work and with discrimination. The way we use our time makes life meaningful.

Benjamin Franklin said of time: "If we lose our money, it gives us some concern. If we are cheated or robbed of it, we are angry. But money lost may be found; what we are robbed of may be returned. The treasure of time, once lost, can never be recovered. Yet we squander it as though it were worth nothing, or we had no use for it."

I hope your holidays are particularly happy and eventful. Most important I hope they are that way because you make it happen. Give your family and loved ones the best gift of all. A gift of yourself. Give them the very best you that you can.

Included is a holiday recipe for your collection. This recipe is in our Holiday Recipe Booklet and is shared by Elba Logan of Montevallo:

Christmas plants pose poison danger

Imagine the Christmas holiday season as seen through the eyes of a toddler: the colorful, bright lights, yuletide fires, unique plants and trees coupled with multiple activities and celebrations.

While the season presents itself in a flamboyant way, Christmas can become a time of crisis if certain objects of the season find their way into a child's mouth.

The Alabama Poison Center warns all consumers to help prevent the drastic rise in poisonings which occur during the holiday season.

"We do not want to alarm people unnecessarily. However, it is important to know that some holiday items have the potential for creating a serious poisoning," Dr. Robert Geller, co-medical director of the Tuscaloosa-based center said. By taking a few minutes to become aware of which items can be problems and taking the necessary precautions, Christmas can be safe and enjoyable.

"Holly, Jerusalem Cherry and Mistletoe are highly toxic plants. If any part of these plants is swallowed the Alabama Poison Center should be called immediately. Holly and mistletoe above doorways does not ensure safety. One or two berries which have fallen to the floor may cause illness or, in larger amounts, even death in children," Dr. Geller warned.

Dr. Geller explained that Poinsettias are not as poisonous as originally believed. The plants are harmful only if ingested in large amounts.

Dr. Geller warned about bubbling Christmas tree lights which contain a fluid called methylene chloride. The fluid is harmful if it is ingested or inhaled.

"Although Yule logs burning in the fireplace are beautiful, they contain fire salts which produce their multicolor flames," Dr. John Fisher, associated medical director of the center, said. "If these salts are ingested they can cause heavy metal poisoning," Dr. Fisher added.

"Colognes and perfumes exchanged as gifts, as well as alcoholic beverages found more frequently in the house during the holidays, can be deadly," Dr. Fisher said. In relatively small amounts (one-half to one ounce) alcohol may cause severe problems in a child.

The Poison Center suggests that parents keep alcoholic beverages out of the reach of small children. "After parties make sure all glasses are emptied and not left setting on tables. Often curious children empty the glasses as they have seen adults do."

"The advent of pocket calculators, electric watches and cameras has introduced a new form of danger into the home — the disk or button battery," Dr. Geller said. "When the battery is swallowed if often becomes lodged on its way out. This presents a potentially serious hazard."

With all the excitement of the holiday season, it's easy to become vulnerable to many hazards. Plan wisely and avoid accidents before they occur. If you have a question or suspect a poisoning, call the Alabama Poison Center anytime, toll-free: 1-800-462-0800. All services are free.

Share joy, not grief, for Xmas

Seven people are expected to die in traffic accidents during the Christmas holidays, according to Col. Byron Prescott of the Department of Public Safety.

The 54-hour holiday begins at 6 p.m. Monday, Dec. 23, and ends at midnight Wednesday, Dec. 25. In 1984, 10 people were killed during the 102-hour holiday, seven on rural roads and three on urban roads.

Prescott urged drivers to be especially careful during peak holiday traffic periods.

"Christmas is a time to share our joy with family and friends, and it is our hope that no family be called upon to share the loss of a loved one in a traffic accident," he said.

Prescott said drivers can make the holiday safer by buckling their seatbelts, using child restraints, obeying the speed limit and all other traffic laws and by driving carefully and defensively.

"In addition, motorists need to realize that drunken driving poses the greatest threat to traffic safety on our roadways," he said. "Drivers should never get behind the wheel after drinking."

The Department of Public Safety also estimates that six people will be killed during the 54-hour New Year's holiday.

The holiday begins at 6 p.m. Monday, Dec. 30 and ends at midnight Wednesday Jan. 1. Last year there were 10 fatalities during the 102-hour period.

It's county against county in basketball

Eagles stay unbeaten

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Calera Eagles established themselves as the only unbeaten basketball team in Shelby County by knocking Pelham from the same ranks with a 72-61 win over the Panthers in Calera last Friday.

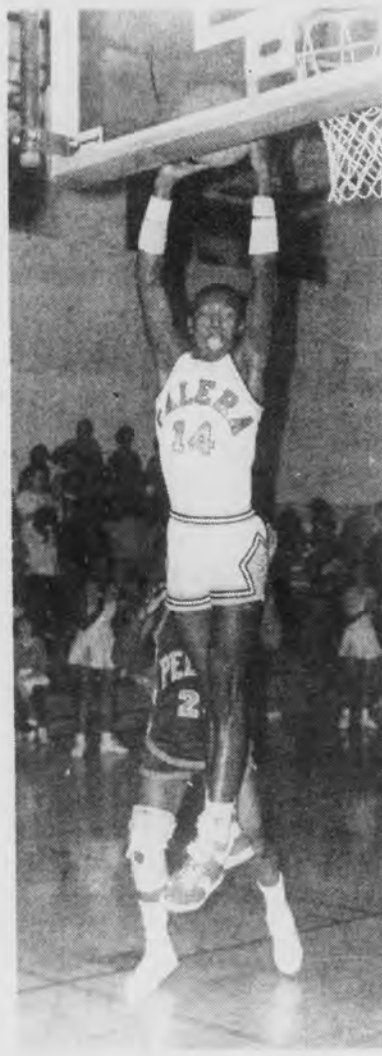

"We finally put together four quarters of basketball," Calera coach Charles Jolly said. "We beat a real good team in Pelham."

The Eagles combined a balanced offensive attack, a reduced number of turnovers and a strong night on the boards to take the win.

"We handled their pressure pretty well and cut down on our turnovers," Jolly said. "Those were probably the keys to the ballgame."

Down 28-21 late in the second quarter, the Eagles ran off seven straight points to take a tie into the dressing room at halftime. From that point, the Eagles mounted a lead that stretched to the 11-point final margin.

BCHS Lions whip ISS

The Briarwood Christian Lions picked up their first win against a county foe last week as they leveled Indian Springs 65-47.

The Lions used strong defensive pressure to propel themselves to an 18-2 lead in the first quarter and led 30-12 at the half before taking the 18-point win.

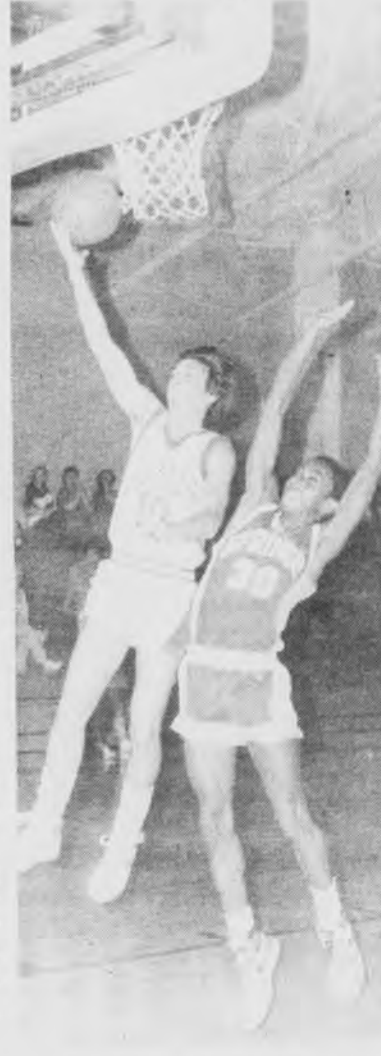

"From an offensive standpoint, we finally got a total team effort," said BCHS coach Jim Brown. "Everyone was able to contribute to the scoring and that is a very positive sign."

While Briarwood's offense did show more diversity, both Brown and ISS coach Greg Van Horn agreed that the Briarwood defense was the key to the game.

"They played very well and put a lot of pressure on us defensively," Van Horn said. "I thought the defense was the key to the game," Brown echoed. "They played well."

Central to that defensive effort was the play of Victor Nichols who matched up with

Warriors win over Bulldogs

by K.A. Turner

The Thompson Warriors brought a three-game losing skid to a screeching halt with a 99-92 win over the Montevallo Bulldogs in Montevallo last Friday night.

Thomas Johnson's Warriors used the press and some effective match-ups against Montevallo's man defense to explode to a 55-32 halftime lead then coasted to their seventh win of the season.

"We were able to get inside against their man defense and played good, aggressive defense of our own," Johnson said after the win reversed a losing streak that included area games with Pelham and Homewood and a road loss to Bibb County. "We began to look a little more like Thompson should."

In addition to the benefits of getting back on the winning track, Johnson added that the Thompson bench got in a lengthy work-out and some additional experience.

For Montevallo coach Bobby Pierson, the first half of the game was a nightmare of bad

Calera's Keith Nance plays champion tourney

by K.A. Turner

Keith Nance, the reigning men's club golf champion at Buxahatchee Country Club in Calera, recently participated in the Payne-Weber Southeast Club Champions Golf Tournament at Grand Cypress Country Club near Orlando, Florida.

To qualify for the tournament, Nance had to win his own club championship, have his name submitted by Buxahatchee pro shop operator John Kent then be issued an invitation by tournament organizers Payne-Webber and Golf Digest magazine.

Over 120 club champions answered the call for 72 holes of golf in the tourney. In addition, some 60 seniors played the tour-namment, making a total of over 180 players to challenge the 7300 yard course at Grand Cypress.

"It was a beautiful course with plenty of traps and a lot of water," Nance said. "We were all treated royally."

A four-handicapper at Buxahatchee, Nance competed in a field that ranged from scratch golfers to club champions with a five or six handicap. Nance said four of the golfers who played the tournament were making plans to train for the pro tour next season.

Nance also has the honor of playing the tournament's inaugural year.

From Calera, Nance won the Buxahatchee Club Championship last August.

Calera slams Chelsea

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

With 6'3" and 6'4" players in abundance on both sides of the court, the first Chelsea Hornets-Calera Eagle basketball contest of the young season promised to be a battle on the backboards.

When the dust settled in Chelsea last Tuesday, the Eagles had won that battle resoundingly. Along with the battle, Charles Jolly's Calera team also won the war.

The Eagles parlayed their strong rebounding performance into a 72-59 win over Mike Sims Hornets. From the opening leap, Calera took an advantage they would never give up.

"We just couldn't keep them off the boards," Sims said after the loss. "They are a tough team."

Calera Greg Haynes continued to turn in strong performances in both the scoring and rebounding departments. Haynes hit 15 of 20 shots from the floor enroute to a 32-point performance and picked 15 rebounds off the glass.

Byron White added 11 points for the Eagles, and Tim Goggins turned in his first double-figure scoring performance with 10 points.

"I was real impressed with Goggins progress in the game," Jolly noted.

For Chelsea, Keith Welch had 19 points and five rebounds, leading his team in scoring. Welch shared the rebounding lead with Steve Shelton who added 13 points and five assists.

Stephen Gutherie had 13 points and four assists for Chelsea.

They're building a legend at Erinvale Farms

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

Jim and Ann Haggard have a vision.

There will be a winner's circle. It may be Pimlico, it may be in Birmingham, it may even be at Churchill Downs.

There will be a jockey wearing the kelly green and royal blue silks of Erinvale Farms.

The Haggards will be there. So will Erinvale farm manager Betty Kappel, veterinarian Dr. Bobby Wilson and maybe a young fellow from Alabaster named Beaver Ledford.

And there will be a horse. It's name might be Second Fancy or Twice-a-Fool or some name that lies only in Ann Haggard's imagination.

There will also be thoughts of a horse left home at Erinvale and the promise of a legend, the legend being built at Montevallo's Erinvale Farms.

Jim and Ann Haggard, owners of Shelby County's newest thoroughbred breeding farm, admit that they got into the breeding business awfully fast.

From humble beginnings when Ann wanted only to breed her conformation mare to a fast horse, the Haggards have plunged head first into a breeding operation based around a major name in the horse world, Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew.

The basis of the Erinvale Farms project is Slew's Folly, a 16-hand dark brown horse that is a son of Seattle Slew and Dunce Cap 2nd.

Folly's lineage reads like a who's who of the horse world — names like Bold Reasoning, Bold Ruler, Tom Fool and Whirlaway — and his potential makes both Jim and Ann Haggard see a vision of greatness for Erinvale.

Though Slew's Folly is the name that is turning heads in the horse industry toward Montevallo — over 30 mares have already committed to his second breeding season — a second Triple Crown winner's son is also standing at Erinvale.

Alcatraz, son of Affirmed and owned by Jerry Parker of Marietta, Ga., gives the Haggards a second quality stallion with which to pair the more than 40 mares already in residence at Erinvale and a quickly-filling breeding slate for the 1986 breeding season.

The Parkers, who have other horses standing in Kentucky, chose Erinvale to stand their horse because, even though it is new, the Haggards already have a strong operation at their farm near Moore's Crossroads.

Ann Haggard has been "fooling with horses" all of her life. The mare that began the current endeavor — registered as Junk Lady but affectionately called Deep — was one that was bred originally to a Canadian Olympic team winner for conformation.

With the advent of a horse racing track in Birmingham — and an evidence of speed in Deep's breeding — the Haggards decided to try a breeding for speed.

Jim and Sally Hill, friends of Jim Haggard's from college days at Auburn, seemed a logical place to start in their search for a fast father. Jim, a vet, is also part owner of Seattle Slew.

"We had no intention of buying a horse when we started talking to them," Ann recalls. "I just wanted to breed one mare."

Getting in touch with the Hills proved to be a bit difficult.

Slew's Folly thunders across the Erinvale paddock

They were busy co-ordinating a visit for their Triple Crown winner with the queen of England who asked to see Seattle Slew while visiting the U.S.

Finally, the contact was made and Ann was encouraged to visit the Hill's farm in Florida.

"We just went to look," Ann remembers, but she and veterinarian Bobby Wilson ended up coming home with the promise of a horse.

Though Slew's Folly was in training when the Haggards bought him, Folly has never raced. Had the horse been successful on the track, he would probably not have been brought back here, Haggard said, and both wanted to stand the horse in Alabama.

Additionally, putting Slew's Folly on the track would have been taking the risk of injury. With his breeding, the Haggards decided to let Folly's children make his name.

"This is one of the best bred of the Slews," Jim said. "It is a distinct privilege to be associated with a horse like this."

"It probably catapults you into the top one percent of horses in the world," Ann added. "It is fun to be involved in something this big."

Slew's Folly first came to Shelby County in December of 1984. Ann Haggard was keeping her mare with Betty Kappel in Alabaster, but both decided that

County takes area wins, Bivins sets record

Six Shelby County basketball teams picked up area wins during a busy week of basketball action last week.

The Shelby County High Wildcats picked up a big area win with a 70-51 pounding of Dallas County in Columbiana Friday night.

David Wood had 20 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to lead the Cats in both categories.

O'Neal Williams had 18 points, nine rebounds and six assists in the game.

Ambrose Wood added 10 points and seven assists while Ashley Phillips and Anthony Mallory had 10 and nine points respectively.

An 18-foot jumper from Victor Nichols as the buzzer sounded powered Briarwood to a 52-51 win over West Blocton in a game that was close throughout.

Nichols led the BCHS scoring with 13 points in a game that wrapped up a perfect 2-0 week for the Lions and ran their area mark to 2-1.

Casey Campbell added 11 points and eight rebounds for Jim Brown's team while Phil Rooks also pulled down eight caroms.

Playing at times with two sophomores and two ninth graders on the court, the Vincent Yellow Jackets defeated a veteran B.B. Comer team 48-44 in Sylacauga last Saturday.

Hugh Kidd led the Yellow Jacket scoring attack with 16 points while Halvert Reynold took charge of the backboards, pulling down 17 rebounds.

Glenn Robertson and Frank Carter added 11 and 10 points respectively for Richard Crumpton's Jackets.

"We get a little better each time out," Crumpton said of his Jackets who entered this week with a 3-5 record. "We're playing some young kids and they are learning."

The Jackets win also featured Robby Green's first real action since coming back from a knee problem. Though Green didn't shoot in the game, Crumpton was pleased with the depth Green added and his play.

The Jackets rebounded against Comer after dropping a 40-35 decision to Childersburg earlier in the week in a game that saw Frank Carter hit 15 points and Hugh Kidd pull down 18 rebounds.

Greg Haynes headed a quartet of Calera Eagles who hit the double-figure scoring mark as the Eagles dealt Brighton a 78-75 setback in Brighton.

Haynes hit 28 points and grabbed 14 rebounds in the win to lead the Eagles in both categories.

Mark Jones hit 20 points and had 10 rebounds in the game while Tim Goggins and Willie Taylor added 13 points each.

The Eagles had a 13-point lead heading into the final period, but several turnovers, Calera coach Charles Jolly said,

Williams learns basketball's a contact sport made the final a close one.

Tommy Bivins had an outstanding night and established a new single game scoring record as the Montevallo Bulldogs smashed Oak Grove 85-57 last week.

Bivins hit 25 of 37 field goal attempts and was 1-2 at the line enroute to a record-setting 51-point performance. That total eclipsed Robert Seay's record of 46 points that has stood for several years at MHS.

In addition to his 51 points, Bivins pulled down 12 rebounds, blocked a shot, had three steals, and gave out one assist in the area win.

Danny Holmes had 11 points, seven assists and seven steals in a game that saw Bobby Pierson's Bulldogs explode for 28 second quarter points to put the game out of reach.

The Chelsea Hornets got 29 points, 10 rebounds and five assists from Steve Shelton as they took a 64-57 area win over St. Clair County last week.

Shelton's performance was supported by a 16-point, 13-rebound effort from Keith Welch and 10 points, six rebounds and six assists from Stephen Guthrie.

"It was nip and tuck all the way," said Chelsea coach Mike Sims. "Both teams went after each other tooth and nail and everyone played well."

The Coosa Valley Academy Rebels turned their basketball fortunes around last week posting a 2-0 record after a winless first week of action.

John Niblett's Rebs beat Chambers 62-59 in a game that saw all the Rebels get into the action.

Tad Niblett led the CVA scoring with 21 points and had eight rebounds and six steals.

Niel Rasmussen added 14 points and four rebounds to the CVA totals.

The Rebs then beat Minor 72-48 playing what Niblett called their best defensive game of the year, especially using trapping defensive pressure to create turnovers.

Scott Thompson has six steals in the game, Niblett saying that it was Thompson's best effort of the year. Tad Niblett led the CVA scoring with 25 points and had eight rebounds and five steals.

Toby Green went 9-11 from the foul line and 3-5 from the field enroute to a 15-point game for CVA.

Indian Springs rebounded from an early week loss to Chelsea to hand Altamont a 58-48 defeat at Altamont.

Indian Springs coach Greg Van Horn credited his team's press with giving ISS an early lead which they did not give up to spoil Altamont's homecoming.

Keith Lusco, Randy Mason and Lawrence Garcia provided the offensive punch for ISS hitting 19, 16 and 14 points respectively. Cubie Lathan had seven rebounds and did what Van Horn called "a good job" in his first start for ISS.

The Shelby Academy Raiders suffered through what coach Dewayne Kervin said was a "tough week" that saw the Raiders 3-0 mark after the opening week of action drop to 4-2.

Shelby took a regular season win over Minor 49-32 but lost tournament games with Hooper and Meadowview in Hooper's holiday tournament.

Mike Upton hit 18 points to power the Raiders to their win over Minor. Steve Silvani added 16 points and Vince Pickett had 13 rebounds in the game.

Upton had 22 points and Kelly Tibbals grabbed 11 rebounds but they were not enough as the Raiders lost to Hooper 50-37.

Pickett had 19 points and 14 rebounds and Upton had 10 points as the Raiders dropped a 51-49 heart-breaker in the tournament's consolation game.

The Thompson Warriors lost their third game in four days last Monday when Homewood See THS, Page D-6

SA girls are aggressive and quick

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor
EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles concerning the girls varsity basketball programs in Shelby County.

In her third season as Shelby Academy's Lady Raider basketball coach, Shirlee Daviston finds herself "very proud" of the way her Lady Raiders are performing so far, especially considering their youth.

The Lady Raiders entered the week with a 2-2 mark after regular season wins over Coosa Valley and Edgewood and losses to Southern and Hooper.

Good quickness and an aggressive defense, Daviston said, are the strengths of her team. "We're moving on the ball better and playing a much more aggressive defense than in the last couple of years," Daviston said. "That is probably our biggest strength."

Some outstanding individual performances give Daviston reason to smile as well.

Through four games, forwards Kim Snow and Kelli Reid have piled up good stats in several categories.

Reid leads the team in scoring with 49 points and in rebounds with 50 and has made 19 steals.

Snow adds 38 rebounds, 33 points and 14 steals to the Lady Raider totals.

In addition, Sally Salter leads the team with 22 steals in four outings.

The Raider defense is keyed in part by guard Kim Childers who mixes here defensive abilities with good ball-handling skills at the point guard post.

Snow, Reid, Salter and

Katrina Gentry make up the remainder of the Raiders starting five, but Daviston expects Jessica Ann Eisenberg to challenge for a starting role as she returns to the line-up.

Amy Snow, Mandi Wiser, Susan Alexander, Stacy Brumeloe, Stacy Stonstrom and Holly Hadaway add depth.

In the area of weaknesses, Daviston said that youth continues to tell on her team in the area of consistency.

"Most of the team is young and we lack some experience," Daviston said. "We need to work to be more consistent."

The Lady Raiders and the Lady Rebs of Coosa Valley are the only teams in their region, and one of the two will win a state play-off berth.

Bessemer and Cahawba join the two teams to make up District VII of the Alabama Private School Association, and Daviston describes the race for the district crown as a wide open affair.

"There is no one dominant team in the district right now," said Daviston whose Raiders are 1-0 in district play. "It looks about even right now."

CVA has banquet

The Coosa Valley Rebels honored their top football athletes of 1985 during the school's recent football banquet.

The Rebels looked back on a 5-5 season, their first with John Niblett as coach, and named the individuals who had performed best while wearing the Coosa Valley red and gray.

CVA sophomore quarterback Tad Niblett was the top winner of the night, taking home most valuable offensive player honors and the team's over-all academic achievement award.

Niblett threw for over 2,000 yards in 1985 and led the Alabama Private School Association in passing.

Another sophomore, linebacker Bobby Crumpton, was named the team's most valuable defensive player.

Seniors Mike Payne and Robert Strickland were named the team's captains. Payne also won the academic award among the 1985 CVA seniors.

Junior lineman Niel Rasmussen was named the most improved Rebel for 1985, while senior Scott Thompson won the Hustle award.

Senior Toby Green was named the best team man while senior Mark Rettig was given the Christian award.

BCHS

Indian Springs leading scorer Randy Mason in the Briarwood man defense. Nichols and company limited Mason to 13 points, one of his lowest totals of the season.

Meanwhile, Nichols scored 13 points of his own on the offensive end of the court, second only to Phil Rooks 14 point total in the Briarwood scoring.

Rooks also led the Lions in rebounds with eight while Casey Campbell pulled down seven caroms for BCHS.

Mason shared the ISS scoring lead with Keith Lusco, both hitting 13 points. Mason had 15 rebounds, and Lawrence Garcia added 11 points for ISS.

With wins over ISS and West Blocton, Briarwood went 2-0 on the week and upped their season totals to 3-6.

The Lions are also 2-1 in the area, directly behind the Montevallo Bulldogs.

Erinvale

the farm would not accomodate Folly and he stood his first season at Longview Farm in Vandiver.

Meanwhile the Haggards began a search for their own place and mares to get the operation started.

"They called me one Sunday night and asked me to go look at a barn," Kappel remembers. "We moved in on Monday, cleaned on Tuesday and had horses on Wednesday."

The Haggards leased Erinvale from Doug Rogers, a friend who had owned Arabians. The barn could accomodate Slew's Folly and others, and construction projects since begun promise to make the facility a rival to any by the time the breeding season opens in February of 1986.

Haggard, a chemistry professor at Samford University and a consultant, is looking forward to the growth of Erinvale.

"We have a responsibility to this horse to support him in the manner he deserves," Haggard said. In addition, the Haggards feel the quality of their horses will go a long way in letting the Birmingham race track have the highest quality animals available when it opens.

While the Haggards have jumped head-first into the breeding business, their vision for Erinvale remains in the future.

Second Fancy, Deep's first bred-for-speed offspring that was raised and cared for on Kappel's farm by Ann, Betty, Sue Irby and a youngster named Beaver, is currently in training for the track. As a two-year-old, she shows promise.

Deep is expecting again on January 29. That is the day that the first Slew's Folly foal is scheduled for delivery at Erinvale. It is a day, Jim Haggard believes, that the vision could start to become reality.

Other foals will follow, this breeding season and — if plans fall into place — for years afterward. But right now, the dreams of Erinvale are tied to a baby yet unborn to the son of a famous father. The Haggards are already playing with names, Twice-A-Fool, Slew's Fool and others, as any good expectant parents should.

And, as all good parents, they are also imagining greatness for the four-legged children of Erinvale.

Betty Kappel manages the farm where the Haggards and their staff already have almost 50 horses. In addition to Kappel, David Culpepper, Mike Shotts and Ernest Hill work the farm.

There are already a few babies at Erinvale. On an Indian Summer afternoon, they run like the wind through the paddock.

To see the beginnings of their vision, Ann and Jim Haggard need only to look outside.

"We didn't play well," Johnson said later. "We had 19 turnovers and you don't win games doing that."

Elliott Bivins had 13 points, Dana Washington had 12 and Jerome Taylor hit 10 to lead the Warrior scoring.

Taylor led the rebounding totals with 10 while Washington added six caroms.

Anthony O'Neal had four assists in the game.

The Warriors righted themselves later in the week, however, to take a win over Montevallo and enter this week with a 7-3 season mark.

Alabaster unit to use nitrous oxide

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

Alabaster Fire and Rescue will be one of the pioneers in the use of nitrous oxide to relieve pain in emergencies, according to Chief John Cochran.

Until now, the rescue unit has had no way to relieve the pain of people trapped in wrecks with compound fractures, severe heart attack victims or others needing such help, he said.

It can be especially useful with heart attacks, when a person is in great pain but needs to relax to avoid extra straining of the heart, Cochran said.

The gas is the same as is used by dentists, Cochran said.

The gas will be self-administered, he said. The victim will hold the mask to his face and the rescue worker will remove the mask when the person's hands fall away. The gas will be used under doctors' orders, he said.

Cochran stressed that it will not be used for everyone, but is "a real breakthrough for the rescue service" to have the nitrous oxide available when needed.

The Alabaster rescue unit is one of few in the Birmingham area that will be using the

County will repair library's bookmobile

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

Repairs of the Shelby County Bookmobile were approved by the County Commission Friday.

The bookmobile could be in use again by the end of January, said Nancy Woosley, director of the county library system. It could be longer, however, if repairs turn out to be more extensive than anticipated.

She called the commission's action "a good Christmas present."

Most of the work will be done by the county highway department and will begin after the holiday season, said County Engineer Gary Ray. It should take about two weeks to complete, he said.

Additional refiberglassing work on the body is also required for safety reasons, according to Woosley.

She said attempts to patch a section of fiberglass where the windshield connects to the roof have been unsuccessful because the motion of driving makes the patched area break away.

Unless the section of fiberglass is replaced, water can leak inside onto wires, creating the danger of a shortcircuit that could send an electrical volt through the bookmobile and seriously injure anyone inside, she said.

The maximum estimate of repairs is about $13,000.

Ray said the work could actually come to 40 percent less than that because not as much may be required as the estimate allows for.

"With engine and transmission work, you can't be sure of the damage until you get in. You don't know until you break it down," he said.

Major repairs to the vehicle, according to Woosley, include rebuilding or replacing the engine, repairing the transmission, replacing tires, refiberglassing, repairing the second generator, replacing battery cables and repairing the choke.

"It's 11 years old and, if rebuilt properly, which I'm sure it will be — who knows, it may last another 11 years," Woosley said.

Robert Kelly shows slides to area landowners

Turn your sludge into fertilizer

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

About 15 Shelby County landowners attended a meeting in Alabaster December 9 to learn about the benefits of using sludge to replenish soil.

Bobbi Meeks, owner of Meeks Environmental Waste, Inc., a Bessemer company that cleans septic tanks, addressed the group with a slide presentation about sludge.

Meeks has a plan to benefit landowners by plowing nutrients into depleted soil and to benefit waste treatment facilities with a way to dispose of sludge.

In the past, much sludge from Shelby County's septic tanks was disposed of in Jefferson County, Meeks said, but this is no longer allowed. Now Shelby County faces the problem of what to do with its sludge, he said.

When sludge is applied to the land in proper proportions and in a proper manner, you're turning the waste into a resource," Meeks said.

He said the Alabama Department of Environmental Management would monitor the practice and precautions would be taken, such as making sure sludge was not put into hills to run down into streams.

ADEM would provide guidelines for land application of sludge and check to see that these were enforced, he said.

He stressed that land application of sludge is "not creating a dump or dealing with hazardous waste."

Only the amount of sludge that would be used by the plants on the land would be applied, said Robert Kelley of the county's Soil Conservation Service, who helped coordinate the meeting.

Meeks owns a machine which plows sludge into the ground behind it.

He plans to provide this service to sewage treatment facilities in the county for a fee and plow the proper amounts into land free to the owners.

Meeks hopes to begin applying sludge to land in Shelby County in about two months.

In the past, Meeks has cleaned a trailer park lagoon in Fulton and spread it in a strip mining reclamation near Trafford.

Meeks said he will be the first contractor providing this service in the state.

Other projects are underway in the state, however, under the supervision of the Tennessee Valley Authority's National Fertilizer Development Center.

In 1978, the TVA began a "research and demonstration project" in Florence, Meeks said a similar project is underway in Cullman.

Kelly and Grant Goerber of the county Extension Service were asked by Meeks to schedule the meeting with landowners.

Commission sending 2nd letter about Rushton's new job

The Attorney General's Office is being asked twice to rule on possible conflicts of interest for a Shelby County Commissioner.

Commissioner Gregg Rushton was recently employed as director of marketing for Dampier, Harris and Associates, an architectural firm that does business with the county.

Rushton made a motion for the commission to ask for an opinion on the matter at the December 10 meeting. The same day, he sent a letter to the attorney general's office asking for a decision.

When the commission reconvened December 12 to certify the votes in the December 11 special election, Commissioner John Ames asked that the commission chairman write the letter instead.

Ames said since Rushton was the subject of the inquiry, the letter should not come from him.

Rushton objected that Ames was "insinuating that I would not write a fair letter."

The commission approved Ames' suggestion that Chairman Tommy Snowden send a letter, rescinding the motion from two days before.

Ames said that for Rushton to accept a position with a company doing as much business with the county as Dampier, Harris and Associates does is "unethical and unheard of." He said the action "impugns the integrity of the commission."

Rushton has removed himself from direct commission dealings with the firm since his employment.

In his letter Rushton states, "It is obvious that I would abstain from any discussion and voting when the Commission hires an architect to provide services directly to the Commission."

"However," Rushton noted, "the Commission appoints members to various boards such as the County Hospital Board, Library Board, etc., and makes annual appropriations and donates services to the Board of Education and the Library, which, in turn, have need of an architectural firm from time to time."

He asked if he would be in conflict to vote in certain situation dealing with these boards.

SMC board will begin studying reorganization

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

A committee of the Shelby Medical Center Board of Trustees will meet in January to discuss the reorganization of hospital management.

A date has not yet been set for the meeting of the long range planning committee, nor have all the members been appointed, said Laura Willis, the board's new chairwoman.

Willis said the board is only beginning the first steps of reorganization and has nothing specific to discuss yet.

Administrator C.L. Denton will be working with the group.

The meeting is intended more to outline ways to study reorganization rather than to make recommendations about reorganization, said SMC spokesman Steve Martin.

In other business at the board meeting December 17, the indigent care committee was asked to study the possibility of establishing guidelines for indigent care in the outpatient center.

The center has no provisions now for indigent care, Willis said, and the committee will consider the possibility of providing care for indigents in the outpatient center.

She said the committee would probably have to meet many times to develop a policy that would accept only serious cases — to avoid abuses — but cases not serious enough to require hospitalization.

The board also hired a new law firm, Maynard, Cooper, Frierson and Gales of Birmingham, to represent the hospital. Martin said the firm was reported to have experience with hospitals.

Calera's new waste treatment plant is complying with pollution laws

The new $3.74 million wastewater treatment plant operated by the city of Calera is in compliance with state and Construction of the new facility, which increases treatment capacity from 175,000 to 750,000 gallons per day, began in early 1984 and was completed in April of this year.

Calera was among 115 municipalities statewide which were given orders and compliance schedules by ADEM for achieving federal water quality objectives by the 1988 deadline ordered by Congress.

"Calera city officials and citizens are to be commended for their progressive actions which have resulted in a cleaner environment for the community," said ADEM Director Leigh Pegues.

Bookmobile

In other business, the commission agreed to send out bids for reroofing the library building in Columbiana, which houses the county headquarters.

It also approved bids for trucks for the highway department. The total for five dump trucks, two pickup trucks, one service truck and one flatbed trucks comes to about 140,000, Ray said.

Alabaster Mayor Roger Wheeler came to the commission to ask about work on an Alabaster road.

A section of County Highway 95, adjacent to the First Baptist Church in Alabaster, needs regrading and improvement in the sight distances, Ray said.

Original plans had been to make the work a Federal Aid Urban Project, Ray said, but this was changed to get the work done more quickly.

Ray said the field work already has been done and the county is working on a set of plans and will soon meet with Alabaster officials about a joint project.

nitrous oxide, Cochran said, listing Pelham, Helena, Homewood and Jasper as others.

Other units in Shelby County are in the process of acquiring funds and training.

The Alabaster City Council approved the purchase of a $1,295 nitrous oxide machine at its meeting Thursday. Cochran said the rescue unit will probably get the machine in a few days and expects to get its state license "any day."

Rescue workers completed a training course on when to use the machine and what its side effects are. Cochran said the side effects are few.

In other business at the council meeting, representatives of the North Shelby and Hoover Jaycees made donations to the Alabaster fire and police departments.

Billy Entrekin and Donna Jones gave a $250 check to Police Chief Larry Rollan for Toys for Tots and a $500 check to Fire Marshal Mike Ellis for the rescue unit. The money was given in appreciation for the city's help with the Jaycees' haunted house in Alabaster last Halloween.

Mayor Roger Wheeler noted a vacancy on the Water and Gas Board that needs to be filled before the next council meeting January 2.

Sludge

"From what I have read and heard about it, I think it will be an excellent idea, adding nutrients and organic matter to the depleted cotton and soybean land," Kelly said. "And we have got to do something. With the development in the county, there's more of a problem of where to put sludge. Land application seems to be a viable alternative."

European countries have been land applying sludge since probably the 1940s or 1950s, Kelley said. Until recently, the United States has not had as much of a problem disposing of it and so has not developed the practice as much, he said.

SMC

"The secret to SMC's success with JCAH is its people," Sumners said. "We turn everything over to the department managers and let them do their jobs. It always works out well."

"The entire hospital staff maintains SMC's high standards through team effort and pride in doing superior work," Denton said.

Five schools are accredited

Five Shelby County schools received initial accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools at a recent meeting in New Orleans.

Superintendent Ellie Glasscox, along with the principals and the teachers who were chairmen of the self-studies, were on hand to receive the certificates. This brings the number of SACS accredited schools in the county to 22.

The schools receiving accreditation, their principal and self-study committee chairman are as follows:

- Calera Elementary, Philip Hayne, Nancy Brooks.
- Helena Elementary, Billy Wayne Bramblett, Cheryl Davis, Cindy Hines.
- Montevallo Middle, Johnny McClain, retired principal Frances Smitherman, Emily Pendleton.
- Thompson Elementary, Leslie Harrison, Marion Sides.
- Wilsonville Elementary, Rosemary Liveak, Beth Scruggs, Carolyn Knowles.

Valley Elementary School underwent its 10-year review in 1984-85, and was represented at the meeting by Dr. Norma Rogers. The Inverness faculty also completed a 10-year study, the first as Inverness Elementary, and was represented at the meeting by principal Elizabeth Smith and Jane Hampton.

The superintendent praised the hard work of each school in completing the self-study and meeting all the standards of accreditation.

"Our system is promoting excellence in education," Glasscox said, "and membership in Southern Association is another tool for assuring that our students are receiving a quality education."

County will receive $75,000 from 3 utilities in back taxes

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

Shelby County will receive about $75,000 in back taxes from three utility companies, according to Tax Collector Annette Skinner.

The companies have been paying on 20 percent of assessed value instead of 30 percent since 1982, Skinner said.

The companies filed a lawsuit in 1982 to keep from paying the 30 percent, she said. For these three years, they have paid 20 percent and she has written off the remaining 10 percent in her records as cases in litigation.

However, the Alabama Supreme Court recently ruled that the companies should pay the 30 percent and must pay the difference for the three years with interest, Skinner told the Shelby County Commission Friday.

She said one company already has paid and she expects the others to pay before the end of 1985, or additional interest penalty will be added.

The three companies, which have lines in the county, are Colonial Pipeline, Southern Natural Gas and Plantation Pipeline.

Armed, masked men take $8 - $10,000 from Lloyd's

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

Two men wearing ski masks and carrying handguns, walked into the office at Lloyd's Restaurant last Tuesday evening as owner Eli Stevens was counting the day's receipts.

The men handcuffed Stevens and six employees, and made off with somewhere between $8,000 and $10,000.

At presstime, the two robbers had not been apprehended.

Shelby County Sheriff's department investigator Sgt. Richard Fox said the robbers are thought to be two black males, both slender, one about six feet tall, the other around five feet ten inches.

Construction work in the area prevented investigators from being able to look for footprints or tire tracks. However, Fox said he has some leads he's working on.

The robbers came in through the back door of the restaurant around 9:15 p.m., Fox said. Although the door is normally kept locked, the intruders may have been able to get in as employees were leaving, he said.

Stevens and his employees were handcuffed to the kitchen table where they remained until someone who came to the restaurant discovered them and called the sheriff's department.

Fox said no one heard the sound of a car starting up when the robbers left, so if they drove to the restaurant, the car was apparently left some distance away.

Board of Education awards bids for siding on annex, other projects

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

When it was brand new, student teachers from Alabama College lived in the two story wood frame home adjacent to Shelby County High School.

Principals and their families next occupied the roomy dwelling after the college no longer needed it.

Last year, the home was turned into an office building. The need for office space came about when a new kindergarten unit was added at the Center for Exceptional Children, leaving the staff without a place for their offices.

Although the interior of the home - now called an annex - was remodeled, the outside remained an eyesore.

That will soon change though. At last week's Board of Education meeting, the board agreed to spend $12,850 to put siding on the building.

The building was last painted about five years ago, said Pat Bulger, the last occupant of the home. She noted that wood did not take paint well, hence the board's decision to go with siding.

Creative Exteriors of Calera was awarded the contract for the work.

Another contract awarded Tuesday was for an addition at Calera Elementary School. Rutherford Construction Company submitted the low bid of $412,054.

The new construction will add special education classrooms and an indoor activity area. The contract calls for the project to be completed within 180 days.

Approval also was given for the replacement of wooden eaves around the old school building at Wilsonville at a cost of $2,870.

Leach Pontiac in Montevallo was awarded the contract to provide truck chassis at a unit cost of $11,531.02. Blazer Truck Body and Equipment Company was awarded the contract for truck bodies on their bid of $2,351.76 per unit.

Two Alabaster women die in car accident Sunday

Two Alabaster women were killed in a one-car accident on I-65 early Sunday morning as they returned from the engagement party of a friend in Montgomery.

Felecia Ann Byrd, 21, was dead at the scene of the wreck two miles south of the Shelby County line.

Selena Nall, also 21, died at Carraway Methodist Medical Center where she was taken by Lifesaver I.

Nall's car, a 1986 Toyota, left the road and hit an embankment before coming back on the road again, according to officials. It appeared to have flipped at least once.

The two women had apparently fallen asleep, said a trucker, who came upon the 3:45 a.m. accident minutes after it happened.

Nall's father, Rev. Olen Nall, was killed in a car accident in February 1980.

Nall was the owner of a beauty salon in Alabaster.

Byrd, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Byrd, worked for a Vestavia orthodontist.

Funeral services for Nall were on Monday; Byrd's were on the following day.

Hot Off The Press

by Jim Parks

Kids create recipes

'Tis the season to be cooking... Something about the Christmas holidays seems to bring out the chef in almost everyone. I thought the recipe for my famous ham and cheese delicacy, published in last week's edition, would have cornered the holiday party circuit...but no. My culinary expertise seems to have met its match...and by a group of "mother's helpers" at that. It seems our children are paying more attention to what they eat than we parents give them credit for. Maybe the reason some kids don't eat like they should is a direct reflection of our cooking ability. But, not to worry...kindergarten students in Mrs. Waugh's class at Thompson Elementary School have published a special Christmas Cook Book, featuring their favorite recipes, and the proper way to prepare each. I trust I'm not breaking any copyright laws by sharing these recipes. Jeremy Woodham: Green Beans - You take them out of the box, and put them in a pan. And put them on the stove. Frankie Flow: Apple Nut Cake - Mix 2 big steep spoonfuls of apples and sugar. Then you put the nuts, after you crunch them into a cruncher- make crumbs. Add 1 spoon of flour. Stir it in a bowl. Spray the pan with spray stuff so it won't stick. Let it cook for a while in the stove. Like about 5 hours or so - until it gets crust. Matthew: Corn - 1 ear of corn in round bowl things, 2 glasses of water with straight hands. Put it in the stove where cinnamon goes, and first tear off cob. Elicia: Chicken - Butter, Sugar, Cheese. Cook it in hamburger and milk. Siobhan Turner: Macaroni - Put macaroni in a bowl. Put butter in and melt it and cook it and it will be ready. Jamie Triplett: Oatmeal - Put it in the microwave. Then take it back out, then put butter in, then sugar, then water. That's all. Kim Araujo: Hotdogs - You put mustard in it, Catsup and you put onions. My mommie put onions and bunn and the hotdog, and I put mushrooms, that's all. Shanae: Pizza - Go to the grocery store (Western) and get the pizza. Take it home. Cook it in the stove for 1 hour. Good with french fries. Cortney: Pizza - Take dough and roll it out and then take flour roll it some more. ROLL- ROLL- ROLL- ROLL. Then sprinkle cheese, onions, and those little square meat pieces, and a tiny bit of sauce (over the dough). Now stir- and warm up in the pan for 1 minute. Then it's ready. Michael Ellison: Oatmeal - Put 2 cups of oatmeal mix in a bowl and mix it with 2 cups of water. Stir it up- then cook it (its the regular kind you cook) one hour. Then it's ready to eat. I like to eat it plain. Bobby Lee: Chili - Put mashed up meat in a pan. Cook it 3 minutes. Put tomatoes in it and tomato sauce. Then put 2 cans of any kind of beans. Cook it about 4 minutes. It's ready. It's my favorite meal. Ginger: Popcorn - Well they are seeds. Measure out two handfuls and put into the top of the air popper. Then get a bowl and put it under the popper. Melt butter in the microwave and shake salt on it. It's delicious to eat while you are watching TV. Tami: Hotdogs - Cook the weinners in the microwave for 4 minutes. Then put catsup and mustard on the weinners in a bun. I like to sprinkle a little onion on top. Katie: Spagetti - Put just regular meat in a big pot. Cook it till the stove dings. Then add the tomato sauce, cooked onions, mushrooms and tomatoes. Then put in the noodles. I like lots of noodles. You could eat this for breakfast, lunch or supper. Yum, Yum, Yummy. Louise Carson: Pizza - Put marshmallows in the dough then put a little mushrooms in, and onion in, and then put spices on top. Cook in the oven for 1 hour. Terry: Pizza - Put in a pan, put pizza in the stove. Put cheese, put soup, hot sauce and dressing - put 1 dressing. Michael Easley: Pizza - Put mushrooms, extra cheese on top, alot of meat, put alot of sauce and thats all. Trevor Geiger: Macaroni and Cheese - First you put in on the stove, and now you make it- when it bubbles around take it off the stove, and then put it on the counter, then put the cheese in it. Stir it, then put butter in it, and then pour it in another pan. Then it is ready. Kenny: Rice Krispies - One spoon of water and one spoon of butter. Then you put 2 spoons of rice krispies and some more butter. Mix it together with your hands till it sticks. Add 5 marshmallows. Good Good Good. Lee Puser: Pizza - A sprinkle of cheese and butter and tater pie and that's all. T.J.: Pumpkin Pie - Mix one cup of sugar with a can of pumpkin. Cook on stove for the timer stops two times. It will be done. Its my favorite kind of pie. Tommy: Cheese Toast - Take two pieces of bread- put cheese on it- heat the skillet- cook in the skillet- flip it over in a skillet- take out and eat. Eric: Popcorn - Put the oil in, and put the popcorn in, and put the top on the pan, and pop it. Then eat it. Not bad, but I still say the best thing to make for dinner is a reservation.

Local merchants help Jaycees provide Xmas

Letter to the Editor:
On Saturday, December 14th, the North Shelby Jaycees conducted our annual Christmas party and shopping tour for needy children in Shelby County. We would like to take this opportunity to thank the local businesses who contributed to this project. They include: Vulcan Materials-Southern Division, Foodmax of Alabaster, Foodworld of Pelham, Hardee's of Alabaster, the Alabaster YM-CA, as well as the Shelby County Reporter.

In addition, special thanks to Mr. Kirk and his staff of the K-Mart store in Pelham for their generous contribution, refreshments, as well as their invaluable assistance in locating items. Their willingness to help was very much appreciated.

We extend our thanks to Chris Miller and the other staff members of DPS who were instrumental in locating the children we assisted. She and other DPS employees affiliated with "Project Christmas" made our job much easier.

Although the weather was bitter cold, many individuals braved the elements to assist in helping the children shop for clothes and toys. Our heartfelt thanks to those who were willing to give of their time and themselves at such a busy time of the year. However, I am sure the joy expressed by the children as they received their gifts set their hearts aglow, reminding all the beauty of caring for others. For everyone involved the beautiful smiles and sincere "Thank you's" made all our efforts worthwhile.

Thanks again to everyone for making this a very successful endeavor.

Sincerely yours,
Billy Entrekin

Law would deal crippling blow to forestry

Letter to the Editor:
The Alabama Forestry Association is strongly opposing a proposal now before Congress which would remove the tax incentives currently aiding forest landowners with long-term costs of growing trees.

The proposal before Congress will deprive thousands of timber growers of lower capital gains tax rates and the opportunity to expense their forest management costs. This is certain to harm Alabama's leading industry which employs over 50,000 citizens, impacts the state's economy to the tune of $5 billion annually and furnishes in part our country's growing demand for wood products.

Denying forest landowners the incentives to grow trees would obviously undermine the productivity of forest land -- probably Alabama's most prized natural resource (we rank third behind Georgia and Oregon in total forested acres). As an investment, forestry would be severely affected resulting in a shrinking forest base and a steady decline in Alabama's manufacturing economy.

Reforming the federal tax code by taking jobs from working men and women -- not to mention "changing the rules in the middle of the game" for those who have chosen to invest in forest land -- is a poor route for Congress to take. This is of special concern when there is unanimous agreement across the nation that cutting the federal deficit should be Congress' top priority.

The Alabama Forestry Association hopes you agree that timber growing and forest products are too important to this state for our Congressmen to support legislation which penalizes timber production and which could ultimately disable the largest single contributor to Alabama's economy.

Sincerely,
John McMillan
Executive Vice President
Alabama Forestry Association

Budget reductions should be shared fairly

Letter to the Editor:
There is no question about the necessity to bring the national budget into balance. I know of no one who disagrees, but all insist that the sacrifice should be shared equitably.

Americans, recognizing the urgency, have placed the pressure where it belongs - on our Congressmen who appropriate the money. The answer has been the Senate Gramm-Rudman bill, which would require the President to make the necessary cuts when the Congress fails to do so. The mandatory reductions would start this fiscal year and continue until 1991, when a balanced budget will have been achieved.

Reacting to the pressure, Congressional leaders have now reached a compromise, which, reportedly, has a good chance for approval by the two houses and by the President.

The accumulation of years of Congressional avoidance of the issue has created a sense of urgency for action now at any cost. For example, in arriving at the compromise, Congressional leaders have exempted from cuts all of Social Security, scores of social programs, and placed arbitrary limits on many other areas of costs. Taken together, with the impossibility of reducing interest on national debt and the absolute need to defend the country, the resulting cuts in the remaining programs could be devastating, completely wiping out many important and worthwhile activities.

I believe that Americans fully realize the disastrous results that will flow from continuing federal overspending, and are prepared to sacrifice. But, they will insist on a fair sharing of the reductions.

A plan which exempts huge sections of costs and arbitrarily limits others cannot be considered equitable sharing.

Sincerely,
William C. Holcombe

Briarcliff goes beyond call of duty

Open Letter To Briarcliff Nursing Home

To the entire staff at Briarcliff Nursing Home, I wish to extend my deepest appreciation for the excellent care given my husband, Dr. Percy Nolen, during his nine-year stay at its facility in Alabaster.

But especially, I want to thank them for their compassion and all the things they did far beyond the call of duty while Dr. Nolen was so very sick in recent weeks just prior to his death.

From the administration to the R.N.'s, the L.P.N.'s and the nurse's aides, and yes, housekeeping and dietary, everyone made us feel at home and made us know that no need was too great for their attention.

It has been a blessed privilege to know the folks at Briarcliff, and I wish for each and everyone there a very happy Christmas and New Year.

Much love,
Elizabeth Nolen

Hockey game interrupts diet of culture

Editor's note: Marcia and Ralph Sears, former publishers of the Shelby County Reporter, recently returned to Montevideo after a month-long study mission to the Soviet Union and Mongolia. The mission was sponsored by the National Newspaper Association, Washington, D.C.

The 23 American newspaper publishers who made the trip interviewed Soviet officials and Western observers, and visited schools, museums, farms, churches, the Kremlin and a hospital. The group toured 10 major cities across the length and breadth of the country in the attempt to gain an in-depth understanding of the Soviet Union and its people. This report is based on the author's personal observations.

Part II The Lighter Side
By Marcia M. Sears

Our guide was startled that serious newspaper publishers would want to see a hockey game. We had just arrived in Novosibirsk (the Chicago of Siberia) after 2½ weeks in European Russia, where we had had a steady diet of museums, operas and lectures. It was time for something lighter.

"But," he protested, "the day is already planned. Morning and lunch in Akademgorodok, the university city on the edge of town, then a museum, dinner, and the opera 'Rigoletto' which you will see performed on the largest stage in the Soviet Union. There is no time."

We suggested, "Let's skip the museum, see the hockey match, then catch the last acts of Rigoletto and have dinner afterward?"

He tried again. "I don't even go to these matches any more. They kept taking our best players for teams in the big cities, so our city has dropped from a major to a minor league."

"That happens to us, too," we sympathized, "but we don't care. We want to see how you play hockey in Siberia."

The official agency, 'Intourist', which handles all tourist groups in the USSR, makes daily schedules for each group and these schedules are regarded as law by the guides.

With a sigh, Vladimir said he'd see what he could do.

He managed. The authorities cleared an entire row of the best seats for us. The new sports stadium seated about 10,000 and it was almost filled.

The Novosibirsk team was called the "Siberians" and the visiting team, from Sverdlovsk, I shortened to the 'A's' because their full name was much too long.

The teams represented factories in the two cities and were what the Russians call amateurs. Team members are on the payroll of the factory, and we were told they play hockey as a sideline. Skeptics in our group smiled at that and ventured privately that none of the players had ever seen an assembly line.

We were glad we went. It is a revelation to see a sports crowd in the Soviet Union. Well-mannered, disciplined, orderly, are the adjectives that come to mind. No booing, no shouts at the game's officials; just whistles and applause.

The indoor stadium would be a credit to any city. The equipment that cleared the ice between periods was modern and efficient. The scoreboard flashed in computerized letters. No food or drink was sold, so there was no litter in the aisles. There were about three times as many uniformed men around the entrances as one would find at an American game.

We cheered for the home team and the Russians cast a few amused sidelong glances at us - the first Americans to visit this stadium.

The match itself? Vladimir was right. It wasn't major league. The 'A's' played better throughout the match, but the Siberians were ahead until just before the final bell. In a furious burst, the A's tied it up 4-4. The crowd filed out quickly, piled onto buses and took off into the city of a million and a half. We were in time for the last of Rigoletto, performed in a magnificent opera house, with the best voices we heard in the entire country.

Life for Siberians isn't all snow and cold.

Caring folks raise $3,000

There's a difference in folks. There was this lovely lady who apologized for keeping me waiting ten minutes. And this grouchy fellow who wasn't even civil in refusing to help little folks have a Santa Claus. But I found enough caring folks to raise over $3,000 for our Christmas fund.

News came today that Bub Gordon was seriously ill in Brookwood Hospital. We have been friends longer than a lot of folks live. In my book, he's right at the top of the list. Prayers will flood the gates up there, asking for a miracle for this man.

Another fine friend, Mildred Harrison, is beginning to improve

This is splendid news for her many friends, including me, who have missed her so much.

And for all of you who read my stuff: Amy is getting better and better, and we are beginning to see a light at the end of the tunnel. It has been a blessing, realizing how many really care, and how beautifully they share your misfortune.

A big Thank You to Robert and Peggy Letson. They go to Birmingham every November and buy the toys for the needy children, and then on Christmas Eve pass them out, after Ann Head's Sunday School Class has got them ready the night before.

A letter in the mail from Frank McKnight from Lincoln, Nebraska and another from Howard Connell from Pasco, Washington. In another column I'll share the news with you.

She's getting old and she's sick and she said to me: "I don't think I could stand a trip to the big town. That's why I'm glad they kept our hospital."

To Ehney Camp and his family. Your room in the Museum, reminding us of the lives your family lived in our midst, so beautifully recorded by you, will be enjoyed by many people who pass this way. For me, it is doubly special, since your grandmother and my grandmother were sisters.

The weekly Good Morning column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member FDIC.

Forestry Commission hires three

Shelby County has three new rangers in its Alabama Forestry Commission office.

Alabama Forestry Commission Academy, said Darryl Lawson, who heads the county office. They also are required to have experience with heavy equipment and training in a forestry-related field.

Cary Rhodes of Calera is familiar with Shelby County, having grown up here. He graduated from a two-year forestry program in Lake City, Florida.

Mike Wilcox from Talladega has worked with Kimberly Clark and the Forest Service. Kenny Thompson of Burksville, near Montgomery, has worked as a volunteer for the Forest Service in Montgomery.

Lawson said this gives the Shelby County office four fire suppression people for the first time. A special appropriation from the Alabama Legislature made the addition of another person possible. It also gave the county a new fire suppression unit, a piece of heavy equipment similar to a bulldozer.

The appropriation was made because the bad fire season last year showed the Legislature the need in Shelby County, Lawson said.

Michael Hill elected to Easter Seal bd.

Michael E. Hill of Columbiana was recently elected to serve a three-year term on the Alabama Easter Seal Society's state Board of Directors.

Hill, who is self-employed, has been a volunteer of the society for several years, having been a member of the Service Area Committee of the Society's Occupational Rehabilitation Easter Seal Center in Birmingham.

Hill is a Deacon in the First Baptist Church of Columbiana, a past president of the Columbiana Kiwanis Club, and a member of the Inverness Lions Club. He was selected an "Outstanding Young Man of America" in 1981. Hill is married and has two children, a daughter Hayden and a son Jon Michael.

The Alabama Easter Seal Society is the oldest and largest volunteer health agency providing direct rehabilitation services to the disabled in Alabama. It was founded in 1926, to serve disabled children in hospitals, and today owns and/or operates 12 comprehensive and evaluation facilities strategically located over the state and Camp ASCCA.

Eminent scholars funding given at UM graduation

The University of Montevallo has become the first institution to receive $400,000 in matching state funds from the Alabama Endowment Trust Fund for Eminent Scholars, bringing the Vacca Chair of Liberal Arts one step closer to becoming a reality.

UM president Jim Vickrey was presented the state's check at fall commencement exercises Dec. 13. The presentation was made by Dr. Joe Brindley, UM vice president for University and Public Affairs, who brought it back from Montgomery shortly before commencement.

Thanking Brindley for the check, Vickrey said it was "a wonderful way of ending the semester."

"Thank you even more, though, for helping secure passage of the Eminent Scholars Act in the last session of the legislature, something which Montevallo first proposed five years ago," Vickrey continued. "And thank you for helping seeing that we became the first university in the state to take advantage of the legislation. I can't tell you graduates how important this is, and I hope one day you will look back with pride that this occurred on the night that you were graduated."

UM will be establishing a Chair of Liberal Arts with the funds, thanks to the generosity of former State Sen. Paschal P. "Pat" Vacca, who donated the initial $600,000 needed by the University to qualify for the matching state funds.

The million-dollar chair, believed to be unique, will be named for the Birminghamian and, according to Vickrey, will "vitalize the teaching of liberal arts" at UM. It will also put outstanding scholars in the liberal arts "in direct contact with UM undergraduates."

The Vacca Chair will be the centerpiece of a proposed Center for Excellence in Undergraduate Liberal Studies at Montevallo. Vickrey recently submitted a state funding request of $500,000 for the new Center.

The Eminent Scholar Trust Fund is administered by the Alabama Commission on Higher Education. The enabling legislation required that the University's $600,000 come from sources other than state appropriations, student fees, federal funds or research grants in order to "strengthen the commitment of citizens and organizations in promoting excellence in these state universities."

Jason Norrell and Mike Green varnish trucks

Riverchase class makes toy trucks

by Bert Seaman
Staff Writer

One hundred Shelby County youngsters will find a sturdy wooden toy logging truck under their Christmas tree this year.

"They're virtually indestructible," said Riverchase Middle School teacher Lauren Cotton, whose two-year-old daughter Margaret "field tested" a model. The students in Cotton's advanced industrial arts class made the trucks - double the number they made last year for the Toys for Tots project.

In order to buy materials, Cotton said his class made and sold locker dividers. From that project, they raised $200.

The entire school participates in the Toys for Tots project each year, and this Christmas season, $1,500 was raised to buy new toys for underprivileged youngsters.

At an assembly program Friday afternoon, the toys were presented to Fraternal Order of Police members who sponsor the project.

Musical presentations by school bands and the chorus, plus the annual production put on by the faculty, were all part of the activities on the last day of school.

As 1986 arrives, we're extending our best wishes to you and yours.
Your business and friendship have made us proud.

TES class visits Talladega school

Thirty-three children from Thompson Elementary School got in some last minute signing practice as they rode a school bus to Talladega.

Instead of having their own Christmas party, students in the ERC classes taught by Marnie Brown had decided they wanted to do some sort of service project.

The project turned out to be a visit to children who attend the Talladega School for the Deaf.

"We didn't want this just to be a do-gooder type of thing though," explained Skip Coulter, a parent of one of the students.

Coulter said the parents and Brown wanted the ERC students to be able to mingle with the students and to get to know something about them.

To prepare themselves for the visit, Brown had people who work with the deaf come in and teach the ERC students some sign language.

"Our students sang Christmas carols using sign language," Coulter said, "and the deaf children practiced making vocal sounds."

Coulter said the TES group also took a Christmas tree, which the deaf children helped decorate.

Eating refreshments, playing games, and touring the school also occupied the students' time during their visit.

Rather than have the students in the ERC class think of themselves as being above the average person, Coulter said, "We want our gifted students to consider their gift a reason to serve."

The Thompson ERC students who made the trip are in grades 2-5. TES Assistant Principal Tommie Harrison also accompanied the group.

Wildcats win, Bulldogs 3rd in Clanton tourney

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Shelby County High Wildcats gave themselves an early Christmas present last week when they posted impressive wins over Jemison and Chilton County enroute to the championship of the Chilton County Holiday basketball tournament.

Bobby Pierson's Montevallo Bulldogs rebounded from an opening round loss to CCHS to beat Jemison and capture the tournament's third place spot.

"We won it and I think we looked impressive doing it," said first-year SCHS coach Charlie Dickinson. "I feel good about their performance to this point in the season."

An aggressive defense, Dickinson said, was the key to both tournament wins. The Wildcats man to man pressure did not allow good shots for opponents, created a lot of turnovers in both games and "really set the tone for the tournament," Dickinson said.

Wildcat junior guard Ambrose Wood, Dickinson said, was the catalyst of a "good overall team effort" on the defensive side while O'Neal Williams keyed the SCHS offense enroute to a tournament MVP performance.

Williams hit a game-high 33 points as the Wildcats blasted Jemison 97-64 in the tourney's opening round.

David Wood turned in a good game on both sides of the court for the Cats, combining 24 points with nine rebounds and several blocked shots.

Ashley Phillips added 12 points for SCHS while Eddie Buie hit nine points coming off the Wildcat bench.

Montevallo's Bulldogs played a nip-and-tuck opener with the hosting CCHS Tigers before dropping a 74-66 decision.

"It was just one of those game when we couldn't seem to get over the hump," said MHS coach Bobby Pierson. The Dogs tied the contest late in the fourth quarter but could never get that key basket and a lead.

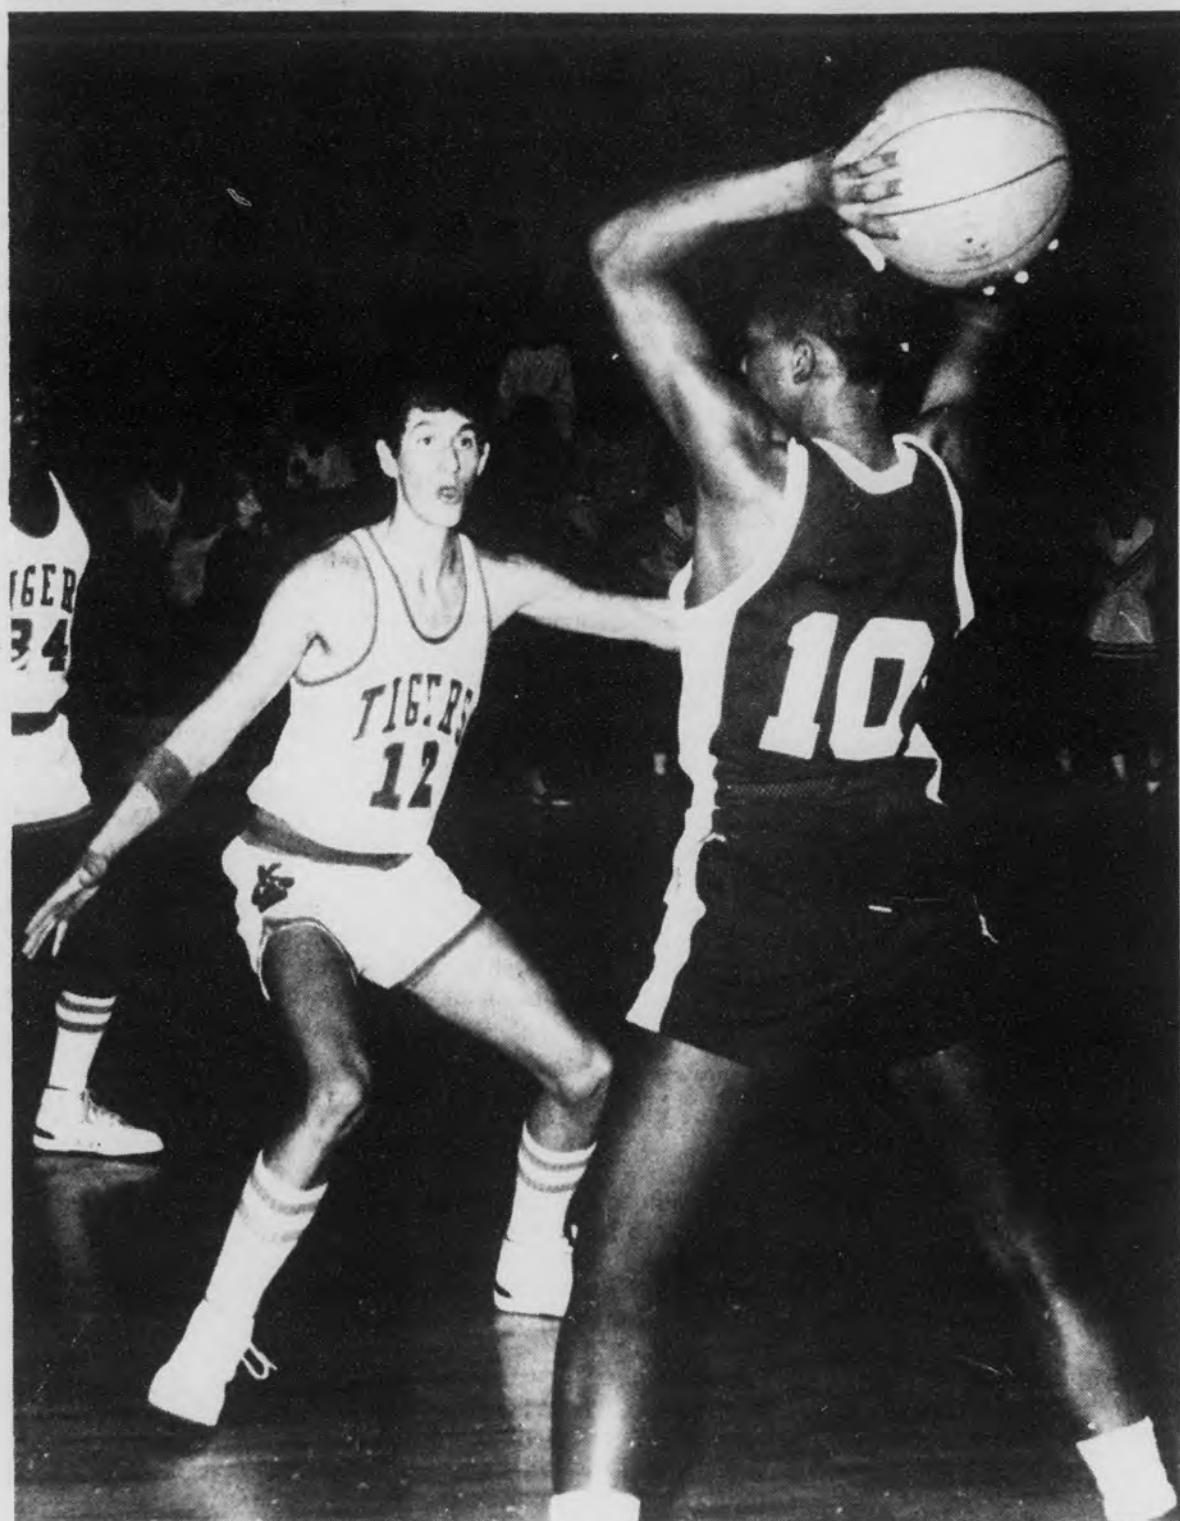

Tommy Bivins hit 31 points, had nine rebounds and three steals in the game for Montevallo. Danny Holmes added 14 points and seven assists to the MHS totals while George Jackson recorded six assists for the game.

Allen Broom had 33 points to lead the Tigers scoring while James Davis added 19.

The Clanton Tigers, however, bit off more than they could chew when they advanced to a date in the finals with SCHS.

Once again, the Wildcat defensive pressure was the key in a 65-48 win in a game that saw Shelby County hold the Tigers scoreless in the third period of play.

Eagles best Dogs at line

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Calera Eagles continued their mastery over county foes — and others as well — with a 78-69 win over the Montevallo Bulldogs last week.

It was a game that the Eagles won at the foul line, as both squads hit 30 field goals but the Eagles hit 18 of 26 free throws to take the win.

The Bulldogs could muster only nine of 18 shots from the line, missing, said coach Bobby Pierson, a number of one-and-one opportunities.

The game was close until the final minutes, when Calera seemed to take command after the Bulldogs had cut the Eagle lead to six points late in the fourth period.

"They play with such confidence," Pierson said. "They are a super team."

Greg Haynes led the Calera scoring attack with 21 points.

Byron White and Willie Taylor added 18 points each while Tom Goggins continued to score well from his guard position, hitting 12 points.

Tommy Bivins threw in 29 points and grabbed eight rebounds for the Bulldogs. Danny Holmes had 14 points and nine rebounds, Demetrius Paschel had eight rebounds and Slade Blackwell had nine assists.

CVA Rebels win big, finish second in tourney

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Coosa Valley Academy Rebels scored a big opening round win then dropped an overtime decision in the tournament finals to place second in their own Christmas basketball tourney last week.

John Niblett's Rebs blasted Pell City Christian 93-14 in the opening round of the meet then fell to Cathedral 67-62 in overtime last weekend.

"We didn't play real well in the finals," Niblett said. "We had some costly turnovers in the overtime and they hit all their foul shots," he added. "That made the difference in the ballgame."

Tad Niblett led five Rebels who hit double figure scoring totals in the opener against Pell City as he poured in 28 points.

Dennis Gentle had 13 points, Scott Thompson 12 points and Niel Rasmussen and Mike Payne got 10 points each in the win.

Niblett also had 31 points against Cathedral enroute to a tournament most valuable player performance.

Rasmussen had 18 points against Cathedral.

The Rebs tied the Cathedral game at 59 to send it into overtime but were outscored eight to three in the OT period.

Vincent sets tourney

County basketball fans will get a chance to preview the small-school division of the county basketball tournament next week when the Vincent Yellow Jackets host the D.B. Smith basketball tourney in Vincent January 2-4.

Calera, Chelsea and Briarwood will join the host team Yellow Jackets in the round robin event that will feature match-ups between the four clubs each night.

Calera and Chelsea will meet each other at 6:30 then Vincent and Briarwood will tangle at 8:00 p.m. on the tournament's opening night January 2.

Calera and Briarwood will play the first game and Vincent will take on Chelsea in the latter on January 3.

Briarwood and Chelsea will play the opener and Vincent and Calera conclude action on Saturday January 4.

Those four teams are expected to comprise the small-county division of the county basketball tournament set for February.

Warriors whallop Pelham 64-42

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

When the Pelham Panthers mauled the Thompson Warriors 78-58 on the Panther home court a couple of weeks ago, Thompson coach Thomas Johnson didn't feel a comparison of the two teams should hinge on that game alone.

"I don't really know if they are that much better than we are," he said at the time. "I guess we'll just have to see what happens when they come to our place."

There was a 20-point difference when the Panthers and Warriors met in Alabaster Friday night, but the victor did not wear green and gold.

Instead the Warriors avenged their earlier loss to Pelham with a 64-42 whipping of the Panthers last Friday in an effort keyed, Johnson said, by defense and desire.

"The two D's - defense and desire - that's what made the difference," Johnson said after the Warriors win. "We had some kids that really wanted to win and got some shots to fall along with our defense."

Johnson said that his entire team "just played hard like they have all year" in taking the win.

Additionally, the Warriors seemed to rebound better against Pelham than in the earlier meeting between the two.

"We played above the rim a little more this time," Johnson said.

Richard Kidd led four Warriors who scored in double figures hitting 14 points on the night.

Anthony O'Neal combined 11 points with 11 assists for Thompson and Demetrius Gaiters and Dana Washington hit 10 points each.

Jeff Thomas had four assists on the night while Jerome Taylor and Washington each pulled down eight rebounds.

John North led Pelham's scoring with 11 points while Ralph Noble added eight.

For the Record

Hurt gets first deer

Shannon Hurt, a 13-year-old Alabaster hunter, bagged his first deer on Thanksgiving weekend while hunting in Pineapple, Alabama with his father Don and his uncle Mike Kent.

Shannon brought down the eight-pointer with a 22 gauge. Shannon's dad reported that this was the young hunter's first time to even see a deer. "I think it was a case of beginner's luck," Hurt said.

Luck or skill, the deer will be mounted as a reminder of the hunt.

County players gather honors

Shelby County High School senior David Wood and Calera High senior Mark Jones lead a group of eight county footballers to win all-metro or all-state recognition from the Birmingham News.

Wood and Jones each were named to the all-state squads in their respective classifications. Wood as a receiver and Jones as a defensive back. Both were named all-metro players in the same positions as well.

Other all-metro selections included offensive linemen Jim Burrowbridge of Pelham and Chuck Amos of Calera, receiver Mike Payne of Coosa Valley, defensive backs Tony Jeffers of Pelham and Slade Blackwell of Montevallo and punter Derek Whitfield of Vincent.

County teams pick up big area wins

Three county teams picked up area wins in last week's county basketball slate.

The Vincent Yellow Jackets got an outstanding performance from sophomore center Frank Carter to take a 59-50 area win over Lincoln in Vincent Friday night.

Carter paced Richard Crumpton's Jackets with 33 points and 19 rebounds on the night.

Halvert Reynolds added 11 points and 10 rebounds to the Jacket totals while Glenn Robertson hit some clutch free throws to protect a fourth quarter lead for Vincent.

The Chelsea Hornets picked up their eighth win of the season Friday night with a 63-58 triumph over area foe St. Clair County.

Steve Shelton led four Hornets who hit in double figures as he recorded 22 points on the night.

Stephen Guthrie hit 13 points, Keith Welch had 11 and Mike Beavers had 10 to power Mike Sims team to the win.

The Thompson Warriors used a 23-point performance and some clutch free-throw shooting from Dana Washington to take a 67-58 area win over McAdory last Tuesday.

Richard Kidd added 10 points for the Warriors as they picked up their eighth win of the season.

Owens fights for his kids

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

Tom Owen, Shelby County strong-man and founder of the King's Ranch home for kids, probably encourages his kids not to fight.

But Owen recently found himself fighting for the kids in a six-bout celebrity fight that provided a debut for Owen's new boxing career and some good promotional interest for the King's Ranch.

Owen took on sportscasters Ron Grillo and Matt Coulter, journalist Jessie Champion, radio personality Lonnie Bumpus Jones, Birmingham Stallions coach Rollie Dotsch and Stallions lineman Pat Saindon — reported to be the strongest man in the USFL — in one-round exhibition bouts in Birmingham.

Owen also fought a similar card in Montgomery, all the fights arranged by Pro Promotions in Birmingham.

The fights netted around $1,000 for the ranch, a little less successful than Owen had hoped the bouts would be financially, but provided, Owen said, a wealth of good promotion for the King's Ranch.

"We have five locations in three counties right now," Owen said of his Christian neighborhoods for kids, "and our budget has really grown. Every bit of exposure helps."

In the Birmingham fight card, Owen said he felt the only opponent he could "really hit" was Saindon who weighed in at 295 for the bout.

"I spent most of my time moving around the ring in that one," Owen recalled with a laugh.

In the Montgomery fight, Owen squared off with one professional middleweight in the card.

"He got in some good jabs, but I cut him above the eye," Owen said.

Owen feels that boxing may be a new direction in an athletic career that he has parlayed into promotional considerations for the King's Ranch and opportunities to share his faith.

He is currently training for the Alabama weightlifting championships to be held early in 1986, hoping to win his 10th Alabama powerlifting title.

After that point, he will begin running again, drop a little weight, and get back into the boxing ring.

And what does Owen want from his new career?

"An opportunity to witness and gain a little money for the ranch," he said.

Calera Eagles honor football best

by K.A. Turner
Sports Editor

The Calera Eagles celebrated a comeback season last week as they honored the top athletes from the 1985 Eagle football team that finished the season with a 3-8 mark but with Shelby County's only area championship to their credit.

After dropping seven straight games, Danny Alverson's crew rebounded with wins over Chelsea, St. Clair County and Brighton to take area champion honors and land a berth in the state play-offs.

The banquet provided a first for the Eagle team, as team members decided to select all six of their seniors as permanent captains for the team.

"We had so many ballots that said give it to all the seniors that's what we decided to do," said Eagle coach Danny Alverson.

Chuck Amos, Erwin Jones, Mark Jones, Shane Schroeder, Byron White and Joey Killingsworth were named the team's captains and each were additionally recognized as all area players.

Jones and Amos were further recognized for all county and all state mention.

The Eagle Booster club awards went to Erwin Jones and Shane Schroeder as most valuable linemen, Mark Jones as most valuable back and Joey Killingsworth and Chuck Amos as most valuable defensive players.

The Eagle team voted Erwin Jones the most improved lineman and Kenny Richardson and Steve Seay as the most improved backs.

The team's good sportsmanship award went to Bret Holcomb.

Chuck Amos won the Ricky M. Cairns Eagle Spirit Award.

Shane Schroeder won the E. Marvin Smith scholastic award.

Additionally, each member of the 1985 Eagle team was presented a trophy as Area 10 champions by the Lady Eagle booster club.

Business Review

Dixie Printing

Business can handle any commercial printing job

Dixie Printing has been a growing business venture ever since the first printing order was placed in early 1982.

Dixie Printing produced its first orders on used equipment inside the home garage of co-owners Daniel Threadgill and his sister Dawn Vance. Each partner had previous printing experience and decided to give it a go on their own.

In mid-1983, Threadgill accepted another job in Tennessee and left the entire business to his sister, who purchased new printing equipment and moved the operation to its present location on Main Street in Columbiana. Business phone is 669-6853.

Today, Vance supervises two full-time employees, Diane Best and Travis Stone, and part-timer Sheila Keith.

From its humble beginnings in a garage, Vance has expanded the business to handle any type of commercial printing job from simple black and white business cards to four-color process publications.

Customers also can get flyers, letter heads, wedding invitations, Christmas cards, brochures, calendars...basically, anything they want. Any order can be customized and no job is too big or too small.

To prove a point, Dixie Printing recently completed an order from the U.S. Army, which included producing 250,000 Army medical forms. Other major orders have been placed by the U.S. Postal Service and the Environmental Protection Agency.

Dixie Printing also has printed financial reports for major companies, various books and magazines and even a telephone directory.

Equipment includes two presses, paper drills, perforators, paper cutter, shrink wrapper, binders, folders, platemakers, typesetting equipment and a complete darkroom facility.

Dixie Printing also serves as the Columbiana headquarters for Western Union telegram service.

While Vance stays busy in Columbiana, her husband, Ronnie, stays on the road, but not as a sales agent for Dixie Printing. He's the drummer with the group Jackson Highway.

The working couple still finds time for each other, however, and will enjoy this Christmas with their two-year-old son, Stephan.

Prissy Gray, Linda Dorsett at Country Cart Flowers

Holidays keep local florists busy

Linda Dorsett and Prissy Gray, co-owners of Country Cart Flowers, have busier than two bees in honeysuckle.

They opened their flower shop in early November, just in time for the holiday season.

Located on Hwy. 119 S. in Alabaster across from Green Valley subdivision, the business didn't take long for customers to find, and Dorsett and Gray have been up to their knees in greenery ever since.

Country Cart Flowers offers its customers anything from a simple rose to a customized arrangement of fresh and silk flowers. Gray's experience in the flower business assures her customers of guaranteed satisfaction.

Dorsett's main duty is bookkeeping, but she is quickly learning the art of floral design.

Country Cart Flowers can make or order anything, and customer delivery is free in the Alabaster and Pelham area. Deliveries also are made throughout Shelby County and into Birmingham for an additional charge.

Besides floral arrangements, the shop also offers a variety of popular gift items including colorful candles and solid brass pieces from India. After the first of the year, the shop will carry balloons.

Country Cart Flowers is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and customers are invited to visit or call 664-0756.

SouthTrust named as a top opportunity

SouthTrust Corporation has been named one of the 20 best investment opportunities in the country by a Chemical Bank investment manager in the Dec. 16 issue of Forbes, a nationally-distributed business magazine.

In an article entitled "The ROE Chase," Forbe's writer Leslie Pittel explains the formula developed by Stephen Timbers, chief investment officer at the Portfolio Group, the money management arm of Chemical Bank. After developing the formula, which is a measure of return on invested capital divided by price-to-earnings ratio, Timbers back-tested his theory for 1973-83 and found it successful for determining good stock buys.

He has since used his formula in his work for the Portfolio Group and has averaged a 20 percent return on the Group's account.

SouthTrust is one of only three bank holding companies on Timbers' list of top investment opportunities. Most of the companies listed are nationally known.

Shelby County People

Kerr has a history of Scouting honors

Joe Kerr couldn't wait until he was old enough to join the Scouting program.

Within two weeks of his 11th birthday in 1953, he was a member of a Troop 17 in Monongah, WV, near his native town of Arthurdale.

Within six years, Kerr acquired 28 merit badges, the Gold Award, God and Country Award, and held several leadership positions including Senior Patrol Leader and Junior Assistant Scoutmaster.

Since then, his accomplishments in Scouting have become almost too numerous to mention. However, his latest honor has received wide acclaim among his Scouting peers.

Kerr, a resident of Indian Valley in Shelby County, was one of only six Scouting leaders in the Vulcan District to receive the coveted Vulcan District Award of Merit. He and Robert Webber of Alabaster were the only two Shelby County leaders to receive the honor at the annual recognition banquet held in November.

The Vulcan District has encompassed Jefferson and Shelby counties for the past several years, but the recent surge in population has dictated the area be split into two districts in January.

Area Scouts are now in a contest to decide a name for the Shelby County district.

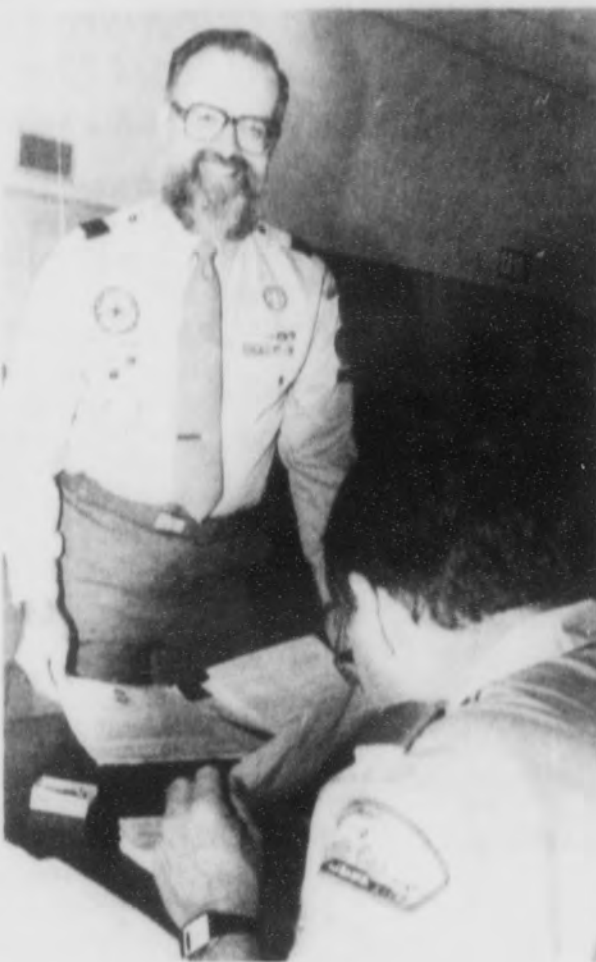

Kerr is completing his third year as a Cubmaster with Pack 5, sponsored by Christ Church United Methodist in North Shelby County. His first year was spent as assistant Cubmaster to the Rev. Byron White, pastor at Christ Church.

In May, he will serve as assistant Cubmaster in a training role to Steve Jordan; and hopes to hold a district level job in September.

Kerr's love for Scouting has rubbed off on his son, Bill, who entered the program at age eight. Now 11 - the age of his father when he first joined - Bill is now a First Class Boy Scout in Troop 5.

Kerr's leadership ability is reflected by his devotion to the program, and he strongly supports parental involvement.

"I see this as a significant way to minister to the kids," Kerr said. "Cubbing gives parents a way to make a boy listen to their values...it gives, in a program, a way for parents to do important things for their kids.

"It's easy for parents to talk to their kids about trivial things like the weather and the day's activities, but it's not so easy for them to talk about God, country and personal development."

Three forms of development tend to emerge from Scouting, Kerr surmises.

"They learn respect and development of self, duty to God and duty to country," Kerr said. "These three things capsule the entire pro-

Webber gives Scouts a family feeling

It was summer at Lacde Flambeau, a camp in Wisconsin.

A boy scout troop was watching a group of black bears when one of the animals turned on the boys.

"One of them almost got us," Bob Webber remembers. "The scoutmaster took on the bear."

Armed only with a hunting knife, scoutmaster Pat Nantz jumped between the bear and his scouts and cut off one of its ears.

"That bear just looked surprised then it ran off," Webber remembers.

In December of 1985, Alabaster's Bob Webber was awarded the Boy Scouts of America Vulcan District Award of Merit.

One of only six to receive the coveted award for 1985 - North Shelby countian Joe Kerr also received the Award of Merit - Webber has never had to stand between his Cub Scouts and a bear, and hopes he never has to.

What Webber has done, however, is to successfully lead the second largest Cub Scout pack in the Vulcan District and given it a feeling of family togetherness.

"The nicest thing about this award," Webber said, "is that the parents and leaders here thought enough of me to nominate me for the award. Whether it went any farther than that didn't really matter."

The award comes five years into what promises to be long years of Scout leading for Webber as he guides his three boys - Scott, Jeff and Jonathon - through Cub Scouting just as his father guided him.

Scott was a Webelos Scout and Jeff a Tiger Cub when Webber's job with the phone company moved him to Alabaster in February of 1983.

Both boys became involved with Cub Scout Pack 394 at Elliottsville Cumberland Presbyterian Church and Webber became an Assistant Cubmaster to Ron Hall.

Webber became the pack's next Cubmaster in the months that followed and has held that position since.

Scott is now through with Cub Scouting and

Bob Webber

Jeff is in his final year of the Cub program. At four, Jonathan has at least a couple of years before he can begin to scout. But Webber is thinking of staying with the program even though his children for the moment will be gone.

"Whether I'm a leader or not I will stay involved," Webber said. "I'm not going to leave Scouting."

Webber does training for the phone company, and the Vulcan District Scouting officials have made use of his skills in training programs for them as well. In addition to serving as a Denmaster then Cubmaster, Webber has served as chairman of the area Scout's Tonka Koo event, has organized new packs, run school nights for Scouting and helped to train volunteers on a one to one basis.

Besides Scouting, Webber has also been "involved with kids" through Junior Achievement, teaching social studies and as a baseball and football coach.

But it is in Scouting that Webber sees infinite potential for growth in the young men of today.

"If my kids had to choose between sports and Scouting, I'd rather they chose Scouting," Webber said. "Scouting is a way of life... it is life. It lays a foundation for living. If they can handle what happens in Scouting they can handle anything."

Webber added that Scouting can become anything an individual Scout wants it to be. The Scout program of today is so varied that a youngster can gain exposure in many vocational fields, learn responsibility and still learn about the existence of God.

"Scouting is for the kids, and I enjoy it for that reason," Webber said, "but it takes leaders to make it work."

"I couldn't have done anything here without all those leaders," he added. "One person can't do it all."

So while Bob Webber now holds the Vulcan

District Award of Merit — it was recently presented to him again by his den of scouts at a pack meeting — he knows only too well that the award is to be shared with the 20 leaders, the 81 Scouts and the parents and supporters of Cub Scout Pack 394.

It is also shared with his wife Sue. "She puts up with a lot," he laughed. "Everyone has a part in this."

gram."

The Scouting program is orchestrated by its own set of rules and procedures, but Kerr said it's not a fixed program.

"It's geared to roll with the boys' interests," he said. "The concept to develop duty to self, God and country is interwoven into each step of the program. Scouting creates a well-rounded person."

Since Kerr has been Cubmaster with Pack 5, he's seen the membership double.

"We recorded 102 boys and 45 leaders this past September," he said.

Although sponsorship by Christ Church has contributed to a healthy increase in Scout membership, Kerr said only 20 percent of the boys in that unit are members of the church.

"We extend beyond the membership of this church," he said, "but 15 percent of our church members have joined because of Scouting. Sponsorship by the church has helped both groups grow."

Kerr is married to Dr. Carole Ann Kerr, who serves as his Den Leader Coach. The couple has one son, and the family holds an active membership at Christ Church United Methodist.

Shelby VFD holds annual meeting

The fourth annual meeting and election of the Shelby Volunteer Fire Department, Inc. was held December 5.

The department covers the area surrounding the Shelby community and includes Lay Lake properties from the Shelby Shores area to south of the Waxahatchee Creek area.

Elected to the five-member governing body Board of Advisors were James Shirely, chairman; Buck Kendrick, Hobson Vansant, Raymond Thornburg and Erskin Nichols.

Corporate officers elected for 1986 are John Goolsby, fire chief; Charles Smith, first assistant chief; Perry Willis, second assistant chief; Homer Lincoln, secretary; J.B. King, treasurer and Rev. Randall Mims, chaplain.

Since spring of 1983, the department acquired land and built two permanent fire stations at Shelby and at Montstellers.

It also has gotten two firetrucks based at the Shelby station, and one firetruck and a brush truck based at the Montstellers station. The department has 27 equipped active firemen, 13 of whom have personal pagers for quicker response.

The department is receiving an ISO 8-9 rating in April 1986 for its service area within five miles of the Montstellers station, which includes most of the Lay Lake properties in its service area.

This commitment depends on the SVFD being able to raise the necessary funds to purchase and equip the Montsteller fire truck with 1,350 feet of two and one-half inch approved fire hose.

"We are the only volunteer unit in Shelby County that has accomplished this much in three years of operation. It was done by your hard work and we have a great deal to be proud of," said Goolsby, who has been chief since the department was organized.

During the meeting, applications to become active firemen were taken from five people, all living in the Lay Lake area and willing to share the responsibility of manning the newly-opened Montstellers station.

SVFD can be contracted through the county sheriff's office at 669-4181.

Santa greets county's foster children

by Elizabeth J. Patterson
Staff Writer

About 150 people attended a Christmas party for foster children at the Community Services Building in Columbiana December 14.

The children were treated with candy from Santa Claus, McDonald's Hamburglar and Show Biz's Billy Bob, and with donated presents and food.

After the meal, a puppet show was given by members of the First Assembly Church of God in Vincent. The puppets sang Christmas carols and a church member told stories afterward.

Santa Claus gave the children presents donated by Enon Baptist Church near Montevallo. Additional gift packages were provided by merchants.

Presents included balloons, candy, pencils, make-up, jewelry, hats, frisbees and a variety of other items.

"You name it and there was something," said Anita Taylor, a foster parent who helped coordinate the event.

Shelby County has about 70 foster children. About 50 children ranging in age from two to 17, parents and relatives attended the party sponsored by the Foster Parents Association, Taylor said.

Pat Cannady, president of the association, said the annual Christmas party is a special occasion for foster families.

Brothers and sisters who are in different foster families are reunited for the holiday and children who once shared the same foster home are happy to see one another again. The party is also a good opportunity for making new friends, she said.

The Foster Parents Association meets every six weeks at the Community Services building. A date for the January meeting has not yet been set.

For more information, call Cannady at 668-1849, Chris Miller at 669-3111 or Maureen Kelley at 663-7576.

The Foster Parents Association wanted to thank the following businesses for their help: Alabaster Industries, Bargain Town in Alabaster, Betty McGee, Big B, Burger King, Central Alabama Office Supply, Cobb Theatres, Coca Cola, Columbiana Fire Department, Danny's Deli, Dillard Paper, Dr. Charles Bordenca, E.L. ## Jones is number 2 in sales

Hazel Jones of Montevallo was runner-up for salesperson of the year for Spiller Furniture Stores.

The fourteen stores that make up the chain are divided into two groups, based on annual sales volume. Jones was runner-up for the red store group, which is the larger volume group.

The awards are based on the highest volume of personal sales produced during the previous year.

Montevallo doctor gives vision screenings to county students

Dr. Michael Anderson gave vision screenings to 132 children at Calera Elementary School December 6.

The examinations revealed 17 children with problems that need to be followed up, according to Debbie Boswell, a speech pathologist based at the school.

County schools screen first and fifth graders for vision each year, Boswell said. She and Philip Haynie, principal, coordinated the project at Calera Elementary School and Anderson donated his time.

For the screening, children held a large letter E and faced Anderson, who held a card with an E printed on it. As he turned his card from side to side and top to bottom, the children changed the position of their own letters to match his.

Anderson said this method of screening is especially good for first graders because they may not know the alphabet well enough to recognize and tell which letter is in a test.

First graders with a visual acuity of less than 20-30 failed the screening, with fifth graders failing if visual acuity was less than 20-25.

The main problems Anderson is looking for in school screenings are nearsightedness and amblyopia, known as lazy eye.

Children who are nearsighted are not likely to have problems with reading, but will have poor distance vision that keeps them from seeing the blackboard clearly, Anderson explained.

Children who have a lazy eye are often not aware that vision in one eye is poor because they see well from the other eye, he said. When the problem is found, the good eye may be covered to force the weak eye to work.

Early detection is important because the longer the eye is inactive, the weaker the nerves get from lack of use, causing a permanent loss, Anderson said.

All children should have their eyes examined before they are four years old because treatment at that time can preserve full use of the eye, he said. Anderson urged parents not to consider a pediatric examination adequate for young children, but to get them a full visual examination.

Even children who are too young to speak can be tested. In a retinoscopy exam, a light is shone into the eye to find focusing problems and see if glasses are needed.

The eyes are also checked for biocularity, the focusing of both eyes together, and for health problems.

This was Anderson's fourth year of screening at Calera Elementary School. He also provides this service in Montevallo.

He sends letters to parents of children who show problems asking them to bring the children for a more extensive, free screening at Montevallo Eye Clinic where he practices.

Hosts are urged to be responsible in serving liquor

If you are planning a holiday party where alcohol will be served, the Safety League urges you to help prevent drinking and driving accidents.

Last year more than 22,000 Americans were killed in alcohol-related traffic accidents, according to National Safety Council statistics. Many of these fatal accidents occurred during the holiday season when many people attend festive celebrations. Recent liquor liability court rulings have made hosts and hostesses responsible if guests at their party drive away in an impaired condition.

The Safety League encourages you to heed the following safety tips:

- When you mix drinks, be sure to measure the amount of alcohol - it is easy to underestimate the amount of alcohol you are pouring.

- Offers guests a choice of non-alcoholic beverages. Many people prefer not to drink alcohol and accept such drinks only out of politeness.

- Consider suggesting a car pool as part of the invitational process. One person in each group may then be the "designated driver" and refrain from drinking alcohol. That person has the responsibility of driving the others home safely.

- If someone at your party has had too much to drink, convince the person to stay overnight, ride home with someone else, or call a taxi for him or her.

Lady Liberty equals 38 Vincent students

Students at Vincent Elementary School recently held their social studies fair. Winners will compete in the county fair this spring.

Sylvia Gates Kindergarten class won first place with Christmas Trees Around the World. Other kindergarten winners are Tara Baldwin's class, second place; Brenda Harris's class, third; Susan Holcombe's class, fourth.

In the first grade Patricia Arledge's class won first place with Happy Birthday Statue of Liberty. Other winners were Paula Cooper's class, second; Eugenia Card's class, third and Dale Sumners's class, fourth.

Sarah Campbell's second grade class placed first with Indian Homes. Ginger Trawick's class won second place.

In the third grade, Brenda Lowe's class won first place with Indian Shelters. Elizabeth Darby's class placed second.

Beginning with the fourth grade, there were individual student winners. Andrea Thurber placed first with Our Flag, a poster. Wendy Moon placed second and Jeremy Gibson placed third.

In the fifth grade, Vanessa Engle placed first with a paper, A Trip to Nova Scotia. Sherry Pruett and Josh Brasher tied for second, Lisa Waldrop placed third and Max Roper placed fourth. Honorable mentions were Cody Sumners and Michelle Goss.

Campbell's second grade class built models of the different kinds of houses American Indians lived in, a project inspired by Thanksgiving discussions about Indians.

She discovered her students thought all Indians had lived in teepees and used the project to demonstrate the variety of houses and to teach about Indian lifestyles.

The actual teepee dwellers were Plains Indians in the southwest, who used easily-dissembled houses because they were nomadic hunters.

The variety of houses studied and constructed by the class included:

- longhouses made from wood used in the northeast by hunting and farming Indians,
- platform houses with a roof and no sides used in Florida's warm climate,
- wooden homes from the northwest that included totem poles telling the histories of families,
- wigwams from the Alabama area made of brush, branches and mud,
- adobe houses and apartment-like structures built against cliffs in the Southwest,
- hogans made of wood in a hexagon shape with grass tops.

"Kids are excited about dinosaurs, Indians and space," Campbell said. "I try to build on whatever they're interested in."

Arledge's first grade class also won a blue ribbon for their statue of liberty.

She said her students were curious about the statue because of the publicity about its 100th anniversary and its restoration.

In a two-week unit of study on the statue, the children made their own copy of it, using strips of newspaper glued with flour-and-water paste over chicken wire.

Another teacher, Tricia Corbett, went to New York for the Thanksgiving Day parade and brought back information about the statue and a figurine of it. Using this, the encyclopedia and newspapers, the children gathered a set of facts about the statue.

They were interested to learn that it is made of copper, like a penny, which has turned greenish in the rain and snow.

"They enjoyed learning that she is 150 feet and one inch — that she is so tall and they still count the one inch."

Arledge's students love to recite the information, such as the 168 steps from the sandals to the crown.

To communicate the enormity of the statue's weight — 450,000 pounds — Arledge told students that it weighs the same as 225 elephants. The class also calculated that it takes about 38 children to make the height of the statue.

The project has made Arledge and her students eager to do more. She has a unit of study on Halley's comet in mind for the future.

Agent gives advice for after Christmas

By Peggy Prucnal
Shelby County Agent

The holidays are almost over. Now comes the hard part — cleaning up — that candle wax stain on your best tablecloth, that salad dressing stain down the front of your husband's best dress shirt, that mysterious stain right in the center of your lace tablecloth. Stain removal doesn't have to be complicated. Just follow the following guidelines:

- Be Knowledgeable. Know as much about the stain and fabric as possible. Read labels carefully.
- Be Prompt. Treat stains as quickly as possible.
- Be Patient. If the item is worth saving, it is worth the extra time and effort.
- Be Persistent. You may need to repeat a procedure several times to remove a difficult stain.
- Be Careful. Test your procedure on a hidden area to check color change or fabric damage.

Because today's dyes, fabrics, fibers and finishes are complex, it may be impossible to remove a stain without damaging the fabric. When in doubt, let your dry cleaner do the work.

GUIDE FOR REMOVING COMMON STAINS FROM WASHABLE FABRICS

- Tannin: an example of tannin is coffee, tea, cola, fruit juice and washable ink. Wash immediately. If the stain has aged, pour boiling water on it first from a height. Wash in synthetic detergent. Do not use soap. Bleach with sodium perborate or chlorine bleach, if necessary.

- Grease: an example of grease is cooking fats, salad oils, cream, butter, vitamin drops, lubricating oils and greases. Pretreat with liquid detergent. Wash in hot detergent water. Add ammonia for heavy stains. On fabrics containing nylon or polyester, use a grease solvent-based spray. Then wash in hot water and detergent.
- Alcohol: an example of alcohol is beer, whiskey and wine. Wash immediately in hot water and detergent.
- Colored pigment in waxy or plastic carrier: an example is candle wax and crayon. Scrape off excess wax. Spray with solvent-based stain remover. Wash in hot water to which ammonia has been added. Bleach any remaining stain.

SPECIAL STAIN REMOVAL METHODS

Unidentifiable stains on a washable fabric should be laundered first. Then if any stain remains, try the following suggestions, in order, until the stain disappears. Test each cleaning agent on your fabric first for color change.

1. Sponge the area with a nonflammable dry-cleaning solvent to remove any possible oil. Then air-dry the fabric.
2. Apply a paste made from waterless hand cleaner and gently rub. Let it stand awhile and repeat. Rinse well with water.

3. Soak it in cold water for at least ½ hour.
4. Apply a liquid detergent solution (1 tablespoons in ½ cup of water) and a few drops of vinegar. Rinse thoroughly.
5. Apply a liquid detergent solution with a few drops of ammonia. Rinse.
6. Sponge with alcohol and pat with a pad of absorbent material dampened with alcohol. Allow fabric to air-dry.
7. Soak the item in an enzyme presoak. Check the package for soaking time.
8. Launder, using bleach if it is safe for the fabric. (Check the label.) Air-dry until you are sure the stain is out.

If the item is expensive, it would be wise to take it to a dry cleaner for professional help rather than trying these steps.

Invisible stains may seem strange, but if the staining material is not washed out, it can show up later. Many fruit juices and drinks disappear into the fabric, leaving no visible stain. However, sugars are deposited in the fabric. If the fabric is then dry-cleaned, the heat will turn the sugar brown (caramelize). Dry-cleaning fluid doesn't dissolve these sugars. After the stain becomes visible, it can't be removed. So if you spill juice or a soft drink on a fabric that must be dry-cleaned, flush it out with water promptly — even if the stain is invisible.

For more information call our office for Stain Removal Made Easy/For Washable Fabrics HE-509.

CARING FOR CHRISTMAS PLANTS

Most of the plants you got for Christmas were greenhouse grown under almost ideal conditions. Moving them to the flower shop or garden center and then into the home can be quite a shock for them. You need to provide the proper light, temperature, moisture and soil conditions to keep the plant looking pretty after the holidays are over.

Here are some tips on caring for three of the most popular Christmas gift plants — poinsettia, chrysanthemums and azaleas.

The poinsettia is one of the most popular Christmas holiday plants. Although red poinsettias are the most common, pink and white ones are available also. The newer varieties are extremely long-lasting and should stay pretty long after New Year's Day.

How often and how much to water a poinsettia varies from one location to another depending on temperature and light. Generally, plants should be watered lightly once or twice a week rather than heavily at one time. Don't place the plant in a draft. Indirect natural light will prevent premature leaf drop.

Chrysanthemums are the most popular plants sold on a year-round basis in Alabama. Favorite colors are yellow, white and bronze. Water the plant when the soil begins to crumble and feel a little dry. Don't wait until the plant wilts, but don't keep it saturated, either. A sunny window in a room that is comfortable for you is suitable for the plant.

Although most people associate azaleas with spring, these plants bloom in many florist shops during the Christmas season. Some varieties are even suitable for planting outdoors. To keep azaleas blooming, set the pot in a saucer that has water in it at all times. Put plants in indirect sunlight. Plant hardy varieties outdoors after they stop blooming.

SHOP SMART AFTER CHRISTMAS

It's the day after Christmas. We've eaten enough to last into the New Year. To help work off some of those calories — go shopping!

Bargain hunters know that everything they wanted, but didn't get for Christmas, is now on sale.

Substantial price reductions at the end of the fall/winter season make beautiful fashions even more attractive. But it's difficult to distinguish a really good buy from simply a low price. As you look at slashed price tags, determine why the item is so tempting. An item may still be expensive, even on sale, but when compared to the lofty original price, it's not too bad. If the new price is so low you just can't resist, although you can think of no use for it in your wardrobe, beware.

Look for classic styles (like simple A-line skirts, trouser pants and wool blazers) in better materials than you usually buy at full price.

Current fashion trends widely accepted this year are likely to change only slightly by next fall and winter.

A Kubota diesel lawn and garden tractor is a gift that's useful all year. It's a snowblower this winter. It's a mower when summer comes. There are also tiller and front blade implements to make it even more versatile.

And with a water-cooled 2- or 3-cylinder diesel engine, a Kubota is built to outlast ordinary gas mowers by several seasons.

There are four new Kubota G-Series lawn and garden models, from 10 to 14 horsepower. So there's one to fit in every Santa's bag.

Columbiana librarian begins her story in London, England

How far is London, England from the city of Columbiana? For the new Columbiana librarian, it represents 19 years, 2 children and a variety of work and travel experiences since leaving London. Growing up in London, Elizabeth Drewry began her 'library story' with receiving a master's degree from the University of Aston in Birmingham, England. After working a short time in the library system in the London Borough of Hammersmith, Mrs. Drewry accepted a one year appointment in the Catalog Department at the University of Georgia Library. Her work there was extended, however, after marrying one of the faculty members, L. Aubrey Drewry, a professor of economics.

The years following brought a variety of broadening experiences. As head librarian on "World Campus Afloat" sponsored by Chapman College (California), Mrs. Drewry assisted students studying and travelling to Europe and South America. With a move to North Carolina, she took a position in the Serials Department of Western Carolina University Library.

The Drewry family moved to Alabama in 1977 when Aubrey accepted the position of R. Hugh Daniel Professor of Business at Birmingham-Southern College. The college archives benefited from Mrs. Drewry's expertise when she undertook a project to organize these historical materials. Mrs. Drewry moved on to become school librarian at All Saints Episcopal School in Homewood. Her most recent experience was as a librarian for the British Culture Association in Malta for the year that her husband taught at the University of Malta while on sabbatical leave from Birmingham Southern College.

Besides travel, Elizabeth Drewry's other interests include gardening, cooking, hiking, camping, music and theatre, and of course, reading.

Her primary concerns as she begins her new duties will be, as she says, 'getting every book to its reader and every reader to its book.'

UM approves scholarship program

A scholarship program to train future minority faculty members was approved by the University of Montevallo Board of Trustees recently.

The program, which will provide up to $3,000 per semester, is part of the consent decree through which UM was dropped from the desegregation suit against state colleges currently pending in federal court.

Under the program, UM will help fund graduate work for minority students who make a commitment to return to UM as faculty members. If they fail to return to UM upon completing their degrees, they will be required to repay the scholarship funds they received.

The program was outlined by Dr. Gertrude McGuire, UM's Equal Opportunity Officer. She also brought the trustees up to date on various other aspects of the consent decree.

President Jim Vickrey told the trustees that Dr. McGuire's work in equal opportunity was instrumental in Montevallo being excluded from the statewide lawsuit. UM has pursued established goals in both black student and faculty recruiting for several years.
